How Good News Spreads.

They effect a cure every time." They never fail to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, invigorate the nerves and purify the blood. They work wonders for weak, run-down men and women, restoring strength, vigor and health that's a daily joy. Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction is positively guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son.

The Amateur.

The house dog's left the kitchen door,
Where once with faith complete
He lingered fourly to implore
Some dainty thing to eat.
With mournful bay he went away,
Nor gave one backward look.

Since Gladys learned to cook.

She says that eggs and meat are not Required by you and me.
She tosses string beans in the pot
With epicurean glee.
We struggle with the bill of fare
That she reads in a book.
Indeed, this life is full of care
Since Gladys learned to cook.

Feeding.

Let blessings rest upon our meal,
Though 'tis no sumptuous repast.
Accept the gratitude we feel
At e'en such chance to break our fast.
For here's a soup of water hot,
A pudding made of wholesome bran,
Potatoes steaming in the pot,
A herring smoking in the pan.
No sign of meat? No, none of that.
Yes, tender steak might taste right nice,
But nowadays a plutocrat
Is any man who has the price.

Bed Feather Markets.

The plains of Hungary are well adapted for the raising of geese, and travelers in that country are often entertained by seeing from passing trains great flocks of geese feeding in the fields and watched by goose herds. So many feathers are yielded by these geese that four "bed feather markets" are held annually at Budapest, and at each market from 600,000 to 700,000 pounds of bed feathers are placed on sale.

Nearly all the high grade brooms of the world are made in the United States, where, too, they are for the most part sold, though some of the inferior grades are sent abroad. The national convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers will also come here at that time and add 6,000 to what will be the greatest throng of visitors Jackson ever had.

Most of the oak groves which sheltered the early patriots have disappeared, but on the lot owned by Postmaster Richardson at Second and Franklin streets some of the original old oaks remain, and a tablet will be erected under them. Taft will be at Monroe for the Custer monument unveiling on the morning of June 4, coming here in the afternoon.

WARNER TO ADDRESS AUTOMOBILE MAKERS

Banquet Takes Place in New York Tonight.

New York, April 7.—Governor Warner of Michigan, who is to be the guest of honor and one of the speakers at the banquet of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers tonight at the Hotel Astor, arrived here today in a special car from Detroit. He was accompanied by a special escorting committee of Detroit automobile manufacturers, headed by Henry B. Joy, chairman of the banquet committee, and Hugh Chalmers. Cars were in waiting for the party at the Grand Central station, and a suite of rooms for Governor Warner was engaged at the Hotel Astor.

During the day Governor Warner will be taken for an automobile ride around the city, accompanied by a special committee headed by Leo Counselman of Detroit.

In addition to Governor Warner, the other speakers tonight will be Colonel Charles Clifton, president of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers; William H. Prominent Man Files Suit For Divorce, Naming Corespondent Bay City, Mich., April 7.—Melvin M. Saunders, district manager of the Michigan State Telephone company, just before the close of the county clerk's office Wednesday afternoon, filed a suit for divorce, naming Walter H. LeFevre, secretary and treasurer of the Excelsior Foundry company and also of the Marine Iron works, as co-respondent. At the same time he filed a summons in a suit for damages for $15,000 against LeFevre.

MILLIONAIRE INDICTED.

Charged With Bribery and Conspiracy by Pittsburg Jury.

Pittsburg, April 7.—The grand jury Wednesday indicted Frank N. Hoffstet, millionaire president of the German National bank of Allegheny and president of the Pressed Steel Car comapny, on charges of bribery and conspiracy. President Emil Winter of the Workingmen's Savings Bank and Trust company of Allegheny, went into court and confessed that he had bribed councilmen to the extent of $20,000. James M. Anderson, general bookkeeper of the Workingmen's Savings Bank and Trust company, was arraigned on a charge of having mutilated the books of his bank to save exposure of certain persons. He was placed under bail.

For some time Hoffstot has been making his residence in New York, and the grand jury calls on the district attorney to proceed forthwith to extradite him.

District Attorney William A. Blakeley appeared as a citizen before this grand jury in connection with the Hoffstot probe and told how, before he became district attorney, he had been approached by Hoffstot, by the late J. W. Friend and by Councilman Charles Stewart and asked to act as stakeholder for a fund of $52,000 which they were to pay certain councilmen for the passage of a bank ordinance. Attorned Blakeley refused to consider the proposition.

FORTIFY THE CANAL!

Members of Panama Fortification Board Place Cost at $10,000,000.

Washington, April 7.—The members of the Panama fortification board which visited the Panama canal recently will submit their report to Secretary of War Dickinson within the next few weeks. The work of fortifying the canal will cost about $10,000,000.

Tentative plans had been prepared by the board prior to its visit to the isthmus for seacoast defense at both ends of the canal and for land defenses for these termini and for the canal locks and docks. Estimates had also been prepared of the probable number of troops required for the defenses. The board inspected the proposed sites at both ends and along the route of the canal and found that the tentative plans for both seacoast and land defenses required but slight modifications.

They Fix Price of Butter.

Washington, April 7.—John Newman, president of the Elgin board of trade of Elgin, Ill., Wednesday told the senate select committee investigating the prices of commodities that five men who meet every Monday morning in Elgin arbitrarily fixed the price of creamery butter to consumers. The five men name the highest price which the market, in their judgment, will stand. The "quotation board" is the technical name by which the five arbitrators of butter prices are known to the trade, according to the witness.

BOLD ATTEMPT TO STEAL AUTO

Lively Affair Takes Place In Detroit.

WHOLE THING A MYSTERY

Two Men Ride Up to Drug Store and Enter For Cigars—Three Passers-by Jump Into Auto and Start Away. Owners Start In Pursuit, Exchanging Shots With Thieves

Detroit, Mich., April 11.—Something like a dozen revolver shots were wildfired shortly after midnight this morning, near the corner of Woodward and Adams avenues, following a bold but unsuccessful attempt to steal and get away with an automobile. Who fired the shots is not known, and the police cannot identify the automobile either by name or number.

The entire affair occurred in an incredibly short space of time, and the machine and the would-be thieves appeared to vanish into space, while a crowd of nearly 200 people was collecting, drawn by the reports of the gun.

Start Off With Car.

The automobile was driven to the curb of Bertram Brothers' drug store, 237 Woodward avenue, just about the hour of midnight. Leaving it standing there, its two occupants jumped out and went into the drug store to purchase cigars. Scarcely were they inside the store when three passers-by leaped into machine and started it going. Just then the owners, or drivers of the auto emerged from the drug store, and shouts of "Stop thief," and revolver reports followed in such rapid succession that no one in the neighborhood at the time could give any coherent account of what really did happen.

The patrolman on the beat telephoned to central station, and Motorcycle Patrolman Frank Schnell hurried to the scene, but only wondering eyes, without even a conjecture as to where the automobile had gone or where the owners or the thieves had vanished to. Late patrons of a restaurant in the vicinity gave the opinion that after the firing of the shots the men who attempted the robbery had jumped out of the machine and made good their escape, and that its rightful owners had regained it and speeded out of sight.

A miniature panic occurred on Woodward avenue while the shooting was going on.

Fearing Arrest, She Kills Herself.

Menominee, Mich., April 11.—Threatened with criminal prosecution because she was believed to have duped many people in fake mining schemes, Jennie Moore threw herself in front of a train at Marinette and was instantly killed. She leaves hundreds of victims in Menominee and the copper country, and when Menominee creditors threatened to cause her arrest she became desperate. Eighteen thousand dollars is due her creditors.

Big Drainage Undertaking.

Monroe, Mich., April 11.—The largest drainage undertaking ever recorded in Monroe county is before a jury in the probate court. It is the deepening and widening of the south branch of the Macon drain, and commences in Dundee township, Monroe county, and terminates in Ridgeway township, in Lenawee county. The entire length of the drain will be over nine miles.

WIRE TAPPERS AT WORK.

Believed They Cleaned Up $1,000,000 on Oakland Race.

Philadelphia, April 11.—A wire tapping coupe of gigantic proportions was pulled off in the Philadelphia pool rooms Saturday. It is said it extended to New York, Chicago and about every large city in the country. The medium by which the trick was consummated was the fourth race at Oakland. One hundred thousand dollars were cleaned up here, but, it is stated, a million dollars were realized by the tappers throughout the country.

ITALIAN TOWN WAS EN FETE

Gay Crowd Receives Roosevelts at Porto Maurizio.

GIVEN FREEDOM OF THE CITY

Villagers, Decked In Their Sunday Best, Accompanied by Band, Gather In Front of Hotel Wherein Honored Guests Take Tea With Mayor—Triumphal Procession Follows.

Porto Maurizio, Italy, April 11.—"It reminded me of America," said Colonel Roosevelt, sitting last evening on the veranda of Miss Carow's villa overlooking the bay of Porto Maurizio. It was, indeed, a day of unmixed enthusiasm. Again the whole town was en fete.

The central point was the Riviera Palace hotel, outside of which, by 3:30 in the afternoon, the whole population of Porto Maurizio gathered in their Sunday clothes. On an angle of the wall, just outside the entrance gate of the hotel, a square canvas, framed with flowers and garlands, attracted the eyes of all. Across the road from it two flower bedecked Venetian masts stretched a long wreath of blossoms and evergreen, tied in the center with red, white and blue ribbons. Close by stood a band and little white garbed boys and girls of the town. In and out of this central spot fussed the municipal authorities. The elite of Porto Maurizio were ranged on the terrace of the hotel grounds.

Roosevelts Arrive.

At about 4:20 loud cheers announced the arrival of Colonel Roosevelt's carriage. With Colonel Roosevelt was Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Carow. The carriage showed how true had been the aim of the posy throwing Porto Maurizians. Behind drove the mayor. There was no preliminary waste of time. Colonel Roosevelt left his carriage, and the band struck up, "The Star Spangled Banner," which it has been playing ever since. Then the canvas square on the wall was pulled down, and "Viale Theodore Roosevelt, April 10, 1910," appeared on a marble slab beneath.

Cheer after cheer arose as the wreath barring the new drive around the back of the hotel was broken. The party then entered the hotel, where the mayor made a short speech of fervent eulogium and presented Colonel Roosevelt with the honorary freedom of the city engrossed on silver bound parchment, and also a book of views in the neighborhood, the work of local artists.

Miss Carow acting as interpreter for the benefit of the audience, Colonel Roosevelt spoke a few fervent words of thanks. He concluded by thanking his "fellow citizens."

A move was then made for the hall of the hotel, where a large party of guests took tea with the mayor, after which Roosevelt and the whole company rose, and triumphal progress was made to Miss Carow's villa, where Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt had dinner.

KILLED AFTER HIS SERMON.

Editor of Belgian Religious Publication Shot Down Outside Church.

Pittsburg, April 11.—Editor Frank Skala of the Christian Journal, a religious Belgian publication, after preaching a sermon in the Second Presbyterian church mission of Woods Run, north side, Sunday morning, was shot dead, after he had stepped outside the church, by Michael Rewdicz, a religious Russian fanatic, who also tried to kill Elder John Gay of the church mission. Gay is in a hospital with three bullets in his body, and can scarcely recover, while the murderer of Skala has escaped.

Rewdicz, who is understood to belong to many Russian societies, was one who attended the services, and he took exception to some remarks made by Skala in his sermon.

SUIT MUST GO ON.

Judge Refuses to Give State Verdict In Ionia Prison Case.

Jackson, Mich., April 11.—According to the decision of Judge Parkinson, the bribery feature of the suit of Albert Wallerstein against the state for damages on account of the cancellation of his shirt contract at the Ionia prison in 1903 is now wide open, and the case promises to be long drawn out.

He decided to admit all direct testimony bearing upon the alleged offering of a bribe to A. R. Locke, a member of the board of control. The court also refused to direct a verdict for the state at this time, taking the view that the testimony of Alfred Wallerstein is susceptible of two interpretations as to whether the convicts were employed all the time according to the terms of the contract, but he said that the motion could be renewed for further consideration after the testimony was in.

Licenses Much In Demand.

Pontiac, Mich., April 11.—Not only in Pontiac, but throughout Oakland county, there is a great hustling for saloon licenses. It is estimated that there will be from thirty to forty applicants for the ten red cards that Pontiac will authorize. At Novi the executive committee of the township W. C. T. U. met with the town board and persuaded the latter to adopt a resolution not to grant any licenses in that township. At Oxford there are ten applicants for the two licenses which the village may grant.

Barnett Bribery Case Dropped.

Lansing, Mich., April 11.—Prosecutor Foster has nolle prossed the case against C. J. Barnett, charged with bribery. Barnett, as comptroller of Bay City, is said to have wanted a certain municipal proposition at Bay City put through the legislature.

Why Run Risks?

A Canadian author wrote an anthem for a recent celebration in Toronto.

Toward the end of the exercises, when the people were going out a few at a time, the author rushed to the conductor and said:

"Is it over?"

"Practically."

"But, great Scott, man, they haven't sung my anthem!"

"Well," said the conductor, "so long as the people are going out peacefully and quietly, why sing it at all?"—Saturday Evening Post.

CHINESE TONG WAR BEGUN AGAIN

Four Chinks Slain in New York and Washington.

New York, April 11.—The long blue, forty-fives of the tong fighters jumped from old holsters Sunday, and within four hours two Chinamen were killed and a third was seriously wounded. The fighting was between the On Leon tong and the new organization of the Four Brothers, which has recently risen on Pell street to supplant the old Hip Sing tong and to dispute with Tom Lee's organization the gambling monopoly of Chinatown.

One man each of the On Leongs and the Four Brothers was shot; the third shot met his death by mistake. He sat in a seat at a gambling table which had just been vacated by a Four Brother man marked for death, and the long muzzle of the searching forty-five, which was poked around a corner from behind a partition, spit its bullet into his vitals. With one On Leong man dead, the Four Brothers man only wounded and the innocent third party in no way tallying up the score, the balance of vengeance is still with the On Leongs, and the police believe that more shooting may occur before the old feud drops once more into smoldering inaction.

No one that walks Mott and Pell streets as a stranger, and not of the blood there, can say what slipping of a cog in the secret jealousies between the gamblers precipitated the murderous flare-up of Sunday. Old scores unfetted, such as the murder of Bow Kum, the slave girl, and the subsequent attempt on the part of one tong to send two men of the rival society to the chair on perjured testimony or the more recent murder of a Japanese who was most known for a man marked for killing from among the On Leongs—these circumstances may have been contributory.

SPREADS TO PHILADELPHIA.

Two Slain In Quaker City as Result of Tong War.

Philadelphia, April 11.—Spreading to this city, the tong war which began in New York Sunday afternoon resulted, late Sunday night, in the killing of two Chinamen, the fatal wounding of another and the shooting of a fourth, who will recover.

The shooting occurred in two places—a grocery store and a restaurant, both located in Chinatown—shortly before midnight, and the police, after a cursory investigation, expressed the belief that the trouble was due to the rivalry between the On Leong tong and the Hip Sing tong, the latter being the same organization as that known in New York as the Four Brothers.

As the direct result of the killing here the police immediately roped off Race street between Ninth and Tenth and made a round-up of prisoners, making forty-five arrests in all. So mysteriously did the gun users operate that the police are by no means certain that they have caught the shooters.

SAVES HIS TRAIN.

Wounded Engineer Manages to Put on Brakes.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 11.—Although almost completely paralyzed, Fred G. Daniels, an engineer in the Lehigh Valley railroad, managed to save passenger train No. 2, which he was running, from colliding with the rear end of a freight train.

The train was near Maxwell, when, leaning out of his cab window, Daniels saw the rear lights of a freight. At the same time a bolt, dropping from the engine, struck the driving rod and was hurled at him. It hit his forehead and drove him backward. His neck struck with great force against the brake lever, and he fell to the floor helpless.

Despite the blow, however, he reached for the lever as he fell and in some manner threw it into a notch, which set the safety brakes, and the train stopped a few yards from the rear end of the freight. When the fireman reached Daniels he was helpless, unable to move, and he is now but little better.

Revealed By Fire

What a Discarded Lover's Heroism and Sacrifice Brought Him.

By ADDISON HOWARD GIBSON.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The full September moon shone down upon a little cabin on the dry prairies of western Kansas, lighting up the faces of a young man and woman who were slowly walking up and down the open space before the door.

"I was so happy, Rachel," the man said, glancing at the strong, beautiful face of his companion, "when I heard you school up in the Wyoming mountains was closed and you were coming home. I thought you were coming to stay this time. I hope so, for, Rachel, I've loved you a long time."

Dan Southard leaned toward the girl to study the effect of his avowal on her.

But Rachel Winton betrayed no emotion.

She merely turned her dark eyes from the man's eager face and looked off across the moonlit prairie.

"I've been working and waiting, Rachel," he continued, his voice husky with feeling, "until I had something to offer you. I was sure you wouldn't give up teaching for just anything—you're not that kind.

"But I've loved you ever since two years ago, when we all came out to these prairies together in our covered wagons. I remember, after we were here, how bravely you worked to help your parents get started off comfortably before you went with your uncle to Wyoming to teach that ranch school."

"Dan," she exclaimed almost sternly, "I haven't ceased to remember our old house, which father lost on that security debt, the home we were forced to leave when we came here. Mother and I were not very brave, for we shed tears most of the way, though no one knew it. We came because it was the only thing to do, but this pioneer life is a hard, hard one.

"In my heart I am at war with it and always have been. It takes away youth and kills all high and noble ambitions. See how mother has aged during the two years we have lived here. It makes me bitter. That's why I go back to teach. I'm going to make enough to take them away from this life."

"But, Rachel," he pleaded, "you shall never work as your mother has had to, I promise it," then suddenly, with a catch in his voice, "Say, girlie, there's no truth in the report about your caring for that rich Wyoming ranchman?"

"Mr. Miles has been very kind to me," she answered without pretending not to understand. "He has offered to let father and mother have the lovely home he owns in Denver if I'll marry him. It would be an ideal place for them to end their days in."

"My God, girlie! I couldn't stand it to see you the wife of another!" the young man cried, his strong frame shaken with emotion.

"You mustn't care so much, Dan," she returned, tender pity for his suffering making her tones kind. "Get a better girl to share your home—one who will love you enough to make the best of this hard life."

"Never, never, Rachel!" he answered, with passion. "I love only you. If you could but read my heart and see how much you would surely care just a little for me. Your ranchman, rich as he is, will never love you as I do, Rachel! Never!"

"I couldn't love any man well enough to give up all I enjoy and settle down to this isolated life, this continual treadmill of drudgery," she retorted, turning away, then in a milder tone, "Forget me, Dan."

Forget her! That he would never do—he never could. There was a time—it was when they lived in their covered wagons and camped at night by the trail; yes, and even after they were settled here—that he had thought she cared for him.

Those had been the happiest days in Southard's life. He had never dreamed that she hated those free, rolling prairies so intensely.

Blind to this, he had been toiling on his new claim to get things in good shape before asking her to marry him.

Bitterly now he felt that it was all labor lost, for without Rachel Winton nothing was worth while.

After gazing at the girl a moment in silent reproach Southard walked over to his tethered horse, mounted and rode away.

The moon climbed higher as Rachel stood looking after the vanishing horseman.

"Poor Dan!" she murmured. "He is so strong and good. Father and mother love him like a son, but I just can't, can't!" And the tears gathered in her eyes.

"I was intended for something better. If I wasn't, why should I dislike the rough, crude ways of pioneer life so terribly?"

With this question on her lips Rachel Winton entered the cabin, where her parents were already asleep, and sought her couch.

For a long time she lay awake, her mind, much against her will, busy comparing young Southard and Mr. Niles.

Dan's clear cut but somewhat boyish face lost nothing by comparison with that of the bearded, middle aged ranchman who had been wooing her persistently for the past year.

Life with one meant the unceasing drudgery of the prairie farm; with the other, wealth to enable her to live wherever she might choose herself and also give her parents a comfortable home.

But which of the men held the key to her heart?

Really she could not tell, but she grew drowsy making herself believe she would be able in any event to compel her mind with its power of judging wisely to control her heart.

Toward midnight she was aroused by a strange pungent smell pervading her little room. Her breathing was not quite free. What could it mean?

She lay for a minute dazed, yet with what sense she could command, trying to discover the cause of the odor that was gaining in strength and stifling power.

Suddenly a great crimson light illumined the small window. With a quick movement Rachel sprang from bed, and as she did so there came to her ears the rapid beat of a horse's hoofs on the prairie road.

Then she heard Dan's voice burdened with awful import.

"Rachel!" he called. "Mr. Winton! Get up! Get up quick! The prairie is on fire!"

"Father! Mother!" the girl called, running to their bed. "Get up! Do you hear? There is a big fire. Yes, Dan," she called from the window as she helped her mother to dress.

"There's not a minute to lose," Southard called back. "The fire is sweeping this way as fast as a strong wind can bring it."

There had been no rain for three weeks, and everything was dry as tinder.

The Wintons understood the terrible danger impending.

Not only the cabin, but stock, crops, even they themselves, were at the mercy of those leaping flames.

"Bring the blankets, quick!" shouted Southard. Obeying him instantly, Rachel dragged every blanket out of the house.

Dan had ridden his horse to the little spring in the hollow and was rapidly filling every pail he had been able to find about the place.

Acting under his directions, the girl mounted her father's pony, and she and Dan carried water for Mr. and Mrs. Winton to wet the blankets, this being their only means of fighting the fire.

How they worked and fought! It seemed as if the whole world was arrayed against them, and all the while the moon looked down, cold and uncaring, while the fire swept fiercely onward until it caught in a row of dry cornstalks that reached nearly to the cabin. Here the battle must be fought with renewed energy.

The smoke of the burning grass and grain assailed their nostrils, scorched their throats and blinded their eyes, but with hands torn and blistered they toiled on.

When the old couple fell back overcome Dan and Rachel took their places with the heavy wet blankets and worked side by side. Inch by inch they beat back the angry flames.

Even in that terrible situation the girl felt a singular strength and coolness in working by Southard's side. She felt that the enemy must yield to such grand and compelling superiority.

When the fire attacked them from another vulnerable point it was Dan's exhaustless energy that saved the day.

By sacrificing a patch of ripe grain, through a prompt back fire, the foe was met and made to recoil in wrathful flames upon itself.

After a time the great body of the fire swept away northward, having consumed everything of the Wintons' except cabin and stock.

With a thankfulness in their hearts for the preservation of these, the old couple entered the house and threw themselves upon the floor.

Then Southard and Rachel came back with weary, lagging feet from their last successful onslaught.

"Everything's safe now, Rachel," he said huskily, starting toward his horse.

"Dan," she questioned, a queer choking in her throat, "you are not going now?"

He stopped and looked at her. She had never appeared more beautiful to him than now, with the marks of that great fire battle upon her face and tattered dress.

"All we have left we owe to you, Dan," she went on, noting his scorched face, bleeding hands and burned clothing.

Then she placed her blackened hand on his shoulder. How he trembled under that touch.

"I don't feel as if I could bear to have you leave us, Dan." There was a tender pleading in her tones.

"The danger's over, Rachel," he reassured her, "and I must ride all the way to Westfield before daybreak."

"Why to Westfield?" she asked.

Without a word he pointed across the blackened prairie toward his claim.

Only a mass of smoking ruins marked the place where his house and stable had been. She understood.

"You left all you had to come to us, Dan," she said, with a sob. "Now you have nothing left. Without your help everything here, even our lives, would have been sacrificed. Oh, Dan, the light of that fire has given me a right of my own heart! I see that the true life for me is right here, and if you'll let me I'll help you make another home."

"Rachel!" he cried. "You can't mean it! Do you really love me?"

"I have loved you all the time, my knight of the prairies," she answered as his strong arms gathered her to his breast.

Lyonnaise Potatoes.

Take six cold boiled potatoes and cut into thin slices; chop up an onion fine and fry to a light brown in a tablespoonful of hot butter in a frying pan, then add the potatoes and fry them also to a light brown, turning them often; put them into a hot dish, stirring in a teaspoonful of chopped parsley.

Filling For Turnovers.

Take one coffee cup of raisins and two small lemons after removing the seeds and chop together fine. Add two well beaten eggs, a large cup of sugar, half a cup of molasses and a tablespoonful of melted butter. This will make about a dozen and a half turnovers, or it is nice for a pie.

HE CALLS UP REMINISCENCES OF THE EARLY DAYS IN TECUMSEH

It Will Doubtless Refresh the Memories of the Residents of 50 Years Ago

Long Branch, Cal. Apr. 4, '10.
Editor Herald:

If I had not been a life long total abstainer and if I did not live in a "dry" city, I might think I had been boozing when I wrote the first paragraph of my last letter, and I will certainly excuse any of my readers for thinking so—if I wrote the paragraph as it was printed. What I meant to say was:

Editor Herald: With your permission, I will invite the writer of "Looking Backward forty years or more," to go with me down the south side of Chicago street, etc., etc.

This is no "kick," only a correction, the error caused probably by poor penmanship, which age does not improve.

The first building east of the R. R. was Dr. Patterson's, a two story residence which in those early days was considered one of the best frame buildings in the village.

Next east was a brick block of stores. I can remember when this block was built, but when it comes to the number of stores and their occupants, my memory balks a little. I think, however, that the Andersons, Moore and Selfriges, Osborn & Lawrence, and Ward & Strickland, occupied them at different times with dry-goods and groceries, and Dr. Patterson occupied the store at the east end of the block as a drug stote, and I think Wright Bros., had a drug store at the west end of the block.

East of this block, with a driveway between, was a one story frame building occupied by Mr. Burton, with watches, clocks and jewelry, and the postoffice. The postmaster, whom I best remember, was Col. McNair.

One reason why I remember this little old building more distinctly than some of the other more pretentious ones is, that David McNair, who used to help his father in the office, would sometimes invite me to go into the inner office with him while he made up the outgoing mail. In those days this was a slow and primative process. All letters for any destination were wrapped in paper in a bundle with the destination marked on the outside. Then an entry was made in a large book, the destination and number of letters recorded. The process was the same where a dozen letters or only one was for a certain destination. When mails were received, the first thing was to remove the wrappers from the packages and when the mails were quite heavy, the waiting public out into the lobby would become quite impertinent, waiting, but when Mr. Burton would take his violin and play a few tunes, as he some times did, it had a soothing effect on their impatience.

How anxiously they watched their boxes to see if any mail, especially letters, appeared in them. Lock boxes were not as common as now. I remember that our box was in the lower tier and the second one from the left hand lower corner.

Stepping out of the postoffice we step into a furniture store, or cabinet shop, owned I think, by Richards & VanTine. Wonder if I can't smell fresh varnish yet?

The next room east was occupied by Charles Hewitt as Justice of the Peace. His home was next east, a fine two story brick, one of the finest in the country at that time.

On the corner stood a two story frame building. It was at one time occupied by Mr. Guion with dry goods. The upper floor was used for resident purposes, but by whom I do not remember. I think George Ketcham, Sr., built a brick house on the opposite corner east. Then Dr. Patterson built his fine brick house which was considered at that time almost a mansion. If my memory serves me right, an old yellow one story house was moved onto the next corner east and fixed up and became the home of Dudley Sholes, the harness maker. How plainly I remember genial "Dud" Sholes, as everybody called him.

The next house east was the home of Dr. Eeveritt, who had a son, Robert, whom we all called Bob or Doc, whichever came to our minds first.

The next building was the old court house and jail and in those days used for school purposes.

As I have written at some length of this old building and our happy school days there, I will close this reminiscense here, and in another letter, go up the west side.

Now may I tell you a little about Easter Sunday in this summery Southland, and especially of the days here in Long Branch, "The City Beautiful?"

I well knew from past experniece what an effort it always is to decorate the churches back in the old times on Easter Sunday. Here in Long Branch nearly every home is surrounded with a variety of beautiful flowers in full bloom at this season of the year, and yet great pains are taken to decorate the interior of the churches of which we have a dozen or more. Our church alone, the Christian church, used four thousand calla lillies in their decorations, while other churches used a greater variety in their decorations.

Unfortunately for the Easter exercises Sunday, but very fortunately for this section of country at large, Sunday was a very rainy day. Beginning Saturday evening, it rained hard all night, and Sunday we had one of the hardest rain storms of the season, which was worth millions to the farmers, ranches and gardeners.

ALMOST A FIGHT.

The following gleaned from reports from Guthrie, Okla., tells its own story:

The interference of friends prevented what might have been something serious and which was very unpleasant to say the least.

Gov. C. N. Haskell, well known in Tecumseh, and Adjutant Gen. Canton of the Oklahoma National Guard, were parties in a quarrel, and it was claimed that Cantoh drew a revolver which was taken from him by his friends.

The trouble arose over the band, which had been engaged to furnish music made for the occasion by the republican committee on the opening of the campaign for Congressman McGuire. The Gen. gave an order that the band should not appear in military uniform nor use the regiment's instruments. When the order was received the band was playing, but they discarded their uniforms secured other instruments and were back on the street again. When Gov. Haskell was made aware of the incident he wrote a letter of apology to Congressman McGuire, explaining that this did not meet his approval.

Late that evening, Gen. Canton sought the governor and used most violent language, and said in effect, "I want you to understand that you cannot countermand my orders, and if you do you will pay for it."

ALMA COLLEGE

Prof. James E. Mitchell, who occupies the chair of history and political science, has returned from Ann Arbor, where he delivered an address on "Monetary Conditions" at the Academy of Science. Prof. Mitchell is a member of the American Historical Association and his papers on history and political science form an important part of the program.

During vacation the Alma College alumni association of Detroit held their annual banquet in the parlors of Hotel Tuller. Besides the invited guests there were forty members present, Frank Hurst acted as toast master, while able toasts were responded to by Stanley Graves in behalf of the present student body and Rev. Sherman L. Divine for the alumni. Dr. J. M. Barkley, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, represented the board of trustees in a scholarly address and Dr. Bruske concluded the toasts with an eloquent talk on the progress and future policy of Alma college, remarking that the endowment had been raised during the past twenty years to the magnificent total of four hundred thousand dollars.

Never before was there such an urgent demand for students to teach in schools and in the laboratories of the great mines of our country. Last year and the year before Prof. West of the chemical department received more requests than he could fill, and this year the demand for chemists far exceeds the demand in former years. In particular requests have come this year from the iron mines of Minnesota for students to work in their laboratories.

Chinese Politeness.

A Chinaman who wears his spectacles in the presence of a guest or a social superior is held to be as rude as in this country we consider a man who fails to remove his hat when meeting women of his acquaintance.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES,

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Tecumseh women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's proof of it in a Tecumseh woman's words:

Mrs. George Burrough, E. Potawatamie street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About a year ago my health became much run down. My kidneys did not act properly and I suffered severely from backache. Knowing of other people who had used Doan's Kidney Pills for similar troubles with the best of results, I procured a box at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. In a few weeks after taking them, I felt better and I am now free from Kidney complaint. I willingly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's, and take no other.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Roast Rabbit.

Put the rabbit into the kettle whole without dividing the pieces from the body. Pour in one quart of water, add a little pinch of soda when it starts to boil, and stew gently until tender. When tender take from the broth. Meantime mix together three large cupfuls dried breadcrumbs, butter the size of a walnut and salt, pepper and sage to taste. Pour enough of the broth over this to mix rather soft. Stuff the rabbit, lay in a pan, spread with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and bake to a rich brown in a moderate oven. It will not take over a few minutes. Make a good brown gravy, adding onion browned in butter if desired. A little onion may be also added to the dressing, according to preference.

Domestic Hints.

Paint on window panes may be removed by washing it with vinegar.

Black knitting silk is a most useful mending for cotton or thread stockings.

Kitchen towels should be washed out daily after the dinner things are put away.

To relieve a cough try sipping a wineglassful of hot milk with a teaspoonful of glycerin in it.

Melon dusted with powdered sugar can often be taken when the plain fruit disagrees.

White kid gloves should be rubbed gently with breadcrumbs after each wearing, and they will keep clean a long time.

When hot flannels are wanted in illness try heating them in a steamer, and you will then avoid the trouble of wringing them.

To Clean White Woolen Shawls.

Spread over a table a sheet or tablecloth. On this place the shawl to be cleaned, powder it all over with finely ground starch, fold it up, powdering it well at each fold, press well together, leave it for several hours wrapped up in the sheet or tablecloth; then well squeeze and rub together with both hands and shake off the starch thoroughly. If carefully done the shawl should look as fresh and white as when new.

Homemade Broom Holder.

In all well regulated households there is usually found a place for the broom, duster, dustpan and carpet beater. The accompanying sketch shows a holder that will provide a place for each one of these articles and keep them where they may be found when wanted.

The holder is made from a board an inch thick, about three inches wide and fourteen inches long. The ends are cut down so as to make them an inch square, leaving the center full width of the board, with a notch cut in it to receive the broom handle. Two shoulder hooks are screwed into the outside edge of the wood, one at each end, to make places to hang the duster and carpet beater. A plate hook turned into the underside of the wood and behind the broom handle makes a place for the dustpan. The wood is fastened to the wall with two nails or wood screws.—Popular Mechanics.

Oatmeal Drop Cakes.

One cup of sugar creamed with one cup of butter, one-half cup of milk, two well beaten eggs, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one cupful of raisins, one cupful of nuts, one cupful of flour and one teaspoonful of baking powder and three cupfuls of oatmeal. Mix thoroughly and drop on greased tins, baking in a moderate oven.

FIRST BAND CONCERT

Assisted by Local Vocal and Instrumental Talent.

The Tecumseh Band is pleased to announce the presentation of its first concert at the Opera House, some time next week.

It had previously been the intention to do this during February, but owing to the loss of a tuba player, it became necessary to assign the part to another and make other changes including a new beginning.

Having recovered in part from the loss they feel they are in a position to please an audience both in the character of selections and their rendition.

Some of the best local vocal and instrumental musical talent have consented to assist and the orchestra is reserving its sweetest strains for this occasion.

The expenses of keeping up a band here exceeds the earnings and the object of this concert is to increase their bank account.

It is the earnest desire of the members to earn every penny received and to anyone attending the concert, who is not thoroughly satisfied with the performance up to the intermission, between the first and last half of the program, his money will be cheerfully refunded at the box office on presentation of his seat check.

Hand bills will not be printed, therefore you can render assistance by telling your neighbors all about it.

The program will be published in next week's papers together with the personal of those taking part. Prices will be made within the reach of all and a crowded house will be highly appreciated.

A STATEMENT

Owing to a decision of the Merchants of Tecumseh to keep their places of business open every evening in the week and considering the fact that at present there exists a law that no Lady Clerk shall be allowed to work more than nine hours each day the firm of Fred Rosacrans & Sons have arranged so that part of their clerks will be on duty at 8 o'clock a. m. and retire at 6 o'clock p. m. while the others will report at 11 o'clock a. m. and remain until closing time providing such time shall not be longer than that provided by law.

REFLECTIONS

Have we a business men's association in Tecumseh? Now if so, this is the time for them to get busy and see to it that our business places are not left vacant.

Prove now that it was not the man but the liquor traffic that you were fighting when you cast your vote Monday by reaching out a hand to help him in a new business.

It is now up to our new officers recently elected to inforce the law for the next two years, and prove the virtues of local option.

Fathers and Mothers must not think that because the saloons are to be eliminated from our town, that all temptation is taken away. Now is the time when they should more than ever throw around them home influences and attractions that will make up to them for what they think they have lost.

Now if those who have worked so faithfully and well to bring about local option would rent one of these buildings and establish a free reading room with the late magazines, the daily papers etc. etc. to entertain those who have been used to spending their evenings otherwise it would be a fine thing.

And now let us not forget that we have assumed a great responsibility in this election and let every one see to it that he is faithful to his trust.

MONDAY CLUB.

OPEN MEETING APRIL 11, 1910.

The Monday Club met Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Lizzie Smith in Brownville.

Program opened with singing of National hymns of Norway, written by Bjornsigerné Bjornson, by the members of the club. Mrs. Moore then gave a brief sketch of the composer, Christian Sanding—closing with "The Mother Song," which she gave in a very feeling manner.

Mrs. Wood then gave "The Rustle of Spring," a sprightly instrumental composition.

Mrs. Stacy had for her topic: "What Scandinavia can teach us," which she told in a very comprehensive and enjoyable manner, and we felt that we might all profit by a knowledge of Scandinavia.

Mrs. Thos. McCann gave a very sweet vocal solo, the "Swedish Folk song." The "Sweedish wedding march" sung by Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. McAlpine and Mrs. Ruthruff, was very finely given.

A Sweedish Gondolier song, by Miss Brush, was received with great pleasure by all present.

The paper of "Eminent Scandinavians in America," by Mrs. James McCann, was very interesting and was handled in a masterly manner.

Several other musical numbers were omitted for good reasons.

The Quartette gave as a closing number, "The Sweedish National hymn, which was very good indeed.

The house was decorated with Swedish and Norwegian flags.

Mrs. Ira Rogers and committee served a delicious two course repast, and a pleasant social hour followed with music and song. About 80 were present.

TECUMSEH BANKS

HIGH WATER MARK SHOWN IN THEIR RECENT STATEMENTS OF APR. 4, 1910.

The Savings Deposits Indicating the Prosperous Condition of the People.

In a recent issue of the Adrian Telegram, we found a statement relative to the prosperous condition of their banks, showing that the deposits over those of last year at this time to be the highest ever yet reached.

Tecumseh banks have also reached the high water mark in volume of deposits, the gain being $73,828.18, of which $67,301.16 is savings.

This statement shows a fine condition of the banks, as well as a wonderful record, and goes to prove that the people are in a truly prosperous condition.

Advice Concerning Stomach Trouble and How to Remedy Them.

Do not neglect indigestion which leads to all sorts of ills and complications. An eminent doctor once said that ninety-five per cent of all the ills of the human body have their origin in a disordered stomach.

A physican who made a specialty of stomach troubles, particularly dyspepsia, after years of study perfected the formula from which Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are made.

Our experience with Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets leads us to believe them to be the greatest remedy known for the relief of acute indigestion and chronic dyspepsia. Their ingredients are soothing and healing to the inflamed membranes of the stomach. They are rich in pepsin, one of the greatest digestive aids known to medicine. The relief they afford is almost immediate. The use with persistency and regularity for a short time brings about a cessation of the pains caused by stomach disorders.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will insure healthy appetite, aid digestion and promote nutrition. As evidence of our sincere faith in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, we ask you to try them at our risk. If they do not give you entire satisfaction, we will return you the money you paid us for them, without question or formality. They come in three sizes, prices 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store, or of the The B. J. Pulver drug store, Tecumseh.

Y. M. C. A.

The study on, The man who wrecked one of the seven wonders of the world at the Y. M. C. A. will take place Tuesday evening at 6:45 instead of Thursday evening.

CAN'T SLIP THAT KNOT

Although the smallest fence tie made, the Anthony Knot is the strongest. You can't slip a stay wire through the Anthony Knot. Look at the back of the knot and see why. The stay wire is curved around the line wire. There is no bend in the line wire inside the knot. Each is made that way for a reason. Each resists the kind of strain it gets in actual service. The hard spring steel wire is woven on the Anthony Fence Machines without rupturing the heavy galvanizing. Line wires guaranteed equal length. And the Anthony Knot is so tight, so compact and so smooth, that it will not catch or tear cattle or sheep. Examine for yourself a sample Anthony Knot. Mailed free.

Free Child's Remedy

What mother is not looking for something that will help her children in the little ills of life, something for the stomach trouble and the bowel trouble? Long ago she probably has become convinced that a child cannot readily swallow a pill or a tablet, and that to "break them in half and crush them" is an annoyance; that usually they work too drastically, and are nauseating and too powerful for the little one's stomach.

Any mother who will take the trouble of sending her name and address can obtain a free sample bottle of a remedy that thousands of other mothers are using and now paying for. This remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the offer of a free trial bottle is open to any mother who has not yet used it. Having used it and convinced yourself that it is what you want, you can obtain it in the future of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as so many others are doing, the free sample being simply to convince you of its merits. It is the best way to begin on it. Mrs. L. Davis of 187 W. Harrison street, Chicago, and Mrs. Mary Belford, 1719 Coke street, Louisville, Ky., both started with a free sample and now they write that they have never been without a bottle in the house since.

It is undoubtedly a great family remedy, as it is adapted to all ages, being mild and pleasant to take and yet thoroughly effective. It is especially the ideal remedy for children and women and old folks, who need something pure, mild and natural. It has the advantage of being a thorough laxative and yet contains tonic properties. Use it for the most stubborn constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sick headache, sour stomach and such complaints with a guarantee that it will cure.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R 580 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

LENT, 1910.

At last 'tis Lent, and now content
Comes o'er us, calm and sweet,
For while it last we all may fast
And stint ourselves on meat.

No more we may three times a day
Devour chop, roast or steak
By night and morn we must abstain
And of less flesh partake.

In other years we've fought with tears
Such rules and laws severe,
But now we yield, our joy revealed
With lip dissembled cheer.

For, oh, each steak that we forsake
To munch instead a crust
Is one less sale, which fact we hail,
That might enrich the trust.

Each time a chop or roast we drop
We've struck the trust a blow.
For forty days we've many ways
To fill the trust with woe.

So fill the dish with humble fish
And at the butcher jeer
Oh, what content if only Lent
Could last the whole glad year!
—Paul West in New York World.

How He Won Her Back.

"At one time the wedding was declared off. But it's fixed again since he bought her a present."

"What is the present?"

"Nobody knows but him. He told her he would give her the present after the wedding, and she's bound to find out what it is if she has to marry him."

A Perplexing Problem.

I found the great inventor standing by his work bench. His massive brow was crinkled and gnarled and told me he was concentrating his wonderful thought upon some mystifying problem. Before I could arouse him from his state of profound meditation I found it necessary to drop a sledge-hammer on the floor and to yell at him in my loudest tone. But when he looked up and recognized me his absorbed manner changed instantly and he greeted me with most refreshing affability.

I asked him if he were still worrying over his wireless telegraphic invention.

"Oh, my, no!" he answered me. "I completed that and got it off my mind a week ago. The wireless device I am now trying to evolve is infinitely more perplexing."

I asked him what his intended device was.

"A wireless fly screen," he told me.—Chicago News.

No Relief.

Indignant Passenger (to railway manager)—Here, I say! I got a cinder in my eye from one of your engines, and it cost me $10 for a doctor to get it out and dress the eye. Now, what do you propose to do in the matter?

Railway Manager—Nothing, my dear sir, nothing. We have no use for the cinder, and you are perfectly welcome to it. No doubt, strictly speaking, you did go off with our property—the cinder, of course, was not yours—but we do not care to make a fuss about such a small matter. Pray do not give the incident a moment's thought.—New York Journal.

THE SPORTING WORLD

Lamy Again Amateur Champion.

Edmund Lamy, who hails from Saranac Lake, N. Y., has again walked off with the amateur ice skating honors. Early in the season it was figured that there were crack knights of the steel blade that could show easily their heels to Lamy, but all failed except Roe of Toronto, who captured the one mile and a half race from Lamy in Pittsburg recently.

Besides winning the amateur championship Lamy has also established several new world's records that will probably stand for years. The following are the new world's indoor marks set by Lamy, amateur ice skater, which were made in Cleveland recently:

One-quarter mile, 38 4-5 seconds. Former record, 40 2-5 seconds, made by Lamy at Pittsburg in 1909.

One-half mile, 1 minute 17 3-5 seconds. Old record 1 minute 20 2-5 seconds, made by Wilson in 1906.

Three-quarter mile, 2 minutes 4 1-5 seconds. Old record 2 minutes 13 seconds, made by J. S. Johnson in 1894.

One and a half miles, 4 minutes 25 seconds. Old record 4 minutes 28 seconds, made by J. S. Johnson in 1894.

Lajoie to Play First Base.

Nap Lajoie, who was the champion batter in the American league until Ty Cobb deposed him, is to play first base for the Clevelands this year. Manager McGuire has officially announced the change. But, at that, it does not make much difference where Lajoie plays. He will prove as handy around the first sack as in the center of the diamond.

The change was made necessary because McGuire wants Turner, one of the fastest infielders in the country, in the game. Turner's arm is weakening, and moving him from short to second base will take a lot of strain off his arm.

Old Cy Young to Be a Rancher.

Denton T. Young, better known as "Cy," the veteran pitcher of the Cleveland American league team, will follow the footsteps of Fielder Jones and become an Oregon rancher.

Young visited his brother, who is a rancher and stock raiser at Elgin, Ore. Cy says his brother has been ambitious to have him inspect some land near Elgin with a view to buying. To Fielder Jones Cy admitted he would be likely to make Oregon his home as soon as he is through with baseball.

American Henley May 8.

An eight oared shell race for club crews will be added to the list of events comprising the annual regatta of the American Rowing association, known as the America Henley, which will be rowed on the Schuylkill river on Saturday, May 8. This event will take the place of the second eight oared shell race, which has been made up of college and club oarsmen. Philadelphia is also making a strong bid for the middle states regatta, the date for which has not been announced.

Thoney May Never Play Again.

Jack Thoney, the speedy outfielder of the Boston Americans, is more seriously injured than was at first thought. Not only is his shoulder broken, but the muscles and ligaments are torn. Five physicians who have looked him over declare that Thoney may never be able to play again and that he surely should not think of playing this season. Thoney will consult Bone Setter Reeves of Youngstown, O., in the hope of getting into the game early this summer.

Three Turks After Gotch.

Three champion Turkish wrestlers—Ali Ahmed, Izzet and Halil Hodja—are to make a tour of America shortly. They will seek matches with the best men in America and will try for the world's title against Frank Gotch.

About the Baking if you use

CALUMET Baking Powder

When the baking does not come just right you are inclined to blame everything but the real cause. Poor baking powder spoils more food than any other one thing. Try a can of CALUMET and feel easy about your baking. It never fails to produce sweet, delicious food. On account of its great raising power and moderate cost it is the most economical.

Misleading advertisements may have led you to believe that you take baking powder into the stomach in the same form as it is in the can. Here is the truth: In the process of baking the heat causes a chemical reaction in the baking powder which destroys or entirely changes the nature of the original ingredients. Therefore, the original contents of the can or what is printed on the label is no indication of what you get in the food.

In Calumet Baking Powder the ingredients are so scientifically compounded that this chemical reaction leaves no tartaric acid, Alum, Lime or other residue in the food. In a Cream of Tartar or Trust Baking Powder this chemical reaction turns the Cream of Tartar into Rochelle Salts, a drug which should never be taken in food.

CALUMET complies with all pure food laws—both State and National. Your Grocer will guarantee it. If he offers "something just as good," refuse it—insist on having CALUMET and be sure of good baking.

Received highest award World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago, 1907, which positively proves there is no guesswork about CALUMET, because this award means that it was highest in quality and is absolutely pure.

PULLMAN RATES ARE TOO HIGH

Commerce Commission Orders Them Cut Down.

OTHER COMPANIES AFFECTED

Decision Was Reached on Specific Complaint Made by St. Paul Commission Merchant — Commission Orders Reduction of 25 Per Cent on Upper Berths.

Washington, April 11.—After an inquiry extending for more than a year the interstate commerce commission has reached the conclusion by a divided vote that Pullman car rates are too high and has ordered the Pullman company and the Great Northern Railway company, which operates its own sleeping cars, to reduce the rates from Chicago to St. Paul and St. Paul to Seattle and other western points. On upper berths the commission orders a reduction of approximately 25 per cent.

This is considered one of the most important decisions ever handed down by the commission, and, while it was reached on a specific complaint by George S. Loftus, a commission merchant of St. Paul, against the Pullman company, the Great Northern railway and three other carriers, the inquiry was undertaken with the idea of looking into the entire Pullman car rate situation. The commission gathered comprehensive statistics with reference to the earnings and capitalization of the Pullman company, and its decision in this case will stand as a precedent in other proceedings.

Will Likely Fight.

The decision of the commission means, so it is said, that the Pullman company will either voluntarily reduce its rates throughout the United States or fight the decision in the courts. It is expected that the company will adopt the latter course. For a long time after the enactment of the Hepburn act the Pullman company in the case of several minor complaints denied the jurisdiction of the commission, and it is probable that the company before the last day of June, when the decision becomes effective, will take the matter into the courts.

If the company, however, decides to appeal to the courts on a question of jurisdiction an interesting situation will be presented. The Great Northern company, included in the present order of the commission, operates its own sleeping cars, and there is no doubt of its being subjected to the jurisdiction of the commission. The New Haven railroad also operates sleeping cars between New York and Boston, and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul is another road that owns its own sleeping cars. It is, therefore, the opinion of officials here that the Pullman company will find it difficult to maintain a fight in the courts.

NO DANGER OF COLLISION.

Halley's Comet May Give Us a Little Dust, and That Is All.

Washington, April 11.—Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, has issued a statement that will bring peace of mind to folks who are worrying about a possible collision with Halley's comet. Here is what Moore has to say:

"Popular apprehension regarding harm to the earth and its inhabitants during the impending visit of Halley's comet to this portion of the universe is unfounded. The result of a collision between the earth and a comet would depend upon the mass of the comet, the velocity of the bodies and the angle of impact. A collision in the present case will be impossible owing to a safety margin between the tracks of the earth and the comet of some 13,000,000 miles. The tail of the comet, through which the earth will probably pass, will be noticeable only as an absolutely harmless luminous gas or dust and may produce electrical and magnetic effects that can be detected only by self-recording instruments. A source of possible danger or discomfort to the earth attending cometary visits would be the falling into the sun of a comet. As the least distance between Halley's comet and the sun in the present instance will be more than 54,000,000 miles, the possibility of discomfort from solar excitations will not exist.

AIRSHIP FELL.

Machine Operated by Curtiss' Pupil Tumbles on Auto—Aviator Hurt.

Memphis, Tenn., April 11.—Aviator C. J. (Bud) Mars, pupil of Glenn Curtiss, was badly injured Sunday afternoon, when his aeroplane fell on an automobile, wrecking both the air and road machines. A broken support of the airship tore an ugly gash in the aviator's throat. Attending physicians say that Mars will recover.

The accident occurred in the last flight of the afternoon, and when Mars was within 100 yards of alighting. Whether the motor stopped or a sudden gust of wind caused the aviator to lose control of his airship is not known, but the machine plunged almost directly downward. Thrown from his seat, Mars clung to the steering wheel and fell with his machine. Immediately below the falling airship was a large touring automobile with three men and three young women. The flying machine crashed down on it, slightly injuring one of the women.

PRESIDENT TO ADDRESS WOMEN

Speaks in Washington at the Suffrage Convention.

ANTIS DO NOT LIKE IDEA

Those in New York Write Taft, Declaring That in Speaking to Suffragettes Public Will Entertain Opinion That He Has Indorsed Their Policies.

Washington, April 14.—The National American Woman's Suffrage association will hold its forty-second annual convention at the Arlington hotel, in Washington, beginning today. Badges bearing the inscription "Votes for women" are much in evidence in the hotel corridors. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont appears to be a favorite with one element for president of the association for the next term. The meeting will be called to order by Dr. Anna Shaw, the present president. Her friends believe that she is entitled to re-election and will probably present her name.

President Taft has accepted an invitation to deliver an address before the association this evening.

New York, April 14.—President Taft is going to address the opening meeting of the woman suffrage convention, which started to do business in Washington tonight, and the New York antis are varying in the wrath and have forwarded a letter of protest, which was placed in the president's hands by Senator Root. Mrs Root is an active member of the New York state association opposed to woman suffrage, nine representative members of which have signed the letter of protest. The letter is as follows:

"To the President:

"Sir—It is with great regret that the women belonging to the New York state assocation opposed to woman suffrage have heard that you are to address the advocates of woman suffrage at their opening meeting this week. Although you have publicly declared that this action is not to be taken as indorsing the movement, it is impossible to disabuse the minds of the general public from accepting your presence there as your sanction at least. After many years of agitation, which has latterly been increasingly active, the woman suffrage associations have succeeded in enlisting the interest of a very small minority of the women of the country. We understand that a petition signed by 1,000,000 names, more or less, of men and women is to be presented to congress. This has been the work of years all over the country, and yet there are about 30,000,000 of women alone. There is no general demand among women for the suffrage, and we who are actively opposed to woman suffrage and who claim to represent that large body of women, who, by temperament and habit, are passive opponents, feel that in seeking to coerce the majority, the minority who advocate this measure are not within the bounds of proper procedure. In enlisting your interest in their meeting, therefore, they are enabled to appear before the public as having secured your sympathy, and so to advertise it, and we ask that you speak clearly on this point in your address."

NEGRO KILLS OFFICER.

Mob Thereupon Hangs Him to Telegraph Pole and Sets Him on Fire.

Meridian, Miss., April 14.—After he had killed former Sheriff John R. Temple and barricaded himself in the basement of the county jail here, Tom O'Neal, a negro, was shot by the police. O'Neal was then seized by a mob of 2,000 men, hanged to a telegraph pole and set afire. His throat was cut. Policemen rescued the body and stamped out the flames, which were consuming the negro's oil saturated clothes.

George Williams, one of ten other negro prisoners who helped O'Neal barricade the jail basement, also was shot, but not mortally. He was taken to a cell for safety. The mob clamored to lynch him.

The trouble started when O'Neal attacked Temple in the prison.

BASE BALL SEASON BEGINS WITH TODAY

All Teams Apparently In Good Condition.

New York, April 14.—Another baseball opening day has rolled around. This annual red letter occasion in the calendar, while incidentally marking the rapid flight of time, like a Christmas or a Fourth of July, is a national event which has taken on more and more importance as the game has grown in interest and importance.

There isn't any doubt that baseball is more prosperous under existing conditions of two big leagues, each in a flourishing state, and so calculated to spread the gospel of the national game to better advantage, than at any previous time since baseball became a clearly defined game. The various clubs have their houses in order and have done all that they could do to strengthen and try to make a good showing in the race.

Whether the eight clubs in each league are any more evenly matched than before is something which only the race itself can demonstrate, but there are still enough strong clubs to keep the race for first place uncertain for a greater part of the year. Without doubt, three National league teams, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and St. Louis, teams which have not cut a formidable figure for pennants in late years, look stronger than in a number of years. In the American league it is fairly reasonable to believe that New York, Chicago and Washington are likely to win more games than a years ago. Almost without exception not one of the sixteen teams will take the field today without some change in the personnel. Most of the teams got beneficial practice in the south.

It is the turn of the New York Americans to open at home, while the Giants open away from home. The American league opening calls for the Bostons to play in New York, Philadelphia in Washington, St. Louis in Chicago and Cleveland in Detroit. In the National league the Giants open in Boston, the Brooklyn in Philadelphia, the Chicagos in Cincinnati and the Pittsburgs in St. Louis.

Given Voluntary Increase in Wages.

Scranton, Pa., April 14.—Announcement is made by the Lackawanna company that it has voluntarily increased the wages of 6,500 of its employes 6 per cent. The men who have been given this increase are employed in the transportation department of the entire system between Hoboken and Buffalo. The greater number of these beneficiaries are clerks and minor officials.

SIX FIREMEN ARE KILLED

Meet Death Fighting Flames In County Jail.

AT NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT

Jail Contained Many Men and Women—Jail Deputies, Police and Militia Remove Prisoners—Firemen Were Hemmed In by Fire While In Chair Factory, Where It Started.

New Haven, Conn., April 14.—In the fire that has practically destroyed the county jail in this city six firemen have lost their lives. They were: Captain Charles L. Chapman, Lieutenant William Doherty, Ladderman John E. Buckley Hoseman James T. Cullen, Hoseman James Mertell, Hoseman John T. McGrath.

One fireman was critically injured and several less seriously, and were taken to various hospitals. Six bodies have been removed from the ruins. When the fire was discovered there were 300 men and fifty women prisoners in the jail. The fire originated on the second floor of the workshop of the jail, and it is believed to have been caused by crossed wires, although the story was circulated that it had been started by one of the prisoners in the hope that the inmates might escape.

Started In Chair Factory.

In the shop of the Connecticut Chair company when the fire started were fifty prisoners making chairs, and these were led from the burning building and locked in their cells. Meanwhile the firemen were making every effort to save the main building where the prisoners were held. When it was found that the firemen could not prevent the fire from spreading into the main building, Sheriff Hugo called all his deputies and nearly the entire police force of New Haven to aid in the removal of the prisoners to a place of safety. Three companies of the Second regiment in this city were also sent to the jail. The prisoners were loaded into vans, trolley cars, busses and automobiles and, under guard of the guardsmen, were transferred, the men to the central police station and the women to the Second regiment and Foot Guard armories. The women, who were in the part of the building fartherest removed from the fire, were taken out last.

Only One Escaped.

Of four firemen who went into the jail addition to fight the fire in the chair shop, only one escaped. They were suddenly hemmed in by the flames, and when they tried the windows the iron bars prevented them from making their escape. They made for the cellar in the hopes of getting out that way, but there was no means of exit, and Lieutenant Doherty, who was one of the number, called, "It's up to the roof, boys," and they started to make their way through the burning building to the roof. Only one reached there, Fireman Shugrue, and although he tried to pull up his companions when they fell exhausted he could not. He then jumped from the roof and was picked up two hours later, after he had been given up for dead.

When the fire was finally under control a search was made, and what is believed to be portions of six bodies were recovered.

COAL STRIKE SETTLED.

Pittsburg Has Received Reports to That Effect.

Pittsburg, April 14.—It is reported here that the coal strike in the Pittsburg district, embracing 65,000 men, has been settled. Some minor details remain for adjustment, but these are in the hands of a sub-committee that has been appointed. An advance of 5 cents per ton, or 5.65 per cent advance over former rates, has been offered by the operators, and the miners have signified their acceptance.

As the matter stands, unless there should come a most serious hitch, the miners will return to work next Monday.

GOV. PATTERSON.

Tennessee's Governor, Who Pardoned Colonel Cooper.

CANVICTED AND THEN PARDONED

Tennessee's Governor Quicky Liberates Col. Cooper.

Nashville, Tenn., April 14.—Within an hour after the state supreme court Wednesday had affirmed the sentence of twenty years in the penitentiary imposed upon Colonel Duncan Cooper for the murder of former United States Senator E. W. Carmack, Governor Malcolm R. Patterson signed a pardon which made Cooper a free citizen. The court reversed the decision sentencing Robin Cooper, Colonel Cooper's son, to a term of twenty years in the penitentiary and remanded the case for a new trial. However, it is believed that, in view of the fact that the father has been pardoned, Robin never will go to trial again. In pardoning Colonel Cooper, the governor said:

"Being thoroughly familiar with the record, having read all the testimony and testified to certain facts within my personal knowledge, it is neither desirable nor necessary to delay action. In my opinion, neither of the defendants is guilty, and they have not had a fair and impartial trial, but were convicted contrary to the law and evidence. The action of the supreme court in vacating the judgment as to Robin Cooper leaves the sentence of final conviction as to his co-defendant. The proof showed that Robin Cooper killed the deceased and that B. Cooper did not fire a shot.

"Without reflection upon the court, it is inconceivable in my mind, and repugnant to every principle of justice, that a man should be found guilty of murder who was not in a conspiracy to kill, and who, in fact, did not kill."

Duncan Cooper's sentence was affirmed by a vote of 3 to 2 and Robin's reversed by the same vote.

Martyred President's Brother Dies.

Jamestown, Mich., April 14.—Ills incident to age have resulted in the death of Thomas Garfield, brother of the late President James A. Garfield. He was eighty-eight years old and had been ill for several months. Mr. Garfield had been a resident of Ottawa county more than forty years and a greater part of that time in Jamestown. He came to Michigan in 1867.

Convicted of Husband's Murder.

Rockland, Me., April 14.—Mrs. S. F. Newbert of Thomaston has been found guilty by a supreme court jury of the murder of her invalid husband, Fremont Newbert, by giving him strychnine in his food on Nov. 15, last.

CHAUFFEURS ARE KILLED

Men Meet Untimely Deaths In Detroit.

MACHINE'S WHEELS "DISHED"

Happened When Auto Was Going at Terrific Speed—Dashed Against a Pole—Accident Ends Two Lives. Third Man In Party Receives Broken Leg and Internal Injuries.

Detroit, Mich., April 14.—Returning from a testing trip, and going at a terrific rate of speed, two chauffeurs, George H. Smith and John T. Foster, met their death late Wednesday afternoon at the outer Belt Line railroad crossing, on Gratiot avenue, between French Line road and Connor's creek. Christopher Peters, a companion in the automobile, sustained a broken leg.

The machine was crossing the railroad tracks just outside the city limits on Gratiot avenue when the accident happened. The front wheels "dished," as they say in the vernacular, throwing the automobile fifteen feet to one side against a trolley pole, and completely wrecking it.

Tank Explodes.

The gasoline tank exploded and set the machine on fire, and Smith was terribly burned in addition to a fracture of the skull, a broken leg and internal injuries. Foster, who was driving, was thrown against the trolley pole, bruising his body in so many different places that he did not live long after his arrival at the hospital.

The first person at the scene of the accident called Dr. H. W. Pierce, 1217 Van Dyke avenue. Earl Fisher, a tester, employed by the Packard Automobile company, come by in another machine. Dr. Pierce stopped him and had him remove Smith and Foster to St. Mary's hospital. Peters was taken to his home.

Smith was employed as a chauffeur by the Home Savings bank, and Foster was a chauffeur for F. C. Baldwin, architect, who resides at the Witherell apartments, on Jefferson avenue. The automobile was owned by the Home Savings bank.

HARTRIDGE LOSES.

Furthehmore, Judge Starts Inquiry Which May End In Perjury Case.

New York, April 14.—Clifford W. Hartridge, one of the attorneys who defended Harry K. Thaw in his first trial for the slaying of Stanford White, has failed in his effort to collect from Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, the prisoner's mother, a balance of $92,000 for counsel fees and disbursements claimed due.

More than that, Judge Holt of the United States circuit court, in denying a motion to set aside the sealed verdict of the jury which had heard Hartridge's suit against Mrs. Thaw, made the sensational statement that an inquiry was called for regarding the professional conduct of Hartridge and to determine whether ground existed for a perjury prosecution.

Hartridge had already been paid $32,000. His suit for $92,000 and interest which he claimed to be due as a balance has been on trial for several days. The jury took the case Tuesday, and a sealed verdict was ordered.

The verdict when handed in was found to be in favor of Mrs. Thaw.

Silver Wedding Service, Presentations are Made.

The following clipped from the Calumet News will be of interest to the many friends of Rev. and Mrs. Ward:

Rev. W. M. Ward, pastor of the Laurium M. E. church, and wife celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding Monday evening at the church. Although the anniversary of the wedding was properly April 6, it was observed Monday evening instead and about 300 friends gathered at the church. A choice musical program was rendered, consisting of male quartettess, solos, and the "Bridal Chorus" by the choir. These numbers were interspersed by greetings from the congregation, by Mrs. F. D. Sherwood, and from Tecumseh, Rev. Ward's former charge, read by Rev. W. E. Marvin, formerly of the Laurium M. E. church, also a poetical selection, "The Silver Wedding," read by Miss Burt.

During the program a telegram was received by Mrs. Ward from her absent daughter, Lena, and friends, which read, "Congratulations from the kids; we wish we were there."

At the conclusion of the program, the wedding party retired to the basement of the church, which was most beautifully decorated for the occasion. Near the east end of the room was an artistically designed arch, before a backgronnd of silver hearts. Garlands and festoons of tinsel and silver hearts were prominent, and rugs were scattered throughout the room, which, with small flower-laden tables, added to the general effect.

District Superintendent Rev. James Pascoe, followed by the bride and groom, entered by a sidedoor and took ther places under the bridal arch. Mrs. Ward was attired in a pretty silver gray gown, and carried pink roses, while the groom wore the regulation Prince Albert. The ceremony, adapted to the occasion, was performed by Rev. Pascoe, who let the bride off easy but inspected and re-riveted the hands of the groom.

At the conclusion of the ceremony congratulations were extended freely. Rev. W. E. Marvin, in the name of friends, presented a handsome silver electric desk lamp and a large silvered heart, in which were neatly arranged 25 silver dollars. On behalf of the copper country preachers, Rev. E. Sedweek presented the bride with a dozen solid silver spoons and read letters of congratulation from Tecumseh, California and Detroit. A dainty lunch followed.

Mrs. Joseph E. Gray.

Mrs. Eva M. Gray passed away at her home April 10th, 1910 aged 52 yrs. 7 mo. 4 days. The immediate cause of her death was a stroke of paralysis but she had been suffering for a long time from Brights disease.

Eva M. Campbell was born in Macon Sept. 6, 1857 and came to Tecumseh with her parents John A. Campbell and wife in early childhood. In 1877 she was united in marriage to Joseph E. Gray who survives her.

She was nutured in the Methodist church and had a life certificate in the F. M. S. Eva has always been known among us as a school girl, in social life and as a dear friend. We shall miss her kindly greetings and her dear familiar face. To her bereaved husband and her mourning friends we extend our deepest sympathy, and though now they can see no silver lining to the dark cloud of sorrow that enshrouds them, yet we trust that some day it may all be driven away by the glorious sunlight of the Father's love.

Hugh Miller Craig

Hugh Miller Craig, son of Samuel and Catherine Craig, was born Dec. 7, 1872, and departed this life March 28, 1910. His death, which occurred in Detroit at the home of his sisters was not unexpected, he having suffered 18 months of tuberculosis, and, although sick and in a strange place, won friends by his kindly, gentle disposition, who did much to ease and comfort him at the end.

During the last few months he often expressed his readiness to go, and his longing to be at rest. He was married ten years ago to Nellie Frost. Three children—Julia, Ruth and Raymond and five sisters are left to mourn his untimely end.

The remains were taken to Lake Ridge and placed beside the others gone before.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our thanks to every one who assisted us in any way at the time of our brother's death, especially the minister and choir, whom we did not know, and to all who opened their homes for us.

THE BALLOON "CLEVELAND"

The Detroit Journal of Tuesday, April 12, contained a fine cut of the Cleveland just before the start from the grounds in Jackson. Our towns man, P. W. A. Fitzsimmons, who is a member of the Aero Club, is to be seen quite plainly as he lent a helping hand as the balloon struggled to ascend.

The trip was an exciting one, for they traveled in the wake of a thunder storm, and finally with it and those who participated, felt a wild enjoyment in the wierd experience.

It is said that Clinton was the town where they came within speaking distance and asked the direction to Adrian. Onsted, also claims a like distinction.

No doubt traveling through the air will be the latest in pleasure trips—it will certainly be exhilerating.

FOR CATARRH

Medicine Free in Every Case Where It Fails to Relieve

Neglect or pessimism, we believe, is the greatest enemy the public has to contend with when applied to the loss or recovery of health. Practically every case of consumption might have been cured if hope had been maintained and proper treatment had been resorted to at the first symptom of the disease. Until the advanced stage is reached consumption is curable Catarrh is responsible, we believe, for many cases of consumption. It is about catarrh we want to talk to you today, incidentally consumption, since the two are so closely allied.

We have a medicine made from a prescription of one of the most successful catarrh specialists known. We believe it is positively without an equal. We are so satisfied that we are right, that we will supply the medicine free in every instance where it is used according to directions for a reasonable length of time, should it fail to give satisfaction in every particular. We want everyone to try this medicine at our risk. There are no conditions attached to our offer. We put the user under no obligations to us whatever.

The medicine we want you to try is Rexall Mucu-Tone. It is a catarrh remedy that goes directly to the seat of trouble. It is carried by the blood to every part of the system. It purifies and enriches the blood, tones up the mucous cells, and brings about a condition of health and strength that tends to prevent the germs of consumption from getting a start. Besides this, Rexall Mucu-Tone is a wonderful appetizer, digestive aid and flesh builder. Its good effects are often felt from the first dose. It is one of the largest and most satisfactory selling medicines that we have ever had anything to do with.

We know so much of the great good that it has done that we personally back it up with our reputation and money, which fact should be ample guarantee to satisfy anybody. Rexall Mucu-Tone comes in two sizes, 50c and $1.00. We urge you to try it. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Rochester only at our store,—The Rexall Store, and the B. J. Pulver Drug Store, Tecumseh, Mich.

Prejudice squints when it looks, and lies when it talks.

The Sound Sleep Of Good Health.

The restorative power of sound sleep can not be over estimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Southers, Eau Claire, Wis., says:—"For a long time I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock. I eat and enjoy my meals, and my general condition is greatly improved. I can honestly recommend Foley's Kidney Pills as I know they have cured me." For sale by all druggists.

The family were at dinner: Father what does this word, "Conservation" mean, asked the daughter.

AMUSEMENTS!

Powell & Cohan's Musical Comedy company of twenty people with its dashing beauty chorus and brilliant cast of well known musical comedy favorites is to visit Tecumseh, for TWO NIGHTS, commencing Thursday, April 21, and give a different musical comedy each night. The bill for the opening night will be "THE BEAUTY AND THE BANKER," and the following musical comedies, some of which have had long city runs, will be produced: "The Rajah of Bhong," "The Yankee Doodle Boy," "The Boy, the Bird and the Bottle," "Cupid and the Prizefighter," "My Queen in Calico," "Hi Diddle Diddle" and "A Daughter of America." There will be no attempt to charge regular musical comedy prices for the shows; the 25, 35 and 50 cent scale has been agreed upon between the local management and Powell & Cohan.

The company is headed by Miss Carlo Portello, who is one of the most popular of musical comedy prima-donnas. Miss Portello, however, is not handicapped like the average prima-donna for she can enact comedy roles as well as she can sing, which is saying a great deal, and in THE BEAUTY and the BANKS, she plays the part of an eccentric maid servant. In this she is said to be irresistibly funny.

The chorus of pretty girls adds much to the enjoyment of the shows. Theatre goers should turn out and fill the opera house to its utmost capacity every night during this engagement. Seats on sale at Aldrich's, Tuesday morning.

Miss Myrtle Hebard, who Tecumseh theatre goers will remember as the leading lady in "Frivolous Bonnie," which played here early in the season, has charge of the chorus with Powell & Cohen's Musical Comedy Co., which comes to the Bradley Opera House for two nights, commencing Thursday, April 21. Mr. Geo. Fletcher, who was here with the same attraction is musical director.

When a man's heart is drying up in the desert of concelt, he tries to comfort himself by looking at the size of his head.

Aw, don't you know that broke yet! in the small boy? It's when ma hides the jam.

The No. 1 Cultivator may be fitted with many different styles of gangs. No question about exactly suiting you.

EASIEST of all cultivators to guide, raise and lower—that's saying a good deal, but it's true.

The Olivers now make a Riding Cultivator. When you see it you will say they should have done it before.

It was used two years in all the big corn states before they said much about it.

Now they say—and it's a fact—that this new OLIVER implement absolutely guides, raises and lowers easier than any other cultivator on earth.

That it does better, easier, slicker work in all soils and conditions. and—

That it comes nearer making a day's cultivating seem like a picnic than any other cultivator.

Come and see it, and also take a look at Oliver Plows of various kinds—extra good this year.

Free Child's Remedy

What mother is not looking for something that will help her children in the little ills of life, something for the stomach trouble and the bowel trouble? Long ago she probably has become convinced that a child cannot readily swallow a pill or a tablet, and that to "break them in half and crush them" is an annoyance; that usually they work too drastically, and are nauseating and too powerful for the little one's stomach.

Any mother who will take the trouble of sending her name and address can obtain a free sample bottle of a remedy that thousands of other mothers are using and now paying for. This remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the offer of a free trial bottle is open to any mother who has not yet used it. Having used it and convinced yourself that it is what you want, you can obtain it in the future of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as so many others are doing, the free sample being simply to convince you of its merits. It is the best way to begin on it. Mrs. L. Davis of 187 W. Harrison street, Chicago, and Mrs. Mary Relford, 1710 Coke street, Louisville, Ky., both started with a free sample and now they write that they have never been without a bottle in the house since.

It is undoubtedly a great family remedy, as it is adapted to all ages, being mild and pleasant to take and yet thoroughly effective. It is especially the ideal remedy for children and women and old folks, who need something pure, mild and natural. It has the advantage of being a thorough laxative and yet contains tonic properties. Use it for the most stubborn constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sick headache, sour stomach and such complaints with a guarantee that it will cure.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Pity the Postman's Bride.

A clergyman, noticing the simple appearance of the couple he had just married, decided to give them a few words of advice.

He explained to the young man his duties as a husband and then told the young lady how she should conduct herself, winding up with the old injunction that she must look to her husband for everything and, forsaking father and mother, follow him wherever he went.

The bride appeared very much troubled at this and faltered out:

"Must I follow him to every place he goes?"

"Yes," said the clergyman, "you must follow him everywhere until death doth you part."

"Gracious!" cried the girl. "If I had known that before I would never have married a postman!"—Spare Moments.

ILL IN INDIANAPOLIS.

Lieutenant George Cornwallis West Has to Stop There.

Indianapolis, April 14.—Lieutenant George Cornwallis West of London, member of the famous family of that name, is in the city, a guest at the Claypool. Lieutenant West's marriage to Lady Randolph Churchill, because of the great disparity in the ages of the couple, was the talk of England. Lieutenant West has been here about a week, and is ill.

Propped up in bed and attended by a nurse, he explained that he was not here of his own choice. He said he had been in Mexico on business and while on his way to New York had been taken ill on the train. As the train neared Indianapolis he decided to leave it and go to a hospital where he could receive treatment. He is much better.

Hackensack N. J., April 14.—The state department at Washington has wired here that a cablegram just received from Bahia, Brazil, states that George Vice of Hackensack was finally released from prison there. The expedition was detected, and the entire party arrested. Two Americans were killed in the fight.

HUNGARIANS ENTHUSIASTIC

Tremendous Ovations Extended Roosevelt in All Places.

IS COUNT APPONYI'S GUEST

Addresses of Welcome and Speeches of Thanks Galore—Count and Officials Meet Him on Frontier—His Journey to Budapest One Continuous Ovation.

Budapest, April 18.—Roosevelt's welcome to Hungary surpassed anything he is likely to experience during his whole tour. The crowds and the enthusiasm could not have been greater if the people had been welcoming the savior of the country. Nine addresses of welcome and nine speeches of thanks formed part of the program of Roosevelt's third Sunday in Europe.

Leaving Vienna at 9:05 Sunday morning, an enthusiastic crowd bade him farewell. At Pressburg, on the Hungarian frontier, Count Apponyi, formerly Hungarian prime minister, with the mayor, a crowd of citizens and a band of fiddlers, met him. The mayor welcomed him in the Magyar language. Then a local orator, in fluent English, made an impassioned speech to "The great apostle of freedom," concluding with a quotation from Longfellow.

Made Fervid Reply.

Roosevelt's reply was almost equally fervid as he told how long he had admired and loved Hungary, which every man from the western states of America must do.

Count Apponyi, with his head tied up, he having met with an accident Saturday while teaching his little daughter to drive, then took Roosevelt and Kermit to an automobile.

The little city of Pressburg turned out to a man. The mayor, the local orator and Roosevelt again exchanged speeches.

The drive to Count Apponyi's chateau lay through three villages, one Hungarian, one Slovak and one German. The whole population of each turned out to welcome the visitor. At the first village no stop was made, as the place had been stricken with measles. At the other two Roosevelt was received by the mayors or selectmen, dressed in the Sunday garb of workmen, Count Apponyi translating in English, Count Apponyi translating for him.

Strive for liberty, with religion and help the weak without making them weaker, was Roosevelt's advice to the villagers as he addressed them on the village greens. Here the whole population of the villages were assembled, priests with their parishioners, teachers with school children, firemen in uniform, women, young and old, from the whole country side, and always a band of fiddlers who played patriotic airs. In each place a posey was presented to the former president and a little speech of welcome made by one of the smallest school girls. Hungarian flags were everywhere. Here and there might be seen the proud possessor of an American flag.

Lunches With Count.

When the chateau was reached Roosevelt took lunch with a few of Count Apponyi's friends. Then there was an automobile ride to another railroad station, a drive of an hour and a half, which was a repetition of the morning's program.

But Budapest gave the finishing touch to the day's enthusiasm. The train arrived at 9 o'clock this evening. Rain was falling, but in response to the mayor's appeal the townsfolk turned out by the thousands. A fervent welcome was extended by the mayor and Roosevelt, wearing a cavalry colonel's coat and a black felt hat, made an eloquent reply. Roosevelt then proceeded through crowded streets to the hotel, the people cheering and shouting "Long live Teddy!" At the hotel he was forced to address the crowd from a balcony.

Then He Quits.

BODY FOUND IN THE RIVER

Positively Identified as That of Mrs. Arthur J. Best.

IS HUSBAND A MURDERER?

Sunday Morning, March 13, She Was Seen Floating in Detroit River Clinging to Piece of Ice—Brothers Identify Body—They Have Been Searching, Hoping to Find Her Alive.

Detroit, Mich., April 18.—The body of a young woman, horribly decomposed, recovered from the Detroit river Sunday afternoon, off Grosse Isle, has been positively identified at the county morgue as that of Mrs. Arthur J. Best, who disappeared from the home of her brother, Alfred Frankfurth, 291 Lawton avenue, March 16. The arrest of the woman's youthful husband on a charge of murder will will follow if he can be found.

This seems positively to establish the identity, also, of the mysterious woman who was drowned off a cake of ice at the foot of Woodward avenue early on the morning of Sunday, March 13.

The dramatic identification of the body was made by two brothers of the dead woman, who for more than a month have cherished the hope that she was yet living. They are Alfred Frankfurt, who first reported his sister's disappearance to the police, and Theodore A. Frankfurth, 147 Wreford avenue, who was roused from slumber at an early hour this morning and taken to the morgue.

There is no question as to the identity of the woman's body. Both her brothers clearly recognized the black silk dress she wore, two rings from her fingers and a gold chain with a clasp that hung about her neck. There were two protruding teeth, and a scar upon the chin, resulting from a fall in childhood.

The garments worn by the woman were turned over to the coroner and were ordered to be held by him until steps are taken by the police.

Woman Gets Damages Against Another For Stealing Husband's Affections.

Flint, Mich., April 18.—The last act in an unhappy domestic drama that has excited a great deal of interest here has been written in the circuit court. A jury has awarded Mrs. Mary J. Mayfield damages of $10,000 in her suit against Mrs. Jennie Ingalls, for alienation of her husband's affections.

The troubles between Mr. and Mrs. Mayfield and Mrs. Ingalls have been before the courts for four years, starting with a divorce suit instituted by Mayfield, which was dismissed by Judge Wisner. Mrs. Ingalls obtained a divorce from her husband, and shortly after Mayfield went to Montana, where he was freed from his wife. He returned to Flint and married Mrs. Ingalls, and they are now living in Lewiston, Mont.

According to the story of Mrs. Mayfield No. 1 in court, she and her husband lived happily together for twenty years. Four children were born to them.

Fined For Acting as Teacher.

Vassar, Mich., April 14.—When George Kineard, aged sixty, went to the public school, Tuesday, and called his nephew, Harvey Fort, to the floor, and began teaching him according to his notions, the teacher, Miss Marjorie Smith, chased him from the room with a stove poker. She then notified the school authorities, and Deputy Humes arrested him. Kineard pleaded guilty before Justice Renick and was fined $10 and costs.

ROBBERS BOARD WESTERN TRAIN

Get Away With Several Registered Packages.

San Francisco, April 18.—The boldest train robbery ever known in this state occurred about midnight near Benicia, when eastbound Overland Limited train No. 10 was held up by masked men. One covered the engineer and fireman, while the others, after locking the passengers in the Pullmans, went through the mail cars, rifling the registered mail bags.

The train carried no express matter. The mail clerk was forced by the robbers to throw out nine of the thirty-six registered packages, and of these nine four have been recovered, as the robbers were too closely pursued to go through them. One robber was tall and dark and the other short. They appeared to be railway mechanics. The robbers, after making Mail Clerk Black of the mail car throw out nine packages of registered mail, took those packages on the baggage car and ran the engine and baggage car down the track two miles. There the engine was uncoupled and sent down the track with the throttle wide open.

It was only the presence of mind of the lady telephone operator at Suisun that prevented a disastrous collision between this engine and a westbound train. She warned the Oakland offices, and Tolenas station was advised by wire to throw open a switch for the runaway engine.

The robbers took a boat after rifling the mail sacks and rowed across to Bulls Head point. There they abandoned the boat, stole a horse and buggy and struck out for the hills. Posses have been chasing them, and two suspects who are believed to be the robbers have been captured.

To Put Saloon on Town's Edge.

Pontiac, Mich., April 18.—Holly village is up against a proposition brought about through the action of Joseph Allen of that place. The village council passed a prohibitory ordinance and then turned down Allen's application for a saloon license. Allen then filed his petition with the township board of Holly, asking a license to open a saloon just at the edge of the village limits, but outside the corporation. The township board appealed to Prosecutor Covert for advice and it was informed that it is obligatory to grant the license if the terms of the Warner-Crampton law are complied with. Allen declares that unless the village relents he will establish his thirst parlor outside the limits, just as planned.

BALLOON HIT BY LIGHTNING

Four Men Meet Tragic Deaths in Germany.

WENT FOR RIDE AT NIGHT

Heavens Were Clear When They Started—Storm Comes Up Suddenly, and It Is Presumed Lightning Hit Craft While at Great Height—Bodies in Garden.

Berlin, April 18.—The balloon Delitzsch, belonging to the Bitterfeld Aero club, was struck by lightning during a violent storm early Sunday morning. The four occupants were killed. The exact circumstance of the catastrophe can never be known, for the only evidences are the wrecked balloon and the shattered bodies of the men who met their fate unseen, without the possibility of human help.

It was a calm, clear evening when the Delitzsch rose in the air at Bitterfeld Saturday night, and the occupants were enthusiastic over the perfect conditions for a night trip. Herr Luft, a Bitterfeld merchant and an experienced amateur balloonist, and Pilot Lueschenring, an expert aeronaut, were well qualified to balance any lack of experience on the part of their companions, two Leipsig merchants named Graupner and Hoecker. A moonlight night of rare beauty and calmness followed the fine evening, and nobody foresaw the fierce storm which gathered with extraordinary suddenness later.

Bodies in His Garden.

Early Sunday morning, a resident of Reichensachsen, about sixty miles from Bitterfeld, heard among peals of thunder one crash so loud that he believed lightning had struck a house, but, not hearing anything further likely to support this belief, he went to sleep again. Going out after daylight he was astonished to find a wrecked balloon and four distorted bodies of men lying in his garden.

The bag of the balloon was ripped and tattered in an amazing fashion. It was hanging in a tree, through the boughs of which the men had evidently fallen. The smashed car of the balloon was nearby.

From the condition of the bodies and the deep depressions in the ground it was evident that they had fallen from a great height. It also became apparent upon examination that the disaster was due to lightning striking the balloon. Whether it also killed the occupants is not quite certain, but there were sufficient indications to encourage the belief that they were spared the awful experience of falling alive to death.

Wenger Trial May 10.

Jackson, Mich., April 18.—By agreement in the circuit court, the trial of Acting Warden Wenger of Jackson prison, who was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of perjury in connection with the prison scandals, has been postponed until May term. Judge Parkinson was told that it would be agreeable to both sides to have the trial set for May 10.

Dies in China.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 18.—Sacrificing his life in an effort to save that of a Chinaman who was attacked by Asiatic cholera, Dr. John A. Otte, formerly of this city, medical missionary at a hospital post at Amoy, China, contrated the disease and fell a victim to it. A cablegram telling of the death of the missionary has been received.

All Missions Destroyed.

London, April 18.—The China Inland Missionary society has received a message from Hankow, stating that all the missions at Changsha had been destroyed and all the personal effects of the missionaries lost. The message added that the members of the China Inland mission, which was established by Dr. F. A. Keller and Mrs. Keller, Americans, in 1901, had arrived safely at Hankow.

AGAIN WE HEAR FROM TEXAS

LETTER FROM OUR ESTEEMED FRIEND SAM JAY

Which Will be Read With Interest by His Many Friends.

Sodia, Texas, April 10, 1910.

Dear Editor:

Yielding to the requests of friends and perhaps to my own inclination, I am writing you again with the hopes that you may have available space in the "Old Reliable" for a few random remarks:

Before visiting Texas I had formed a mental picture of certain understood or imagined conditions as to topography, climate and people, but on arriving here was somewhat disappointed to find that the unconscious blending of colors in my imaginative chrome was radically at fault when compared with the original object itself. But, after a few months' residence and acquaintance with people and conditions, the REAL picture gradually presents itself, growing more interesting and fascinating from every angle of vision as time goes on.

Since the winter can hark back to earlier days, a great many Michigan people have journeyed to Texas, just to see the country or to pass a pleasant winter, and nearly all have returned home with reports both favorable and otherwise.

It is but natural that those having interests and binding ties elsewhere should become wedded to their home surroundings and industrial enterprises, which prove most pleasant and profitable, but since we are not all of similar temperament and taste, some of us who yield to the cravings of an undeveloped nature, must of necessity form different and sometimes curious ideas of strange places. Travel broadens the mind, but one can scarcely give an acurate description of any state or country by simply passing through it, or even stopping a few days.

Again, our impressions of things in general are largely influenced by our physical and mental condition which may partially obscure or alter the range of scope of our perspective vision. As this state is so vast in area, and so varied in climate, products and people, I cannot say anything definite or truthful about any other section but East Texas, the so-called "garden spot of the South."

I did not expect to find here the modern Utopia, the elysium of peace and content, nor the ham and egg tree of minstrel song and story; but I was in search of a mild climate and I found it just about as represented; with the exception that there is perhaps too much dampness here in the rain belt for those of delicate nature.

I found a fertile soil that will raise anything from peanuts to saw logs and an indigenous, happy-go-lucky people who apparently do not appreciate the blessings bestowed upon them nor take any active interest in modern methods of agriculture or manufacturing, but seem content with little. "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."

I also found the ham and——tree in the shape of the tall yellow pine, which yields abundantly of all the necessities and some of the luxuries when taken from its virgin surroundings and manufactured into finished products.

Before going farther, let me revise my statement about the native, by saying that the class mentioned are to be found only in certain districts remote from railroads and industrial towns, for the unreconstructed rebels and "hill-billies," who still vote for Andrew Jackson, are traveling toward the little cemeteries under the whispering pines.

The "tenderfoot" from other states and the younger men of Texas are beginning to see and grasp opportunity as she passes. According to an old legend, Opportunity is represented as a fleet-footed, bald-headed female who cannot be caught after once passing by.

The industrial activity of East Texas as a whole, is surprisingly interesting and, although there are some dull spots, yet the majority of towns and counties show a marked increase in population and volume of business. The newspapers as a rule are enterprising and truthful, although I have to admit that they do handle facts carelessly at times in their frantic efforts to build up their own communities.

The farmers are taking up intensive, rather than extensive farming and doing well in their own peculiar way.

Agricultural experts (?) and entomologists tell us that the extreme heat of last summer and severe frosts of the winter has nearly exterminated boll weevil which is the worst pest of the southern farmer; and the leading papers went so far as to print his epitaph as follows:

"Here lies Boll Weevil, Killed by Jack Frost:
Old and Sol
Requiscat en pace."

Down on the coast around Houston and Galveston, many thousands of acres are being planted to oranges, figs, peaches, plums and other citrous fruits.

Strawberries brought $1.00 per quart in Houston last winter and thousands of carloads of garden truck were shipped to northern markets. The value of land near markets and railroads, is steadily rising and manufacturing plants from everywhere are being established in new towns along the ship channels and elsewhere.

Navigable rivers are receiving some attention from the inland waterways commission and the gulf ports are all clamoring for more money to complete harbor improvements. All this expenditure of energy and money is being done in anticipation of the great tide of commerce which will flow into these gulf towns, following the opening of the Panama Canal in 1913.

I might mention other facts relative to industry, but what's the use? "You all" can read Texas literature in every town throughout the North. Let us ride up the "boll weevil" road and stop at Saleratus—the Knox brand of Soda.

"Old Bill" Knox, as he is affectionately called by his large cosmopolitan family, is one of those "bloody bloated bondholders" from Michigan, who foresaw the end of virgin white pine and bought these Texas timber lands many years ago. He is not here for his health, but I give him credit for conducting a square business, and a decent orderly town.

Regarding this district, my imagination was wrong again. Anticipation was eclipsed by realization. With a hearsay knowledge of conditions in Michigan lumber towns about thirty years ago—was a disgrace to any civilized country. I expected to find a rough, lawless class in these Texas timber burgs, but was agreeably surprised to find that some of them, varying in size from five hundred to three-thousand population, are as clean and orderly as any agricultural town in Ohio or Michigan.

"There's a reason," as Post says: There are no saloons, brothels or gambling dives in these local option counties. To be sure, John Barleycorn is still alive and kicking, evidenced by the fact that $6,000 worth of cordials was shipped to points in this county last Christmas, but the local law does away with the low dive and protects the weak brother, who tries hard to avoid temptation and "seeks it yet again" as the bible says. But in those lumber and oil towns, where saloons flourish and reckless men foregather, there is enough disorder and lawlessness to suit the most bloodthirsty villian of a 30 cent drama.

The average Texan as I find him, is a composite American product of ancestry and environment; a mixture of northern thrift, western breeziness and southern indolence. I will not say that he is lazy but his slogan is,—"Take it easy." He slams his words, slam is right against the roof of his mouth with a Piqua, Ohio, twang and throws in some negro dialect to make it interesting. Hot blooded and quick to show the primitive passions, yet loyal to friends, home and country. Taken altogether, a pretty good fellow to "meet up with," and I haven't had cause to regret making his acquaintance and friendship.

In summing up the grand total of experience and knowledge gained by eight months' residence, let me say that, outside of the large towns, the country is still primitive, undergoing the natural process of development and evolution. 'Tis no place for the idealist or critic, but it is a good location for the hustler with a little gumption, grit and gold He can "get on, get honor, get honest."

I have often thought what a glorious country this would be if we could persuade these people to work their land or business with more intelligence and ambition, to discard vile whiskey, poisonous snuff, etc., and to select their food with a view of maintaining harmonious action between body and brain,—compel them to stop miscegenation and intermarriage. Sparkling preachments or poignant platitudes won't teach them. They must be shown by example and to see the wrong in themselves. Burns says: "Wad some power the Giftie gie us,
To see ourselves as others see us;
Frae mony a blunder free us—

But, out of the chaotic condition of the Southwest, as it is today, there will come in the next generation, a clean, progressive and broadminded people, for the infusion of new and vigorous blood from other sections will work the transformation.

The state of Texas will then present to the rest of the world, a vast industrial empire in itself and a beautiful, yet active panorama of human progress and development.

The northern man coming here is very apt to criticize too freely—thinking perhaps, that the people are not up to his standard of morality and enlightenment, but the wise ones adapt themselves to conditions and surroundings, altering or trying to alter only those things which affect their own individual welfare. And there is much homesickness and discontent among those who cannot assimilate unusual conditions, climatic and otherwise, for after all is said and done, there is no place like home, and the unit of real value is a moment of content.

Oh, content! Thou sweet sorceress of our waking hours, who leadeth us into fields fairer than the soul-sensuous vision of Nirvana's dreamy vale, baptizing us with the sweetness of perfect peace! Come and abide with us unto the end.

But Shakespeare says: "'Tis better to bear with the ills that we have than fly to others that we know not of," so the majority of us Michiganders have decided to stay through the summer and perhaps longer, "Quen Sabe!" Who knows?

Speaking thusly, I am reminded of the once popular ditty of "Uncle John on Broadway" which little Willie Hicks used to sing: "Here I will remain."

Voicing the opinion of myself and others, I can truthfully say that we have passed a pleasant winter among the beautiful pines, with primitive surroundings and a homely, yet kindly people in whom we found many admirable traits of character.

In conclusion, let me use the homely vernacular of "hill-billie" Bill, when he leaves home for a journey:

"The 'ole mewl is yourn,
An' if ah don't come back—
Ah reckon yo-all kin
Ride him off."

Sincerely yours,
Sam Jay.

How Glaciers Are Formed.

The joint cause of glaciers is precipitation and cold. A low temperature alone can do nothing without moisture, and this fact quickly disposes of the popular notion that glaciers invariably exist in cold countries. Tibet, for instance, and some parts of North America are destitute of ice springs, though eternal cold may be said to reign supreme in those parts. Imagine for a moment the higher mountains clear of snow and ice and then watch for the formation of a glacier. Snow falls and fills up all the valleys and gullies, avalanches descend from the higher parts, and a great accumulation gathers in all hollows. By constant repetition of snowfalls (always provided a greater quantity is deposited than can be melted by the sun's rays and by the natural warmth of the earth's crust) great pressure is put upon the lower portions by the superincumbent accumulation, and, aided by the infiltration of water and refreezing, a large body of ice is formed, which at once begins to move down the valleys containing it.

Why Snow Is White?

The pure white luster of snow is due to the fact that all the elementary colors of light are blended together in the radiance thrown off from the surface of the crystals. It is quite possible to examine the individual snow crystals in such a way as to detect these several colors before they are mingled together to constitute the compound impression of whiteness upon the eye. The soft whiteness of the snow is also in some degree attributable to the large quantity of air entangled amid the frozen particles. Snow is composed of a great number of minute crystals, more than a thousand distinct forms of which have been enumerated by various observers. These crystals and prisms reflect all the compound rays of which white light consists. Sheets of snow on the ground are known to reflect beautiful pink and blue tints under certain angles of sunshine and to fling back so much light as to be painful to the eyes.

Touching Verse.

At first she touches up her hair
To see if it's in place,
And then with manner debonair
She touches up her face.
A touch to curls behind her ear,
A touch to silken collar,
And then she's off to hubby dear—
To touch him for a dollar.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Easy Problems.

If a hundred eggs were placed in a straight line, exactly a yard asunder from one another and the first a yard from a basket, what length of ground does that man go who gathers up these hundred eggs singly, returning with every egg to the basket to put it in?

Answer—Five miles and one thousand three hundred yards.

A man had eight sons. The youngest was four years old and the oldest thirty-two. They increased in arithmetical progression. What was the common difference of their ages?

Answer—Four.

A man is to travel from London to a certain place in twelve days and go about three miles the first day, increasing every day by an equal excess, so that the last day's journey may be fifty-eight miles. What is the daily increase and how many miles distant is that place from London?

Answer—Daily increase, five miles; 366 miles distant.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Mother and the Wolf.

A wolf, sneaking around a cottage, heard a child cry and then the voice of the mother, "If you do not stop crying I will throw you to the wolf!" The wolf crouched near and waited for the plump morsel. "Surely," thought he, "the child will cry again and I shall have a tender baby to stay my hunger."

At last the child again began to cry, and the wolf in his eagerness for the promised meal allowed himself to be seen. The mother was horrified when she saw the fierce brute, and, hastily shutting the window, she called to the men, who came running with the dogs and gave chase to the wolf, who barely escaped with his life. "Alas," howled the wolf when his hunger pinched him still more, "put no faith in the promise of an enemy!"

An Experiment.

Put a new penny in a basin and get your spectator to lower his head till his eyes have struck a line that runs from the nearest edge of the coin to the rim of the vase. At this instant it is not the coin itself the observer beholds, but its image created by refraction. The observer not stirring from this position, you may announce to him that you will cause the piece to disappear by sucking it up through a syringe.

You have now only to extract the water from the vase through a syringe. The liquid gone, the spectator will no longer see the coin, which is hidden by the wall of the receptacle. Pour water in again and the coin will reappear.

An Alliteration Game.

Provide each player with pencil and paper and every two minutes give out a letter. During the two minutes each player is to write a sensible sentence, each word of which begins with the letter given out. If "S" is given out some one might write, "Simple Susan sat sewing skillfully," or the like. When as many letters have been given out as there are players, each player must read one sentence. Any one with a sentence longer than the one read aloud marks his sentence, beginning with the same letter as the one read, plus; with a sentence shorter, minus. The one with the most plus marks is the winner.

Ruth and Jacob.

For this game one player is blindfolded and the rest dance in a circle around him till he points at one of them. This person then enters the ring and when the blind man calls out "Ruth" answers "Jacob" and moves about within the circle so as to avoid being caught by the blind man and continues to answer "Jacob" as often as the blind man calls out "Ruth." This continues until Ruth is caught. Jacob must then guess who it is he has caught. If he guesses correctly, Ruth takes his place, and the game goes on. If he guesses wrongly he continues to be Jacob.

The Lawyer.

For this game each gentleman chooses a partner, and then all stand in a circle except one person in the center, who becomes the lawyer. He is to ask questions of any person in the company, but the answer in every case must be given not by the person addressed, but by his or her partner. If the person spoken to makes answer or if the partner fails to do so promptly the person so answering or failing, as the case may be, must take the lawyer's place. By asking questions rapidly and turning quickly from one side of the company to the other some one is sure to get caught.

What's the Answer?

What lesson does the weather cock teach us? It is vane to aspire.

When is a lawyer like a beast of burden? When drawing a conveyance.

When is a soldier like a watch? When he is on guard.

What are the embers of the expiring year? Nov-ember and Dec-ember.

How is a poultry dealer compelled to earn his living? By fowl means.

AMUSEMENTS!

Powell & Cohan's Musical Comedy company of twenty people with its dashing beauty chorus and brilliant cast of well known musical comedy favorites is to visit Tecumseh, for TWO NIGHTS, commencing Thursday, April 21, and give a different musical comedy each night. The bill for the opening night will be "THE BEAUTY AND THE BANKER," and the following musical comedies, some of which have had long city runs, will be produced: "The Rajah of Bhong," "The Yankee Doodle Boy," "The Boy, the Bird and the Bottle," "Cupid and the Prizefighter," "My Queen in Calico," "Hi Diddle Diddle" and "A Daughter of America." There will be no attempt to charge regular musical comedy prices for the shows; the 25, 35 and 50 cent scale has been agreed upon between the local management and Powell & Cohan.

The company is headed by Miss Carlo Portello, who is one of the most popular of musical comedy prima-donnas. Miss Portello, however, is not handicapped like the average prima-donna for she can enact comedy roles as well as she can sing, which is saying a great deal, and in THE BEAUTY and the BANKS, she plays the part of an eccentric maid servant. In this she is said to be irresistibly funny.

The chorus of pretty girls adds much to the enjoyment of the shows. Theatre goers should turn out and fill the opera house to its utmost capacity every night during this engagement. Seats on sale at Aldrich's, Tuesday morning.

Miss Myrtle Hebard, who Tecumseh theatre goers will remember as the leading lady in "Frivolous Bonnie," which played here early in the season, has charge of the chorus with Powell & Cohen's Musical Comedy Co., which comes to the Bradley Opera House for two nights, commencing Thursday, April 21. Mr. Geo. Fletcher, who was here with the same attraction is musical director.

THE JOLLY SIXTEEN.

The Jolly 16 met with Mrs. Thos. McCann by special invitation Thursday evening. Each one came in a fanciful costume and the showing was decidedly fine.

Cards furnished the amusement proper, and the prizes were given Mrs. Lester Rogers 1st, Mrs. G. J. Ziehr 2nd and Mrs. Davis Brown the consolation. The refreshments were delicious and were served in a dainty manner. The evening was most delightfully spent, and will be long remembered by those who participated.

ANSWER

One—the flat, sad, sickly looking one—was baked with poor baking powder; possibly the high price kind—possibly the cheap, big can kind. It denotes a lack of leavening gas, or an uneven distribution of same—or both. The other—the large, light, fluffy one—was prepared with Calumet Baking Powder, and denotes the never-failing, delicious baking that always results from its use.

Calumet does not cost as much as the high price baking powder, but it is very much superior in every way—it is purer—more reliable—more healthful. Here are the reasons:

All baking powders undergo a chemical change in the process of baking. You do not take it into the stomach in the same form as it is in the can. For example: When you use Cream of Tartar Baking Powder you get Rochelle Salts in your food, because the Cream of Tartar during this reaction turns into Rochelle Salts. This, as you know, is a drug, and should be taken only under doctor's orders.

Calumet is so carefully and scientifically prepared, that the neutralization of the ingredients is absolutely perfect.

That it is absolutely pure and of highest quality is proven by the fact that

BEERS POST NO. 140

Fine Time In Camp Monday Night

"BOYS" WERE ALL IN LINE AND THEIR LADIES TOO.

Post Room Was Very Tastefully Arranged and the Entertainment Proved a Merited Success

The "Boys" were treated last night with a packed house. We were a little late but had scarcely appeared upon the scene before we were discovered by the Eagle eye of our friend, the genial "Henry" Stevens and ushered to the front, where we were introduced to Col. O. A. Janes of Detroit, the father and founder of Beers Post, and who was the central figure for the evening. After being seated, Comrade Stevens being master of ceremonies, announced a program something like the following:

Music—America, to which all present responded enthusiastically.

Invocation—Rev. D. Stanley Shaw of the M. E. church.

Music—Ladies Quartette.

Recitation—By Miss Helen Rogers, of Adrian, was thoroughly acceptable. She received a re-call.

Music—Ladies Quartette.

Address—Col. O. A. Janes, of Detroit. His talk was principally confined to historical events that occurred during the rebellion. He cited many battle fields and the terrible result of each. He talked at length of the conditions at the close of the war, of the debt of millions, yes billions, but by careful and far-seeing legislation, all has been overcome—every dollar paid.

While he considered Uncle Sam had verified its obligation to the "Boys in Blue," there was one part of its mission, however, that had not had justice. He was referring to the boys who suffered in Southern prison pens. He said they had not received the compensation that they ought. We might say much more in this connection, but have not the time nor space.

Following the Col's remarks another sparkling recitation was given by Miss Rogers, after which the exercises closed by singing—"Tenting Tonight" when all went home (we believe) satisfied.

CARD OF THANKS

Most gratefully I would wish to extend my thanks to those who were so kind to me during the sickness and death of my dear wife. For the words of comfort spoken, for the music and the flowers. May your loving kindness be repaid to you tenfold.
Joseph E. Gray.

DR. D. L. TREAT

The Detroit Journal gave Dr. Treat quite a send off in one of its late issues. So many of our people in Tecumseh know him so well it will not come amiss to quote a little.

"Dr. David Leroy Treat, newly elected Democratic mayor of Adrian is one of the most popular young men of the city. He is but 35 years of age and at present is serving his third term as mayor and sixth in the council.

The Dr. was born near Adrian, graduated from Adrian high school, Ohio medical university and post graduate work in N. Y. He has a successful practice in Adrian. In politics is square-toed and honorable, stands for enforcing the law and assure the people of Adrian that after May 1st the local option law will be strictly enforced."

THE CENSUS

Now it will be in order for each one to brighten up their memory in regard to age, parentage whether married, single or wish in that direction besides quite a number of other facts and fancies required by the enumerator.

The first census was taken in 1790 with Geo Washington as superintendent of the same. At that time 17 marshalls and about 600 assistants were required for the work. The report Oct. 27, 1791 showed a population of 3,929,214 in the 14 states then enumerated. We wait and wonder how the present day report will compare with this.

BOOZE CAR

We see by an exchange that the T. & W. Co. may run a "booze car" from Adrian to Toledo on Saturdays and Sunday's. We hope for the good name of our sister town that this is not so, that there is manliness enough left to resent the insinuation.

BAD STOMACH.

My Stomach Is Growing from Bad to Worse

Yes its true: thousands of people cannot eat the simplest meal without having it lie on the stomach like a lump of lead, causing misery, sour stomach and gas eructations.

And later, when the sthomach has gone from bad to worse, there will be longer periods of food fermentation, and then dizziness, billiousness, sick headaches and nervousness.

If your stomach is out of order, if it doesn't feel right after meals, go today and get a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets. In a few minutes after the first dose, the misery will disappear, and you will be thankful.

Then go right to taking Mi-o-na for a few days. It will build up the stomach, unclog the liver, purify the bowels and make you entirely satisfied with your stomach in a few days.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are made from the best prescription for stomach troubles ever written. They are sold by druggists everywhere and by C. A. Wright & Son, and are guaranteed to cure indigestion, acute or chronic, or money back.

Booth's Pills are best for torpid liver and constipation. 25 cents.

RECEPTION AT Y. M. C. A. CLUB ROOMS

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Vecelius Honored Guests.

The young men's club tendered a reception to their old friend Leonard Vecelius and bride at their rooms Friday evening, April 15th. There were 37 present and the evening was pleasantly spent with vocal and instrumental music, cards and billiards. The rooms were very tasteful for the occasion and all went merrily along.

The bride was a resident of Detroit but the call "Westward Ho" has sounded and she and her husband will soon take their departure for their new home. Every one wished them a long life and a happy one. Fine refreshments were served which was enjoyed by all.

The out of town guests were Miss Gertrude Bowen of Adrian and Mr. Smith of Reed City, a brother of B. Earl Smith.

It may be that God makes some things purely for ornament, but a christian does not come under that head.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Famed as a Trust Fighter.

United States District Attorney Edwin W. Sims, who has charge of Uncle Sam's suit against the meat trust, on trial before the federal court at Chicago, has several notable legal battles to his credit. It was Mr. Sims who successfully prosecuted the case against the Standard Oil company which resulted in a fine of $29,240,000. The fact that the decision of Judge Landis was reversed in no way detracts from the triumph of Mr. Sims as a personal achievement. Another legal contest in which Sims waged successful warfare was the trial of John R. Walsh, the millionaire banker and railroad man. Walsh is now serving time in a federal prison.

EDWIN W. SIMS.

Mr. Sims is a Canadian by birth and will be forty years old next June. When he was an infant his parents moved to Bay City, Wis., where his boyhood was spent. After several years spent in newspaper work he began the study of law at the University of Michigan. He was admitted to the bar in 1894 and began practice in Chicago. He served as county attorney of Cook county, Ill., from 1900 to 1903, resigning to take the position of special attorney for the bureau of corporations at Washington. Next he was solicitor of the department of commerce and labor and in 1906 was appointed district attorney for the northern district of Illinois.

Farmer's Hint to the Preacher.

Speaking of the discouragements that sometimes come to the lot of a well meaning clergyman, the Rev. Dr E. T. Jeffers, a professor in the Collegiate institute in New York, said in a confab with Presbyterian ministers in the Witherspoon building:

"There is always some flint hearted individual in your congregation to frown on the 'prodigal sons,' 'backsliders,' 'lost sheep' and other penitents who return to the fold.

"I was once welcoming a prodigal son and was just warming up to my subject when one of these individuals in the congregation said in a very audible whisper:

"'Cornhusks would be too good for the critur.'"—Philadelphia Times.

The Sound Sleep Of Good Health.

The restorative power of sound sleep can not be over estimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Southers, Eau Claire, Wis., says:—"For a long time I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock. I eat and enjoy my meals, and my general condition is greatly improved. I can honestly recommend Foley's Kidney Pills as I know they have cured me." For sale by all druggists.

CROUP stopped in 20 minutes sure with Dr. Shoop's Croup Remedy. One test will surely prove. No vomiting, no distress. A safe and pleasing syrup—50c. Druggists.

Free Child's Remedy

What mother is not looking for something that will help her children in the little ills of life, something for the stomach trouble and the bowel trouble? Long ago she probably has become convinced that a child cannot readily swallow a pill or a tablet, and that to "break them in half and crush them" is an annoyance; that usually they work too drastically, and are nauseating and too powerful for the little one's stomach.

Any mother who will take the trouble of sending her name and address can obtain a free sample bottle of a remedy that thousands of other mothers are using and now paying for. This remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the offer of a free trial bottle is open to any mother who has not yet used it. Having used it and convinced yourself that it is what you want, you can obtain it in the future of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as so many others are doing, the free sample being simply to convince you of its merits. It is the best way to begin on it. Mrs. L. Davis of 157 W. Harrison street, Chicago, and Mrs. Mary Belford, 1710 Coke street, Louisville, Ky., both started with a free sample and now they write that they have never been without a bottle in the house since.

It is undoubtedly a great family remedy, as it is adapted to all ages, being mild and pleasant to take and yet thoroughly effective. It is especially the ideal remedy for children and women and old folks, who need something pure, mild and natural. It has the advantage of being a thorough laxative and yet contains tonic properties. Use it for the most stubborn constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sick headache, sour stomach and such complaints with a guarantee that it will cure.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.590 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

FOUND DR. COOK.

Explorer and His Wife Are Living In Little Town In Chili.

Trenton, N. J., April 18.—Ex-State Comptroller William S. Hancock, who has just returned from a trip through South America, has unearthed the hiding place of Dr. Frederick Cook at the little village of Cuilcoles, on the Chilean side of the Andes. At the time of the meeting Dr. Cook and his wife, who were living as Mr. and Mrs. Craig, were believed to be fugitives from justice. The belief, Mr. Hancock said, was the result of the secrecy which Dr. Cook maintained and his efforts to avoid meeting anyone who might seek to pry into his affairs. Dr. Cook admitted his identity, but refused to talk to any of the tourists.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES.

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Tecumseh women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's proof of it in a Tecumseh woman's words:

Mrs. George Burrough, E. Potawatamie street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About a year ago my health became much run down. My kidneys did not act properly and I suffered severely from backache. Knowing of other people who had used Doan's Kidney Pills for similar troubles with the best of results, I procured a box at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. In a few weeks after taking them, I felt better and I am now free from Kidney complaint. I willingly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

PRESERVE FOR BIRDS.

Detroit Man Proposes to Let Audubon Society Use Vast Area.

Boston, April 14.—A game preserve of 1,000 acres, on Cape Ann, to be maintained under the direction of the National Audubon societies, is proposed by James G. Hawks of Detroit, vice president of the Detroit & Mackinac railroad. Mr. Hawks is the owner of an extensive tract of land fronting on the ocean, between the Annisquam and Essex rivers. He has been unsuccessful, he says, in preventing the killing of game in this property and has offered the use of the estate as a game preserve to the Audubon society.

For several years Mr. Hawks has been improving his Cape Ann estate and has built there an attractive stone bungalow which he occupies summers with his family. A large part of the estate was nothing more than sand dunes when he came into possession of it a few years ago, and he has been waging a fight with the sand for the reclamation of the land. He has begun to reforest the tract.

One Child Fatally Burned.

Bay City, Mich., April 14.—When John McAllister, a miner, living a half mile west of the city, stepped from his house the other day, he left two children, aged three and five, respectively, alone in the house. A moment later the father heard one of the children scream. He rushed into the house and discovered the interior of the residence in flames. The children while playing in the fire pulled coals into their clothing. The younger of the two children was burned so badly that it died three hours later, and the other had his hands badly blistered in trying to put out the fire.

Will Likely Strike.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 18.—A strike poll of the engineers, firemen and telegraphers of the Delaware and Hudson railroad was completed Sunday, but the result will not be known for a day or two. The general impression among railroaders in this section is that the vote will be in favor of a strike, as the men are opposed to accepting the offer made by the company officials as a compromise.

Telegraphic Briefs.

According to reports from Central America, a revolution has broken out against the president of Guatemala. The revolutionists are said to be well armed and to have their plans well laid some time ago.

London society fad is vegetarianism. A new vegetarian restaurant to be opened shortly will be under the patronage of many smart women. Tests made with the albumen of eggs laid by hens infected with tuberculosis show that the white plague is communicable by this means, according to a report by W. H. Lyttle, Oregon state veterinarian, filed with the Oregon state board. Mr. Little states, however, that eggs moderately cooked, even though heavily infected, are not dangerous.

Many Berliners seem to regard Colonel Roosevelt's forthcoming visit as a freak and are endeavoring to transform it into a money making event. The manager of one of the big hotels called upon a prominent American official in Berlin and gravely proposed that the latter should arrange a concert at the hotel in honor of Colonel Roosevelt. The hotel man said seriously: "We can get from fifteen to thirty dollars a seat from people who are eager to see the colonel."

DIPLOMACY AT HOME.

If Your Wife Asks the Right Question All Is Easy.

"Did you read that article in the paper the other day about the age at which a woman is most lovely?" asked Mrs. Dingleham.

Mr. Dingleham had been out very late the night before, and these were the first words Mrs. Dingleham had spoken to him since she had declared that the explanation which he had attempted to give was wholly inadequate.

"Yes," he replied, "I read it."

"What is your idea about it?"

"I think," he said very gravely and very earnestly, "that a woman is loveliest when she is just your age."

For a moment all was still in the Dingleham household. Then Mrs. Dingleham put her arms around her husband's neck and said:

"Henry, will you please forgive me for what I said last night—or this morning—when you came home? It was foolish of me, but I love you so that I am often unreasonably jealous and suspicious."—Chicago Record-Herald.

MET IN INDIANAPOLIS.

National Democratic League of Clubs Elect Officers.

Indianapolis, April 14.—The National Democratic League of Clubs held its annual meeting here Wednesday, and many prominent men were in attendance. Organization for the coming campaign was effected by electing officers as follows: William C. Lilier, Indianapolis, president; first vice president, John W. Kern, Indiana; second vice president, Joseph W. Folk of Missouri; third vice president, Hoke Smith, Georgia; fourth vice president, Woodrow Wilson, New Jersey; fifth vice president, Frederick B. Lynch, Minnesota; secretary, Robert J. Beatty, Ohio; treasurer, Frank S. Clark, Indianapolis.

Speeches were made by a number of visitors. Congressman Sulzer of New York caused a good deal of enthusiasm by naming Governor Marshall for the presidency.

STARTLING CONFESSION.

Man Admits He Threw Wife Over Niagara.

Antioch, Ill., April 18.—Foster Johnson has appeared voluntarily before Justice of the Peace Jones and confessed that six years ago he threw his wife over the Niagara Falls.

He said he wanted to be taken back for trial in order to escape committing suicide. He had escaped suspicion in connection with the crime as the coroner's jury had returned a verdict of "suicide" after the finding of the woman's body.

Johnson said the murder was committed Oct. 4, 1904. He and his wife had had several quarrels because of the attentions Johnson paid to other women. Mrs. Johnson asked him to accompany her on a walk through the state reservation on the American side of the falls.

The quarrel was renewed during the walk. While they were on the edge of the river above the falls, Johnson, in a fit of anger, pushed his wife into the stream, watching until she was swept over the cataract.

No trace was found of the woman until Oct. 23, when her body was found floating in the whirlpool on the Canadian side.

TWO KILLED.

Fierce Battle Waged In a Kentucky Drink House.

Lexington, Ky., April 18.—In one of the fiercest battles ever fought in a Kentucky drink house, which occurred Saturday night at the establishment of Dudley Lutes at Heidelberg, two men were killed instantly, two others mortally wounded, and two have wounds from which they may not recover. The men were drinking "malt mead," the new drink that is the substitute for beer, since the local option laws have forbidden the sale of the beverage in most Kentucky towns.

Costly Jones, a nephew of Jailer Jones, was intoxicated and flourished a revolver, threatening the bartender, when some of the others attempted to disarm him. Jeff Wilson, whose family had for years been the feudal enemy of the Jones, drew his revolver and shot Jones in the back. Elmer Mattox, the brother-in-law of Jones, then shot Wilson, and Wilson's friends, Robert Turner and John Swann, drew their guns, as did Clay Hall and Elmer Mattox.

Hall was shot through the stomach and Mattox through the neck. Turn got a bullet in his leg, and Swann was shot in the right foot.

GRANT MUST PAY.

Former Michigan Justice Fails to Get Duty Removed From Goods.

New Orleans, April 18.—Judge C. B. Grant, former justice of the supreme court of Michigan, will have to pay $22.90 to the United States government before the customs inspectors at New Orleans will release fabrics, lace and fancy goods which Mrs. Grant purchased on her last trip to Havana and brought to New Orleans on the steamer Chalmette.

The goods were seized by the inspectors under the new ruling of the treasury department, which puts a ban on goods brought here from foreign countries by passengers for personal adornment. The decision limits the amount of goods to $100, and every yard over that amount of appraisment is subject to duty.

Judge Grant appealed to the treasury department, but Collector McCall received word that his appeal has been turned down.

FISHING JACK BROKE.

Boat Is Fired and One Fisherman Fatally Burned.

Three Rivers, Mich., April 18.—Roy Pursell, George Hazleton and Jim Irwin were spearing on the St. Joseph river two miles below this city in the evening when the standard of their jack lamp broke, throwing flaming oil over the boat and its occupants. Irwin and Hazleton jumped into the river, but Pursell stayed in the boat trying to quech the flames. His efforts were futile, and the fire reached a can of gasoline stored under a seat before he realized it.

The can exploded, literally drenching him with burning oil. He fell into the river and was rescued by Irwin, who had gained safety on a bridge piling. Irwin and Hazleton carried Pursell to a nearby farmhouse, where a physician was summoned. His face, arms and shoulders are fearfully burned, and there are doubts as to his recovery.

Hazleton is in a precarious condition.

Make Lumber Out of Straw.

Lansing, Mich., April 18.—The Gardner Artificial Lumber company has been organized in this city with the following officers: President, H. E. Bradner, Lansing; vice president, S. S. Stewart, Flint; treasurer, H. T. Thomas, Lansing; secretary, H. R. Neuville, Barberton, O. The company now has a plant at Barberton, O., where its product of artificial lumber is being turned out. This plant has been taken over by the new company and not moved. The lumber is made of straw. It can be worked up just the same as the natural wood.

Young Trappers Did Well.

Hastings, Mich., April 18.—While trapping in Johnstown township, Ira Tobias and George Kelley, two young men, caught $452.50 worth of fur in two weeks, making the largest catch of fur ever taken in Barry county in the same length of time. The catch consisted of 525 muskrats, four skunks and one raccoon. Their catch during the entire trapping season consisted of 1,225 muskrats, five raccoons and twenty-two skunks. For the lot they received $656.25.

A Teamaking Hint.

If you once wash your tea before making you will not return to the old way. First scald the teapot, put in the tea and pour half a cupful of boiling water over it. Then pour off the water immediately. Let the leaves stand a minute or two until they uncurl, then pour on fresh boiling water and steep as usual.

NEW YORK ON TIP-TOE.

Drexel-Gould Wedding Will Be the Event of Season.

New York, April 18.—Society is anticipating with keen interest the approaching marriage of Miss Marjorie Gwynne Gould, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould, and Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel of Philadelphia and London. It will be the notable wedding of the New York season and will be celebrated at 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church, Madison avenue and Forty-fourth street.

There will be a full choral service at the church by the choir, augmented by additional choristers, and supplemented by instrumental music of the harp and violin. The bride, who will, of course, be given in marriage by her father, will be attended by a bevy of beautiful bridesmaids.

Armstrong Drexel, a brother of the bridegroom, will be the best man.

Bishop Scarborough of New Jersey and the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks will perform the cermony assisted by the Rev. Edward Matthews of Lakewood.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception will be given at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. George Gould at 857 Fifth avenue. During the reception there will be a buffet luncheon served by Delmonico. The bride has been the recipient of many handsome and valuable presents, including a house on upper Fifth avenue not far from the Gould mansion.

Eleven Men Were Killed.

Monterey, Mex., April 18.—When an antiquated locomotive exploded in the yards of the National railways of Mexico, here, eleven employes of the road were killed. Two others were horribly injured, but it is expected that they will recover. The fatal screwing down of the safety valve on the engine after it had been run out of the roundhouse caused the explosion.

First Spring Item.

"Last Sunday mornin' when the family wuz fixin' to go to church to hear the new preacher the young 'un kept up sich a squallin' an' a-bawlin' that it looked like the whole family would have to stay home. But Miss Sally, the oldest gal, went out into the nearby woods an' kill a six foot rattlesnake an' cut off his rattles, an' they so amused the young 'un that he come quiet an' had a rattlin' good time all to hisse'f, an' the family went on to church."—Atlanta Constitution.

RETURNS POWER TO COMMISSION

Bird's Act May Cost Corporations Higher Taxes.

Lansing, Mich., April 21.—What is believed to be a measure that will increase the assessment of certain corporation property throughout the state and lower the general tax rate, has been handed down in an opinion by Attorney General Bird. He says that under the law governing the point the state tax commission has the power to review any and all assessment rolls, with a view of increasing the property now undervalued, placing unassessed valuations on the rolls and generally supervising property and its taxation.

This opinion settles the long dispute there has been between county and district assessors and the tax commission. Some time ago the assessors appealed to the legislature for protection from the commission, declaring that the latter body, by indiscriminate changing of the rolls, as prepared by the assessors, caused trouble from taxpayers, who believed they were not being fairly treated.

The legislature altered the law to provide that the commission could not review an assessment roll unless there had been a written complaint from some taxpayer. The power of which it was deprived by this measure is returned to the board by the attorney general's opinion.

Shot in Hand by Stranger.

Flint, Mich., April 21.—Loren Jones, aged twenty-six, has reported to the police that he was shot, at night, by a stranger on Beach street, near the Grand Trunk tracks. Jones will likely lose two fingers as the result of the shot from the stranger's revolver. The wounded man states that he was walking toward his assailant, when the latter, drawing his gun, fired. The assailant ran toward Saginaw street and disappeared in the dark.

Important Prohibition Meeting.

Lansing, Mich., April 21.—Citizens who have been pushing the local option fight in this state are to hold a conference here Wednesday, April 27. The principal matter for discussion will be as to whether the time has come to start the fight for statewide prohibition. There will also be considered the present liquor regulation laws of the state, with a view of deciding on what amendments and changes shall be asked of the next legislature.

BACK TO MINES.

Miners and Operators Have Reached Partial Understanding.

Pittsburg, April 21.—The miners' convention of the Pittsburg district adjourned Wednesday, after unanimously agreeing to leave the matter of the signing of the wage scale agreement to the wage scale committee, and as a result about 15,000 of the miners in the Pittsburg district will return to work before the end of this week.

About one third of the operators of the district have agreed to the terms of the miners, and others have agreed to sign within the next two days. As a result those who have signed are permitted to resume operations.

Port Huron, Mich. April 21.—While driving through the country, Sheriff Wagensell found a destitute family in St. Clair township. David Genaw, the head of the house, was sick and penniless, and his wife and children had had nothing to eat for three days. The sheriff made arrangements for relief for the family.

BLOODY FIGHT TAKES PLACE

McKees Rocks Constables and Strikers Clash.

SEVEN PERSONS ARE INJURED

Three Will Probably Die From Effects of Wounds—Officers Attempted to Disperse Mob of Foreigners Who Were Being Worked into State of Frenzy.

Pittsburg, April 21.—In a battle, Wednesday evening, between strikers and township constables at McKees Rocks, at least seven persons were injured, three of whom will probably die. The dying are Constable J. M. Daniels, shot through abdomen and chest; Joe Biernot, Hungarian striker, shot several times by the constables, and an unknown striker who refuses to give his name.

The trio is at the Ohio Valley hospital, the last named two being under arrest. In addition to this, one of the attacking strikers was hit by a train as he was escaping from the pursuing mob and knocked over the bank. He is though to have fallen into the river, but no traces of him could be found. A farmer named Hannan was shot through the hand, and two unknown foreigners were carried away by their friends, apparently badly injured, but their names cannot be learned.

The battle occurred just at dark at the notorious Bloody Angle, where so much rioting and bloodshed occurred in the last strike and where the Victor bank was looted and two employes killed some weeks ago. There had been a mass meeting held by Industrial Workers of the World on a nearby Indian mound, and about 250 of the foreign speaking workmen, on their way back, stopped at Bloody Angle to talk matters over. One leader was harranguing his fellow workmen in an unknown tongue, and they were getting wildly excited when Chief of Police Silvers of Sloe township, with Constable Daniels, came up to the crowd and ordered it to disperse.

The speaker shouted something as he jumped from the perch on which he had been standing, and there was a spit of flame from the crowd and Daniels fell, shot through the body. Three bullets passed through the clothes of Chief Silvers, but none hurt him. The mob, after its first fire of perhaps a dozen shots, made a rush for the prostrate constable, but Chief Silvers, standing over Daniels, began to shoot. Daniels rose to one arm and lent his fire, while four other constables who had been in the next square came running up, shooting as they came

From then on the battle waged fast and furious until the foreigners were routed.

Probably Not.

"You do not kiss as sweetly as the other girls I know."
I said to get the goat of her whom I'd allowed to beau.
"Oh, don't I?" said the maiden, lifting up her eyes of blue.
"That's funny! All the other boys I go with say I do!"
—Cleveland Leader.

She handed you that, did she? That was hardly just the thing.
That must have roused your dander some and left a little sting.
But perhaps the boys she spoke of, we might make a little note,
Had not kissed the gentle maiden since she had obtained the goat.
—Houston Post.

ASST. DIST. ATTORNEY MOSS

Handling Prosecution In Wolter Murder Case In New York.

WHAT HEARST THINKS.

Damns Roosevelt and Heaps Praise on President Taft.

Washington, April 21.—W. R. Hearst called at the White House Wednesday afternoon and talked with President Taft for half an hour. Last evening he set political Washington guessing by handing out a characteristic statement in which he damns Roosevelt and heaps a large measure of praise on President Taft. He said:

"No one can talk with the president without appreciating and respecting his earnestness and sincerity. Personally, I believe also in his efficiency.

"He has been one year in office, and he has certainly accomplished more in that one year than Roosevelt did in his first year.

"It is hardly fair to compare Taft's one year with Roosevelt's seven, and yet I am not sure that even with that the comparison might not be to Taft's advantage. Taft's methods are not those of Roosevelt, but then Taft will probably not conclude his term with a panic.

"On the whole, it seems to me that a quiet, earnest gentleman, who came into office when the country was in the slough of adversity and after one year of office has placed the country on the high road of prosperity, is quite as valuable a president as a more showy and spectacular person, who found the country in the height of prosperity and left it in the depths of adversity."

Mr. Hearst's statement continues at considerable length in this vein.

ALL IN SHORT TIME.

Two Deaths and One Birth Occur Under Same Roof.

Lansing, Mich., April 21.—Between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock Tuesday night two deaths and one birth occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Dey VanFleet, at Dewitt.

Mrs. Sarah A. Pierce died shortly before 11 o'clock. She was eighty-three years of age and had been ill for some time. A few minutes later in an adjoining room Mr. VanFleet passed away. He was a son-in-law of Mrs. Pierce, and paralysis caused his death. A few moments before midnight a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fenton Brink, Mrs. Brink being Mrs. Pierce's niece.

BIG MILITARY DEMONSTRATION

Will Take Place When Custer Monument Is Unveiled.

MONROE IS LAYING PLANS

Memorial Commission Has Invited Members of Michigan Cavalry Brigade to Be Guests of City on June 3 and 4—Annual Reunion of Custer Brigade To Be Held at Same Time

Detroit, Mich., April 21.—At a meeting of officers of the Michigan Cavalry brigade, a committee of the citizens of Monroe and the state Custer Memorial commission, at the G. A. R. building, in Detroit, Wednesday, Mayor Martin, and Secretary C. E. Greening of the Memorial Association of Monroe extended an invitation to the members of the cavalry brigade to become the guests of the citizens of Monroe on June 3 and the following day, when the monument will be unveiled at Monroe. The annual reunion of the Custer brigade will be held at the same time.

The unveiling of the Custer monument will mean one of the largest military demonstrations ever held in this state. It will be attended by several companies of the Michigan national guard, including a battery of artillery and several troops of cavalry, the Twenty-sixth United States infantry, now at Fort Wayne, and also several military organizations of other states.

President Taft will arrive in Monroe from Detroit on his special train Saturday morning and will deliver an address at the dedicatory exercises, which will take place at 10 o'clock. Senator William Alden Smith will deliver the oration. Mrs. Custer, the widow of the general, will unveil the statue, and Miss Greening will recite the poem "Custer's Last Charge."

WHAT KATY DID.

She Jabbed Folks With Hatpin So She Could See Fire.

Detroit, Mich., April 21.—"Because she couldn't get in a position where she could see the Hunter & Hunter fire, Tuesday night, because of the crowd, she pulled a hatpin out of her hat and began jabbing it into everyone she met," was the explanation Sergeant De Rosa gave for arresting Katy Sullivan.

"I have heard of women using such tactics at a fire sale,' returned Judge Stein, "but while a store is burning is a new maneuver. As this is the first instance of the kind I can remember of, I will suspend sentence."

Wolverine May Yet Be "Dry."

Wolverine, Mich., April 20.—Judge Shepherd has handed down a decision at Petoskey upholding the temporary injunction which restrained the village council from accepting surety bonds. It is believed that this decision will make saloons impossible here this year. The "wets" now claim that they will carry the case to the supreme court.

To Look Into Howell Sanitarium.

Lansing, Mich., April 21.—Dr. F. W. Shumway of the state board of health has sent Engineer T. S. Ainge to inspect the Howell sanitarium, where, it is said, the ventilation in the shacks is poor. Farmers nearby are also protesting because of the contamination of the creek by the sewage of the sanitarium.

Think Lad May Have Drowned.

Saginaw, Mich., April 21.—The police and James Martin, father of the missing Marvin Martin, have given up their search in Jamestown and will commence dragging the river for the body of the lad, who has been missing several days. It is thought that the recent thunderstorms may bring it to the surface.

AN ORDINANCE

TO REGULATE THE USE OF THE SEWERS OF THE VILLAGE

The Village of Tecumseh Ordains, that:

Sec. 1. No person shall in any way drain into the present sanitary sewers of this Village any storm water, subdrainage or any matter other than house waste, human excreta or cellar drainage.

Sec. 2. No person shall place or dump any garbage, ashes or rubbish of any kind into any manhole, flush tank or pump well. Nor shall any person, other than those acting under authority from the Common Council, in any manner interfere with the water supply or flushing apparatus of any flush tank, or the controlling device of any automatic flushing apparatus connected with said sewer system, or injure or break any sewer pipe, or change or alter the grade of the pipe line or interfere with the same in any manner whatsoever.

Sec 3. No connections made on plumbing work done in connection with the sanitary sewerage system, shall be made except by a licensed sewer tapper, or licensed plumber, who shall have been duly licensed by and bonded to the Village of Tecumseh for the purpose of such work, and no licensed tapper or plumber shall make connection or perform work in connection with said sewer system except in strict accordance with the provisions of the Common Council in relation thereto and subject to inspection by the sewer inspector of said Village.

Sec. 4. Any person or persons desiring to do business in this Village as a sewer tapper shall file in the office of the Village Clerk an application giving the name of individual or firm, and place of business and residence of such individual or firm, and asking for license as a sewer tapper. Such application must be recommended by two responsible citizens of the Village vouching for the business capacity of the applicant, and such application must state that the applicant agrees to be governed in all respects by the provisions which are or may be adopted by the Common Council relating to the said sewer system.

Sec. 5. Each applicant for a license as a sewer tapper shall execute and deposit in the office of the Village Clerk with his application, a bond with two or more sureties, or a good surety company, to be approved by the Common Council, in the sum of five hundred dollars, conditioned that the applicant will indemnify and save harmless the Village of Tecumseh, of and from all accidents and damages caused by negligence in his or their work, or by any other unfaithful, imperfect or inadequate work done by him or them under license, and that the applicant will also repair and restore all sidewalks, pavements, sewers, drains, or street service, or any opening that he may have made, to as good a state and condition as he found it, all to the satisfaction of the Common Council.

Sec. 6. Upon the approval by the Common Council of the application and bond provided for under this and any other existing ordinances, such applicant shall be licensed as a sewer tapper for the remainder of the then current fiscal year. And no person shall engage in, or continue in the business of plumbing or constructing a system of house drainage, or tapping sewers, except he be licensed to carry on such business under existing ordinances

Sec. 7. A sewer tapper shall be permitted to make taps and connections to sewers only at "Ys" and only under the inspection of the sewer inspector, and shall not lay house sewers nearer than three feet from an exterior wall of any dwelling. He shall only be permitted to make connections with catch basins, pumps and ejectors or septic tanks, upon the approval of and express permission from the Common Council.

Sec. 8. Whenever in making a house connection it shall be found that no branch, junction "Y", or suitable inlet exists for the service of the property concerned the connection shall be made only by taking out a length of pipe in the sewer system and substituting therefor a "Y" branch of the proper size, and such change shall be made only in the presence of the sewer inspector.

Sec. 8 Sewer tappers and plumbers shall be responsible for the work done by those working under them as apprentices, laborers or helpers, and the license of any sewer tapper or plumber who shall neglect or refuse to comply with the conditions of his permit, the requirements of existing ordinances, or the lawful orders of the sewer inspector may be revoked, or suspended for such time as may be determined by the Common Council, and such tapper or plumber shall also be liable to prosecution

Sec. 9 No tapper or plumber shall do any work in connection with said sewer system during the period that he shall fail to remedy any defective work that he has been held responsible for, after due notice thereof.

Sec. 10. No connection shall be made with the sewer system except upon permit therefor duly granted by the Common Council or its Sewer Committee as herein provided.

Sec 11. All applications for permits to connect with the sewer system must be made in writing, signed by the plumber or tapper employed to do the work and by the owner, his or their authorized agent, of the premises for whose benefit the application is made, accompanied by a fee of one dollar for each connection, and must state the location of the connection and describe the premises to be connected, state the number of feet frontage, name of property owner, the number of buildings to be connected and how occupied, the number of drains required and the number of water closets, sinks and other fixtures to be connected, and such application shall be filed with the clerk of the Village: Whereupon permit to make such connection may be issued by the clerk of the Village, if such application shall have been approved by the Common Council, or by its Committee on Sewers. No street, alley or public way shall be opened for the purpose of laying a private sewer or drain until twenty-four hours after notice shall have been given to the Village Clerk of intention to make such opening; and no work on laying sewers or drains shall be commenced or continued except the permit is at the place of the work in the possession of the drain layer, or one employed by him.

Sec. 12. No sewer connection shall be made until reasonable notice in writing, stating time when such work will be ready for inspection shall have been given to the Village Clerk.

Sec. 13. As little as possible of the trench shall be dug till the junction piece in the sewer is found, unless it is first determined to make a new opening into the sewer. Whenever sides of the trenches will not stand, perpendicular sheeting and braces must be used to prevent any unnecessary caving, and in no case shall the work be done by tunnelling, except under sidewalks, but shall be excavated in open trenches.

Sec. 14. All openings and obstructions in any street, lane or alley shall be carefully guarded at all times with sufficient barriers, and during the night time shall be indicated by colored lights, and such other precautions shall be taken as may be necessary to guard the public against accidents, and at all times the work shall be so done as to cause the least possible inconvenience to the property owners and the general public.

Sec. 15. The back filling over the drains or sewers after they are laid must be puddled and tamped and together with the replacing of balast and paving shall be done within forty-eight hours after the completion of that part of the drain or sewer lying within the public highway, and done so as to make them at least as good as they were before they were disturbed, and to the satisfaction of the Common Council, and the drain or sewer layer will be held responsible for any subsequent settling of the ground or pavement or injury.

Sec. 16. The house drain from a point three feet outside the house wall to the sewer shall be glazed vitrified eathenware pipe, unless laid less than four feet in depth when it shall be of cast iron. The Common Council or its duly appointed officer shall decide in all cases which of said materials may be used, and no material shall be used in any private drain or sewer unless previously approved by them

The interior diamater of the pipe house connections, except for hotels and very large houses for which the size shall be specially prescribed by the Council, shall be four inches.

All earthenware pipe shall be of the best quality of hard-burned vitrified pipe, with sockets, and of a make and quality to be approved by the Common Council. The cover of the "Y" branch of the sewer shall be carefully removed so as not to injure the socket. The first length of pipe attached to the "Y" branch shall be curved, and set so as to give a good fall into the sewer.

The entire line of pipe or any house branch shall be laid on a uniform grade from a point three feet outside the wall of the house to the "Y" branch. Such grade shall give a fall of one foot in fifty feet if possible and not less than one foot in one hundred feet from the house to the sewer, unless by special permit of the Common Council, in which case, provision must be made for regular and efficient flushing.

Curved pipe shall be used for every deflection from a straight line of more than three inches in two feet. The joints of the earthenware pipe shall be made with a gasket of oakum or jute around the entire circumference of the pipe, pressed to the back of the annular space between the pipes soas to prevent admission of cement, but not so far as to protrude into the pipe.

The space between the pipe outside the oakum shall be entirely filled with cement mortar made from cement of the best quality, to be approved by the Common Council, and clean sharp sand in the proportion of one part sand and one part cement, actual measurements to be made in vessels provided for the purpose.

Each joint after being made, shall be thoroughly wiped to remove all cement from the inside of the pipe, and must be left smooth and perfectly clean through its entire length. Where cast iron is used, all joints shall be of oakum and lead, calked thoroughly. The ends of all private sewers of earthen pipe, not immediately used, shall be closed water tight by a stopper of vitrified salt-glazed earthenware, cemented with cement mortar as herein described. The end of cast iron pipes must have an iron or earthen cover cemented in the end. No private catch basins shall be built in the public streets or highways, but must be placed inside of the line of the lot to be drained, except when sidewalks are excavated and used as vaults. No privy vault can be connected with the sewer.

Sec. 17. The sewer inspector shall have power to stop and prevent from discharging into the sewer system any private sewer or drain through which substances are discharged which are liable to injure the sewers or obstruct the flow of sewage. Floor washouts, wash racks, urinals, wash racks in garages, barns or stables, also all yard openings, such as pump drains and dish water bowls, must have a strainer containing holes not exceeding one quarter inch in their greatest dimensions.

Sec. 18. No butcher offal or garbage, dead animals, wood, stone, straw or other articles of obstruction of any kind whatever shall be placed, thrown or deposited in any catch basin, sewer ditch, or drain, in the village.

Sec. 19. No exhaust from steam engines can be connected with any sewer that is connected with any public drain or sewer, and no blow-off from any steam boiler can be connected.

Sec. 20. No connection with, or opening into, any sewer constructed by order of the village, shall be made, excepting as herein provided for, and any person who shall make, or cause to be made, a connection with such sewer in a manner contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, shall forfeit to the village of Tecumseh, the sum of Five Dollars for each day that such forbidden connection shall continue, to be recovered by said village before any court of competent jurisdiction.

Sec. 21. A committee on sewers, consisting of three members of the Council, shall be appointed by the President each fiscal year, who shall have general supervision over all matters concerning connections with and use of the sewers, subject to the orders of the Council, and whose chairman shall have the power of a sewer inspector.

Sec. 22 A sewer inspector shall be appointed by the President each fiscal year subject to confirmation by the Council, who shall be present at and superintend all connections made with the sewers when notified by the clerk, and who shall see that the provisions of this ordinance are enforced and shall perform all other duties in connection with the sewer system which may be required by the Common Council. The sewer inspector shall receive such compensation as the Common Council may provide.

Sec. 23. Any person convicted of any violation of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine of not less than one dollar and not more than fifty dollars, and costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment in the county jail of the county, not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

Moved and seconded that we do now adjourn. Motion carried.

ROY W. CODLING, Clerk.

ELIJAH AMES 86 BIRTHDAY

Elijah Ames was the recipient of about 50 post cards last Monday, the 18th. They came from Cal., Washington, Indiana, Ohio, New York and Michigan. To say that he was pleased but feebly expresses his fetlings, and he is very grateful to his friends for their kind remembrance. But few reach the age of 86, who are as active and well as Mr. Ames, and we hope that the years as they come one by one may deal gently with him, and that when the last one shall have passed away, his passing, may be like one falling asleep to pleasant dreams.

Wanted: A Director Of Posts.

The time has come when the whole country will demand that the one great business department of the Government should be run in a business-like way. Protracted studies by Congressional committees have pointed to this precise conclusion. It has been recommended that there should be a Director of Posts, immediately answerable to the Postmaster-General The reform scheme would abolish the four Assistant Postmasters-General. In place of these there would be a group of bureau heads, perhaps seven or eight in number, representing a scientific rearrangement of the business and forming a postal council of administration working in easy touch with the Director of Posts. Until the post-office can be made a thoroughgoing business affair it will not be feasible to make any changes in rates or classification. If, indeed, it were put on a strict business basis there could be no need of advancing the cost to the people of the United States of any of the services that the post-offices.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Reviews of Reviews for March.

HAIR HEALTH

If You Have Scalp or Hair Trouble, Take Advantage of this Offer.

We cotld not afford to so strongly endorse Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and continue to sell it as we do, if we were not certain that it would do all we claim it will. Should our enthusiasm carry us away, and Rexall "93" Hair Tonic not give entire satisfaction to the users, they would lose faith in us and our statements, and in consequence our business prestige would suffer.

Therefore, when we assure you that if your hair is beginning to unnaturally fall out or if you have any scalp trouble, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will promptly eradicate dandruff, stimulate hair growth and prevent premature baldness, you may rest assured that we know what we are talking about.

Out of one hundred test cases Rexall "93" Hair Tonic gave entire satisfaction in ninety-three cases. It has been proved that it will grow hair even on bald heads, when, of course, the baldness had not existed for so long a time that the folicles, which are the roots of the hair, had not become absolutely lifeless.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is vastly different from other similar preparations. We believe that it will do more than any other human agency toward restoring hair growth and hair health. It is not greasy and will not gum the scalp or hair or cause permanent stain. It is as pleasant to use as pure cold water.

Our faith in Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is so strong that we ask you to try it on our positive guarantee that your money will be cheerfully refunded without question or quibble if it does not do as we claim. Certainly we can offer no stronger argument. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain it only at our store,—The Rexall Store. The B. J. Pulver Drug Store, Tecumseh.

ALMA COLLEGE.

Numbered among the most recent gifts to the College library is a miscellaneous collection of 1,000 volumes, donated by the Rev. Mr. Harvey Wilson of Petoskey, Mich. With this acquisition the library now numbers over 24,000 volumes. Mr. Wilson's donation consists mostly of works on theology, and as the college is especially well supplied in this line, an opportunity is offered for research work.

The transatlantic steamship companies are planning on building a special "Alma deck" as the faculty members crossing every year are constantly increasing.

Next summer, Miss Houghawout, Dean of Wright Hall, and professor of English, Miss Mullenbach, at the head of the German department and Miss Roberts, piano instructor, will visit Europe for a vacation trip and study abroad. Also a number of the co-eds are planning to go.

Alma college has a schedule this year so far ahead of previous years that all comparisons are oderiferous. Two games with M. A. C. and one with the University, besides a number of other games have rounded out the schedule in good shape.

With the first intercollegiate game but a few days off, the Maroon Sox, both vets and candidates, are on the job every afternoon. Six of last year's aggregation are in the field though not all after their same positions. Brilmeyer in the box and Burke on third are showing up for the new men. Call, who hails from Petoskey, is doing some nifty work at short. Call has a quick eye and is especially good with the stick. Graham, who covered third last year is doing the receiving in a manner that looks as if he had the job salted for the season, while Duncanson and Hale will shoulder most of the responsibility in the twirling business, and the former's three years of college ball and the latter's one year of college experience will prove them a pair of box artists that should warm the hearts of honest fans.

AMUSEMENTS!

The Powell & Cohan Musical Comedy Co., appeared for the first time here at the Bradley Opera House, last night. By the applause the bill "The Beauty and the Banker" received, it must have pleased the people, and it couldn't very well have done otherwise.

Miss Portello received a great many encores for her excellent singing.

Miss Myrtle Hibbard, who Tecumseh theatre goers will remember as the leading lady with "Frivolous Bonnie," which was here early in the season, will play the leading role tonight.

The bill for tonight is, "Cupid and the prizefighter." Mr. Marks saw this bill at Adrian Wednesday night and he says it is fine.

Come early and see the "Dressing Room', scene on the stage before the regular performance.

TO BEAUTIFY TECUMSEH

Give the Children A Chance

The Tecumseh Federation of Women's clubs under the head of Civic improvements have in consideration the education of the young people of our village along the line of beautifying their home grounds by the growing of flowers and to this end have given out envelopes to the pupils of our schools. On these are printed the names of a number of flowers and vegetables the seed for these to cost but one cent per package. Each one marks the kind and number of packages devised and presents their envelope to their teacher with the amount of money needed and will receive them at once. Prizes are to be given to those competing, for the best garden, to be awarded by judges appointed by the club. It is hoped that a large number will be interested in this work and that parents will encourage their children by giving them a nice plot of land for their work.

LEGAL FIGHT OVER A BIG DRAIN.

In Which Lenawee Co. is very deeply Concerned.

The Macon river flows through a portion of Monroe and Lenawee Co. emptying into the Raisin river near Dundee. It furnishes the only drainage for Lenawee Co. but in its present condition is of little use owning to its shallow depth.

The Lenawee resident wish to dredge at an estimated cost of $50.000 and are willing to pay 80 per cent but Monroe would have to rebuild 12 bridges this they do not feel willing to do. The jury drawn by Judge of Probate Franke will inspect every foot of ground in both counties before sending a decision. There will no doubt be a long legal fight before this is decided. The final decision will determine to a great extent the rights of counties lying in the interior of the State.

Wedding In High Life

NOTHING MONOTONOUS IN ARAZONA.

The Following Just Received from Clarence Jackson of Morenci, Arizona, is Full of Interest:

The following, from the Mohave Mineral Wealth, is a real journalistic gem. It was written by Kean St. Charles, who represented Mohave in the council at the last session of the legislature.

"Sunday morning, at the city bungalow of Mr. and Mrs. Kean St. Charles, Parson W. G. Blakely was called upon to tie a knot for keeps, uniting Harold Dossitt and Miss Gertrude Sherman in the Holy Uncertainties of Matrimony. The parson, from long practice, made no bobble in the diamond hitch, and if it don't stick like Spaulding's glue, it is not his fault. The audience was not much for gate receipts, but for average grade it was high, but pockety. Joe Rosenberg seconded the groom, while Mrs. St. Charles stimulated the bride with chapters from her long experience.

There was a string of Saints in the wall flower row, beginning with Gladys and Ike on the ends, with Bill, Jim and Gugin in the chorus. The bride and groom were surely surrounded by enough patron saints to keep away the bogie man and to clear the track for the honeymoon special; ding-dong, leaves at 10. After the parson had saluted the bride and shook a ten out of the groom, they all joined in the Wedding Dinner March. The Johnny cake was done to a turn and the 'free hollies' were baked to a sulphide brown. For a pullet the parson had to be pinched. It had yellow feet and an extra lunch for the past month so it would look like a spring when his Riverence made the next call. Even the preachers have to go away back and sit down when a new bride comes to town. 'They all do it, they all do it, and sometimes they rue it.'

"The bride is the handsome and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sherman of Mineral Park. Gertrude was born eighteen years ago, in sight of the rugged hills where dwell treasures of the turquoise gem greater than anywhere else in the explored world. Surrounded by mountains of Mineral, the Park is an ideal place to first see the light and feel the warmth of the orb of day, as its glowing face beams o'er the eastern hills. As a work of nature, quietness, peace and plenty, Mineral Park has Arcadia skinned a mile. No wonder the bride was reluctant to heed the Call of the Wild that required that she leave this, 'the place where I was born,' and 'go forth and take chances in an unknown world. But it was thus with Hiawatha, a new deal of an old game, since the Lord led Adam and Eve to the gate and pointing the way down the pike, told them to hustle.

"The groom appeals to a person first, as a sober man. Without that 'with the talent of an angel, a man may be a fool.' If he continues to keep the growler untasted, there is no mountain on Trouble avenue that won't dwindle to a mole hill by looking it in the face. He is a miner and professor of the hoist. The tinkle of the bell to hoist ore is music to his ears. He has accepted a position as engineer at Bisbee, where thousands of tons of rock carrying the red metal is hoisted daily. It is sad to have a name die off in the twinkling of an eye, especially an illustrious name like Sherman, but what is the matter with Dossett? It fought in the Revolutionary war. If Black Sam, the parter, had his bridal eye out Sunday night, March 20th, he collected a good tip from the head engineer of the new incorporation."

GERM LAND

The Chicago Record-Herald gives an account of a new play to be presented before the faculty of the State University at Madison, Wis. Every character is taken by the girl students and the costumes are the strangest ever put upon any stage.

True to the profession which they represent in the Bacteriolical department, every character is named from the various germs. Mike Robe is the rowdy who interferes in the love scenes of Teddy the tubercle, and Bessie Bacillus. Pneumonia is the journalist, Lancelotus the Chauffeur and Tacita Telanus, the messenger. The Chorus is known as Tuberculosis Bacilli. The idea is certainly an unusual one but we have no doubt of its success.

Anthony knots to the Farmers Mean Dollars

There is just about as much difference between Anthony woven wire fence and some other wire fences as between Anthony fence and the old "Virginia Worm" rail fence.

You Can Compare ANTHONY with any Fence

The decision is always in favor of Anthony Fence. Never in the history of fence making has a tie been used in construction that is so perfect as the Anthony knot which is used exclusively in Anthony fence—no other. The knot is made from tough wire, same size as the line wire, will not come off, and leaves no kink in line wire inside knot. No possible damage to stock, nor loss of wool from sheep from an Anthony knot—it is smooth, compact, strong. Nothing but the highest grade of heavily galvanized, hard spring steel wire: and every bundle of it is rigidly inspected and the fence made from it is given a like inspection. We buy the best wire we can get. We make the best fence we know how—and we know how. When you have your farm fenced with Anthony fence your fence troubles are over.

This fence is made by The Anthony Fence Co., Tecumseh, Michigan, and sold by How His Old Father and Mother Stood by Their Son Even to Giving Up the Farm.

By F. A. MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

They say that doctors and clergymen see more of humanity as it is than any other class of men, but I question if the endless panorama of incidents typifying the different phases of human life is witnessed by any class that every day passes before bankers. Sometimes whole stories are enacted before us spread over a term of years. I am the repository of one such story that I watched from its beginning to its climax.

One afternoon a weather beaten old farmer with silky white hair scattered over his head came to my desk and, pulling out a wallet, asked for a draft on Denver for $200 in favor of Thomas Williams. He counted out the money, and then, having nothing to do while the draft was being prepared, began to tell me the beginning of this story.

"I'm sendin' the money," he said, "to my boy out in Colorado. He went out there a year ago, takin' some money with him that I give him, but he hasn't had much luck, and it's all gone. First he got sick; then when he got well he went prospectin' and struck somepin that looked good, but some other fellers jumped his claim, whatever that means, and took it all away from him.

"Then Tom got sick ag'in and went to a horsepittle and stayed there three months. Now he's got out of the horsepittle and lookin' about for somepin. I'm sendin' this money to give him a chanct. Tom's his mother's pet, and she lays awake nights worritin' about him. I'm mighty fond of the boy myself somehow. He was always a smart little chap—took lots of prizes and things at schule.

"When he got old enough to work I wanted him to help me on the farm. He tried it for awhile, but I see purty quick he didn't take to it. He was too smart to be contented to follow a plow same 's his father, who didn't never get no eddication. So I says to him one day: 'Tommy, reckon you'd better go to the city and work that a-way. This don't suit you.' He was mighty well pleased at that. It almost broke ma's heart to part with him, but she knowed it was better for him and let him go.

"Tom didn't like it in town so well as he thought he would. Leastaways he didn't stay long in the place he went into. They must 'a' thought a heap of him, though, for they raised his salary twice, so he wrote me. But he got into a fight with one of the head clerks and got himself discharged. He said the head clerk accused him of stealin' some money.

"Tom was allus an ambitious little chap, and after leavin' his place he concluded he'd go west and try and do somepin big, for ma and me agin we got too old to work. So we scraped up $500 and give it to him, and he"—

At this moment a clerk laid the farmer's draft on my desk, and the first chapter of his story was finished, for he began to count over his soiled and torn bills, now and again wetting his thumb on his lip as he turned them up. Then, leaving them to me and carefully folding his draft, he put it in his wallet, crammed the wallet down into the bottom of his pocket and with a "Goodby, Mr. Cashier," left the bank.

The second chapter of the story is very short. There is hardly enough in it to make a chapter, but there is a good deal beneath the few words required to tell it. A girl of eighteen came to the bank, laid down $24, nearly all in silver coin, and asked for a draft to cover the amount.

"To whom will you have it made payable?" I asked.

"Tom Williams," in a soft voice, almost a whisper.

I ordered the draft made out, and the girl stood waiting. Unlike the farmer, she didn't tell all I would have liked to know, so I asked:

"Is Tom Williams your brother?"

"No," she replied, looking down on the floor.

I had not liked the indications as to Tom's character as they appeared in his father's account of him, and now that money was going to him from his sweetheart I began to despise him. I handed the girl the draft and had a good opportunity to study her, for she never once looked up at me. She went out with it hugged up against her heart, as though she loved it because she had saved it for Tom.

My next visitor in behalf of Tom was his mother. She stood by my desk emptying on it from a carpetbag a lot of bills and silver and copper coins. Not knowing who she was, I asked what I should do with the money, and she said, "Send it to Tom." By this time I was not likely to forget Tom and asked if she wished a draft for Thomas Williams. She said she did. I turned her funds over to a clerk to count, and he reported that they amounted to $643.47. I ordered the draft to be made out, placed a chair before the old lady and said, with a view to my enlightenment:

"Mr. Williams pretty busy nowadays?"

"No, pa ain't busy. He's sick. I wish we had our boy here to help us. He's out in Colorado perspectin'. He says he's struck a mine or a-goin' to strike a mine or somepin and wants some money for grub stakin' or somepin like that. We're sendin' him all we kin jest now, but hope to send him some more bime by. We had some money saved up fo' old age, but we've been a-drawin' on it for Tom, and this is all there is left."

When she went out with her draft I found myself feeling with indignation at this worthless scamp, who was sucking the lifeblood out of his old father and mother—even his sweetheart.

There was a visit from the sweetheart after this to ask for a draft of $18.50, which convinced me that Tom had accepted the last amount she had sent him. Then one day the old farmer came in pale and trembling, evidently just out of a sickbed, with the check of a mortgage company for $1,000. He asked for a draft in exchange for it payable to this vampire of a son. We bankers make it a rule to mind our own business, but I had reached a point where I could no longer refrain from warning this poor old man.

"So you have mortgaged your farm to send money to your son?" I said.

"Yes; Tom's in powerful need of money. The mine he thought was goin' to turn out so fine petered out. He says it closed up as he went down instead of openin'."

"And you lost all the money you sent him for the development?"

"Yes, we lost it," replied the old man with a tremulous voice.

"Aren't you afraid you'll lose this too?"

"I dunno. Tom's got another mine. He says he's sure o' this."

"Of course it's no business of mine, but I don't like to see you, an old man, mortgaging your farm to send money to a son who should be giving you money instead of you giving it to him. Suppose you can't pay the interest on the mortgage when it is due. You will lose your farm."

The old man stood wiping his face with a bandanna handkerchief, the picture of misery.

"I know what yer mean," he said, "but ma she won't keep back anything the boy wants. She never did. I always told her she'd spoil him."

"I'm afraid she has spoiled him. You should know that your son is not wasting your money at gambling or something like that and telling you that he's on the verge of making a fortune in a mine before risking any more money on him."

"That's what I tell ma."

At this moment the draft was laid before me, but instead of handing it to him I said:

"Hadn't you better think this over?"

He stood, his eyes fixed on vacancy, slowly swaying or tottering, and I knew there was a great contest going on in his mind. His love for his boy conquered.

"I'm 'bliged to you, Mr. Cashier, and mebbe you're right, but I allus believed in my Tom, and I can't go back on him now."

I handed him the draft, and he scuffled slowly out of the bank.

The old man must have borrowed all he could on his farm, considering the transaction as a sale, for he failed to pay the first interest that fell due on the mortgage. I knew this, because I saw in a newspaper a legal notice of foreclosure proceedings on his farm.

"Well," I sighed, laying down the paper, "the old man has given his home to his reprobate son; he has nothing more to give. I shall not suffer again at seeing him come into the bank to do what I can't prevent his doing."

The same day I met the young girl on the street whom I was sure was Tom's sweetheart. I stopped her and asked:

"Is Farmer Williams turned out of house and home?"

"Not yet, sir."

"But he will be?"

"I suppose so."

"Has his son sent him anything to help him?"

"No, sir. He wrote to say that he was awful sorry to see the farm go, but he could not help it."

"H'm. Do you think a son who will treat his father and mother like that would treat a wife any better?"

Tears came into her eyes. I was ashamed at giving her this useless pain. I walked on.

About a month after this a strapping young fellow with a fine, manly face came into the bank and said he wished to open an account. I assented, and he made a deposit of $49,506.

"Will you please leave your signature in this book?" I said. He took up a pen and wrote:

"Thomas Williams."

"You Tom Williams?" I exclaimed.

"Yes. What do you know about me?"

"Son of Farmer Williams?"

"Yes."

"Sold your mine?"

"Yes; I've sold a mine in Colorado, or two-thirds of it. This money I'm leaving with you is the first cash payment; there are two others of $50,000 each."

"Has your father's farm gone to the mortgagee?"

"No; I'm in time for that. I was afraid I wouldn't be, though. Anyway, I'd have bought it back. If it hadn't been for the money father sent me I couldn't have carried the deal through. I expected the farm to go for the mine."

"And the young girl to whom we gave drafts payable to your order?"

He colored and said: "It's in with the rest, but she and I'll be one anyway. I shall transfer two-thirds of this deposit to father. I took him and mother in for thirds."

I went to see the old farmer and his wife and found them jubilant. "I told you I had confidence in my boy," the farmer said. "He was always straight."

I attended Tom Williams' wedding and kissed the bride. I couldn't help it.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES.

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Tecumseh women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's proof of it in a Tecumseh woman's words:

Mrs. George Burrough, E. Potawatamie street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About a year ago my health became much run down. My kidneys did not act properly and I suffered severely from backache. Knowing of other people who had used Doan's Kidney Pills for similar troubles with the best of results, I procured a box at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. In a few weeks after taking them, I felt better and I am now free from Kidney complaint. I willingly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's, and take no other.

The family were at dinner: Father what does this word, "Conservation" mean, asked the daughter.

How Good News Spreads

"I am 70 years old and travel most of the time," writes B. F. Tolson, of Elizabethtown, Ky. "Everywhere I go I recommend Electric Bitters, because I owe my excellent health and vitality to them. They effect a cure every time." They never fail to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, invigorate the nerves and purify the blood. They work wonders for weak, run-down men and women, restoring strength, vigor and health that's a daily joy. Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction is positively guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son.

Constipation Cure Free

With the first signs of constipation you resort to the home methods of relief, such as hot or cold water on arising, lots of stewed fruit with your breakfast, etc., but what do you do when these fail?

The majority then start on salts and purgative waters, then change to cathartic pills, etc. If you have gone through these various stages you know they were all useless, so far as permanent results go. Now you should try just once again, but try something practical and sensible, a remedy made and intended for the purpose you are trying to accomplish. Such a remedy, as thousands can testify, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is guaranteed to be permanent in its results. Its ingredients are such that by a brief use of it the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to again do their work normally, so that in the end you can do away with medicines of all kinds. That it will do this Mr. G. Y. Dodson of Sanville, Va., will gladly attest, and so will Mrs. S. A. Hampton of Portage, O.

To those who are still skeptical there is a way to prove these assertions without a penny of expense: Simply send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and obtain a free sample bottle. After using it, if you are then convinced it is the remedy you need, buy a fifty cent or one dollar bottle of your druggist and continue to use it for a brief time until cured. The directions are simple and the dose is small. It is pleasant to the taste, does not gripe and is promptly effective, and these statements are guaranteed or money will be refunded.

This remedy is over a quarter of a century old and is personally taken by more druggists than any other similar remedy on the American market. Because of its effectiveness, purity and pleasant taste it is the ideal laxative remedy for children, women and old folks generally.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 505 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

SCHOOL TEACHER HAS TRYING TIME

Twice Assailed, Wounded, and Brother Takes His Life.

Utica, N. Y., April 21.—Miss Cena Hall, aged eighteen, a teacher in the Ilion schools, is at her home in Natural Bridge, Jefferson county, in a state of collapse following a pistol duel she fought at dusk with an unknown individual, who attacked her, and also partly due to a message she received summoning her from Ilion to Natural Bridge, where her brother, Homer Hall, had committed suicide by shooting. Miss Hall's first encounter with her assailant occurred Monday afternoon, when she was approached by him on a lonely road leading into Ilion and nearly overpowered. Her screams, however, scared the man off. When Miss Hall reached her school room, Tuesday, she found this note, addressed to her, written on the blackboard:

"You will defy me; I will see you again."

Late that day, after the school session, arming herself with a pistol, she started to walk back to Ilion, and a mile from the school house her assailant of the day before darted from behind a tree and opened fire on her with a revolver. One of his bullets pierced her umbrella, and another clipped off a piece of one of the girl's fingers. Miss Hall, in the meantime, brought her pistol into play, sending one shot through her assailant's hat and another into his right arm. The man fled.

The girl reached Ilion safely, and, Wednesday, while conferring with police officials, received word of the suicide of her brother at Natural Bridge. It is not believed the brother's suicide and the girl's experience on the highway had any connection, as she informed the police she had never before seen her assailant until she met him on the road.

ITALIAN MURDERED.

Shot by Man Wro Was Enfatuated With His Wife.

Detroit, Mich., April 25.—Love of two men for one woman, jealousy and the elemental passion that so often shakes the Italian mind resulted in murder. This time it was the husbandw ho died.

He was Procopio Cusumano, thirty-eight years old, and he and his wife and four children lived at 259 Monroe avenue. With them was a boarder, Onofro Sclanna, twenty-two years old. The husband worked at an automobile factory in Pontiac, and was away from home most of the time.

There had been a connubial quarrel, following an altercation between the two men. Cusumano's anger blazed up, and he seized his wife threateningly. Sclanna, in his room, heard the enraged man's shouts and ran down stairs.

One glance told him the situation, and his heavy revolver came out. He shot four times. One bullet ploughed its way through Cusumano's forearm, a second struck him in the chest, and the third ploughed its way through his skull. The fourth shot went wild.

Sclanna made his escape.

His Natural Dent.

"What are you hollerin' at me for?" demanded the offended one, turning about. "If you wish to go ahead why don't you turn out and go ahead? The sidewalk is wide."

"Excuse me," said the other. "It was force of habit. I am a motorman."—Buffalo Express.

PASS RAILROAD BILL THIS WEEK

That Is Plan in Lower House of Congress.

SUNDRY CIVIL BILL NEXT

Will Take Several Days to Get the Thing Disposed Of—Future of Postal Savings Bank Bill Looks Dubious, Republican Leaders Look For Adjournment About First of June.

Washington, April 25.—The Republican leaders in the house of representatives will breathe a bit easier after the middle of this week, when the railroad bill is scheduled for passage. There is a great deal of work yet remaining to be done by the lower branch of congress, and those responsible for it will feel better when all of the big bills are out of the way and the question of the date of adjournment is largely up to the senate.

After the railroad bill is put out of the way for a time so far as the house is concerned, the sundry civil bill, which is the biggest and most bothersome appropriation measure on the list, will be taken up. It usually takes ten full legislative days to pass this bill, but this year Chairman Tawney of the appropriations committee will make an attempt to hurry it along by trying to secure an agreement that there shall be very little general debate, and that limited strictly to the provisions of the measure. This, of course, is difficult in connection with an appropriation bill which contains legislation affecting practically every branch of the government service, but some stipulation to this effect may result in cutting down the speeches on academic and abstract questions such as sometimes occupy the time of the house when general debate is allowed.

Both Parties Pledged.

It was hoped that after the sundry civil bill had been passed that the postal savings bank legislation which is much desired by the administration and to which both the Republican and Democratic parties are pledged by planks in the national platform could be tackled. But, as the house postoffice committee is split on the subject with only two members favoring the postal savings bank bill as it came from the senate—and these two are not enthusiastic—it is not believed it will be possible to put any measure before the house in the near future. While everybody seems to agree that a postal savings bank bill will pass congress at this session, it looks as if the inevitable would be delayed as long as possible.

In consequence, the anti-injunction bill, introduced by Representative Mann and favorably reported a month ago by the house committee on revision of the laws, of which he is chairman, will probably follow the sundry bill in the house.

Altogether, the house is in pretty good shape. Republican leaders say that there should be no difficulty in final adjournment being had by the first of June at the latest, so far as the lower branch of congress is concerned.

Bank Deposits Larger in Calhoun.

Battle Creek, Mich., April 21.—Despite local option, or possibly due to it, Battle Creek's banks show an increase of $945,648 in savings and commercial deposits for the past year, an increase of 12.7 per cent. The greatest increase in deposits, proportionately, seems ot have come from the working classes.

ENORMOUS LOSSES RESULT OF STORM

Fruit and Vegetables Over Large Area Ruined.

Chicago, April 25.—In the most disastrous and far-reaching storm experienced in a generation, damage to budding crops, fruits and vegetables amounting to more than $30,000,000 has been wrought in the middle west.

The Michigan fruit belt—the backbone of the fruit district—is described as almost wiped out for the season. Freezing temperature in Illinois not only has killed buds, flowers and fruits, but threatens to ruin oats.

Experts here estimate the losses in ten states as follows: Illinois, $6,000,000; Iowa, $10,000,000, Indiana, $2,000,000; Michigan, $4,000,000; Wisconsin, $2,000,000; Kansas, $1,000,000; Kentucky, $1,500,000; Missouri, $2,000,000; Ohio, $500,000; Nebraska, $1,500,000.

St. Joseph, Mich., April 25.—This section of the great fruit belt of Michigan lies practically devastated by ice and snow. Three quarters of the fruit crop has been killed by the storm which has swept out of the northwest, a storm which shriveled and blasted fruit with a destructiveness that has surpassed anything of its kind in the history of the fruit-raising industry in this section.

Indianapolis, April 25.—The cold wave of the past three days, culminating in freezing weather, is believed to have completed the destruction of the small fruits throughout the state and to have done incalculable damage to all kinds of vegetation. Grape vines look as if they had been scorched with torrid heat; early flowers have been killed, and all small fruits have been blighted beyond hope of recovery.

Louisville, Ky., April 25.—Dispatches from Glasgow, Henderson, Elizabethtown and other western Kentucky points report the heaviest snowfall for years, the fall ranging from six to ten inches. Trainmen coming in over the Louisville and Henderson railroad say that they passed icicles clinging to water tanks, from ten to eighteen inches long.

Some estimates declare that, taken as a whole, more snow fell in the state of Kentucky Sunday than there had any one day in a quarter of a century. Conservative estimates place the damage to fruits and vegetables at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

NO THOUGHT OF RETIRING

Burrows Is Very Emphatic In His Denial.

MUCH AMUSED BY STORY

Blodgett in Washington, Senator Admits, but Not For Purpose of Conferring Relative to His Retirement. Advises People to Hedge on Any Wager Made.

Washington, April 25.—Senator J. C. Burrows of Michigan is very emphatic in his denial of a story printed in Sunday morning's newspapers as a dispatch from Detroit saying that he was preparing to retire from the race for re-nomination for the senate. It was stated in the dispatch that sentiment against the senator was so strong that his friends had decided to hold a conference in Washington on Tuesday, next, and endeavor to enlist the good offices of Senator Burrows' colleague, Senator William Alden Smith. Failing in this, it was stated that Senator Burrows would be compelled to withdraw from the race.

Much Amused.

The senior senator from Michigan appeared to be much amused by the story. He said that John W. Blodgett, who was named as one of the Michigan Republicans who would participate in the Washington conference, has arrived here, but not for any such purpose as was suggested in the dispatch.

"If any of your friends have been making wagers or investments under the impression that I am to retire from the race for renomination, you would do well to advise them to hedge," said Senator Burrows. He appears to be confident of the result.

Senator William Alden Smith, who was also named as a party to the forthcoming conference, denied any knowledge of it and intimated that the story was a fairy tale.

Rumor Current.

Notwithstanding Senator Burrows' denial, the rumor is current here that some of the senator's friends had been suggesting the possibility of his retiring from the race. The senator has a hard primary fight ahead of him against Representative Townsend, and his friends estimate that it will cost a large sum of money to carry on a successful campaign.

It has been learned that besides Mr. Blodgett, L. M. Leon, collector of internal revenue of Grand Rapids, and two other leaders of the Burrows wing of the party are in Washington and have been conferring with the senator.

WALLERSTEIN GETS VERDICT

Jury Was Out Only One Hour and Five Minutes.

Jackson, Mich., April 25.—The jury in the damage suit of Alfred Wallerstein against the state, for $154,000, has returned a verdict of $22,000 for the plaintiff. The jury was out one hour and five minutes.

It is evident from the finding of the jury that the members believed there had been fraudulent methods used in the cancellation of the Wallerstein shirt making contract, and it is generally believed that the charges of fraud and bribery made during the trial will be investigated.

An Aeroplane Elopement

A Story of 1935

By JASON JUDSON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

It was the old story with a variation only to occur in these days when our wealthier classes have money. Miss Anita Berlton loved a poor man, and her father desired that she should wed a rich one. Young Van Damm Follansbee had but a beggarly ten million, while the old widower Plankinham Porkenpaker possessed a cool billion. Follansbee should have seen the impropriety of asking for a girl he could not support in the style to which she had been accustomed, but he came of an old Dutch family on his mother's side, and the Dutchmen who settled New York were proverbially obstinate and stupid.

One would suppose that the Beritons, who owned a railroad starting from New York, running to New Orleans and thence around the Pacific coast and back through Canada, might afford to let their daughter marry a poor man. But a panic at the time of the courtship had reduced their dividends to 20 per cent, and they felt unusually poor. Mrs. Berlton, who had married her husband when he was a brakeman on one of the railroads which he afterward united in the circular coast line system and became that system's owner, sympathized with her daughter, but Berlton swore a round oath that he would have no beggars in his family.

On the morning of June 10, 1935, Miss Anita Berlton was sitting with her mother and a younger sister in the spacious roof garden of her father's residence occupying the four blocks between Five Hundred and Tenth and Five Hundred and Fourteenth streets and avenues D and H, New York, when Mrs. Berlton proposed a ride. One of the family aeroplanes was called and in a few minutes lit upon the roof garden. Mr. Berlton, fearing that his daughter Anita might in some of these rides elope with Follansbee, had given orders that August Spindleton, a driver of his own choosing, should at all times conduct the machine, and on this occasion Spindleton was in his accustomed seat.

Mrs. Berlton and her two daughters entered the machine, which rose, lightly circling upward for a thousand feet, when Spindleton was directed to proceed southward along the coast for a brief trip to Annapolis. They were moving at a moderate pace of some sixty miles an hour, when Spindleton cast a glance to the right and, seeing a machine coming toward the party, clapped on double speed.

Mr. Berlton's fears had proved to be well grounded. Mr. Van Damm Follansbee was out in a machine of a new pattern and was bearing down upon them. It was evident that Follansbee was intending to get into communication with Mrs. Anita Berlton.

Spindleton was true to his employer. He drove his machine at its best speed, passing over cities, bays and rivers, but his aeroplane was gradually gained upon by Follansbee. Hovering over Philadelphia, Spindleton endeavored to descend, but Follansbee glanced down like a bird and reached a plane beneath him. Spindleton then rose and made a bee line for Baltimore. But Follansbee, evidently with the determination to drive him out to sea, got to the west of him and forced him over Chesapeake bay. In a few minutes more the pursuer had the party over Fortress Monroe, flying due east.

The race was won. Spindleton was not prepared to cross the ocean, and there was no way for him to get back except by encountering Follansbee. Spindleton slowed down, and Follansbee glided up beside the Berlton aeroplane. A conference took place, after which Mrs. Berlton and her two daughters stepped from their own aeroplane into that of Mr. Follansbee.

Meanwhile Mr. Berlton had left the roof of his office building downtown in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, intending to go home. Soon after rising he saw in the direction of his mansion an aeroplane starting, and, seizing a glass he always carried in the smoking room of his capacious bird-car, brought it to bear on the one just setting out. Discovering that its occupants were his wife and daughters with his own aviator in control, he was about to lay aside his glass when he saw another aeroplane hovering near his home. Bringing his glass to bear on this machine, he saw Follansbee alone in it and just starting for the one occupied by the Beritons.

Mr. Berlton noticed that Follansbee's aeroplane was of a kind he had not seen before. It was of the bird type, and on its prow was a sharp ram. The merchant was at once filled with apprehension. It was plain that Follansbee was bent on some course connected with the Berlton family, but it was impossible to imagine what that course would be. It was not to be expected that he would run down the Berlton car and thereby precipitate the girl he loved to a distance of some 500 feet. Nevertheless he was soon in full chase. Mr. Berlton directed his aviator to follow the two aeroplanes.

Unfortunately for Mr. Berlton's success in overtaking the others, his car was equipped with several apartments fitted up luxuriously and carrying a large supply of food and drinkables. Though furnished with the latest pattern of engines, it was not to be expected that this machine could compete for speed with the fighter machines. However, he followed close on their heels, getting near them at Trenton, losing them over Wilmington, again coming in sight of them at Baltimore. While passing over Virginia his aviator slowed up to tighten a loose nut, and after this the fugitives were lost to him entirely.

After Spindleton's surrender he was permitted to go where he liked. Making a bee line for Richmond, he met his employer over the peninsula. The two drew up side by side, and while hovering the aviator gave Mr. Berlton an account of what had happened.

"What are the best points of your machine?" asked the latter.

"Quick rising and an ability to fly in thin air."

"Good! To fight this pauper we must get above him. To bring him to terms we must have bombs to drop on him."

"But the bombs will annihilate your own wife and daughter as well as Mr. Follansbee."

"He cannot sacrifice them to his own covetousness. Our success depends on our obtaining a commanding position."

Stepping into the Spindleton machine, he permitted the one he left to go where it liked—to the moon if it chose—and he and Spindleton started for the nearest city, Richmond. There they procured bombs and, rising, started in the direction Spindleton had left Follansbee and the Beritons.

There was a hubbub in Follansbee's aeroplane as soon as Spindleton left. Mrs. Berlton, sympathizing with Miss Anita, would have been glad to give her consent that the party should swoop down for a clergyman that the lovers might be married, but she feared her husband's displeasure. The younger Miss Berlton was indifferent. The lovers finally prevailed over the elder lady's caution, and it was decided that the marriage should take place.

Being a couple of hundred miles out at sea, not a likely place to find a clergyman, Follansbee turned his machine toward the land. But time had been spent in coming to a decision, and he was too late. When fifty miles off Norfolk the machine bearing Mr. Berlton, driven by Spindleton, appeared over Virginia beach, like a seagull, standing northeast.

Follansbee considered.

A great deal of power had been used in his machine since starting, and he knew it had not the capacity for a long quick run with the coming aeroplane. It was to supply this very defect—in other words, to be ready to turn and fight—that he had provided his bird with a ram. If the worst came he would smash the pursuing flier and drop its owner into the waves below. But he hoped this would not be necessary. However, in order that the contest should take place over water he made a pretense of flight.

When Mr. Berlton reached a point some two miles distant from Follansbee the latter saw his machine suddenly rise in a spiral. He divined the upshot of the maneuver in a moment. Bombs had been so long used that it was evident the enemy had procured them and, getting on a higher plane, would command the situation. The Berlton car climbed a thousand feet; then Spindleton, who was a splendid aviator, made for a point directly over Follansbee.

The lover knew his enemy's determined nature and that he would place him in a position to be bombed or to yield. Of course he would have to yield. He therefore put on all speed, but, of course, moved slowly, losing ground because it was essential that he move on a rising incline.

Notwithstanding the power of Follansbee's aeroplane to rise in this gradual fashion, Mr. Berlton maintained a position above him. Mrs. Berlton begged Follansbee to give up the flight, but the young man was contending for a half billion dollar bride and was not to be discouraged. When Mr. Berlton was a mile away and 500 feet above him Follansbee lighted a fuse, threw the end over the car and waited. The other end of the fuse was attached to a rocket-like firework, fixed to the bottom of the car, which in a few moment was ignited, and, blowing off a great quantity of burning powder, the aeroplane shot rapidly upward.

When this sudden ascent ceased Follansbee was on a level with his enemy and but fifty yards away.

"I'm about to ram you, sir!" cried Follansbee.

"Don't!" pleaded Mrs. Berlton.

There was a pause. Mr. Berlton saw that the game was lost.

"What's your terms?" he asked.

"Consent to my marriage with your daughter."

"Very well," replied the merchant. "I will consent, but positively refuse to give her a dowry of more than a hundred millions."

The terms were accepted, and both aeroplanes started for the Berlton residence, where the past was forgotten and Berlton expressed his admiration of his future son-in-law's ability to beat him in the game of aerial ships. The wedding took place with great brilliancy, another $100,000,000 being added to the settlement in order to enable the young couple to maintain their position in the highest circles.

It was determined to celebrate the nuptials by an aeroplane cruise consisting of the vast concourse of machines owned by the first circles of New York society. On a bright afternoon a thousand aeroplanes rose from various points in the city, hovered for awhile, then, led by the motor of the bridal couple, started westward across the continent. After a trip of a week, during which all the principal points of interest in the United States, Canada and Mexico were visited, the wedding party returned to New York.

MISSED WOMAN FOUND.

Hid While Authorities Searched Kent County For Her.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 25.—"Only a petty family quarrel" is the way the disappearance of Mrs. Hogerhyde, who was found, was explained by the principal and relatives. After three days of mystery and false theories, the missing woman was located in the home of a relative of her husband.

According to the story, the parents of Mrs. Hogerhyde and her husband's relatives are at swords' points, and have been for some time. Realizing the split between the two families, Mrs. Hogerhyde decided to decamp from her parents' home and join her husband. Not considering it necessary to inform any one of her departure, the woman remained silent while a trio of newspapers, the police, the sheriff's force and a pack of bloodhounds conducted a thorough search of the county for her.

Wind Blows Furiously.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, April 25.—The lower Gulf of Mexico is being swept with a terrific wind storm that began blowing two days ago. At times the wind reached a velocity of 106 miles an hour. Many small fishing boats are believed to be lost, and much damage has been done to other shipping.

TWAIN GROWS WORSE.

Does Not Respond as Well to Stimulants.

New York, April 21.—Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) is gradually sinking. Dr. R. H. Halsey, assistant to Dr. Edward Quintard, Mr. Clemens' physician, who has been with the patient constanly for several days, summoned Dr. Quintard to Redding. After he had examined Mr. Clemens, Dr. Quintard issued this statement:

"Mr. Clemens is weaker and does not respond as well as he did to stimulants. Both cardiac and pulmonary symptoms are not so favorable."

No woman is as old as she looks—in the morning.

CALIFORNIA LETTER,

FROM W. P. STOCKING.

Long Beach, Calif., April 12, 1910.

Editor Herald:—

Will you allow me space in your paper to rejoice with those of its readers who are rejoicing over the recent dry victory in Lenawee Co? I have no tears or sympathy for those who mourn over the loss of their business. They never should have engaged in a business so injurious in so many of its reputed, and as often proven, ways to their each and every patron. It is fortunate for them, in a financial way that they were not put down and out years ago. If there ever comes a time here or hereafter when men must render an account of the good or evil they have done to their fellow men I believe they will have to answer for the suffering they have caused through their disreputable business. What I say of the Lenawee Co. saloonists I say of all saloonists. They need to remember this saying which is now and ever has been true that, "The evil which men do lives after them, the good is often interred with their bones." I see by the Herald that "the saloon men of Tecumseh are manly as to the result of the election."

Well, why shouldn't they? There are many branches of business more suitable for manly men and less injurious to their fellows than the saloon business. If there is any truth in the direful predictions of the liquor element Tecumseh must be prepared for a slump in all lines of business; for blind pigs and speak easies; be prepared to see more liquor sold and drank than ever; be prepared to see the streets grown up to grass and weeds and not able to pay her taxes without the aid of the saloonists license money. By the way, come to think of it, where did the saloonist get his license money? From his customers. Well, are not many of his customers taxpayers? If so then part of the tax money they hand to the saloon keeper and let him have the use of it until licence time when he hand it back to them in license money. By this process how much has the tax payer been helped by the saloon?

Having lived in a prohibition city for nine years and seeing nothing but prosperity on all sides I believe the good people of Tecumseh and the county of Lenawee will have no desire to go back to saloons at the end of two years unless you have enemies to the law to enforce it who will not enforce it.

W. P. Stocking.

"It must be lots of fun to be an officer in the Cuban army," says the San Antonio Express. To be a private, however is much more novel and distinctive, of course, as he is only one.

OBITUARY.

A gloom was cast over the household and friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hendershott, in the passing of their daughter, Mrs. C. W. Hawley of Detroit.

Mrs. Hawley was the youngest daughter and child of her parents and will be remembered by her friends and acquaintances as Ethel.

Four years ago she entered that sweet period with its beauty and charm, and was united in marriage to Mr. C. B. Hawley. After two years of wedded bliss, Mrs. Hawley entered that sacred period, the highest privilege that comes to womanhood, motherhood.

A daughter, little Ethelwyn, graced their home, and now baby John, but the mother took her flight to that country from whence no traveler returns.

Mrs. Hawley was the youngest of five children, of whom, all were born in Lenawee county.

The oldest son, Sevillian, lives near Adrian on a farm. Prof. F. J. has been Superintendent of the public school for three years in Grand Ledge. Philip S., who bears the name of his grandfather, Philip S. DePuy, has lived in Everette, Wash., state, the past 13 years.

Mrs. Arthur Pocklington, the other lives in Tecumseh. Mrs. Hawley like the other children, attended and was educated in the public schools in Tecumseh. She was an unusual student, receiving the highest marks in her class-work.

There is no language to portray so great a less as the one of this young wife, and mother, who was privileged to have lived only twenty-six beautiful years. Her spirit has gone to live with our Heavenly Father, who does all things well.

FROM WASHINGTON.

(BY OUR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.)

Washington, Apr. 23, 1910.

The past week has furnished nothing startling from a legislative or an executive point of view at the capital of the United States. But there is not the slightest abatement of interest in the political situation which is seriously discussed wherever men of information and prominence in political affairs come together.

The election of Havens, Democrat in New York, to succeed Perkins, Republican, deceased, and this election reversing a 10,000 republican majority, by a 5,000 democratic majority, practically changing 15,000 votes, is regarded as extremely significant of general dissatisfaction with the national political situation and program. As far as can be discerned, the dissatisfaction is mainly with the tariff bill of the special session and the President's persistent approval of it.

It seems to be in vain that Senator Aldrich and Representative Payne and the President point to the fact that the revenues of the government are increasing and that there is fair prosperity under the present tariff. The election in New York coming so quickly upon the heels of Foss's victory in Massachusetts, is regarded as indicative of a nation-wide movement which some say only Roosevelt can stem. Others ask, "Will Roosevelt be able to stem it? Will he not rather joint it?" Time alone can tell. It is certain that the country is following the triumphant procession of Roosevelt in Europe more closely than the standpat attitude of the President in Washington.

During the week the episode of the visit of the editor of the New York American, William Randolph Hearst, to Washington, his long interview with the President and his subsequent eulogy of Taft, given out to the press, has been much commented on. He was received at the Capitol by members and Senators with, it appears, almost as much enthusiasm as was Bryan a few days before. There are those who say that Mr. Hearst is playing for the presidential nomination in 1912.

BRIEF AND REEZY.

Rumors of shake-ups in the President's official family have narrowed down to the marriage of the White House cook and the policeman.

No wonder the census office is apprehensive of a backwardness in signing the blanks, seeing that the busy housewives are classed as "idlers."

The fact that the suffragettes hissed at President Taft shows that women shows that women should keep out of politics.

Senator La Follette says that Wickersham acted like a trust hireling in dismissing the New England railroad merger suit. But why should Wickersham be expected to make an exception in this case?

A Chicago man wants a divorce from his wife because she drinks two cases of beer per day. That woman should have married a Milwaukee man.

FOLLOWING THE SEA

"At the time of the great earthquake of 1868," said Mr. Swiddler, William Swiddler of Calaveras—"I was at Arica. Sam Baxter was with us. I think he had gone from San Francisco to make a railway or something. On the morning of the quake Sam and I had gone down to the beach to bathe. We had shed our shoes and begun to molt when there was a slight tremor of the earth, as if the elephant that supports it was pushing upward or lying down and getting up again. Next the surges, which were flattening themselves upon the sand and dragging away such small trifles as they could lay hold of, began racing out seaward as if they had received a dispatch that somebody was not expected to live. This was needless, for we did not expect to live.

"When the sea had receded entirely out of sight we started after it, for, it will be remembered, we were there to bathe, and bathing without some kind of water is not refreshing in a hot climate.

"For the first four or five miles the walking was very difficult, although the grade was tolerably steep. The ground was soft, and there were tangled forests of seaweed, old, rotten ships, rusty anchors, human skeletons and a multitude of things to impede the pedestrian.

"Presently, away on the western horizon, I saw the sea coming back. It occurred to me then that I did not wish it to come back.

"The same was true of Sam, but he did not appear to think of it in that way. He stood quite still a moment with his eyes fixed on the advancing line of water, then turned to me, saying very earnestly:

"'Tell you what, William, I never wanted a ship so bad from the cradle to the grave!'

"By this time the tidal wave was close upon us. Call that a wave! It was one solid green wall of water, higher than Niagara falls, stretching as far as we could see to right and left without a break in its towering front. It was by no means clear what we ought to do. The moving wall showed no projections by means of which the most daring climber could hope to reach the top.

"Looking despairingly upward, I made a tolerably good beginning, thinking of all the mean actions I had wrought in the flesh, when I saw projecting beyond the crest of the wave a ship's bowsprit, with a man sitting on it reading a newspaper. Thank fortune, we were saved!

"Falling upon our knees with tearful gratitude, we got up again and ran—ran as fast as we could, I suspect—for now the whole fore part of the ship budged through the water just above our heads and might lose its balance any moment. If we had only brought along our umbrellas!

"I shouted to the man on the bowsprit to drop us a line. He merely replied that his correspondence was already very onerous and he hadn't any pen and ink.

"Then I told him I wanted to get aboard. He said I would find one on the beach, about three leagues to the south'ard, where the Nancy Tucker went ashore.

"At these replies I was disheartened, it was not so much that the man withheld assistance as that he made puns. Presently, however, he folded his newspaper, put it carefully away in his pocket, went and got a line and let it down to us just as we were about to give up the race. Sam made a lunge at it and got it. I laid hold of his legs, the end of the rope was passed around the capstan, and as the men on board had had a little grog we were hauled up. I can assure you that it was no fine experience to go up in that way, close to the smooth, vertical front of water, with the whales tumbling out all round and above us.

"We had no sooner set foot on deck and got Sam disengaged from the book than the purser stepped up with book and pencil—'Tickets, gentlemen.'

"We told him we hadn't any tickets, and he ordered us to be set ashore in a boat. It was represented to him that this was quite impossible under the circumstances, but he replied that he had nothing to do with circumstances—did not know anything about circumstances. Nothing would move him till the captain, who was really, a kind hearted man, came on deck and knocked him overboard.

"By this time the ship was passing the town of Arica, and we were about to go astern and fish a little when she grounded on a hilltop. The captain heaved out all the anchors he had about him, and when the water went swirling back to its legal level, taking the town along for company, there we were, in the midst of a charming agricultural country, but at some distance from any seaport.

"At sunrise next morning we were all on deck. Sam sauntered aft to the binnacle, cast his eye carelessly upon the compass and uttered an ejaculation of astonishment.

"'Tell you, captain,' he called out, 'this has been a direr convulsion of nature than you have any idea of. Everything's been screwed right round. Needle points due south!'

"'Why, you lubber,' growled the skipper, taking a look, 'it p'ints d'rectly to larb'ard, an' there's the sun, dead ahead!'

"Sam turned and confronted him with a steady gaze of ineffable contempt.

"'Now, who said it wasn't dead ahead? Tell me that. Shows how much you know about earthquakes. Course I didn't mean just this continent nor just this earth. I tell you the whole thing's turned!'"

Experience takes awfully high school wages, but he teaches like no other.

The genuine "1892" Ware, made only from pure SPUN (not cast) Aluminum, will not crack, scale, peel, break, scorch or burn.

BASE BALL

Adrian is reporting an influx of recruits for the coming season, about 19 having reported so far.

They held their first tryout Monday and by three hours practice got thoroughly warmed up. They show up finely and the outlook is much better than that of last year. Some of the regulars have not yet put in an appearance and when they do there will be a big bunch to choose from

The Ladies World.

The May number of the Ladies World not only keeps up its execellent reputation' but is we think, the best issue of the publication that has yet appearer. There are two contributions that stand out above the others; one the impressions made by Slezak, the famous Bohemian tenor, after a seven mounth stay in America; and the other' the visit of Frances Starr to the historic town of Avon. Both are written in a style delightfully captivating and are decided addinions to the month's literature. The fiction also is remarkably good, the chief writers being Winifred Kirkland, Grace MacGowan Cooke, Mary Heaton Vorse, Anne Story Allen, Edgar White and Eva Dean, who show some of their most interesting work. Dr. Margaret A. Cleaves continues her series on The Prevention of Disease, and Laura A. Smith tells women a great deal about Government positions what they consist of, and how they are to be obtained. The household department is full of pratical information that will be generally helpful at this season, and there are besides several pages of fashions and dressmaking, the usual articles on up to date needlework, health, good looks, the children, etiquette, etc. On the whole, a great deal of entertainment for a very moderate sum.—(New York Fifty Cents a Year.)

MEMORIAL TO WASHINGTON.

The work for the establishment of a Washington memorial in the shape of a great forum or hall to be used by visiting delegations and congresses from all parts of the United States and the world is proceeding successfully.

The structure is to be known as the George Washington Memorial Building. Tentative plans for the building, which will contain an immense auditorium, seating not less than five thousand people, and a number of smaller halls to be used by scientific, literary and patriotic societies, have been submitted. It is also proposed that future inaugural balls shall be held in this memorial building.

60th Aniversary!!

Of O. H. Dollar and Wife

On April 23, 1850, a young couple united their hearts and hands for a journey together along life's pathway, the success of the journey thus far was demonstrated by the gathering of children and other relatives last Saturday to celebrate the 60th anniversary of their wedding.

A fine three course dinner was served at 1 o'clock, Mrs. Mattis catering for the occasion. After dinner the guests enjoyed a social afternoon intersperced with music, both vocal and instrumental, and recitations by Miss Elizabeth Swick of Marshall.

The invitations read—"No presents." So the gifts were mostly confined to flowers of which there was a fine display. The sons presented an easy chair and Leon Collar and wife of Chicago, presented their grandparents with a beautiful loving cup, finely engraved for the occasion.

Mr. Collar has reached the ripe old age of 87, but carries himself with the vigor of a man of 50. Mrs. Collar is 80 years young, and we hope to be able to report on a number of these festive occasions. There were about 37 guests present. Those from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Collar and son Floyd of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Collar and son Fred, of Coldwater, Peter Collar and wife and Howard Anderson and wife of Adrian, Albert VanGieson, wife and family, Herbert Lindsley and wife and Mrs. Kispaugh of Clinton, Lewis Collar and wife and Arline of Macon, and Elizabeth Swick of Marshall.

As the shades of night gathered about the home, good byes were said, and each one wished the happy couple a pleasant finish to the journey begun so many years ago.

HONOR FOR LENAWEE

TEA PARTY

A very delightful 5 o'clock tea was that given by Mrs. Thomas McCann on Friday evening of last week. About 40 were present. The tea was followed by six hand pedro and surely no ladies ever worked harder for the prizes than those engaged. Imagine their surprise when the concluding game was played, to be directed to look under their chairs and see what they found. Mrs. R. E. Gillespie and Mrs. J. E. Smith being the lucky finders of prizes.

Suggestive articles were given each one by which to find partners, a needle calling for thread, black for white etc. etc.

Mrs. Harrison and daughter Mamie of Jackson were the out of town guests. Miss Mamie gave a vocal solo, also piece on the saxophone. Miss Mayme Kaiser accompained her on the piano and gave several selections alone. Mrs. James McCann, Mrs. Bowen, Mrs. Kaiser and Ethel Garlinghouse assisted in serving. The evening passed all too quickly and good nights were said at a late hour.

BEHOLD!

"How great a matter a little fire kindleth."

In a late paper we gave brief mention of a reception given by the Young Men's club to Leonard Vecelius and wife by the addition of a letter in the headlines and the omission of a few cut offs between paragraphs it made a strange complication.

We have managed to pacify one party and now comes a report from the other. Now we believe both parties are right good fellows and are trying to do the right thing at all times, so we would suggest that they shake hands over it, and let it pass as a big joke—on the editor.

LOWER PRICES

Reports from all over the country point to lower prices in produce of every kind and it is hoped its effect will soon be felt in the smaller towns and villoges. A slight decline in the price of meat is reported from Chicago. Every one is watching the market reports with great interest as the high prices. that have prevailed so long have caused much distress among the poorer class.

COOKING IN THE SCHOOLS

Adrian having installed a domestic department in their schools, the pupils are now giving breakfasts with their mothers as guests. Everything connected with the work is done by the pupils, planning, buying the material needed, preparing and serving. Of course the teacher has a general supervision.

What a nice plan this would be for our schools. We are sure there are many embryo cooks among our young girls. Speed the day for a cooking school in Tecumseh.

A FREE RIDE

A little 3-year-old girl in Napoleon had been promised a ride on the cars, and straying away from home presented herself at the train and the brakeman supposing she belonged to some one who who was on the car, helped her aboard. The conductor taking in the situation cared for her and when they reached Jackson placed her in the hands of the matron who cared for her and put her in charge of the conductor on the return train. She was the child of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Curtis of Napoleon. Mrs. Curtis was at home ill, and thought the child was with a neighbor. But all is well that ends well and the little Miss had a fine trip.

The Merry-go-round had a full meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Garlinghouse, Monday night. There were eleven tables of progressive euchre. Mrs. Wade Jones and Leon Rosacrans carried off the prizes. A fine lunch was served which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. H. E. Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garlinghouse was in attendance,—will be home for two weeks. Everyone was in a happy mood, and the evening passed very pleasantly.

CURED

About a year ago at the meeting of the Federation of Clubs, a report from Adrian was read, telling of a little cripple Hazel Welch whom the ladies were sending to Detroit for treatment. We have before us a few lines stating that the little lady is cured of her nervous trouble and was to arrive in Adrian Monday of this week, accompanied by Miss Blanche Brown founder and head of the Hospital School for Crippled Children in Detroit.

At a reception to be held at the Colonial House, she will do some fancy dancing to show how completely she is cured. We feel sure our club ladies will rejoice to hear of the good work done by our sister clubs.

WOLTER'S TRIAL VERY DRAMATIC

Sisters of Murdered Girl Among Those Testifying.

HOW THEY IDENTIFIED BODY

Recognize Ruth Wheeler's Hair, Ring, Umbrella and Remnants of Her Garments—Mother Faints While Daughters Testify—Actress Olga Nethersole Attends Trial.

New York, April 21.—The trial of Albert Wolter, charged with the murder of Ruth A. Wheeler, was resumed before Judge Foster in general sessions Wednesday. The day's session began at 10 in the morning and closed at 6 in the afternoon, and hardly a minute passed during the time when testimony of a nighly dramatic character or of almost untoterable pathos was not given.

The medical experts testified that there was unmistakable evidence observed at the autopsy to prove that the girl had been attacked and strangled, then burned while she was still breathing. Another expert showed to the jury the poor little shriveled half burned hand, in the palm of which, not all destroyed by fire, were a dozen hairs, and not Ruth Wheeler's hair. This same witness, Dr. George S. Huntington, also testified that in the sweepings from the fire place in Wolter's room, which had been sent to him for examination, he discovered attached "to some burned meat or flesh," a gold ring, the ring the murdered girl's sisters identified as having been worn by Ruth Wheeler on the day she started out looking for employment.

Identify All Articles.

Both sisters testified during the day. In addition to their story of the household alarm over the disappearance of Ruth, and their all night hunt for her, Mr. Moss submitted to them for identification the braid of hair cut, almost untouched by the fire, from Ruth's head, her ring, her umbrella, charred remnants of her outer and underwaist, the ribbon with which she tied her underwaist and the ring.

While the sisters were identifying these bits of evidence their mother, seated in the courtroom, fainted, but the two young women went bravely through their ordeals of examination and cross-examination.

While Adelaide Wheeler was telling her story in the morning, Olga Nethersole, the actress, was an interesting witness, and she was seen to note that as these revelations went on the courtroom was in absolute silence; the faces of the jurymen became drawn, and some of those who sat in the jury box took no pains to conceal their tears. Judge, jury, spectators, all plainly showed how deeply moved they were. Only Wolter, the defendant, appeared indifferent.

ONE GRAND RECEPTION.

It Will Be Given Roosevelt on His Return Home.

New York, April 21.—Down on the New York water front it is declared that there is an unprecedented demand for ocean going excursion boats for June 18, when Theodore Roosevelt will return from Europe. Shipping men expect a harvest twice as great as that reaped by the various steamboat owners during the Hudson-Fulton celebration. The price of tickets is likely to mount to $10 apiece.

Nearly every big organization—political, patriotic and social—in the city, and scores from other cities, have engaged or expect to engage steamboats for June 18, and there is a good chance that there will not be boats enough to go around at any price.

ROOSEVELT AT MUNICH.

Received by Prince Luitpold, Regent of the Little Country.

Munich, April 21.—Budapest allowed Colonel Roosevelt to depart in peace at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning. There was no demonstration at the station. He retired shortly after boarding the train.

The train reached Vienna at 7:55. Colonel Roosevelt devoted the day on the train to correspondence until 5:30 in the evening, when he arrived here, where Prince Luitpold, regent of Bavaria, was waiting to welcome him, accompanied by a soldier bearing a bouquet for the ex-president. There was a large crowd at the station.

Three Fishermen Drown.

Atlantic City, April 21.—Seven men were plunged into the roaring sea off Herford inlet, twenty miles below this city, Wednesday afternoon, by the capsizing of a fishing boat in which they were returning from repairing pound nets staked off the coast. Three were drowned, while crews of the government life saving service rescued four of the men, who are receiving treatment at the lonely Hereford station. A slight mistake on the part of the steersman sent the dory sidewise on the bar, and the tiny craft turned turtle.

EVEN ANTHONY COMPLAINS.

Drexel Returns to Europe Grumbling Over High Cost of Living Here.

New York, April 21.—Anthony J. Drexel, who returned to Europe Wednesday aboard the Lusitania, following the wedding, Tuesday, of his son, Anthony Jr., to Marjorie Gould, spoke plaintively of the high cost of living here as he ate his breakfast in a $1,200 room on the boat deck of the Lusitania.

"It's dreadful," said Mr. Drexel, as he ate a lamb chop; "the cost of food here is something to ruin us. What do you suppose I paid for breakfast at my hotel yesterday morning. two fried eggs and a cup of tea It cost $1.75. Did you ever hear of such a thing? Why, that is a good week's wages in some places.

"I've been here five days," continued Mr. Drexel, as he began carving a pretty little omelet, "and I suppose I could have lived a month anywhere else for the same money. What are you going to do about it?"

No suggestions were forthcoming.

TWO ELDERLY MEN ARE ASPHYXIATED

Door of Coal Stove Was Left Open.

Flint, Mich., April 25.—Overcome by gas escaping from a coal stove, Charles McIntosh and A. H. Rynex were found in their apartments, dead. The former was lying across the latter's body, having been overcome, apparently, just as he reached him to rouse him.

The two men lived together in three rooms, one of which was a sitting room and the other two bedrooms. The stove was in the sitting room, and in some way it was left open.

The odor of escaping gas attracted others in the building to the rooms, and as there was no response to their knocks the door was broken in and the dead bodies of the two men were found.

McIntosh was sixty-two years old, and he leaves a wife and daughter at Grawn, Mich. Rynex was one year younger.

Soo Blockade Diminishes.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 25.—The blockade of upbound boats below the locks has been reduced considerably. The following boats still remain: Buffington, Luzon, Osler, Ream, Ashley, Bartow, Imperial, J. E. Upson, Siemens, Saronio, Carlton, Tomlinson, Fairmont. A terrific gale, with snow and rain, has been raging on Lake Superior since last Friday night.

American packing interests will be interested to learn that the obnoxious German restrictions in regard to the admission of American pork products into German markets have been abolished. An attempt was made at the mining town of Avella, twelve miles north of Washington, Pa., by foreign coal miners to crucify a countryman. George Ribish, the victim, was twice hanged upon a cross, a crown of thorns was thrust on his head, and his injuries are such that there is little hope for his recovery. Four men were arrested, and the police are searching for the others who are implicated in the outrage.

Owing to the necessity for repairs to the Jewel tower, within the walls of the ancient tower of London, the crown jewels have been removed this week to the vaults of the Bank of England. The jewels were packed in satchels and conveyed to the bank in two four wheeled cabs, called growlers. The cabs were escorted by four detectives on bicycles. Pedestrians on the streets did not suspect that the shabby growlers contained the costliest collection of jewels in the world.

Passengers arriving in New Orleans from Costa Rica report that greater damage was done by the recent earthquake than was first reported. There were seventeen distinct shocks in the night of April 4 and twenty-one in the next night. In Cartage, sixty houses were destroyed; in San Ignacio, 36; in Turribad, 28; San Pedro de Mougia, 30; in San Rafael, 40; in Santa Barbara, 25; in San Jose, the capital, over 100 houses San Jose, the capital, oevr 100 houses were wrecked.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES.

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Tecumseh women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells' distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's proof of it in a Tecumseh woman's words:

Mrs. George Burrough, E. Potawatamie street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About a year ago my health became much run down. My kidneys did not act properly and I suffered severely from backache. Knowing of other people who had used Doan's Kidney Pills for similar troubles with the best of results, I procured a box at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. In a few weeks after taking them, I felt better and I am now free from Kidney complaint. I willingly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's, and take no other.

Sample Helps Frail Women

So many women are dragging out weary lives just because their digestive organs are weak. The result is poor circulation, nervousness and the verge of invalidism. It is often very unnecessary and the woman's own fault.

The first thing to do is to look to the welfare of your bowels. There the trouble usually lies. All physicians know that a large percentage of women are habitually constipated, and from this results indigestion, piles, weariness, etc., that women constantly complain of. But there is no use taking "female remedies" and things of that kind until you have started your bowels to moving. You will find that when the bowels move regularly once or twice a day all your petty ills will disappear. Take a good, mild laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for awhile and you will find yourself rapidly getting better and stronger, your bowels will regulate themselves and will act at stated times, and then your headaches and dizziness will disappear. Don't take strong cathartic pills or salts, but just such a mild and pleasant-tasting remedy as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

You can obtain a bottle of your druggist for fifty cents or one dollar, and either size may be enough to permanently cure you. Thousands of women keep it regularly in the house and will no longer be without it, as it cured them and can be used with safety by every member of the family, down to the youngest child, but if you have never used it take the advice of Mrs. Earl S. Cox, 409 Twenty-fifth street, Moline, Ill., and Mrs. Ellen Dungan, Muncie, Ind., and send to Dr. Caldwell for a free trial bottle, as they did, and learn for yourself what it will do in your own case. That it will cure you, as it did them, there is no doubt.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in field. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.400 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

MINERS APPARENTLY WIN.

Granted Practically Everything They Demanded of Operators.

Altoona, Pa., April 25.—After an almost all-night session between the operators and coal miners scale committee, representing the bituminous fields of central Pennsylvania, practically all of the demands of the miners were agreed to; the scale was signed up, and the miners throughout the district have been ordered to return to work at once.

An increase of three cents a ton in pick mining was granted, while the price of all classes of labor about the mines will be advanced 5:55 per cent. When the scale committee went into session the feeling was general that a settlement would be effected, but it was not until 3 o'clock in the morning that both sides affixed their signatures to the contract which will govern the fields for the coming year. In short, the miners were granted practically everything which they demanded.

MARK TWAIN LAID TO REST

Buried Beside Others of His Family.

IN PLOT AT ELMIRA, N. Y.

Services Exceedingly Simple—Lasted Only Half an Hour, and No Music. Boys of Kentucky School Sent a Wreath—Services at Grave Private. Saturday's Services Well Attended.

Elmira, N. Y., April 25.—While the rain came copiously beating a tat-a-tat upon the roof, the Rev. Samuel Eastman read passages of scripture at the bier of Samuel L. Clemens Sunday afternoon.

The remains arrived here at 9:20 o'clock in the morning, over the Lackawanna, and were taken direct to the house of General Langdon, whose sister was the late Mrs. Clemens. The sorrow of the relatives was made greater when tidings came of the death of the wife of Rev. M. Twitchell, who had promised to assist Mr. Eastman at the services. There was no music. The services, which began at 3:30 o'clock, concluded at 4, and then the friends passed out, viewing the remains, which reposed in the parlor. The services at the house were simple. Just before the hour of the funeral there arrived a large floral design with the following card attached:

Boys Send Wreath.

"From 500 boys of the Louisville (Ky.) male school. In remembrance of Samuel L. Clemens, who has brightened their life with innocent laughter and taught them squareness and grit and compassion for their weak charges."

The piece was given a conspicuous place at the bier. The house was filled with representative citizens. The clergyman prayed that the light of him whose body was now without its soul shine for all time, through his works.

Mark Twain's final earthly resting place is beside his lamented wife. Except for the new made grave, all about was a heavenly green. Even the grave recently made for the daughter whose ending came so suddenly last December had its green blanket. Plain markers denote where the family members repose in peace.

The services at the grave were private, only the relatives and immediate friends attending. Mr. Eastman offered a prayer as the body descended to its last earthly resting place. The mourners departed; the sexton and his assistants covered the spot, piling floral tokens upon the top. Then these latter turned homeward. It was growing night, and Mark Twain was left alone with those beloved best.

At the funeral service held Saturday afternoon in the Brick Presbyterian church, at Fifth avenue and Thirty-seventh street, in New York, aside from the tribute of the flowers there was little but the brief reading of the psalms by Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, his appraisement of Mark Twain, the man, and a final plea that the comfort of a belief in the resurrection be visited upon those who mourned was made by the Rev. Joseph Twitchell of Hartford.

As many as the old church would hold crowded to listen to the simple service. After the benediction had been said those already within the walls passed before the face of the dead in single file, and the line they formed was constantly augmented from without by them who had not gained admittance to the church, until fully 3,000 folk had done each his reverence at the bier of the dead philosopher and humorist. At about 5 o'clock the church doors were closed, and after that the body was taken to the Hoboken terminal of the Lackawanna railroad, there to wait in a special car attached to the train leaving at 2 o'clock in the morning to be brought to Elmira for interment.

Bachelor Slight Cost to Death.

Austin, Tex., April 25.—Word has been received here of a duel to the death that was fought on Kelly's ranch, near Beaver lake, between R. M. Gatlin and Emmett Newman, two wealthy stockmen in that section of Texas. Their ranches adjoin. Newman used a rifle and Gatlin a six-shooter. A cowboy witnessed the fuel. Newman was shot through the head and fell dead from his horse. Gatlin was shot three times through the body and died later.

E OF THE DAY

The Meat Packing Combine.

Whether the beef trust officials are disturbed over the present trend of things or are calmly indifferent is not known, but events are certainly not shaping in their favor. Besides the case on trial before the federal court at Chicago, it is announced that the attorney general of New York is accumulating evidence to show that the Armours, Swifts and their associates have for nearly eight years defied a New York state supreme court injunction against their fixing prices, preventing competition and otherwise violating the anti-monopoly law.

The meat trust is made up of Armour & Co., capitalized at $20,000,000; Swift & Co., $60,000,000, and Morris

J. OGDEN ARMOUR.

& Co., $10,000,000. The products of the combine are marketed through the medium of the National Packing company, capitalized at $15,000,000.

J. Ogden Armour, head of Armour & Co., is probably the best known of the beef barons. He was born in Milwaukee forty-seven years ago and immediately after leaving college entered the employ of his father, the late Philip D. Armour. At the age of twenty-eight he became superintendent of the concern, and in 1900, when the incorporation of the company took place, he became vice president and general manager. A year later, on the death of his father, he succeeded to the control of the great business.

WOMAN SLAYS THREE.

West Virginia Landlady Also Mortally Wounds One Other.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 21.—After being mortally injured in a riot at Welch, W. Va., Mrs. Alice Cleek seized a revolver and instantly killed John Jones and his two sons, Lewis and Alfred. She also shot and mortally wounded Edward Denham, a boarder at the Cleek home.

Mrs. Cleek ran a boarding house, and a few days ago Arthur Taylor came to live with her. He paid attention to the woman, and the two Jones boys were rivals for her favor. The men became drunk, and the trouble started when the elder Jones attacked the woman because she refused to hold his sons in favor. Pistols were drawn, and more than forty shots were fired. Taylor is now in a critical condition.

ROOSEVELT NEARLY MOBBED

Merely the "Warm Manifestations of Sympathy by Young Misses."

Paris, April 25.—The first item on Mr. Roosevelt's Sunday program was to receive Pauline Chase, who came here to receive his autographed photograph to be hold at the Actors' Fund fair, in New York. The next was to attend the service at the American church in Rue de Berri, where, accompanied by Ambassador Bacon, he was received by the pastor and Consul General Mason. He heard a sermon on the virtues of being a good Christian.

Leaving the church, Roosevelt, on the way to his automobile, was almost mobbed by admirers in the way that is familiar to King Edward and other monarchs on their travels. In the words of La Liberte, he was "the object of warm manifestations of sympathy by young misses," who cried, "Vive Roosevelt!" and "Vive Le President!"

Mrs. Roosevelt, Ethel Roosevelt and Miss Carow, Roosevelt's sister-in-law, attended service at the American church in the Avenue D'Alma. The Roosevelt party took luncheon with M. Jusserand, French ambassador to the United States. In the afternoon, Roosevelt went to the salon to see the work of George Gray Barnard, the American sculptor, on exhibition there. Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel visited the picture galleries of the Louvre. It was a quiet day for Roosevelt. He had asked for it.

State News in Brief.

Grape growers in the vicinity of Three Rivers say that the crop has not been injured by the recent cold snap and frosts.

Despondent because of a long illness with nerve trouble, Jacob Stierle, aged fifty, a well-to-do farmer living near Ann Arbor, hanged himself in his barn. The widow and nine children survive.

John Bronson, proprietor of the City hotel of Grand Ledge, has been sentenced to spend ten days in jail and pay a fine and costs of $100 for violating the local option law. If the money is not paid he will have to spend ninety additional days in jail.

William Mitchell, former proprietor of a soft drink establishment, and now foreman for a lumber company near Manistique, where he went after escaping from the officers who had arrested him, has been convicted of a violation of the local option law, and he is now in jail at Cadillac, awaiting sentence.

Alleging that her husband is very egotistical and so stuck on himself that he would not notice her, Johanna Decker of Grand Rapids has started suit for divorce against John Decker. The couple were married in 1892. She names an Ypsilanti woman in the case.

While jostling with other boys, Willie, the twelve-year-old son of Patrolman Sime Lawlor of Battle Creek, fell through the plate glass window of a downtown store, and he nearly lost his life. A four-inch piece of the glass was driven into the lad's leg, and he nearly bled to death from a severed artery before medical aid was summoned.

There comes from Brimley, Chippewa county, a report of the exceedingly narrow escape of Mr. and Mrs. James Horn from death by lightning. A bolt which entered through the chimney wrecked the kitchen, as well as every interior wall in the house. Both Mr. and Mrs. Horn were knocked unconscious. The lightning tore off a shoe and stocking worn by Mrs. Horn and burned her foot badly.

UP IN AEROPLANE.

Paris, April 28.—Kermit and Ethel Roosevelt made a flight in a Wright biplane at Vincennes late Wednesday afternoon. They were accompanied to the aerodrome by the American and British military attaches and Baron D'Estournelles de Constant. Count Lambert, an expert Wright pilot, immediately invited Ethel to make an aerial trip. A minute later they were soaring above the military ground, which Miss Roosevelt's father had covered on horseback in the morning.

Kermit went up next and expressed keen delight. Then a third person clamored to make an ascent. This was Gabriel D'Annunzio, the Italian poet, wearing yellow kid gloves and immaculate fawn colored trousers. He was also given a ride. The machine which took them up was making its first trips, and it was baptized by Miss Ethel.

STAND AGAINST FACTIONALISM

ANNUAL CONVENTION IS HELD

Everything Went Off as Smoothly as Prayer Meeting—Precedent of the League Was Followed and Officers Advanced—John W. Egan of Fremont Becomes President Next Year.

Lansing, Mich., April 28.—Harmonious in the extreme was the annual convention of the Michigan State League of Republican Clubs, held in Representative hall Wednesday afternoon. Factionalism was relegated to the background, and everything went off as smoothly as a prayer meeting. Twenty-two clubs were represented, and 230 delegates responded to the roll call.

Despite earlier symptoms of a contest over the officers and possible attempts to tie the league up to certain candidates when the leaders got together Tuesday evening, every possible element which might have caused discord was tossed aside, and the club went on record in regard to taking a stand against factionalism, and adopted a resolution to that effect.

It was decided that the past precedents of the league should be followed and the officers advanced. For president next year John W. Egan of Fremont, the present vice-president, is elected to succeed Samuel H. Kelley, with Secretary Will A Waite promoted to the vice-presidency, and Roy M. Watkins of Grand Rapids, treasurer during the past year, becomes secretary. T. E. Jarrad of Lansing was elected treasurer with no opposition.

HIS NECK BROKEN.

Folding Bed Collapsed on Prominent Lee (Mass.) Man.

New York, April 28.—A man who was killed in a folding bed that closed down on him at 426 West Twenty-third street, it develops, was Wellington Smith of Lee, Mass., once on the governor's council and president of the Smith Paper company, which operates five large paper mills on the Housatonic in the towns of Lenox and Lee. Who the woman is that was with him has not been learned. She had told the police that he was Mrs. Smith, and there appeared to be no reason for detaining her.

Mr. Smith and his companion went to the Twenty-third street furnished rooming house early Tuesday evening. The room which they occupied was on the ground floor at the front of the high stooped dwelling. A woman sleeping directly above this front parlor heard, a little past midnight, a sound of a falling object. A series of muffled screams followed. This woman ran into the hall immediately and went down stairs. She found the door to the front room securely locked. The street door was only a few feet away, and she swung it open and called into the street for help.

Passing at the time were two girls and a young man. The woman on the stoop called to the three for help. They finally got in through a window from the porch. Lying flat on the floor was the folding bed, toppled over, face downwards. The faint cries of a woman came from inside. Together they lifted the heavy back of the ancient device, and the body of an old man rolled to the floor. On the other side of the bed a woman, several years past middle life, lay on her side. She was moaning, but was not hurt.

An examination showed that the accident had occurred because the front braces had not been properly adjusted. When the braces gave way the upper part fell and struck Mr. Smith's head. It was bent forward upon his chest, and his neck was broken instantly.

When Dr. W. H. Weston got there he saw at once that Mr. Smith was dead. The woman was hurrying about the room gathering up her belongings. She left shortly after the doctor arrived.

LOUIS CRAMTON.

Wants to Represent Seventh District in National Congress.

AFTER CONGRESS SEAT.

Louis Cramton of Lapeer Announces His Candidacy.

Lapeer, Mich., April 28.—Louis C. Cramton issued an announcement today to the Republicans of the Seventh congressional district, declaring himself a candidate for congress. In part, he says:

"I have decided to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative in congress at your hands at the approaching September primary. Assurances of support have come to me from every county in the district, and I am convinced that there exists a widespread and insistent demand in this district for a more active and direct participation in the securing of progressive legislation at Washington."

Glasgow May Oppose Hamilton.

Lansing, Mich., April 28.—At a conference of Fourth district leaders here Wednesday, Railroad Commissioner Glasgow practically decided to oppose Congressman Hamilton for the republican congressional nomination.

FIGHT PROVES DRAW.

Ketchel and Langford Pound Each Other Without Results.

Philadelphia, April 28.—Stanley Ketchel and Sam Langford will have to fight again to settle the question of supremacy. They met in a hard six-round bout at the National A. C. in this city last night, and they were both on their feet, able to continue, with plenty of strength and aggressiveness, when the battle ended with no decision by the referee. No knockdowns were scored, in spite of the terrific hitting power of both men and, while there seems to be no doubt that they tried to do their best, they will probably come together in a longer fight in California next July for a large purse.

Langford showed a superior knowledge of boxing and scientific fighting, and in the fourth round his clean left hand jabs drew the blood from Ketchel's nose. He also had the white man a trifle tired when this round ended, but in the fifth Ketchel began to do some terrific punching and evened up the score.

The crowd was visibly disappointed because no knockout was rendered. It was the first meeting between Ketchel and Langford, and the latter went into the ring a strong favorite.

DEATH FOR WOLTER.

Judge Sentences Him to Electric Chair For Wheeler Girl's Murder.

New York, April 28.—Albert W. Wolter, convicted of slaying little Ruth Wheeler, has been sentenced by Judge Forter, in general sessions, to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison some time during the week beginning June 6.

The condemned man displayed only a languid interest in the court proceedings.

DEMS TURN ON "INSURGENTS"

Tired of Flirtation Carried on by Radicals.

BAILEY AND RAYNER HOWL

"I Am Becoming Weary of Being Fondled and Caressed, Only to Be Rejected and Deserted," Exclaims Maryland Senator—Tuck Is Completely Out of Senate "Insurgents."

Washington, April 28.—Democrats in the senate turned on the "insurgents" Wednesday and left them stranded and very much embarrassed. It was the most interesting political episode that has occurred in the senate this session and probably will have a sobering effect upon insurgency. Senator Rayner (Md.) and Senator Bailey (Tex.) both, in effect, served notice upon the "insurgents", that they were tired of the flirtation that the radicals have been carrying on with the Democracy and called for a declaration as to whether they really had any honorable intentions of entering into the bonds of political wedlock with the minority party. Both invited them to cease their coquettish ways and come over and join the Democrats.

"I am becoming weary," said Senator Rayner, "of being fondled and caressed, only to be rejected and deserted when the supreme moment arrives."

What Bailey Thinks.

"No man can claim the protection of a flag and at the same time fire upon it," was one of the stinging statements that the Texas senator directed at the "insurgents."

This attack upon them from an entirely unexpected quarter took the tuck completely out of the "insurgent" band for a few minutes, and all of them, from Lafollette down, were hopping mad. They held a hurried conference, and finally Senator Dolliver (Ia.) rejected the offer of the Democrats to take them into their fold, retorting with a considerable display of feeling that the Democratic party was not worthy of such recruits.

The conservatives in the senate, in the meantime, were happier than they have been on any other day this session. Senator Aldrich was chuckling so hard that he had to hold his sides; Senator Elkins wore a grin that stretched from ear to ear; Senator Root also was tickled, and even "Uncle" Shelby Cullom treated himself to a laugh.

ROOSEVELT ELATED.

French Troops at Vincennes Go Through Maneuvers For Him.

Paris, April 28.—The military review for Roosevelt at Vincennes Wednesday was the greatest prize ever plucked in France by a private citizen. Never has such a compliment been paid to an ordinary traveler. Five thousand picked troops, including two battallions of chasseurs-a-pied, the crack infantry of France, the smartest division of which is always located at Vincennes, did their best to show the American visitor that whatever he may see in Berlin, there are soldiers and artillery to be seen in France.

"I am charmed," said Roosevelt, to the military governor of Paris, "to see your soldiers. I would not have liked to return to America without saluting your splendid army. The maneuvers have been too hurried. You have had to make your men do in a half hour what demands four hours."

At the conclusion of the maneuvers Roosevelt, who had followed them with enthusiastic interest, said the review was the finest sight he had seen since he came to Paris.

At the Salon, on the way back to the embassy, Roosevelt was received by the president of the Society of French Artists.

ASPARAGUS CULTURE.

Selecting the Plants and the Care of the Bed.

One of the best and easiest grown of our garden perennials is the asparagus plant. It can be started either from seed or from plants. If one wishes to raise plants to sell, it is better, of course, to plant the seed but if asparagus is wanted for home or market use, in the shortest time possible, it is better to set out scrubby seedlings says a writer in the Country Gentleman.

It is important, in laying out the asparagus plantation, to select a place where it can remain permanently, for, if taken proper care of, the plantation will last for 20 years. The old idea was the asparagus "bed;" the new is to plant in rows the same as corn, etc., so that for the market garden the cultivation can be done by horse. The land selected should be deep, rich, friable, moist and cool soil, having a warm exposure, a gradual southern slope being preferred. If the land is originally hard and coarse, it should be worked a year or two in advance by the raising of some tilled crop, using as much manure as possible in the process.

Late, deep fall plowing is preferable, using made a thick covering of well-rotted manure. When the land is out of the ground, plow trenches from six to 10 inches deep and four feet apart. If the soil is not of the best quality, two or three inches of well-rotted manure should be placed in the bottom of each trench, and on this add a couple of inches of loose soil. Then, place the plants in the trench three feet apart. Cover with three inches of earth; it is not well to cover deeper, as it takes too long for the young shoots to push their way through. As the shoots grow, the rest of the earth can be filled in around them by after cultivation. When filled in, the crowns of the plants should be about six inches below the surface of the ground, for if planted much less the roots will push up to the surface and interfere with cultivation.

If asparagus seed is to be planted, it should not be more than one year old, as the germinating per cent of older seed is low. Soaking the seed several hours in warm water enables germination to take place sooner, as ordinarily it takes about six weeks for the plants to come up. The seed is planted by the garden drill, in rows about 18 inches apart. When the plants are up, thin out to about four inches in the row. It is well to sow radish seed with asparagus, as the radish will come up much quicker than the asparagus and enable one to see the rows for weeding. The radishes can be pulled without interfering with the asparagus, as they can be mattared before the asparagus, becomes any height. The seedlings are set out the next year.

As the asparagus is a gross feeder, it is well to mulch in the fall with more or less well-rotted manure, although straw and leaves will do. Before mulching, the old stalks should be cut and carried away, and, if affected with rust, should be burned. In early spring, the straw and undecayed leaves should be removed and about the last of June cover with a good coating of well-rotted manure and cultivate in. Very little cutting should be done until two years after setting out, and then the cutting should not be carried on later than July 1, as the plants need to grow in order to store up a food supply for the next year's growth. In cutting the asparagus for use, a sharp, square-pointed knife should be used, and a straight, downward cut made just underneath the surface of the ground, care being taken not to injure the underground shoots.

Where plants are affected with rust, spray with soap bordeaux mixture, which is made up of four pounds of copper sulphate, four pounds of fresh stone lime, to 40 gallons of water, adding four pounds of dissolved laundry soap. As a preventive, destroy all stray plants affected with rust in the vicinity. Asparagus can be forced in winter in cellars or hot beds, by using the roots of old plants; but these generally die after this kind of treatment. It is advisable only to use plants from an old field which is to be plowed up. Some of the best varieties are: Early Argenteuil, Conover's colossal, Parmetto, and Columbian mammoth white.

Cows and Red Lights.

It appears that cows have been wandering through the streets of Hazleton at night. Hazleton seems to be in a section of Pennsylvania where cows are regarded as a social advantage. There are certain automobile drivers, however, who object to the bovine in the gloaming. They claim a cow at night is more of a menace to traffic than twenty cows in the daytime. And one among them, an ingenious chap, has suggested that each highway cow should bear, after dark, a red light firmly attached to her tail—an ordinary tail lamp, as it were, that can't be switched out.

The cow owners object to this danger signal. The automobilists insist. The question has finally reached a local magistrate. This Solomonic person is credited with handing down a decision to the effect that Hazleton cows need not be subjected to the red light indignity.

This looks like another brilliant triumph over the haughty invaders of inalienable highway rights.

Colors That May be Worn Together.

Black "tones" some colors, but not all. The effect is sometimes merely to dull the colors and itself, without remedying the difficulty.

Gray may be combined with pale pink, rose color, lemon, pale yellow or burnt orange.

Deep blue and dark red are a safe choice if the blue predominates.

Some blues and yellows are good together, but again the blue must predominate.

Dark blue cloth may be ornamented with a touch of sulphur or mustard color or braided with gold.

Tan looks well with almost any shade of blue, and gray blues are very good with tan.

Genuine shades of heliotrope are charming with pale, dull yellow.

Light blue and pure violet are to be avoided.

Pale pastel blue is beautiful with the new shade known as wistaria.

Faint shell pink is possible with coppery brown and is very effective in brightening olive green.

It is a blamed sight more sensible to spend your money on a good woman than on a bad horse.

THE BATTLE ABOVE THE CLOUDS

A Present Day Visit to Lookout Mountain.

Who has not heard of Lookout Mountain? Who has not read of that most romantic incident of the civil war, "The Battle above the Clouds?" It was my good fortune to spend the morning of Dec. 31, 1909, on top of this mountain and I will try to describe, (in my homely way,) the incidents of my trip and the impressions it made upon me.

I have always had a vague idea of its situation and surroundings, but it is far more grand, more impressive and beautiful than I had ever thought or imagined. Lookout mountain belongs to the chain of Cumberland mountains. It is 85 miles long—extending across the eastern side of Tennessee, across the portwest corner of Georgia, and ends in a slope of foothills in northern Alabama. Its extreme northern point ends in an abrupt rocky bluff exactly opposite the city of Chattanooga, and it is this point that is famous in song and story as the scene of Hooker's great battle, Nov. 24, 1863.

It is not my intention in this article to indulge in war history or reminiscences familiar to everyone, but rather to give you the experience of a present day visitor to this famous battle ground above the clouds. I caught an 8 o'clock car on the main street in Chattanooga and a ten minutes ride through the side streets and across a dingy portion of the city, brought me to the little station at the foot of the incline railway. The obliging agent sold me a one way ticket for 75 cents. Cars run up the mountain every 30 minutes and as one had just gone, I had plenty of time to view the surrounding scenery.

Back of the little station the ground sloped upward for a full half mile to the base of an abrupt cliff, and there a solid wall of sandstone and rock rose straight upward more than 400 feet to the top of old Lookout. Even in winter the view was beautiful with the many colors of the sandstone and rock, mingled with the green of pine and shrubs. As I was admiring all this a middle aged colored gentleman approached me and said: "Boss is yo gwine up?" I said I hoped to. "Well Boss" he continued, "I'se the only living official guide of Lookout mountain." In the presence of such dignity, I removed my hat and bowed. "I hab bin heah 12 yeah, sah." I bowed again. "An I'll show you all the pints of interest on the mountain fo foah dollahs." Again I bowed.

I was duly impressed with the greatness of this man and was touched by his eloquence, but was not touched by him in any other manner. Other passengers arrived by this time and the car started up the incline.

This cable road up the mountain is 4750 feet long. Its average incline is 33 feet to 100. Steepest incline 68 ft. to 100. It has been in operation several years, and cost $100,000. For the first few hundred yards, the incline is gradual and I stood on the back platform of the car, enjoying the beautiful view as we slowly ascended. The valley spread out before us wider and farther, and the city as we rose above it, grew smaller and looked so far away. Enchanted at the wonderful sight, I suddenly realized that the car seemed to be standing on end. I braced my feet against the rail and grabbed the door casing. We were literally being pulled straight up through a cut in the bluff.

One more glance down that incline convinced me beyond all argument or discussion that it was much the safer place for me inside. There were just a few moments of that experience that I don't really remember very much about, but I believe I swallowed something as I climbed up in the car and sat down. The comment of the passengers was not at all reassuring. Many were excited and some of the ladies hysterical. One elderly woman said, "I know we'll all be killed in just a minute,—what a fool I was to ever get into this thing anyhow." A small child set up a howl of terror. Farther up in the car a young lady screamed and clung to her companion with a "lets die together" expression on both their faces. He tried to comfort her and his teeth chattered with fright as he said, "Oh—I'm not the least bit afraid—there is no danger dear, everything is all right." But the cable refused to break after all. It pulled us to the top, where we scrambled out and looked down that awful incline nearly a mile long, and we all thought, "How can I ever go down that thing. What if it SHOULD break?"

We were on top of Lookout mountain, 2300 feet above the valley. We found here a level plateau of 5 or 6 acres, with many beautiful residences, a substantial war relic museum, a good hotel and fine graveled streets.

On the extreme point of the mountain is Point Park, owned by the government, and surrounded by a high wall enclosing about two acres in the center of which is the New York monument erected at a cost of $100,000. It is said that no monument in the world commands such an extensive view or can be seen at so long a distance. Not far from this monument is Point Lookout, said to be the only spot in America from which you can see into seven different states.

As you stand on the brink of the great precipice you can plainly see the seven states of Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. It is impossible to describe the wonderful panoramic view spread out before you.

One can only gaze in speechless surprise and admiration as you look for a hundred miles over the valleys and hills of the surrounding country. In the foreground and almost directly below you, is the great city of Chattanooga, a mere village in appearance, its tall buildings, like toy blocks, and its wide streets like the smallest alleys.

Winding through the valley miles away, is the Tennessee river and as it comes near the foot of the mountain it assumes the shape of an Indian moccasin and is known at this point as Moccasin Bend, a famous spot during the civil war. Large farms and plantations look like garden spots, patches of timber-land like small orchards, country roads like small dividing lines of white and cultivated fields like small patches of color in the great carpet in the valley. Off to the right are the battle fields of Chicamauga, where anyone familiar with its history could follow the movements of the two great armies in battle. Today it is a peaceful valley of farm lands and rich tobacco fields. Away off to the left are the equally famous battle fields of Missionary Ridge and Wauhatchie, where now is located one of the largest National cemeteries in this country whose tallest shafts stand white and clear above the trees. And over yonder is the U. S. army post, Fort Oglethorpe. In fact, the entire country is rich in scenes of national historic interest as you look down upon it from the wonderful bluffs of old Lookout.

Although not large in circumference, there are many points of interest on top of the mountain, and as usual in such places, scores of sign boards and placards tell the visitor of noted places and events. At the time of my visit about three inches of snow covered the mountain top while there was none whatever in the valley.

One of the most interesting places on the mountain is Point Rock, which is a favorite place for visitors to have their pictures taken. Here is also the photographers little house, office and gallery combined, where his outfit is ever ready to "snap" the traveler. On the very brink of the precipice is the celebrated Umbrella Rock, a ledge of sandstone about 3 feet wide and 10 feet long, balanced about 10 feet above the ground upon a base of small rocks. It is a favorite stunt for tourists to climb a ladder, arrange themselves on this rock in various awkward positions, and hold their breath while being photographed.

Following the pleasing and timely suggestions of the camera-man, our little party ascended the ladder and climbed out on the balancing rock. The ladder was then removed while we arranged ourselves for the picture. I was the second man from the end and enjoyed my novel position until I glanced backward from my narrow seat and looked straight down a solid wall of rock 400 feet, while 2,000 feet below me was the beautiful valley and the far away city of Chattanooga. I could not possibly avoid thinking—what if this balanced rock with six people on it should tip over or slide off into the valley. Was it the wind that seemed to raise my hat? Impossible, for the morning was quiet and the air was still. It must have been that creepy sensation that was somewhere near the roots of my hair, as I realized that I couldn't jump, nor get away if it should slide. Then the voice of the camera-man, sounding strange and far away commanded us to brace up and look pleasant.

I was in fine condition to look pleasant, and he could as reasonably have asked me to smile at my own funeral, but I did sit up, raised my chin, and ceased to breathe as I looked into space with a cold stony stare, and declared if I ever got off that rock I would never get on again. I afterward learned that the rest of the party did the same thing. It was all over in a few seconds and as we climbed down the ladder, we were assured that we had "behaved beautifully" and that the pictures were a great success.

Umbrella Rock still remains in position, as it has for years and as it will for years to come, where future travelers can experience the same hair-raising displacement of the heart.

The war museum is very interesting, containing more than 5000 war relics, the most of them collected in that locality. As you sign the visitors register, you are asked to sit in a chair once occupied by Gen. Grant, and at a rough board table once used by Gen. Thomas. This museum is owned by private parties and the relics are for sale, but at a price that made the old guide's "fo dollahs" look very small.

We were now ready to descend, about half our party deciding to return by carriage or automobile over the wagon road, a drive of several miles leading back from the bluff and in a winding course down the side of the mountain.

I took the cable-car route, as we had ascended, but for a thousand feet of that steepest incline, I am afraid I counted the fly specks on the roof of the car and neglected the beautiful views. Whoever visits the top of Lookout mountain, will never regret it and never forget it, and the hundreds and thousands of travelers who go there will forever remember its wonderful scenery and historic surroundings. He can never forget the battle fields of Chickamauga, nor Moccasin Bend, nor Missionary Ridge, nor the villages and cities in the valleys spread out before him, nor can he ever forget that wonderful view, a hundred miles over green hills and fertile valleys, until the land and the skyline blend together in the smoky distance.

Paulhan Makes Distance in an Aeroplane.

WINS MAIL'S $50,000 PRIZE

England Wildly Excited Over Aeroplanes—Thousands Turned Out to See Race—Paulhan Fools White by Making Start While Latter Slept. One Stop Made by Winner.

Manchester, Eng., April 28.—Paulhan, the aviator, arrived her at 5:32 this morning in his aeroplane, after having flown the entire distance from London. He thus wins the $50,000 prize offered by the London Daily Mail.

London, April 28.—Half of England is in paroxysms of the same aeroplane fever which physical France some time ago and which still prevails there in milder form. It was only realized how acutely the English are affected Wednesday, when the bulk of the population along a line drawn from London to Manchester and in a wide area on either side of this line left their homes and business to stretch their necks skywards in attempts to get a glimpse of one or both of two competitors, Paulhan and White, in their air race between the two cities and which was won by Paulhan. In every town and village en route were crowds of sightseers, and trains from outlying parts brought thousands to swell their numbers. In many centers it appeared as though it were a public holiday. This state of things continued throughout the day, for the hugely advertised race was expected to begin in the morning, but many hours passed before news of a start was received. Meanwhile, in the two main centers interest was keen. The metropolis drew many thousands, eager to see the departure of the competitors.

Paulhan Starts.

White's preparations were made on the common at Worlwood Scrubbs and Paulhan's at the Aero club's grounds at Hendon, both outlying northwest suburbs. Each had many preparations to make. It was not until after 5 a. m. that all was ready, and then, without even a brief trial, Paulhan started at 5:20. Loud shouts and applause greeted him as he rose. He was soon lost to the sight of those gathered in Hendon.

White during the day went to Hendon in an automobile and chatted with Paulhan. White announced that he would not start before this morning, hoping conditions would then be improved. The crowd thinned out, and White went to sleep at the house of a friend, who was keeping vigil. As soon as friends learned of Paulhan's start they rushed in and told White. The latter rushed down stairs, jumped into an automobile and speeded to the place where his aeroplane was stored. His mechanics had the machine all ready, and White, getting aboard quickly, started off in pursuit of Paulhan.

Both Stop.

Paulhan was so numbed and weary when he reached Litchfield that he had to make a landing and be helped out of his seat. He went to bed at a hotel, starting again early enough so that he finished at 5:32 in Manchester.

Gathering darkness and the cold also compelled White to alight after he had been in the air for eighty-five minutes. He landed ten miles south of Litchfield.

Stopped Obnoxious Dance.

Elizabeth, N. J., April 28.—Dr. Victor Mravlag, mayor of this city, at the head of a squad of police, raided a local theater the other night and prevented a dancer from appearing in an obnoxious dance. The mayor reached the theater just as she was about to go upon the stage scantily clad, and in a few well chosen words told her that the people of Elizabeth had ideals of acting which the evolutions of the dancer did not fit. He ordered her not to go on with her dance, and she did not.

TEXAS CATTLE KING.

The company carries a first-class Band costumed in the full dress of the Cowboy as he is seen on the plains of the great west and no pains or expense have been spared by the management to present the play in a realistic manner true to the environments of the land in which the scenes of the play are laid. The cast of the company is excellent and has received favorable press notices wherever they have appeared. We bespeak a rare treat to those who attend the performance. The people of Tecumseh are to be congratulated on the coming to our city of the Brownlee & Reed Dramatic Company which is billed to appear at the Opera House, Tuesday, May 3rd in that beautiful and Romatic Western Drama "The Texas Cattle King." The scene of the play is laid in the Lone Star State—the home of chivalry daring and romance—depicting in a realistic manner life as it is among the cowboys, vaqueas and wholesouled denizens of the West.

County Federation

CLINTON, MICH., APRIL 28TH

Successful and Largely Attended Meeting of Club Ladies Fine Papers and Royal Entertainment.

The club ladies of Clinton may feel honored by the attendance at this the fifth meeting of the Federation as it was by far the largest of any recorded thus far.

Tecumseh sent the largest delegation over forty belug present. The crowd was a jolly one and despite the fact that they had to stand on the train there were no complaints. Adrian sent 20, Hudson 3 and Addison 12.

The exercises were held in the M. E. church which was very prettily decorated with spring blossoms and ferns. The refreshments were served in the church basement.

Meeting called to order by president, 1st report of day given by Mrs. Landon being a brief report of the last meeting held at Tecumseh.

Mrs. Clark of Clinton in a very pleasant witty manner, welcomed the guests, the response being given by Mrs. Shull, who gave an account of the founding of the county fenderation which was started by the Tecumseh ladies. She gave a well deserved compliment to the Culture Club of Clinton it being the youngest in the federation, having given us the Federation song, written by Jane E. Clark and set an example in work that many of the other clubs might emulate. Report of treasurer, Mrs. Mills, was very satisfactory, showing $35.36 in treasury. Reports of standing committees. Mrs. Baker of Adrian gave an interesting report of the Woman's congress held at Adrian fair last year, it being so successful it will be held another year at least. Mrs. Jane Clark on Club organization was quite discouraging, though they felt they would continue their efforts for another year.

Miss May McElroy gave the report of Mrs. Humphrey of Adrian on the charitable institutes of the County.

Mrs. Andrew Wilson reported on historical works and gave a little sketch of the Chicago turnpike. There are six places in the county where they wish to place markers of some sort, to mark historical events. In concluding her remarks she said "The Mills of the gods grind slowly, but we live in hopes that by another year some of these will be placed.

Just here came a vocal solo by Mr. Frank Burroughs which was thoroughly appreciated by every lady present as it ought to be when one man has the courage to face such a crowd of ladies, and in the sweetest tones sings "Because I love you dear."

The nominating committee was then appointed by the president, consisting of Miss Fernsdorf, Mrs Carr and Mrs. James and they retired for council Mrs. Dodge reported on State federation. A vote was then taken on the Woman's suffrage question resulting in a tie, the president casting her vote in favor of suffrage. This was followed by the reports of the presidents which were very interesting and enjoyed by all. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Pres.—Mrs. Jane Clark, Clinton.

Vice Pres.—Mrs. Mary Wright, Tecumseh.

Sec.—Mrs. Landon, Addison.

Treas.—Mrs. Chas. Whitney, Hudson.

Mrs. Mary Wright elected as delegate to State federation for the county.

Mrs. A. D. Barnes of Howell then spoke on the work of the State Tuberculosis sanitarium at Howell.

Adjourned for dinner.

The afternoon session was enjoyed by all. The addresses given by Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. Beal and Miss Gilcrist being especially fine. The musical program was the very best.

We feel that the president and other officers of the Culture Club and the entertaining ladies gave us a royal reception.

SATTERLEE-MCCLURE

Jennie McClure has given her many friends in Tecumseh quite a surprise, as a result of her two weeks vacation mentioned in our last issue, this is the way it reads; At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Reid in Lansing, Miss Jennie O. McClure and Willis C. Satterlee were united in marriage, in the presence of a small company of relatives and friends of the contracting parties. We unite with the many friends of both in wishing them long life and happiness together. They will visit in Roe City and Williamston before returning to their home in Tecumseh.

An enterprising exchange has a long catalogue of work for rainy days; but, then, who wants to work on rainy days?

BAND CONCERT.

These who attended the concert last evening were surely well repaid for time and money expended for it was fine in every detail from start to finish. Tecumseh may well be proud of her band and orchestra and we hope that they may be encouraged to go on. We were sorry that every seat was not filled and should they make another effort we bespeak for them a crowded house.

It would be hard to tell which selection given was the best for all were so good, but for a rouser the last selection was fine and to the older ones of the audience brought up many memories of the past.

The solos were very fine indeed and called for many encores. The piano duet was received with much pleasure, and all through the evening the audience listened with deep appreciation. This concert was a fine advertisement for future evenings.

The program was as follows:

1 Annapolis Midshipman March—Band

2 Song—Miss Edith Wilson accompanied by orchestra.

3 Cornet duet—Messrs. Camburn and Coller.

4 My Seaside Girl, Wotts—Band.

5 Flute Solo—Elmer Brown, accompanied by Mayme Kaiser.

They will take no wedding trip but will enter upon housekeeping at once. Only the immediate relatives of each will be present. His mother, Mrs. S. E. Austin and sister Mrs. Rob McCoy representing the family from Tecumseh. We join their friends in wishing them a happy future.

Sample Helps Frail Women

So many women are dragging out weary lives just because their digestive organs are weak. The result is poor circulation, nervousness and the verge of invalidism. It is often very unnecessary and the woman's own fault.

The first thing to do is to look to the welfare of your bowels. There the trouble usually lies. All physicians know that a large percentage of women are habitually constipated, and from this results indigestion, piles, weariness, etc., that women constantly complain of. But there is no use taking "female remedies" and things of that kind until you have started your bowels to moving. You will find that when the bowels move regularly once or twice a day all your petty ills will disappear. Take a good, mild laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for awhile and you will find yourself rapidly getting better and stronger, your bowels will regulate themselves and work at stated times, and then your headaches and dizziness will disappear. Don't take strong cathartic pills or salts, but just such a mild and pleasant-tasting remedy as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

You can obtain a bottle of your druggist for fifty cents or one dollar, and either size may be enough to permanently cure you. Thousands of women keep it regularly in the house and will no longer be without it, as it cured them and can be used with safety by every member of the family, down to the youngest child, but if you have never used it take the advice of Mrs. Earl R. Cox, 409 Twenty-fifth street, Moline, Ill., and Mrs. Ellen Dungan, Muncie, Ind., and send to Dr. Caldwell for a free trial bottle, as they did, and learn for yourself what it will do in your own case. That it will cure you, as it did them, there is no doubt.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. WHEN HER BACK ACHES.

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's proof of it in a Tecumseh woman's words:

Mrs. George Burrough, E. Potawatamie street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About a year ago my health became much run down. My kidneys did not act properly and I suffered severely from backache. Knowing of other people who had used Doan's Kidney Pills for similar troubles with the best of results, I procured a box at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. In a few weeks after taking them, I felt better and I am now free from Kidney complaint. I willingly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's, and take no other.

GLAD HE DIDN'T ROB.

Collister Says Blood Would Surely Have Been Shed.

Lansing, Mich., April 2.—Before he entered the circuit court Wednesday to plead guilty to the charge of forming a conspiracy to rob the State bank at Laingsburg, Robert Collister declared that he holds no ill-feeling against Frank Rivenburg, his supposed accomplice, who informed the police of the would-be bank robber's plans. He further declares that he is indebted to Rivenburg for causing his arrest.

"I will take my sentence feeling satisfied that I am the luckiest man on earth. I have kept nothing back from the police, and I will say again that had I entered the bank I would have killed the first person who opposed me. I was after the bank's funds and intended to commit murder to secure them. I now realize how utterly impossible it would have been for me to escape, and, had the officers been lying in wait for me, I would have died fighting. A year's imprisonment is easy—I'm a lucky man.

"By confessing to the police Rivenburg put himself beyond temptation, and I'm glad of it."

HAS MEYER'S APPROVAL.

Program For Organization of Atlantic Fleet Practically Completed.

Washington, April 21.—Secretary of the Navy Meyer has approved a program for the organization of the Atlantic fleet for the next three years drawn by Rear Admiral Richard Wainwright. The plan contemplates three re-organizations during the remainder of the present administration. The first will be ordered next month and will have the effect of reassigning the vessels of the fleet to new "home ports." The first division of the fleet will make its base at New York, the second at Norfolk, the third at Boston and the fourth at Philadelphia.

The reassignment of vessels of the Atlantic fleet will take effect immediately after their forthcoming visit to the yards in May and June. This visit is the last occasion on which the fleet as a whole will be dispersed to their home yards, except for periodic docking.

In July, 1911, when the Florida and Utah are completed and when the New Jersey, Maine, Missouri and Ohio will have been overhauled, the Atlantic fleet will be increased to twenty-one battleships in full commission. It will then be practicable to carry out the department's plan of keeping seventeen battleships actively employed all the time.

SENATOR W. DECLARES

Brands White Story as An Untruth.

SENATOR IN STATEMENT

Sensation Sprung In Late Senatorial Contest at Capital.

BROWNE INVOLVED IN CHARGES

Searching Investigation Is To Be Made by Authorities.

LATEST PHASES OF SCANDAL

Legislators mentioned by White as being in St. Louis when he says he got $900 out of "jackpot" from "Bob" Wilson generally admit they were at Southern hotel at that time, but deny they received any money.

Register at Southern hotel shows Wilson was there on July 15, date White says he got the $900.

Gov. Deneen considers calling special session to investigate charges.

Representative White voluntarily went to the state's prosecutor and arranged to turn over to him all the evidence in his possession. He will be taken before the special grand jury today.

The state's attorney of Sangamon county also started an inquiry, on the ground that a part of the alleged bribe money was said to have been paid to White at the "St. Nick" hotel in Springfield.

Circuit prosecutor of St. Louis says he will lay before grand jury there any evidence that may be furnished him as to alleged bribe money at Southern hotel.

Representative Browne arrived in Chicago from Ottawa and conferred with Robert E. Wilson, who also is accused by Representative White. Minority leader says he did not receive a dollar for his vote for Lorimer. Claims White wrote him a letter containing veiled blackmail threat. Denies he ever paid White for his vote.

Chicago, May 2.—Investigation of the biggest legislative bribery scandal in the history of Illinois, which threatens far-reaching political complications whether it brings indictments or not, has been begun by State's Attorney Wayman.

Representative Charles A. White, who charges that he was paid $1,000 by Lee O'Neil Browne to vote for William Lorimer for United States senator, was summoned before the state's attorney.

Representative Jacob Groves of Adams county added weight to the charges. In an interview in Quincy, Ill., he was quoted as saying that he was offered money to vote for Lorimer, and that he heard of members getting $5,000 for their votes.

It was said that additional evidence was in Mr. Wayman's hands, including an allegation that it cost $200,000 to elect Lorimer to the senate, of which ringleaders got $50,000 and individual members of the legislature the remainder.

From Sangamon county came news that State's Attorney Burke of Springfield had announced he would investigate White's charges. If he believed that they could be proved he would summon White and Browne before a Sangamon county grand jury to answer the charge that $100 bribe money was passed in that county.

Browne, who has arrived in the city from Ottawa, made a statement at the Briggs house declaring that White was a blackmailer, who had written him several threatening letters.

In a long story of his relations with White, Browne declared the accuser's "confession" was a tissue of falsehood cleverly put together, but utterly unworthy of credence.

LORIMER DENIES BRIBERY

Senator Expresses Surprise at Story in Late Contest.

Chicago, May 2. — Senator Lorimer had the following comment to make on the alleged bribery story coming from Charles A. White:

"This attack is a surprise to me. I do not understand it. I do not understand why such a thing should be printed. I am sure that nobody gave any money to any one in the legislature on my behalf, White or any one else.

"I know that I did not, that none of my friends did, and that Lee O'Neil Browne did not. I knew White, and had talked of my candidacy to him.

"You know that I was not a candidate until only a few days before my actual election. During that time I talked to White several times and he seemed to favor my candidacy. I had not heard that charges had been made, and this is my first intimation that anything of the sort was at hand.

"An effort was made to put me entirely out of it after I became a candidate, but a few legislators who favored me were willing to go to the last ditch. Among these was White. He stuck by me. I thought he was my friend. I cannot see why he should come out and make such an attack as this. I can find absolutely no reason for these developments."

Indianapolis, May 2. — Chairman Jackson of the Democratic State Central committee will write William J. Bryan this week asking him what time he can devote to the Indiana campaign, and if it will be possible for him to stay in the state one month. The committee wants Bryan to speak in every district.

It is said that former President Roosevelt will make two, and perhaps three, speeches for Beveridge, and the Democrats would like to have Bryan in the state when Roosevelt comes.

E. LORIMER STORY FALSE

WILLIAM E. LORIMER.

Senator Whose Name Figures in Sensational Charges of Bribery.

WHITE CHARGES CORRUPTION

States He Received $1,000 for Vote in Senatorial Contest.

Chicago, May 2.—The sensational charge that $1,000 each was paid certain members of the legislature in electing William Lorimer United States senator and that the alleged existence of what was termed a "jack-pot" corruption fund stirred Illinois political and official life.

Following the disclosures Governor Deneen, States Attorney Wayman and Attorney General Stead got busy investigating the charges. The case will probably be laid before the grand jury at once, it was declared.

Charles A. White, a Democratic member of the legislature from O'Fallon, St. Claire county, in the Forty-ninth senatorial district, confesses he received $1,000 for voting for Mr. Lorimer. White further says that he received $900 as his share of the corruption fund which it is alleged was held in a sort of trust for the payment of money for the passage of bills in the general assembly.

Lee O'Neil Browne, of Ottawa, minority leader, is accused by White, according to the story, and is charged with having paid the money White declares he received for having voted for Mr. Lorimer.

Robert E. Wilson, Democratic member from Chicago and a follower of Browne in the legislature, is accused by White of having paid him the $900 additional that White says he received.

Charges of attempted blackmail rent the air when the story became public property. In the statement White made confessing his guilt he anticipated the blackmail cry. He says that he wrote certain letters, but not for the purpose of blackmail. He contends that they were part of his plan of exposure contemplated.

White made a lengthy confession, going into details of how he received the money. Some of it was paid to him in Springfield, he asserts, some in Chicago and another portion in St. Louis.

Lee O'Neil Browne, who arrived in the city from Ottawa, made a statement at the Briggs house declaring that White was a blackmailer, who had written several threatening letters.

NORD ALEXIS DEAD OF SENILE DECAY

Former President of Hayti Dies While in Exile.

IS REPUTED ENORMOUSLY RICH

Exiled in 1908, but Pardoned by President Simon—Body Will Be Sent to Hayti for Burial—Brief Sketch of Career.

Kingston, May 2.—Nord Alexis, formerly president of Hayti, died here of senile decay. He is said to have been over a hundred years old. He was exiled in 1908, but was pardoned by President Simon a few months ago and was preparing to return to Hayti.

The body will be sent to Hayti for burial beside that of his wife. Gen. Alexis is reputed to have died enormously rich.

Gen. Nord Alexis, one time president of Hayti, was born at Cape Haytien in 1802 and was a son of "Baronet de Nord Alexis," a member of the court of Henri Christophe. Christophe called himself King Henri I. after the death of the Dossalines who liberated Hayti from the French in 1904. Alexis inherited some of the ideals of the mild mannered Christophe who, at one time ordered his chief of police to prove his loyalty by bringing to the palace the heads of his, the police chief's wife and daughters, and saw to it that his order was obeyed. It was Christophe who commanded that any one who spoke French in his presence be immediately executed. Trained in statesmanship of this sort Alexis became a soldier at the age of 12 and served as aide de camp to President Pierrot, another erratic ruler of unfortunate Hayti. He married the president's daughter and rose to the position of governor of La Plaine du Nord. Nord Alexis soon became involved in the innumerable intrigues of Haytien government and in 1865, when Salnavo started an uprising against President Geffrard, he had Alexis as an ally and the two made things very warm for the powers that were until a British gunboat arrived and bombarded Cape Haytien, the stronghold of the revolutionists. Incidentally that gunboat blew itself out of the water by the fury of its own petards.

Salvane and Alexis left home as soon as possible on the American warship Desoto and lived in Santo Domingo, plotting a triumphant return. They came back in 1869 and Salvane had himself proclaimed president forever. He was promptly overthrown and court-martialed and shot and Alexis was made minister of war in the provisional government.

In December, 1902, the Haytiens, perplexed with three different candidates for president, turned to Alexis and made him their choice. He was Hayti's twentieth ruler in 100 years.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

TIPS FOR MAKING TAILORED SHIRTWAISTS.

So, with the coming of the spring one begins to think about replenishing the shirtwaist box, that being of more immediate need than the procuring of frocks, which can well be put off a while until the styles are definitely settled.

A natty model is one made in a reasonably heavy quality of batiste. Over the shoulders are four half-inch tucks of the convention length. But instead of a box-plait of the same material for the front, there is a band of white pique about two and a half inches wide, with the edges scalloped instead of simply hemmed.

The sleeve is of the variety called "shirt sleeve," made like those in a man's shirt, but with a flaring, turned-up cuff also scalloped. This waist was finished with a rolling Byron or Dutch collar, scalloped, of course, to match, but this might be replaced by the collar of ordinary cut.

This attractive design can be varied in a number of ways to adapt it for wear with special tailored suits. For instance, the pique might be colored, a faint violet or green or any of those lovely dull tones so much in vogue this year, being pretty. Or, perhaps, the white pique might be embroidered in the colors, and if a small, conventional design in several shades were added to the plain scallop, it would be stunning. Indeed, such a waist with the colors of the embroidery matching the tones of a suit and hat would certainly make a satisfactory, durable and stylish rig for work or shopping. Again, linen either white or colored, might be hemstitched instead of embroidered, and this with featherstitching or a bit of embroidery, such as rows of dots, would be good-looking, too.

Another waist recently made for a woman who always has a number of these stiff models on hand, is braided. This particular blouse is one made with the kimona sleeves (those cut in one piece with the body of the waist) and in place of the box plait has a piece laid on separately. This, however, is broader at the top and narrows from about three and a half inches there to about an inch less at the bottom.

The cuff is the ordinary shirt cuff, fastened with link buttons, and the collar is on the lines of the embroidered linen ones so much worn with waists of this kind. However, the special one is saved from being indiscriminate by the braiding, which is done with white cotton soutache in a simple conventional design. The piece down the front, the cuffs and collar are all worked with this, the pattern on the first being so arranged that three large pearl buttons that come through buttonholes made of the braid, form a part of the design. On the cuffs, too, the links of oval-shaped pearl, come through holes outlined by the braid and also fit into the design.—Philadelphia Press.

Family Peace.

The modern theory of child training is to shift the responsibility of wrongdoing to a child's own shoulders. It is early taught to weigh right and wrong and count the cost.

Mothers who are in despair over the behavior of their children should try making them free agents. Show them plainly how unpopular they are making themselves by their horrid behavior. Appeal to the reason. Teach them to form their own decisions and abide by the results.

A child so trained usually acquires self-control when other children are having parental control punished into them.

This method of training is not feasible, however, without parents have the good judgment to keep in such close touch with their little ones that they can act as counselor, as a last court of appeals and as presiding judge, whose decisions are final.

A mother of a large and interesting family said, "If I had a dozen children I would have to evolve a different way to train each one according to its idiosyncrasies."

Instead of mourning over a child's misconduct, study to make it good in spite of itself. Keep it so well that a happy disposition comes natural. Teach Mary or John self-government, but at the same time let it be thoroughly understood that you are governor-in-chief in disputed points.

One mother who had ideas on self-rule for her children allowed those children to be terrors to the neighborhood. Even in church she would sit placidly by while they crawled under the pews to pinch the worshipers in front or slyly run pins into the next person.

A mother who does not know the difference between self-control and lack of control and better abide by Solomonic precepts of child training. Applied judiciously, the method of making a boy or girl a free agent has been found to work well in the interest of family peace.

Sure Things.

"If I take the place, mum," inquired the prospective cook, "kin I eat with the family?"

"I should say so!" exclaimed Mrs. Subbubs. "Why, I'll give a dinner in your honor every week."

A Foolish Trick.

"Say, si your hired man has just fell off the barn."

"That's a foolish trick. He can't kill more 'n two or three minutes time by it and he might break a leg.

A Joy Ride.

"It's the old story."

"What's that?"

"The owner sneaked the auto, thinking the chauffeur would never find it out. Of course there was a smashup, and the machine was wrecked."

So Unrómantic.

"Her parents are very unreasonable."

"As to how?"

"Give her no excuse for feeling ill-used. Want her to marry the fellow she's in love with."

One of the best mottoes a woman can have in her room, in full sight of every member of the family, is this one: "There is power in repose." It isn't the picture, or the pretty binding, but the sentiment, which is a balm to trying members of one's household. There are ex asperating moments when one feels like giving vent to some hasty remark, but harmony is never encouraged by wordy battles, and the silent member of the family is the one who scanes the regrets.

ALMA COLLEGE.

Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin of the University of Chicago, who is in charge of the contests, has again offered Alma College students an opportunity to compete for economic prizes amounting to $2000. For the past six years these prizes have been offered by Hart, Shaffner and Marx to the various educational institutions of the country. The subjects of the essays cover such important topics as "The value of protectionism to the American workingmen, the valuation of railways, the effect of modern immigration in the United States, and other kindred themes.

The prizes are divided as follows: class "A", first prize $1000, second prize $500. Class "B", first prize $300 second prize $200.

Coach Carrithurs has been unusually successful this spring in arranging track contests. Next Saturday April 23, there will be a duel meet with Mt. Pleasant. This is the first team produced in the history of that institution. But a stiff contest is expected, as Helmer, who was formerly physical director of the Cadillac Y. M. C. A. is coaching the Normalites. Two weeks later occurs the triangular meet between Alma, Ypsi., and Mt. Pleasant on the local feild, and on May 21 the Presbyterians clash in an other triangular meet at Lansing with Olivet and M. A. C.

With big Ole Anderson of Elk Rapids and Misenar of East Jordan lined up among the weight men, Kefgen for the jumps; "Fleety" McComb for the sprints Alma's prospects appear to be the best in many a year. A number of other men give evidence of good material. Boyd and Landen for the runs, Von Thurn and Hume for the jumps and King and Blaske as pole vaulters.

LUCINDA'S EXPERIENCES.

She's Always Finding Things, but She Never Finds Anything Valuable.

"I'm the greatest one to find things that ever was," said Lucinda, "but I never find anything valuable And why do you suppose that is?

"People must lose valuable things, don't they? Why certainly, but it doesn't seem to be my lot to find that sort. Other people find the valuable things and all that I get is what my brother Claude calls the junk.

"And the way I find the brass things is astonishing. It's mostly baby pins that I find, and I discover them on the car tracks, on the sidewalks and in the street; everywhere in fact.

"I see something glistening under the edge of a fence and I pick it up, and it's another baby pin. Beautifully carved, and all that, but worth nothing.

"Sometimes the pins I find thus are new and bright, sometimes old and battered; but always they are worthless so far as actual value is concerned. Why do I never find a gold baby pin? I did find one once that a jeweller said was ten karat filled, the nearest I have ever come to it, but even that was of no money value.

"Rings? Why, yes, I've found rings too. Sapphire rings and turquoise rings and emeralds, and once I found a diamond ring, but the precious stones in these rings were all of the same material, namely, glass, and like the rings in which they were set, of no value whatever.

"And it has always been just the same with the various other miscellaneous items of jewelry I have found. The good things appear all to have been picked up before I come along and all the brass goods left for me, and I certainly do find them.

"And when it comes to finding money it's just the same. Somebody else appears to find all the money. Don't you know how you read in the papers how somebody found a pocketbook containing seven hundred and eighty-two dollars and ten cents? And how somebody else found a pocketbook containing eleven thousand dollars, and things like that? But nothing like that ever happened to me—somebody else always finds the big sums of money.

"I never found any money but twice in my life, and once it was a cent, and once a dollar. The cent I kept; the dollar I was very glad to be able to give up within two minutes after I found it.

"I was walking along a street when I found this dollar. I spied it ahead of me lying on the sidewalk, and when I had come to it and picked it up and found that it was a really and truly good dollar bill I laughed to myself gleefully, I couldn't help it; I had finally found something of value—actual good money. And then I wondered where the dollar came from.

"Walking on along the sidewalk ahead of me was a little girl carrying a pitcher, and of course all I could see of her was her back, but she seemed to me a pleasant little girl and she seemed to be walking along cheerfully, and then all of a sudden she stopped short and seemed to get sort of stiff all over right in a jiffy, and then she turned around and started back toward where I was, and now she was crying and about as distressed a little girl as one could ever expect to see; and of course I knew what was the matter with her now, she had lost a dollar.

"When she came along to where I was I said to her, 'What's the matter, my dear?' and she answered very tearfully and solemnly:

"'I've lost a dollar.'

"'Well, don't you worry any more over that, my dear,' I said to her, 'here it is.'

"And I handed it over to her; and my gracious! I've seen a few quick changes, but I never did see shadow succeeded by sunshine quite so suddenly as it was now on this little girl's face; and I know that I got more fun out of giving the little girl back her dollar than I ever did out of any little thing in my life.

"But really, now, why is it, do you suppose, that I find so much of that stuff that my brother Claude calls the junk but never anything of value?"—New York Sun.

A DREAM.

I was dreaming last night, a fair sweet dream,
I stood on the banks of a beautiful stream;
And over its shining waters wide—
I could see dear friends on the other side.

Little children were there. In that land of rest,
I thought, as their carols my ear caressed;
And the music that swept o'er the shining tide,
Made me long to be there, on the other side.

I could hear loved voices in anthems rise,
And the waters were calm—such a sweet surprise;
As I stood on that shore, I had tho't it was dark,
That the foam-capped waves would toss my frail bark;
But all doubt and fear fell away when I thought
Of its restful calm—Ah! what comfort it brought.

And then I awoke, but the grand sweet song,
That burst from the lips of that glorious throng;
Will come echoing back o'er the waters wide,
'Till I pass—someday, to the other side.

Just a closing of eyes on this world of ours,
And then, we'll awake 'mid the songs and the flowers;
'Mid the greetings of loved ones we lost long ago,
Who are waiting to welcome us over—I know.

Mrs. Frances A. Davenport.

ROOSEVELT AND TAFT

It is true that Mr. Roosevelt once made Mr. Taft President. That is known to all men, excepting possibly Mr. Taft himself. For this interference, dictatorship some called it, Mr. Roosevelt was severely criticised. There were reasons why he did it. Those reasons no longer exist. At any rate, Mr. Roosevelt has no intention of again committing what many deemed an error of zeal. What his personal opinions of Mr. Taft are is known only to himself. But it is unmistakable that he feels no such pride of authorship as would lead him to demand of the country that it accept a second edition. If the country wants a second edition it will call for it. The question as to who is to be the next President is above and beyond mere personal considerations, and it is above machine organization and delegations to conventions controlled through government patronage. Mr. Roosevelt has not a straw to lay in Mr. Taft's way. He will neither criticise nor defend the present administration. Whomsoever the people want for their next President they will get, and it is not for any man to say them nay.—From "The Home Coming of Roosevelt," by Walter Wellman, in the American Review of Reviews for May.

THE WOOING OF MISS PRISCILLA.

Sam'l Wasn't Too Sick to Take Advantage of the Opportunity.

By CARRIE HUNT LOTTA.

As she drew near to a small house which was built well back from the road Miss Priscilla glanced at it with pretended indifference. Then she looked closer, stopped and looked again.

"How shet up Sam'l Clayton's house do look! Mebby he's went away. Mebby he's went west. He said he would ef I didn't marry him. But, law me, that was years an' years ago, an' ef he'd ben goin' he'd 'a' went long ago. Mebby he's sick an' all by hisself! I wouldn't live on a byroad fer a finer farm 'n this of Sam'l's."

She took a few steps farther, then stopped. There was a determined look on her face.

"It ain't proper fer a lone wummin ter go ter the house of a lone man, but I ain't goin' ter stop fer that ner nothin' else when they's a prospec' of Sam'l Clayton bein' sick with nobody ter complain ter."

She walked briskly up the lane which led to the little house. The blinds were drawn and the front gate was closed. The barnyard gate hung open, and the chickens wandered about the dooryard disconsolately, while out in the shed the cow lowed piteously.

"No tellin' when that cow's ben milked er how long she's ben shet up without feed an' water. Somethin's happened. I hope—oh, I do hope—it ain't nothin' awful. Sam'l's 'bout the only friend I've got here'bouts, an' ef he was ter die"—

She had to wipe the tears from her eyes before she knocked.

There was no answer. Her breath came fast. She knocked again.

"What yo' want?" The voice was decidedly cross.

Miss Priscilla opened the door cautiously, keeping her face turned away.

"Sam'l Clayton, is they anything the matter?"

"Nothin'," he answered grimly, "'ceptin' I'm flat on my back an' ain't able ter git up."

The door flew open, and Miss Priscilla entered.

"I know I ain't doin' the proper thing, Sam'l, so don't be castin' up nothing', but— My-goodness, Sam'l, yo're as yaller as gold."

"That's comfortin', Percilly."

"Yo're got yaller janders, I reckon. I don't blame yo' none fer not wantin' ter git up. When I had 'em I couldn't turn over in bed."

"I do want ter git up, but I can't, Percilly."

"Don't yo' be cross, Sam'l. They ain't no call fer it. I'm sorry fer yo', awful sorry, an', though it ain't the thing, I'm goin' ter stay, here an' red things up some. Then I'll git word to yer brother Robert. Air yo' thirsty, Sam'l?"

He nodded.

"An' hungry?"

He put out his tongue at her and made a wry face.

"No; I reckon yo' ain't hungry, but yo're weak fer somethin' ter eat, an' yo'll git it right soon."

She went into the kitchen, and Samuel heard her muttering and talking to herself. She put her head in at the door.

"Is that glass there on the table the only one yo're got, Sam'l?"

"I'm the only one ter use a glass, Percilly, an' I never hev cump'ny."

"What's it got in it anyhow?"

"Ginger tea, Percilly."

Miss Priscilla picked the glass up and smelled of the contents.

"Phfew! Sakes alive, I s'pose yo' dxed it?"

Miss Priscilla disappeared, taking the glass with her. She soon returned with a glass of sparkling cold water.

Miss Priscilla straightened the sheet put clean cases on the pillows, opened the windows and put the room in order. Samuel's face brightened as he watched her.

"Got anything 'bout the house ter eat, Sam'l?" she asked presently.

"Things as spile easy is hangin' in the well, an' the rest of the things is in the cellar, Percilly."

Miss Priscilla fed the chickens, milked the cow and turned her into the pasture. When she returned she put the milk away, then entered the room again, bringing a cup of hot broth.

"It ain't cooked 'nough, Sam'l, but it won't do fer yo' to go any longer with a empty stummick. Eat come."

She propped him up in bed, and he did as he was bidden.

"Ain't the first good broth I've ev'ence mother died."

"I don't doubt that, Sam'l. Yo're the porest 'xcuse fer a housekeeper I ever seen. The whole house is awful. I ain't s'prised yo're sick. I'd be dead."

"It ain't my fault as I'm my own housekeeper, Percilly Blake," he answered significantly.

She flushed red.

"Well, I see plain as I'll hev to go an' leave yo' by yourself an' not wait fer yer brother ter come. Don't make matters unproperer than they air a'reddy."

"My, but yo' air b'hind the times! Brother moved ter Ioway five weeks ago comin' Thursday."

"They's other naybers, Sam'l," she snapped.

All the rest of the day she watched, for a passing vehicle that she might hail its occupant and send for some one to look after Samuel. Toward evening she grew uneasy. She had refused to talk to Samuel for some time, as he would talk of personal matters, but now she turned to him anxiously.

"Sam'l, I can't bear ter leave yo' by yo'rself ag'in ternight."

"I guess I won't die ef yo're anxious ter go, Percilly."

"I ain't anxious ter go, an' yo' know it."

"Then stay an' let folks talk ef they want ter."

"I can't 'ford ter do that, Sam'l."

Then there was another long silence. Miss Priscilla looked down the road anxiously, finally going down to the gate to see if she could get a glimpse of any one.

"He might git worse in the night," she murmured to herself. "I never was so put out in all my life."

Samuel looked into her eyes as she came in.

"See anybody?" he asked.

She shook her head.

"Percilly, w'y, say, do yo' 'member what I asked yo' onct?"

She made no reply and looked steadily down the road.

"Well," he went on, "them's still my feelin's."

She shaded her eyes as if to see better and did not answer.

"W'y, Percilly, say, ef I'm not dead by mornin', won't yo' hook up old Kit to the buggy an' drive over fer the preacher an' fetch him over an' hev 'im marry yo' an' me?"

Miss Priscilla sprang to her feet. Her face was crimson with anger.

"Sam'l Clayton, ain't yo' 'shamed ter insult me in yo'r own house? Do yo' think that's what I come over here fer? Shame on yo'!"

And, covering her face, she burst into tears.

"Fer the Lord's sake, Cilly, now don't do that! I wouldn't 'a' made yo' cry fer this farm. Course yo' didn't come here fer that. I've been wantin' ter say this, howsumever, even sence I said it that time so long ago. But yo' know yo' wouldn't ever let me talk 'bout it. I'm lovin' yo' all this time, an', Percilly, yo' jest can't know how lonesome I am."

Miss Priscilla wiped her eyes and looked at him.

"That broth made yo' a heap better, didn't it, Sam'l?"

"A heap better," he answered smilingly.

"Well, yo're well 'nough ter leave by yo'rself, ain't yo'?"

"The 'xcitement of yer goin' away would upset me, I'm shore."

"Anyhow I'm goin', Sam'l."

"Yo' ain't give me no answer to that question, Cilly. A 'Yes,' said good an' strong, would cure me."

"I'm goin' home an' do the milkin' an' feed the chickens an' do the chores."

"I hate ter stay by myself 'nother night, that I do. I hed sech a uncomfortable night las' night."

"Yo' pore man!" she said kindly. "Well, as I was sayin', I'll go home an' do the chores, an' while I'm there I'll change my dress. I think I'll hook up old Belle—I ain't ust ter Kit—an' I'll send Bob Coldron over ter stay with yo' while I'm away. I'll hev his wife come too. They'll do fer witnesses, yo' know."

"Do yo' mean yo're going ter hev me, Percilly?" he asked eagerly.

"I reckon I do," she answered, fingering her sunbonnet.

"Cilly, they's one thing I wish yo'd give me 'fore yo' start, somethin' ter keep up my strength till yo' git back."

He looked at her wistfully.

"More beef tea, Sam'l?" she asked, but there was a twinkle in her eyes.

"Yo' know better—somethin' I asked yo' fer an' tried ter steal long time ago."

She hesitated for an instant, then leaned over and kissed him.

RIBBON AND LACE ECONOMY.

At the present time the use of ribbons and lace is so considerable an item in women's dress that any little tricks whereby their use can be extended will produce noticeable economies in the dress bills of the fashionable woman. Ribbons dye very easily and can be so treated by any careful housewife.

All the soiled ribbons from any season can be dipped in a dark shade and employed as ribbons for the hair and for belts. As for several seasons past it has been the mode to have all the ribbons and laces on any costume carried out in one tone of color, much money can be saved by dyeing various soiled laces and ribbons a darker shade.

For instance, lavender dresses are trimmed frequently with ribbons and laces dyed to the same shade, and brown laces are frequently made up into entire guimpes to be worn with brown cloth suits. Hats can also be made up of these dyed laces and ribbons, and a great deal of it is used in trimming sleeves after the Japanese style and cut, which is extremely modish at this period.

In dyeing soiled laces and ribbons small packages of reliable dyes can be bought at drug stores or of grocers, and, if intelligence is used in deciding on the darker color to be used, splendid results can be gotten and a great economy obtained. The dye should be made carefully as to directions, and it must be remembered that the slightest detail is most important. Then the dye should be tested with a small piece of the ribbon or lace it is proposed to dye.

This should be allowed to dry, as the dye frequently changes color after drying. If the sample comes out according to the intention of the dyer, it is then perfectly safe to insert all the soiled ribbons. If these are very much soiled a dip in gasoline or benzine will take much of the dirt off and make the dyeing proposition easier to handle. All articles dipped in either gasoline or benzine should be allowed to dry in the open air before going ahead with the use of the dye.

first, because it is a necessity—that is the rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

ENTERTAINED AT THE HOME OF MRS. R S MOORE.

Delightful May Party.

The Merry-Go-Round club met last evening at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Moore for one of their delightful evenings. The guests came in costume and created much merriment by their unique appearance, Cleopatra met the guests at the door with all the splendor of the East. The serpent with his glittering eyes holding the gazer with his fateful spell; Tecumseh Chief, who helped in receiving; Lady Washington, hobnobbed with the Wild Irishman, and Priscilla, the beautiful maiden, was quite infatuated with the darkey; dear old Grandma was petting the little girl, and the dark eyed Japs were flirting with the cowboy; the picture ladies, who had just stepped from the frames where they had been placed by our ancestors, were elegant in silks and laces. The prizes were given to Mrs. Combs as Grandma and F. J. Temple, the gentleman of color.

Cards were played and prizes given to Miss Rena Root and Clyde Heck. A delightful musical program was given, Mrs. Thomas McCann, Mrs. McAlpine, Mrs. Reason and John Keeney giving of their best for the occasion. Mrs. F. B. Wood presided at the piano and also favored the company with some of her fine music.

The house was redolent with flowers, twenty-seven different kinds being used in the decorations. May-baskets were scattered around, and partners were chosen by the same sweet token. Refreshments were most daintily served, and social chat and merry repartee made the evening one of the most delightful of the season.

ENTERTAINED AT CARDS

About 50 ladies assembled at the pleasant home of Mrs. Geo. Tiffany on Saturday at 2:30 p. m to honor Miss Corey and Mrs. Stanley J. Smith.

It was a gay crowd with their bright faces and beautiful gowns and the hearty welcome they gave the guests of honor added to the charm of the occasion.

Seven tables of military pedro were played and after the games were finished about 20 friends dropped in to add their welcome to that already given.

A fine musical program was given both vocal and instrumental. Mrs. Moore sang a waltz song by Faust, Mrs. Reason a lullaby and Mrs. Tom McCann sang "When Song is Sweet," Mrs. F. B. Wood presiding at the piano. Mrs. Tobias of Adrian gave a fine instrumental number and Mrs. F. B. Wood favored the company with two selections. After the program was finished the guests were regaled with a delicious two course dinner. A social chat followed and the guests said good night to their hostess who had so beautifully entertained them.

TEXAS CATTLE KING.

The company carries a first-class Band costumed in the full dress of the Cowboy as he is seen on the plains of the great west and no pains or expense have been spared by the management to present the play in a realistic manner true to the environments of the land in which the scenes of the play are laid. The cast of the company is excellent and has received favorable press notices wherever they have appeared. We bespeak a rare treat to those who attend the performance. The people of Tecumseh are to be congratulated on the coming to our city of the Brownlee & Reed Dramatic Company which is billed to appear at the Opera House, Tuesday, May 3rd in that beautiful aud Romatic Western Drama "The Texas Cattle King." The scene of the play is laid in the Lone Star State—the home of chivalry daring and romance—depicting in a realistic manner life as it is among the cowboys, vaqueras and wholesouled denizens of the West.

THAT REST ROOM

The ladies of Adrian have made a great success in establishing a "rest room" despite the opposition that they encountered from various directions, so many ridiculing the idea.

Mrs. Cope who has charge of it says at first there were but few who took advantage of its privileges as its location was not well known, but of late quite a number have made use of the room. The rooms are fitted up with easy chairs and a davenport. On a table are magazines, the donation of Roscoe Swift. It is believed that during the coming season many will visit them and give a good report to their friends and neighbors.

BASE BALL

Saturday was a typical day for baseball and a fair crowd turned out to witness the game between Monroe and Tecumseh. The game was well played aud resulted in a score of 1 to 0 in favor of Tecumseh.

ANNUAL EVENT TO BE GIVEN BY THE YOUNG LADIES OF TECUMSEH

Tuesday Evening, May 10

The annual May Party given by the young ladies of Tecumseh will take place in Witherell Hall on Tuesday evening, May 10, at eight o'clock. Programs and grand march at 8:30. Music will be furnished by Willett's full orchestra of Adrian. Tickets, including supper, $1.50.

PROGRAM COMMITTEE.

Adnee Palmer, chairman; Mayme Kaiser.

DECORATING COMMITTEE.

Gertrude Bowen, chairman; Hazel Zimmerman, Alice Combs, Edith Shull, Mayme Kaiser, Marion Rosacrans, Adnee Palmer, Stella Zimmerman, Nettie Kaiser.

POSTAL CARDS.

"Oh, why don't you say something about postal cards and the postage on them?"

Well, we find by looking through the book at the post office that the rules and regulations are something like this, and if people will only remember, it will be a saving of time and money.

For one cent postage the maximum size is 3 9-16x5 9-16 inches; minimum size is 2 3-4x4 inches, and the government card a space one third the length of the card on the left of the address side can be used in connection with the side for message. Any violations of this calls for another cent. Many times the one to whom the card is written is notified of the lack of postage and has to wait until it is sent to the office of the sender. A little more attention will help every one.

GALA DAY.

Adrian To The Front.

May 11 is the opening day for the Adrian base ball. Adrian and Saginaw will meet on the diamond and the citizens propose to make it a gala day. A parade with the Imperial Band and other pleasing features are talked of. Adrian means to stand by her team and help it in every way possible.

TECUMSEH QUIET

Not withstanding all predictions and prophecies that we would have a rough house on our street Saturday. It was as quiet as usual. About half the saloons closed up at noon and though our street was crowed, it was nothing out of the ordinary when the final day came each one seemed to be prepared for the inevitable.

LITTLE DROPS OF WATER.

Exchange: Little drops of water poured into the milk, gives the milk man's daughters lovely gowns of silk. Little grains of sugar mingled with the sand, makes the grocers assets swell to beat the band. Little bowls of custard, humble tho' they seem, help enrich the fellow selling pure ice cream. Little rocks and boulders, little chunks of slate, make the coal-man's fortune something fierce and great. Little adds well written, and printed nice and neat; gives the joyful merchant homes on easy street. And he who owns the paper, where the adds have space, wears a smile of deep content upon his happy face. (Herald.)

STOMACHS REPAIRED.

Relieves Distress in Five Minutes. Guaranteed to Cure Indigestion, Or Money Back

Let Mrs. Griffith tell you about Mi-o-na, the greatest prescription for stomach troubles ever written:

For years I have doctored for acute gastritis, but only received slight benefit, and had to be careful what I ate. But, thanks to Mi-o-na stomach tablets, I can now eat anything. Last Christmas, after partaking of a hearty turkey dinner, I was seized with an attack of acute indigestion and the doctor worked over me for hours before I got relief. He paid me eight visits before I could say I was well enough to sit up. But since then I have taken Mi-o-na tablets, and I have not been troubled since. Before using Mi-o-na I had attacks about every month."—Mrs. Ida Griffith, 1213 C St., Washington, D. C., July 5, 1909.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold by druggists everywhere and at C. A. Wright & Son's for 50 cents a large box. They are guaranteed to cure indigestion, sour stomach, belching gas, dizziness, biliousness, heaviness, or any stomach ailment.

WOMEN LEARN TO USE GAS.

A new way of earning money has been opened to women by the gas companies of the large cities. They are sent to private houses and apartments to explain the use of the gas range and of the meter with the object of teaching economy in the use of gas. According to one of these teachers it is a position requiring tact as well as the special knowledge they are paid to diffuse.

"It is always possible to make a woman feel humiliated when you call to show her how to do what she thinks she knows how to do herself," one of the gas emissaries is quoted in Popular Mechanics as saying about her work. "Possibly she has complained to the gas company that the stove will not work properly.

"The reason may be that she does not know how to use it, but it will not do to tell her so. So we proceed to find out the season and do it so adroitly that she still believes the fault was with the range and not with her, but at the same time has learned enough to make certain that there will be no future complaint."

Where the idea of this new department originated is not known. Chicago has just claimed the credit of it, but the gas companies of Philadelphia, New York and other cities also have such departments and advance counter claims. In Philadelphia the staff of women go from door to door or make special visits if called.

Among the bits of information handed out by the teacher is the declaration that many women make the mistake of trying to light the gas at the same time they turn it on. A second or two should be allowed to elapse before applying the match so that the gas can expel the air. This makes the burners work better and saves gas.

Another economical expedient to which many women pay little attention is the simmering burner. When a saucepan no longer needs the entire heat of a burner it is only necessary to transfer it to the simmering burner to leave the larger burner free for something else and to save gas.

Irons Useful in Sewing Room.

There are a great many home dressmakers who completely ignore the existence of the flatiron, when as a matter of fact its use is absolutely essential for a neat looking and well fitting garment. No matter what kind of a tailored garment is being made, the flatiron is needed from the start to the finish, and there is nothing that can be used in its place. Each seam of a cloth garment should be pressed carefully and thoroughly as soon as it is sewed for the last time and the completed tailored garment receives its finishing touches from the iron. In pressing a garment be sure not to stretch it in the pressing process. For example, if you are pressing a skirt (and skirts as well as jackets need this all during their existence as well as when new), place it right side down on the ironing board and smooth it carefully so that it lies evenly and smoothly on the board and then place a stool or chair under the board to support the rest of the skirt and prevent it from dragging out of place the part which is on the board. When plaits have to be basted into place use fine thread instead of coarse thread, which is apt to leave a mark. Let the iron be a moderately heavy one, and after laying a damp cloth over the part to be pressed, press but do not rub the garment. In other words, when pressing it do not slide the iron up and down and crosswise, but when changing it from place to place lift it, move the iron frequently, or it will leave its impress on the cloth.

Order in the Kitchen.

One can make a kitchen just as dainty, presentable and habitable as any other room, but there are some kitchens which should be labeled, "Danger," "Leave all hope behind, ye who enter here," "The baby's cutting teeth—stay out." Anything to keep the curious at arms length. Why? Not because the kitchen is unclean, but because it is untidy. The kitchen table is strewn with dishes and bread boards, the sink is piled high with baskets, buckets, hammers and other kitchen implements. Under the table is a basket of unironed clothes, a clothes rack is hanging on a nail, and a rose geranium and three flat irons grace the one kitchen window. An uncovered wooden box is half filled with coal and kindling and—but why go on? Do women know no better? Or is it that they do not care? There is something very much out of harmony in a woman's life when she can live in such turmoil. One can not hasten work under such conditions and system is out of the question.

Burnt almond charlotte—One-third box gelatine, one-third cup cold water, one-third cup boiling water, three-fourths cup blanched almonds finely chopped, one cup sugar, one cup scalded milk, one teaspoon vanilla, one cup cream, whipped stiff.

Scalloped oysters are much better if cooked in individual dishes rather than a pudding dish. Though somewhat troublesome to prepare they are best of all scalloped in their own shells, a half dozen being served on each plate.

If you cannot afford marron sauce for pouring over vanilla ice cream, did you ever try preserved tomatoes? It is as pretty as it is delicious.

Library Paste.

To make library paste, dissolve one ounce of alum in one quart of water, and when cold add flour enough to make it creamy. Stir in one teaspoonful rosin, two or three cloves and boil to a mush, stirring all the time. This should be put into a jar and kept well covered.

How to Hang Tablecloths.

If when hanging tablecloths on the line you fold the hem ends together and hang it on the line with the pins close together, you will have no hump in the middle when it is ironed.

Handsome Table Cover.

A handsome linen table cover is bordered above the hem and two inches from each side with a vine of green ivy, worked solidly. The pattern is graceful and very attractive on the fine white linen.

Free Dyspepsia Sample

Sufferers from indigestion are waking up to the fact that peppermint lozenges, charcoal and "dyspepsia cures" are only makeshifts in the cure of so troublesome a complaint as chronic indigestion. What is required is something that will not only relieve but which will tone and train the digestive apparatus to again do its work normally, and that these simple remedies cannot do.

There is something more to the cure of indigestion than sweetening the breath, and yet a remedy that only contains digestive ingredients will not cure permanently, as the basis of indigestion is poor bowel circulation, and that requires a scientific laxative. We know of no remedy that combines these requirements better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which has been sold for a quarter of a century.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a laxative tonic, a scientific blending of natural ingredients for the cure of constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sour stomach, sick headache and similar complaints. Its ingredients will so strengthen and tone the stomach and bowel muscles that they will again do their work naturally, and when that has been accomplished your trouble is over. Fannie Stuart, Staunton, Va., was a long-time sufferer, as was O. Tuck, Blackburn, Mo., and they both found their cure with this remedy. They became convinced that pills and tablets, salts, "dyspepsia cures," etc., were at best only temporary relievers. They first accepted Dr. Caldwell's offer of a free sample bottle, which he willingly sends to anyone who forwards name and address. Later, having convinced themselves through the free sample, they bought Syrup Pepsin of their druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 2,509 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

THINK YOU ARE A BEAUTY,

And You Will be One, Is This Beauty Shop's Theory.

There is a beauty shop in London, where the beauty shop flourishes even more than elsewhere, in which the patients are taught to think themselves belles.

"It is marvellous," says the owner, who is now in this country getting beauty hints, "to observe the influence of mind over matter. Women come in here looking ugly. Inside of a couple of hours they go out radiantly beautiful.

"Our principle is that a woman is greatly influenced by her mind. If a woman suspects that something is wrong with her appearance it shows in her face. Her mouth drops and her brow lies in wrinkles.

"Now, working the other way, if you tell a woman that she is looking her best, if you compliment her upon her gowns, you please her. Her mind is at ease and she begins to look pretty.

"At our beauty shop we treat the appearance through the mind. It is a branch of the faith treatment. The woman who says she is well and thinks she is well will have much better health than the one who labors under the belief that she is ill. So with the looks.

"Our shop was in reality started by an Englishman now dead. He was an apostle of beauty and when he came to America the first thing that impressed him was the beauty of the American women.

"'What makes the women so pretty?' he asked. 'It isn't that they are so classic, or so perfectly formed, or so ideal in any other external respect. What, then, is it that gives them such chic?'

"Then he answered the question for himself. He said:

"'It is their training. They are taught in childhood that they are beauties. They are brought up to think themselves belles. When grown the American woman acts as though she were a professional beauty, and the very fact that she carries herself like a belle makes her twice as good to look upon.'

"This theory gradually crept into our beauty shop. One of our latest triumphs is an American woman. Her one good feature is a pretty mouth.

"'You are prettiest when you smile,' we said to her the first day she called.

"Then she smiled brightly, and we asked her to smile again. We have succeeded in coaxing her into a frame of mind where the smile is habitual.

"Of course we treat the smile. We take her mouth and train it upward at the corners. This is quite a simple matter.

"Sit down in front of the glass and practise upon your mouth. Smile and you will see the corners lift themselves a little. Smile again and see your lips curl. Lift the corners of your mouth and pinch them slightly. In a little while your smile will be bright and curved. Your upper lip will curve upward in a Cupid bow.

"Then be careful of your teeth. It is impossible for a face to be wholly bad looking when the teeth are nice.

"In our shop we believe that women are influenced by the thought that they are beauties. A really pretty brunette called upon us one day last spring. Her eyes were deep and lovely, her features were regular; she had the makings of a beauty, but unfortunately she had a bad skin.

"This is what we taught her—the maxims may be useful to the woman whose skin is poor;

"Tranquillize your mind. An upset mind makes an upset digestion.

"Don't put on too much makeup; it shows on a bad skin. Make your mind easy, let your skin rest, eat easily digested foods and note the difference in your complexion in a few days.

"Try to think that your skin looks nice. Endeavor if possible to let the rest of your face make up for the deficiency in your skin. For one thing, let your smile be sweet. Let your eyes sparkle. Bring out the colors of your eyes and your hair, and it is doubtful if folks will see that your skin is not quite all it should be.

"Don't hold your head too stiffy. Don't carry your head upon your shoulders, but let it turn just a little, so as to make your face more picturesque.

"Study the pretty side of your face and try and turn it to the audience. Don't give people a square look at your countenance. Let them see only the pretty side of it.

"Learn the small personal charms. If you think you are ugly try to bring out your best points. An otherwise homely woman may have a pretty hand. It should be her aim to make it plump and attractive. A well kept hand, no matter what its size, is wonderfully charming.

"Dress yourself carefully in the morning, taking plenty of time to groom. When you go forth carry yourself proudly. Catch glimpses of yourself in the mirrors as you pass, and as you see yourself you can say. 'I am looking my best today.'

"The spirit of beauty will grow upon you. You will soon find people telling you how well you look. It is worth trying.

"There are ugly faced girls who pass for beauties simply on account of the way they carry themselves. Carry yourself well and you will soon see the great power of mind over matter."

Cleaning the Stage.

"We hope," said the spokesman of the committee, "to enlist your support in favor of a clean stage."

"You have it," responded the theatrical manager, heartily. "Why, almost every one of my plays opens with a girl dusting everything in sight."

The Sound Sleep Of Good Health

The restorative power of sound sleep can not be over estimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Southers, Eau Claire, Wis., says:—"For a long time I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock. I eat and enjoy my meals, and my general condition is greatly improved. I can honestly recommend Foley's Kidney Pills as I know they have cured me." For sale by all druggists.

ESTRADA FORCES TO BE ATTACKED

Steamer Venus Leaves to Break Blockade at Bluefields.

SHIP CARRIES MADRIZ ARMS

United States' Attorney General Wickersham's Action Results in Vessel Securing Her Clearance Papers—Crush Revolution.

New Orleans, May 2.—The steamer Venus has left the mouth of the Mississippi for Greytown, Nicaragua, to break the blockade there by the Estrada or revolutionary forces, destroy the Estrada fleet, furnish guns and munitions of war to the army of Madriz now at Greyton to the number of 4,000 men, under Gen. Vasquez, to carry that army to Bluefields, the capital of the revolutionary government in Nicaragua, and assist it in capturing the town and suppressing the revolution.

The Venus has $150,000 worth of cannon, guns and ammunition on board consigned to private persons in Greytown, but there is no concealment of the fact that they are intended for the Madriz army.

The Venus has been delayed here for several weeks by litigation before the federal courts on the charge that her carrying men and ammunition to Madriz is in violation of the neutrality laws of the United States. Atty-Gen. Wickersham ordered District Attorney Beattie to invene in the Venus libel suit and see that the vessel was released and allowed to sail. This he did and Judge Foster granted the vessel her clearance papers. Before the attorney for Estrada could enter a demurrer, the Venus put to sea.

The case will be appealed to the supreme court. The Venus sails under the British flag and has a large crew composed, it is said, exclusively of Englishmen. On the success of the cruise depends the fate of the Nicaraguan revolution. If the Venus lands her stores there will be little chance to hold Bluefields against the Madriz army.

CORNERSTONE IS LAID

New $100,000 Building for Orphans at La Grange, Ill.

Special Train Takes Grand Lodge Officers to the Scene—5,000 Attend the Ceremonies.

Chicago, May 2.—Over 5,000 persons witnessed the laying of the cornerstone of the Permanent Illinois Masonic Orphans' Home at La Grange in a downpour. The new building is to cost $100,000.

A special train of twelve coaches bore the officers of the grand lodge and the members of the various commanderies to the village, where they were met by La Grange lodge 770, A. F. and A. M., and La Grange chapter 207, R. A. M., who escorted them to the Suburban club, where President H. E. Patterson had arranged a reception.

Addresses were delivered by Col. Moulton, most worthy past grand master of Knights Templar; Capt. Albert B. Ashley most worthy grand master; Frank G. Smith, grand orator, and J. Wesley Bailey, grand chaplain. A casket containing the records of the grand lodge proceedings to date, a copy of the by-laws and roster of La Grange chapter 207, R. A. M., and La Grange lodge 770, A. F. and A. M., and the village directory was placed in the corner stone.

The Order of the Eastern Star was represented by forty members of Butler, Austin, Berwyn, La Grange, Siloam, Oak Park, and Queen Esther chapters. Mrs. Harris W. Huehl, worthy grand matron; Col. Moulton, president of the Illinois organization; Henry W. Berks, vice president; Chester S. Gurney, secretary, and James A. Steele, treasurer, were in charge of the program.

ARRANGING FLOWERS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

Any yellow, red or white blossoms except roses, are admirably adapted to place in brass or copper jars, and such holders have distinct advantages over ordinary vases, for the reason that they may be used for other purposes.

Nothing can be more charming, for instance, and at the same time less expensive than a shallow jar or basin, holding five jonquils and as many stems of narcissus. When so few flowers are used they should be placed in small iron rings, to be found now in almost all art departments, and certainly in all oriental shops. The rings are just large enough to hold one flower, and are joined in groups of three or five. These sets are put into any kind of shallow dish one chooses, filling it with water. The addition of small white pebbles, just on a line with the top of the rings, adds to the artistic effect, if the stems are a bit small for the holders each may be braced by putting a piece of match or a section of another stem into the hole. The object is to make each flower stand erect. A better effect is gained by having the stems irregular lengths, rather than all the same. Any stiff stalk flowers are used in this way, and later in the spring twigs of apple and other fruit blossoms make a lovely table decoration.

Very long stem jonquils are effective in a deep brass or copper urn. A large number is not required if the blossoms are first put into a tumbler or other small receptacle. This, filled with water, is placed in the metal. Mignonette is another flower that lends itself to metal holders with admirable results, especially as the stems soon defile the water and transparency then, detracts from their beauty.

Cut glass and silver are better adapted for roses than to any other flowers, the combination being more harmonious. Rose stems, with the foliage attached, are always pretty and show through glass, while the brilliancy of the cutting, or polish of the silver, sets off the flowers as diamonds do an evening gown.—Washington Star.

TAFT EXTOLS U. S. SUPREME COURT

Demagogues Are Denounced In Southern Hotel Speech.

APPOINTMENTS ARE DEFENDED

After Luncheon He Goes to Both National and American League Ball Parks and Sees Clubs Play —Leaves for Capital.

St. Louis, May 5.—President Taft on his arrival here was met by the reception committee of the Business Men's league, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Governor Hadley.

The president addressed the farmers' convention and was a guest at luncheon given by the Business Men's league at the Southern hotel.

President Taft denounced the demagogues, the preachers of cant and those who see only evil and delay in the courts of the nation here in a speech at a luncheon given in his honor by the Business Men's League at the Southern hotel. The president spoke with such earnestness that his audience was quite carried away. His defense of the supreme court, of his own appointments to that court, was delivered in tones that rang with emotion. All the way through the speech his hearers broke in with prolonged applause and at the end, the crowd beat the tables and cheered loudly.

The president had not intended to make a serious address at all, but when President Wilson of the league referred to the appointment of Judge Horace Lurton and Gov. Hughes to the supreme court, Mr. Taft found a subject that warranted the use of more than the two minutes he expected to take.

While the president's only reference to the "insurgents" was in one of the moments when he smiled, it was evident that he had in mind the utterances from his "enemies" in the senate and house against his two supreme court selections. Not only did he defend the supreme court, but he declared, too, that contention that the ability of the poor man to take his case, even if it involves but $25 up to that tribunal is the windy talk of the demagogue and politician against the law's delay. Mr. Taft spoke also and was flat-footed in his assertion that court procedure be changed to expedite the business of litigants Mr Taft said in part:

"This is a government of the people, by the people and for the people The constitution was made by the people of the United States and we have a popular and a representative government, but the people who framed the constitution realized that they must impose limitations upon themselves so that the result of the views of the majority should be embodied and law and national policies through certain instrumentalies that would impose obstructions to sudden emotional movements of the people that were not taken with due deliberation until they could pass under observation, not only of Philip Drunk, but of Philip Sober

"And so it was that in the division of power, they created a legislative branch, an executive branch and a judicial branch and in that constitution they gave to the supreme court and the subordinate tribunals to be established by congress certain powers which interpreted by Marshall and those who followed him, make the court unique in the tribunals of the world. That court was constituted to preserve the rights of the people and the rights of the individuals against the people themselves whenever in the heat of emotion or temporary abberation the enacted measures deprives the individual of his right, hence to me, a lawyer, the supreme court of the United States is the most exalted thing that we have in this government."

From the luncheon President Taft was driven to the National league baseball park, where he witnessed the opening innings of the Cincinnati and St. Louis clubs game. From there he was taken to the American league park, where the Cleveland and St Louis clubs played.

The president left St. Louis for Washington, where he will arrive Friday morning.

INDIANA MINE WAR ENDS

Conference Secures Peace After Strike Lasting 33 Days.

Agreement Reached After One of Stormiest Sessions in Years—Miners to Resume Work.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 5.—After a strike lasting thirty-three days, the labor troubles of the Indiana bituminous coal operators and the United Mine Workers of District No. 11 have been settled temporarily and an order was issued by the joint conference for an immediate reopening of the mines. About 11,000 mine workers will be affected by this action, leaving 3,000 still unemployer pending settlement.

The conference, which lasted six days, came to a quick conclusion after one of the stormiest sessions in years, during which time the prospect of even a temporary agreement was remote. The result was brought about through the efforts of Edwin Perry, national secretary, and National President Thomas L. Lewis

YOUNG PEOPLE IN DEMAND

Dr. Capen States Elderly Persons Are Not Desirable Missionaries.

Chicago, May 5. — Elderly persons are no longer acceptable as leaders in foreign missionary work; instead young men and young women, business and professional men, those with money and others willing to devote their lives to the civilization, if not the christianizing of the heathen are in great demand.

Such in substance was the statement of Samuel B Capen, of Boston, chairman of the executive committee of the Laymen's Missionary movement and chairman of the board of commissioners for foreign missions, in an address before the congress at the Auditorium theater.

CAPT. BARTLETT ALSO HONORED

Royal Geographical Society Presents Emblems in Token of Success of Explorers Reaching the World Famed North Pole.

London, May 5.—Commander Robert E. Peary faced a huge audience in Albert hall when, under the auspices of the Royal Geographical society, he delivered his first European lecture. More than 10,000 persons were present, and all were enthusiastic. When the president of the society led Peary to the platform the people rose and burst into cheers and waved flags and handerchiefs. Mrs. Peary and her children had seats near the platform, where also sat Ambassador Reid, the Duke of Newcastle, Field Marshal Lord Roberts, Lord Dunraven, and several other peers, Admiral Sir Edward Seymour and nine other admirals, including Sir Albert Markham and Sir George Nares, old arctic explorers, and Capt. Scott, the anarctic explorer.

Commander Peary began his lecture in an intense hush and was followed throughout with close attention. His voice reached the furthest limits of the vast hall and his pictures drew frequent hearty applause. At the conclusion of the lecture President Darwin presented the society special commemoration gold medal to "The one and only man who has set, since the world began, led a party of his fellow creatures to a pole of the earth."

A silver replica of the medal was then presented to Capt. Bartlett of the arctic steamer Roosevelt, who had a seat on the platform, Maj. Darwin saying that through his share Great Britain was able to take pride in Peary's expedition.

In thanking the society for its medal, Peary said it would be prized by him and his for all time. As he said the words the medal fell to the floor from its case, which tickled the audience. Peary, however, with cool gravity, picked it up and continued his thanks, concluding with a happy reference to Capt. Scott's coming antarctic expedition.

WAYMAN FINDS NEW INFORMERS

Returns to Chicago from Hunt for Bribery Evidence.

TWO LEGISLATORS TO CONFESS

State's Attorney Will Not Make Public the Names of the New Informers—His Visit to Representative Link.

Chicago, May 5.—Bringing the sensational news that he had found two new "informers" in the legislative bribery scandal, State's Attorney Wayman arrived in Chicago after his still hunt for evidence in southern Illinois

Mr. Wayman declared he had left the two members of the legislature who were ready to confess in St. Louis in custody of Detective Murnane, who will bring them to Chicago on Saturday.

In St. Louis Mr. Wayman had a conference with Prosecuting Attorney Seebert G. Jones. According to dispatches he visited the farm of Michael S. Link, representative from the Forty-seventh district, who lives near Nemeoki.

Mr. Wayman said that Link was not one of the "informers," but that both witnesses he had found were legislators whose names had not been mentioned in the stories up to date.

"I had conferences with two Democratic members of the legislature," said the state's attorney, "and I consider my trip a most successful one. These two men, whose statements were given to me in the presence of the state's attorney of St. Louis, will come to Chicago."

Mr. Wayman was asked if the assemblymen were under arrest and he replied "No." Then the prosecutor was asked if the men were under surveillance and he said:

"Do not question me so closely. I expect them to appear before the grand jury Saturday and tell the inquisitorial body their part in the alleged Lorimer bribery scandal. I will not say who these two men are because I have been sworn to secrecy But I will say this much, the two assemblymen who are to appear before the grand jury are not any of the men mentioned in the newspapers. It is not Representative Link, either. The two men have not yet been mentioned in connection with the bribe-giving scandal."

Among the "down state" men who are in Chicago at the request of State's Attorney Wayman to testify before the grand jury are Thomas Tippit of Olney, leader of the minority faction of Democrats in the legislature and opponent of Lee O'Neil Browne; J W Gibson, a banker of Mount Vernon, Ill., the home town of Representative William C. Blair, Democrat, who voted for Lorimer; Henry A. Shepherd of Jerseyville, banker and legislator, who voted for Lorimer and was named by Charles A. White as one of those who attended the St. Louis meeting; Senator Albert E. Isley of Newton, who made a speech in the legislature declaring that there was "bribery in the air."

Representative Tippit admitted that he expected to go before the grand jury, but he refused to forecast what he would tell the jurors.

Later, in the day the men were taken before the grand jury

Johnson and Berger Meet to Select Refere, but Are Deadlocked.

San Francisco, May 5.—Johnson and Berger utterly failed to agree on a referee for the big fight, and at Johnson's solicitation, Tex Rickard gave them ten days in which to reach an agreement. Incidentally it was shown that Berger, acting for Jeffries, had been ordered to reject both Jack Welsh and Eddie Graney, apparently for no better reason than because Johnson strongly favored them.

This made the big negro angry and he declared there would be no fight if a referee of his selection was turned down, but this was buncombe, for according to the rules, Rickard has the right to name a referee if Johnson and Jeffries can't agree.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

THE SUFFRAGETTE.

An Event That Took Away Her Interest In the Cause.

By KATHLEEN J. M'CURDY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

She was standing on the curb selling pamphlets, while beside her a box was used to display a large handbill on which was printed "Votes For Women." If it be asserted that only the angular old maids or fat married women are to be found in the ranks of the suffragettes this young lady proved the contrary. She was very pretty.

At any rate, Peter Thompson stopped to look at her and by way of an excuse to speak to her bought a pamphlet.

"Read it," she said, "and you will be with us."

"I'm with you already," Thompson replied.

"Then help us."

"I meant that I was with you personally."

At this the girl looked a trifle displeased.

"There are certain qualities," Thompson added, "that are required in those who are given citizenship. One of these"—

"I am quite sure women possess those qualities," snapped the girl.

"What qualities?"

"Those to which you refer."

"I haven't yet named them."

"Well, do so."

"Women are not good listeners."

"I deny the fact."

By this time several people had stopped to listen, and Thompson, not caring to amuse a crowd, passed on. He had no opinions as to whether women are entitled to the suffrage or not. The subject did not interest him. But one thing did interest him very much—the pretty suffragette. He was a philosophic chap, always looking for reasons for things, and a problem occupied his thoughts from the moment he saw the suffragette—namely, what there was about her that caused her to remain a fixture in his mind.

While Thompson was walking along, thinking about the suffragette and why she had lodged herself within that combination of matter and forces which he considered himself to be and to which had been given the name of Thompson, he passed a woman wheeling a baby carriage. A little boy aged about fifteen months sitting in the carriage looked up at him and smiled. Thompson was fond of children. He put out his hand, which was clutched by the tiny pink tipped fingers, the boy's eyes being fixed on Thompson as though he had found his first and best friend.

"What a beautiful boy!" he exclaimed.

The mother looked happy, as mothers do when they hear their children praised.

A sudden idea struck the philosopher.

"Madam," pursued Thompson musingly, his eyes still on the boy, who continued to clutch his hand, "I wish the loan of your child for awhile. I will pay you a big interest."

The mother looked surprised.

To shorten the story, Thompson bargained with the woman that she should wheel her boy up in front of his suffragette, ask her to watch him while she went into a store, then disappear, not to return. Thompson agreed that no harm should come to the child, that he should not be lost to his mother and when returned the borrower would put a snug sum in a savings bank to start a fund for the boy's benefit. The terms were accepted, the child was left with the suffragette, who agreed to look after him, the mother disappeared, and Thompson surveyed the scene from a distance.

An hour passed, during the latter part of which the suffragette was evidently wondering what had become of the mother. The child at last began to cry, and the suffragette tried to soothe him. Then Thompson left his point of observation and, approaching the suffragette, remarked what a pretty boy she had with her. This led her to tell him that she feared the mother had left the boy and did not intend to return.

"You can put him in a foundling home," suggested Thompson.

"I shall do no such thing!" replied the girl, firing up. "Poor, dear little fellow! Mamma will come back soon, precious! Don't cry any more. That's a dear."

"If his mother doesn't return," said Thompson, "I don't see but you'll have to take him home with you."

"I will," said the girl as Thompson walked away.

Another hour passed, during which the suffragette neglected to sell pamphlets, devoting herself to the child. Thompson after awhile returned and, expressing surprise that the woman had not come back, told the girl that if she would take the boy home with her he would do the work of hunting for the mother.

She accepted the proposition, and he walked beside her, carrying her unsold pamphlets and her poster, while she wheeled the child. On arriving at her home he found that she belonged to an eminently respectable family, everything about the house betokening refinement of the occupants. She told him that she worked with the suffragettes simply because her heart was in their cause, "and," she added, "it gives me something to interest myself in so that I'm not dependant upon balls, parties and dress to occupy my mind." She asked Thompson to come in. He said he hadn't time just then, but would call just as soon as he had secured any information concerning the child and would keep her advised of his efforts to find his mother.

"I suppose," he said, "I shall see you every day at your accustomed place selling pamphlets."

"Certainly," she replied. "I shall not neglect my work."

But when Thompson passed her stand again and again the next day he saw nothing of her. He reported the present home of the child to the mother and left a check for a substantial amount with her as earnest of his honest intentions. Then he went to call on the suffragette to tell her that he had learned nothing as to the identity of the mother since the desertion of the child, which was perfectly true.

Miss Edith Coleman, the suffragette, did not seem to worry much over his ill success. She told Thompson that the boy was the dearest little fellow in the world, and she was in no hurry to part with him. Thompson remarked that it was unfortunate that she should be kept away from her legitimate work, to which she replied that administering to a child whose inhuman mother had left him was just as important as the cause of votes for women. Thompson looked surprised, but said nothing.

The next day, however, he called and said that his sister had offered to take charge of the deserted boy in order that Miss Coleman might pursue her greater work.

"Please tell your sister to mind her own bus—I mean that the precious darling has fallen to me, and I shall keep him till he is claimed by his own kin."

Then Thompson went to the headquarters of the suffragettes and by diplomacy secured the sending of a note to Miss Coleman assigning her a very important duty that would take up all her time for a week. He called at the headquarters the next day and learned that Miss Coleman had peremptorily declined to serve.

Thompson continued reporting no progress, meanwhile keeping the foundling's mother content by an occasional check. Miss Coleman appeared more and more pleased at his coming and always had the child beautifully dressed and his hair curled when he came. One day Thompson announced that he had found a clew to the identity of the child's mother.

Miss Coleman turned pale.

"You will now be able to return to your valuable work in securing votes for women."

"I don't wish to return to that work, and I don't know if I shall give my precious up any way."

"But supposing that his mother claims him. You wouldn't refuse to restore him to his natural parent, would you?"

"You mean his unnatural parent."

"The law would compel you."

"I would contest the case."

"And you really feel that to give him up would be a privation."

"I couldn't endure it."

"Well, then, I suppose for your sake I'd better not try to find his mother."

"Don't!"

"I'm sorry I wasn't aware before how attached you have become to the child. I know who his mother is, and I suppose it is my duty to inform her that you have her boy."

Miss Coleman looked aghast. "Is there any way," she asked, "by which I can keep him in spite of her?"

"Would that be justice?"

"Justice! Humbug! What do I care about justice if it takes my darling from me?"

Thompson burst into a laugh.

"What are you laughing at?" she asked, irritated.

"You remember that I demonstrated that there were faculties you did not possess which I consider important for citizenship."

"Well, what's that got to do with it?"

"And now you have confessed a third. You care nothing for justice."

"That's a man's view of it."

"To tell the truth, I don't think that you are fitted for a reformer. There is another field in which you can confer more benefit on mankind."

"What's that?"

"You would make a splendid wife and mother."

He was looking straight into her eyes when he said this, and she knew what he meant. She waited for what was to come.

Then he told her the whole story. When he had finished it was agreed that the child's mother should come for him. The ex-suffragette was still loath to part with her boy, but his place was partly supplied by another. She was engaged to marry Thompson.

THE BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE TEACHINGS STUDIES

BE TEMPERATE IN ALL THINGS.

Proverbs 23:29-35.—May 8.

"At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."—V. 32.

WHILE it cannot be said that the Bible commands total abstinence from intoxicating liquors, it can be said that everywhere from Genesis to Revelation it reprobates drunkenness and points us to its debauching effects as injurious both physically and spiritually. We think probably that the climatic conditions of the centers of civilization and the nerve tension of our day make the evils of intemperance specially grievous at this time. These facts would fully justify us as followers of Jesus and the Apostles should we go beyond them in urging absolute total abstinence as respects all alcoholic liquors. Special emergencies and conditions require to be specially met.

As, for instance, while Adam's children being nearly perfect could and did intermarry, nothing of the kind would be wise or in any sense justifiable now because the great depravity of our race through heredity has so prefaced our natures along certain lines of our weaknesses that even for two cousins to marry is dangerous as respects the sanity of their posterity. In other words, circumstances alter cases. In the interim of nearly nineteen centuries undoubtedly great changes have taken place along certain lines and the wisest and noblest of humanity are practically agreed that in our day, at least, alcoholic beverages are extremely unwise, extremely injurious. They are dangerous for the strong of character, and awful, irresistible temptations to the weak, who should have the encouragement of the strong in the bearing of their burdens of hereditary weakness. The amount of crime and sin which directly and indirectly are traceable to the influence of alcohol should make all good people stand in awe of it and use their influence in opposition to it. In this we are not condemning all those who more or less participate in the stream of crime and sin produced by alcohol. Doubtless amongst those who manufacture and dispense these beverages there are, as well as amongst those who own stock in distilleries and breweries, persons of noble minds, who would rather do good than do evil. By some process of reasoning which we do not fully comprehend they throw the responsibility off their own shoulders upon the shoulders of their weaker brethren and sisters of the human family. Unquestionably money is at the bottom of the traffic. As the Apostle declares, "The love of money is the root of all evil."

In today's Study Solomon the Wise gives us the picture of the drunkard—redness of eyes; woe; sorrow; contentious; complaining. He advises, "Look not thou upon the wine when it is red and giveth color to the cup and goeth down smoothly. At last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." It would appear that there is a charm or enticement connected with alcoholic stimulants which gradually wastes the strong and quickly enthralls the weak of will. The wise man associates the demoniacal power of liquor with its twin-sister, fleshly desire and general immorality, saying, "Thine eyes shall behold strange women and thy heart shall utter perverse things." He adds, "Thou shalt be as he that lieth down in the midst of the sea (like floating wreckage) and as he that lieth on top of the mast"—in imminent danger of destruction. He describes the condition of those who become beastly drunk. They are unconscious of injury and seem to have their chiefest pleasure in unconsciousness, so that, upon recovering from one debauch, their desire is to seek the stimulation again. Thus are the chains of slavery to a most degrading habit gradually forged and manhood gradually enslaved and earthly prospects, not to mention heavenly hopes, go glimmering.

It is written in the Scriptures, "No drunkard shall inherit the Kingdom of heaven"—no drunkard, therefore, can hope to be a member of the Body of Christ, the elect Church. Thank God, this no longer means to us his utter perdition, but it does signify great loss. We are never to forget, however, that, having once been a drunkard and having turned from that deplorable condition, the individual would be a drunkard no longer. Let us remember that only "overcomers" are promised a share in his Millennial Throne and Kingdom. He who loses the mastery of his flesh to the extent of being a drunkard is certainly not an overcomer and not at that time in line for joint-heirship with Christ. The President of the United States expressed the following sentiment: "To a man who is actively engaged in reasonable work, who must have at his command the best that is in him, at its best—to him I would, with all the emphasis that I possess, advise and urge, 'Leave drink alone—absolutely.' He who drinks is deliberately disqualifying himself for advancement. Personally I refuse to take such a risk. I do not drink."

When Mr. Taft expressed this he was Secretary of War and evidently did not disqualify himself for advancement by his total abstinence. General Frederick D. Grant, an outspoken total abstainer, said: "Drink is the greatest curse of Christendom, because practically all crime and all disaster are the result of it. Ninety-five per cent—I will make it no less—of desertion and acts of lawlessness in the Army is due to drink. Vice is simply drink in another form. Whoever heard of a saloon completely divorced from the 'White Slave Traffic,' or a house of infamy without a bar? You may tell the young men that General Grant does not drink a drop of liquor—has not for eighteen years—because he is afraid to drink it."

GUM CHEWING IN ENGLAND

England is becoming alarmed over another invasion. This time it is not Germany but America that is striking terror to the hearts of the more conservative Britons. It appears that chewing gum has been introduced into the right little, tight little island, and the gum chewers over there are multiplying at an alarming rate, insomuch that letters of protest and indignation are being written to some of the great London journals.

The spread of "this beastly American custom" is said by the alarmists to threaten the very foundations of English respectability, and appeals are made for action of some sort that may have a tendency to shut off this importation and sale of the "vulgar stuff." In all these wild outcries the United States is held to blame for danger that menances England; but is this country actually guilty? One of the biggest chewing gum factories in the world is located in Canada, and gum chewing is as common in the Dominion as in any part of our glorious republic.

It may be that her own child is endeavoring to corrupt Ma Britannia. In the absence of proof of our own guilt we shall positively refuse to submit to the odium which guardians of English culture and elegance are endeavoring to fasten upon us.—Chicago Record-Herald.

WILL RAISE THE MAINE

Congress Passes Bill to Remove Wreck from Havana.

Believed When Battleship Is Raised It Will Be Possible to Determine What Caused the Explosion

Washington, May 5.—After twelve years the ill-fated battleship Maine is to be removed from Havana harbor and the bodies which went down with the vessel will be interred in the National cemetery at Arlington.

A bill providing for such removal and burial which had been passed by the house has also passed the senate.

It is believed that when the wreck of the Maine is raised it will be possible to determine the exact cause of the explosion which on Feb. 15, 1898, sank this vessel of the famous "White Squadron" with nearly 300 men in Havana harbor and brought on the Spanish-American war

It has been the general belief in this country that the Maine was sunk by a Spanish mine, although the Spanish officials at Havana vigorously denied the charge. They declared the ship either had been blown up by Cuban rebels in an effort to bring about American intervention, or that the explosion was an interior one, due to some accident on the vessel

Sufferers from indigestion are waking up to the fact that peppermint lozenges, charcoal and "dyspepsia cures" are only makeshifts in the cure of so troublesome a complaint as chronic indigestion. What is required is something that will not only relieve but which will tone and train the digestive apparatus to again do its work normally, and this these simple remedies cannot do.

There is something more to the cure of indigestion than sweetening the breath, and yet a remedy that only contains digestive ingredients will not cure permanently, as the basis of indigestion is poor bowel circulation, and that requires a scientific laxative. We know of no remedy that combines these requirements better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which has been sold for a quarter of a century.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a laxative tonic, a scientific blending of natural ingredients for the cure of constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sour stomach, sick headache and similar complaints. Its ingredients will so strengthen and tone the stomach and bowel muscles that they will again do their work naturally, and when that has been accomplished your trouble is over. Fannie Stuart, Staunton, Va., was a long-time sufferer, as was O. Tuck, Blackburn, Mo., and they both found their cure with this remedy. They became convinced that pills and tablets, salts, "dyspepsia cures," etc., were at best only temporary reliets. They first accepted Dr. Caldwell's offer of a free sample bottle, which he willingly sends to anyone who forwards name and address. Later, having convinced themselves through the free sample, they bought Syrup Pepsin of their druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this.

Here is Tecumseh testimony to prove it.

A. C. Aylesworth, W. Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About four years ago I had an acute attack of lumbago and my kidneys were disordered. I at length heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store, I began their use. In a short time I was relieved and I have had no return attack of the trouble. I hope other kidney sufferers will read my statement and be led to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Justice Magruder Leaves Estate to His Niece.

"She Came from Her Home in the Far South and Made Bearable My Desolate Life."

Chicago, May 5.—Benjamin D. Magruder, former justice of the Illinois supreme court, who died April 21, has repaid the tender care given him in his declining years by his niece, Lizzie Magruder, by making her sole heir and executrix of his estate valued at $40,000

The will, which has been filed for probate, was drawn Aug. 11, 1908, by Mr Magruder himself and that portion of it which refers to his niece says:

"She came from her home in the far south to take charge of my household and to live and care for me. Since the death of my wife in 1909 she has made bearable my lonely and desolate life by her kindly treatment and sweet disposition.

FREIGHT HANDLERS STRIKE

3,500 Men Quit Their Work in the Houses in Chicago.

Chicago, May 5.—Thirty-five hundred freight handlers are on strike in Chicago. Men employed at the freight houses of the Rock Island, Chicago and Eastern Illinois and Monon roads accepted a 5 per cent increase and remained at work

Freight handlers on the other nineteen roads who are now out are demanding a 10 per cent increase in pay

IMPORTANT BOND ISSUE

New York, May 5.—New York bankers are concluding arrangements for the largest and most important sale of American securities in Paris that has ever been made, with the exception of the year before the panic. Then the Pennsylvania railroad, the bond market being heavy, broke the thick ice of the Paris market with a sale of $50,000,000 bonds and the New York, New Haven and Hartford followed with a sale of $30,000,000 debentures.

These were the biggest sales of American corporation bonds made in Paris up to that time and none since has succeeded them in any short period. The present negotiations which the bankers had under way, involve the sale of at least $60,000,000 railroad bonds, $10,000,000 New York city revenue warrants and according to report from ordinarily reliable sources about $30,000,000 other bonds of various railroads. The principal floatation, and one that is all but agreed upon, is one of about $50,000,000 bonds of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St Paul.

LORIMER TO RESIGN

Deneen, It Is Said Will Name A. J. Hopkins For the Senate.

Uncomfirmed Rumor Has It That Senator Lorimer Will Resign as Result of Bribery Charges.

Washington, May 9.—A report current here that could not be confirmed, was to the effect that it was the purpose of Senator Lorimer, as a result of the charges that bribes had been given to bring about his election would soon resign. It was stated further that Gov. Deneen would name Albert J. Hopkins as Senator Lorimer's successor.

Mr. Lorimer succeeded Mr. Hopkins in the senate after a deadlock in the Illinois legislature that lasted many weeks. Illinois people are inclined to the belief that whatever the outcome of the proceedings now in progress in Illinois that Lorimer will not long remain a member of the senate.

SCULPTOR TAKES DEATH MASK

Queen Alexandra Requests It, and Is Much Distressed by Grief.

London, May 9.—Bruce Joy, the sculptor, whose bust of King Edward is now being exhibited at the old salon took a death mask of the king's face at the request of Queen Alexandra. He describes the face as being almost entirely free from the lines which marked it when the king sat for his bust. It appears much younger and showed perfect calm.

The bedroom in which the body of his majesty lies is only medium sized The bed is of wood with simple carving. During the operation of making the mask, which occupied less than a quarter of an hour, Queen Alexandra entered the room twice. She was dressed with absolute simplicity. She did not speak, but seemed distressed by grief.

ROOSEVELT MAY HAVE BRONCHITIS

Bronchial Tubes Are Affected and Has a Bad Cough.

KERMIT HONORS KING OSCAR

Nothing at Present Justifies Scare, but Doctors Advise Caution—Leaves for Berlin Today—Day is Quiet and Depressing.

Stockholm, May 9.—This has been a quiet day for the Roosevelt party in fact the only day of his tour which might be called actually depressing. Not only was Roosevelt himself obviously tired and not too well, but the death of King Edward hangs like a pall over the palace in which Roosevelt is a guest.

Dr. Hagener examined his throat and found it strained and with a tendency to bronchitis, the bronchial tubes being affected. Roosevelt was told that he must rest as much as possible. He is bright and game, but has a pretty bad cough. But at present there is nothing to justify a scare. The doctor naturally recognizes the danger from the cold keen weather here in a case of bronchial affection and has warned Roosevelt to be careful of his health.

Roosevelt did not go to the Riddarholmen church, but lunched at the legation, going a half hour late to avoid the fatigue of the preliminary reception there. He received a deputation of the Swedish interparliamentary peace congress, who presented an address to him in reply to which he made a short speech. Later he listened to the United choirs of Swedish students singing outside the legation instead of making a visit to the national museum. He thanked the students from a balcony and was cheered by 20,000 people who crowded the streets.

Roosevelt later had a quiet time at the palace with the crown prince and crown princess, giving up the scheduled drive in procession around Stockholm and the park. The prince regent's formal dinner party at the palace was abandoned owing to the courts being in mourning for King Edward and the ex-president dined quietly with the crown prince.

Roosevelt started for Berlin at 11 o'clock this morning. Minister Graves accompanied Kermit Roosevelt who, on behalf of his father, placed a wreath on the tomb of King Oscar. This was a function which Roosevelt unwillingly missed, but the doctor objected to the risks of cold in the vault of the Riddarholmen church.

ROYAL DEATH IS RESPECTED

Imperial Part of Roosevelt's Reception Is Abandoned by Kaiser.

Berlin, May 9.—It is officially announced that the imperial part of Mr. Roosevelt's visit here has been practically abandoned. The kaiser having regard for his own feelings and the proprieties of the occasion, has directed not to meet Roosevelt at the railway station on his arrival, where joyous demonstration on the part of the people are certain to occur, or to entertain him as a guest at the palace.

His majesty has also decided not to attend the projected official dinners, either at Ambassador Hill's or the imperial chancellor's residence. Roosevelt, his wife and Miss Ethel on their arrival will proceed to the American embassy, where they will be the ambassador's guests during their stay. After breakfasting at the embassy the party will go in automobiles to Potsdam, where they will meet the kaiser and his family. They will stay to luncheon, which will be of a purely democratic character. Roosevelt will have other opportunities for private talks with the kaiser, but these will be matters of subsequent arrangement. The kaiser will attend Roosevelt's lecture at the university, as this is a purely university function. It has been decided that the receptions given by the American colony and non-official German society will be held at the embassy as previously arranged.

NINE ARE KILLED BY AN EXPLOSION

Hundreds of Plate Glass Windows Are Broken.

DAMAGE REACHES THOUSANDS

Great Excitement Prevails at Hull When Works of General Explosives Company Blows Up—Bodies Are Terribly Mangled.

Ottawa, May 9.—Nine persons are known to have been killed by an explosion here in the works of the General Explosive company at Hull. Several others are missing and the list of dead is likely to run up higher.

While it is two miles to where the explosion occurred, it broke hundreds of plate glass windows in Ottawa and Hull stores, and wrecked twenty houses in Hull.

Most of the victims were killed by huge stones weighing from 100 to 200 pounds, crushing them, either as they were walking on the streets nearby or in their homes. In one case a youth's head was completely severed from his body, and in all cases the bodies were mangled almost beyond resognition. Huge stones crashed into many homes when the residents were at supper. People ran from their homes shouting: "It is the comet," and others "The end of the world has come."

A fire followed the explosion, doing from $200,000 to $500,000 damage.

LIFE TERM GIVEN HOAL

Slayer of New Albany Bank Cashier Sentenced.

Story of the Youth's Amazing Single-Handed Attack on the Merchant's National Bank.

Corydon, Ind., May 9.—Thomas Jefferson Hoal, the boy bandit, was found guilty of murder here and sentenced to life imprisonment. Hoal is a seventeen-year-old Louisville boy who, in November last, executed an amazing single-handed attack on the Merchants' National Bank fo New Albany, Ind., with the motive of robbery.

He compelled a negro chauffeur to drive him to the bank at noon time through crowded streets of Louisville and New Albany. In the bank he became excited, shot the cashier, J. Hangary Fawcett, and wounded President J. K. Woodward and his chauffeur.

Without securing any money he escaped from the bank and attempted to cross the Ohio river in a skiff to Louisville, being captured in midstream by the police. His remarkable nerve greatly helped the police in saving him from threatened lynching. Mental defectiveness was his defense.

She gave as her reason for this strange request that the happiest hours of her life had been spent at her piano. Owing to the great size of this original coffin an immense grave had to be dug.

The speaker was in one of his happiest and merriest moods. The Illinois delegation presented him with a huge bouquet of American beauty roses—seventy-four in all, or one for each year of his life.

When asparagus is laid down in the water the tips cook to a pulp before the lower ends of the stalks are tender. Cut the bunches level across the bottom and stand them up in a pot of boiling, slightly salted water, which reaches not more than half-way up the stalks, and cover closely. Bread puddings may be delicious or otherwise, just as they are made Usually they are too stiff with bread or baked until the custard breaks into whey. Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

HER CHAUFFEUR.

How a Girl Worried Her Family by Loving an Auto Driver.

By F. A. MITCHEL.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"Cab!" called a young girl standing on a curb on F street, Washington.

A chauffeur sitting in an auto on the other side of the street caught her eye. She was very stylishly dressed, very pretty, and, although attractive, the chauffeur looked at her for a moment without replying to her summons, then, as if obeying an impulse, drove his auto to the curb on which the young lady was standing.

"Are you engaged?" she asked.

"No'm."

"I thought you were from your not answering my call at once." She stepped into the auto. "Take me to —— Massachusetts avenue."

"Yes'm."

Formerly all the unfortunate love affairs and misalliances with manservants occurred between the pretty daughter of the house and the family coachman. In these days of motors the coachman has given place to the chauffeur. From the moment Miss Flora Denton, the daughter of a rich congressman who had recently been elected from the middle west, set eyes on the chauffeur there was trouble in store for her.

HE WAS SITTING IN HIS SEAT, UNCONSCIOUS.

"I presume you know all about Washington," she said, leaning forward on her seat. "I don't know my way anywhere. We came only yesterday."

"I'm pretty familiar with the streets. I have to be to drive an auto."

"What a rich, deep voice!" said Miss Denton to herself, then aloud: "I want some one I can trust to take me about. If you will tell me where I can call on you I'll have you regularly."

The chauffeur did not reply at once. When he did he said:

"Call up telephone No. 6342."

Miss Denton took a pocketbook from a little bag hanging to her wrist, from which she drew a card and on the card wrote the telephone number.

"Who shall I ask for?" she said. "I suppose there are other autos there."

"Say you would like to speak to Drake."

"Very well; here we are—the dark stone house over there. What's the fare?" she added as she alighted.

"If I'm to drive you regularly you might pay at the end of the month," replied the obliging chauffeur.

"That'll do very well, if you're satisfied. Perhaps you'd better come tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock to take me for a ride."

"All right, ma'am."

When 3 o'clock the next afternoon came Miss Denton was at a front window in auto costume, drawing on her gloves while waiting for the chauffeur. He drove up punctually and, not knowing that the lady was looking at him, stepped out of his machine and, walking up to the door, rang.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Miss Denton. "He walks like a ramrod. I believe he was a soldier before he became a cab driver. Just look at those shoulders! It's a wonder they don't pull him over backward."

She met him at the door with a smile, but suddenly repressed it, remembering his station. She asked him to take her across the Potomac. He did so, and once away from the city they spun along merrily. Reaching an old bridge over a shallow creek, he said:

"If I could trust that bridge I would take you back by way of Arlington."

"Cross it. I'll take the risk."

"I doubt if it will hold under the weight of this machine. It's off the main road and not intended for general use."

"Try it."

"I think I'd better not."

Miss Denton sniffed the air. "I had an idea that you were a soldier before you became a chauffeur. I'm surprised at your timidity."

He made a dash at the bridge, hoping for safety in speed. They had got nearly over when it broke under them and down they went.

Fortunately the distance to fall was not great, and the machine remained right side up. But a falling beam struck the chauffeur on the head, and when Miss Denton, who had scrambled out on to dry land, turned to look at him he was sitting in his seat unconscious, with blood streaming down over his face.

At the moment there came the honk of an auto horn, and Miss Denton ran to the main road and signaled for the driver to stop, and two men who were in the machine came to her assistance. They got the chauffeur out, brought him back to consciousness and kindly offered to take both back to the city. As for the auto, it was not to be moved at once.

When they reached the city the chauffeur was about to tell them where to take him when he was forestalled by Miss Denton, who insisted that, the accident having been her own fault, he should go to her own home. He demurred at this, saying they would go there first; then he wished to be left at his room. When they reached —— Massachusetts avenue the lady's father, seeing from a window that something was wrong, went out and when informed of the facts directed that the chauffeur come inside, at any rate temporarily. So the man walked in, refusing support, and was placed in an easy chair and given a stimulant. He declined to have a physician called.

A week later Mr. Denton said to his daughter: "Pussy, I think it's time that your chauffeur go back to his garage. He's all right and by hanging around here is losing money every day. I had his auto sent for, and it has been put in order. The bill will come to me."

Miss Denton told the chauffeur what her father had said, softening the invitation to depart as well as she could. The young man bade her goodby, looking longingly into her eyes, while her hand lingered in his, and said:

"If I weren't only a chauffeur!"

He stopped and, turning away, left the house.

The father of Miss Flora Denton, being a shrewd observer of what was going on about him, saw very plainly that his daughter was in danger of a complication that would wreck the peace and comfort of the family. He gave her orders that when she wished an auto she should call him up on the telephone and he would send her one. The girl must either obey or admit that she was desirous of riding with an especial chauffeur, which would be giving away her case. She longed for a spin with the driver of her choice and since she could not ride with him would not ride at all. But she went often to the business portion of the city and kept a sharp eye open for a familiar face belonging to her own especial chauffeur.

Then came the first important social function since Congressman Denton had taken his seat in the house of representatives. The president was to give a reception, and the Denton family were to attend. Mrs. Denton, who was greatly worried about the chauffeur episode, was anxious that her daughter should go about, hoping that the impression made by a common cab driver might be eradicated by some young man of prominence. Washington was full of officials, some of whom were quite young enough for her daughter to marry, and the place literally swarmed with army and navy officers. Mrs. Denton, therefore, got out Miss Flora's most becoming costume and endeavored to excite an interest on the part of her daughter in this her first appearance in Washington public social life.

But the girl was languid and listless. In vain her mother told her of the great people she would meet—young men some of whom were already political leaders, the generals, the admirals and the junior officers near her own age. Flora made no objection to going among all these people, but there was none of that enthusiasm to be expected in a young girl on whom fortune had bestowed such advantages. Finally the mother, losing patience, exploded:

"I do believe you're gone on that cab driver!"

This was the feather that broke the camel's back. Flora burst into tears and, going to her room, locked herself in.

However, when the time came to dress for the president's reception she permitted her maid, her mother supervising, to arrange her costume, and it must be confessed that she looked ravishing. Even the tinge of melancholy in her eyes was becoming.

A throng of people in evening dress were at the White House waiting the entrance of the president. There were members of the cabinet, senators, generals and admirals—indeed, the governmental magnates of the nation. Their wives and daughters, dressed in silks and satins, in laces and feathers, stood with them, forming lines on either side of a passageway along which the president was to proceed to the position in which he would receive his guests. Congressman Denton, his wife and daughter stood among the rest. Presently there was a flourish of musical instruments, and two young army officers marching abreast led the procession escorting the chief magistrate.

"Pussy," said Mr. Denton, "that officer on the right looks for all the world like your chauffeur."

Feeling his daughter's hand clutching his arm, he turned and saw her in a fever of excitement. When she could catch her breath and articulate she whispered:

"Oh, papa, he is my chauffeur!"

"He isn't," protested Mrs. Denton, who had noticed the young man and overheard what her husband and daughter had said.

But when the young man passed within a few feet of them and gave them a smile in which was expressed his satisfaction at having duped them there was no further doubt as to his identity. When a few minutes later he joined them and Flora asked reproachfully, "Why did you do it?" he replied, "I didn't; you took me for a cabman, and I didn't tell you I wasn't one."

Mrs. Lieutenant Drake of the artillery is now stationed at one of the southern forts.

CAMPS FOR CITY PEOPLE

"It has long been my opinion that every one who lives in town or city should have a country home of his own in which to spend his vacation," says W. A. Keys in WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION for May. "It may not be a mansion at a fashionable summer resort, but I believe that every one who really wants it can manage to buy some cheap tract of land of two or three acres, on river, lake, seashore or mountain-side, and build there a camp which will give him comfort and relaxation during his two or four weeks' leave of absence. There is an unlimited amount of good times and good health in this amateur pioneering. The children of the family will love it and be benefited by it, and the women folk will rejoice in its simplified housekeeping."

AROUND THE GLOBE FOR A WIFE.

Le Roy Remington was a young globe trotter. He had no idea that he was going to and fro on the earth hunting for something, but he was. All men from the time they are old enough to marry are hunting for wives, and all women from a similar period of their lives are hunting for husbands.

As I was saying, Le Roy Remington was crossing continents and oceans, as he thought, to get rid of being bored. Had he been obliged to work for a living he would not have been bored so much. Had he been married he would not have been bored at all. He might have suffered under many irritations and annoyances, he might even have wished for a return of the freedom of bachelorhood, but he would not have been bored.

One day Remington was crossing "the plains" of America somewhere between Omaha and San Francisco when the train stopped. The weather was warm and the windows were open. A train from the opposite direction came rolling along with diminishing speed. It brought the girl Remington was looking for and stopped with her directly beside his window. Her window, too, was raised, and the two sat face to face within a few feet of each other. Remington looked at the girl and the girl looked at Remington. He made the most of the brief time allotted him. The girl lowered her eyes. Then there was a toot-toot ahead and Remington's train moved onward.

Remington was looking for this very girl, but he didn't know it till he was on the Pacific ocean midway between San Francisco and Hongkong.

By the time he stood again on dry land he had made up his mind that he must find the girl on the other side of the globe.

He went to Paris and from Paris started for London. On a railway train some twenty miles west of Paris, while stopping at a station, a train pulled past, and at a window in this train was the girl he had discovered he wanted.

It took Remington just thirty seconds to gather up his belongings and leave the train. During this brief interval it had occurred to him that the girl might be going around the world and he had better proceed westward in the hope of meeting her once more and at a standstill. But he dismissed the idea as ridiculous.

The train that had passed was bound for Paris, and Remington took the next one for the same place. His trunk went on to London. But he cared nothing for that. He could buy trunks and their contents, but he couldn't buy the girl who was going to Paris, though he could buy any one of dozens of other girls. She was surely going to Paris. All Americans who are approaching Paris are going there. And ten to one she would stay awhile there. So Remington returned to Paris and when he got there hunted through the registers of the hotels where Americans were accustomed to stay. At the Hotel Meurice he found the names "Mr. and Mrs. Edgar D. Avery, San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A., and Miss Edith Avery." The clerk told him that they had arrived at a time that corresponded with the arrival of the train on which he had seen the girl he was hunting.

While he was racking his brains how to secure an introduction he chanced to meet his intimate friend Philpot. He asked Philpot to dine with him the same evening, intending to talk the matter over with him. No; Philpot's friends, the Averys of San Francisco, had just arrived and he was engaged to drive with them. What luck! Would Philpot introduce him? Certainly! He would make an engagement to take him to call. They parted, and the next morning Philpot told Remington that he had made the engagement for five days ahead, the first evening the Averys were disengaged. Remington passed five weary, waiting days and on the afternoon of the fifth received a note from Philpot to say that the Averys had left Paris unexpectedly the day before.

Remington was crushed. He found Philpot, only to learn that the Averys had gone eastward to Hongkong to sail for San Francisco immediately on arrival at that port. Remington inquired the date of sailing of the steamer they would likely take and found he would not have time to reach it himself. He could go westward and reach San Francisco earlier than the party going eastward.

He left Paris that night for South Hampton, caught an outgoing steamer and reached New York in six days. In two weeks from his leaving France he was in San Francisco waiting the arrival of the girl he was chasing. Whenever a steamer arrived from the east he was at the dock waiting. At last he saw Miss Avery coming down a gang-plank. That was enough for the present. He waited for a reasonable time for the family to get settled, then called.

Six months later Remington and his bride were traveling from San Francisco to New York on their wedding trip. At a station on the road the train stopped, and Remington for the first time informed Mrs. Edith Avery Remington of how he had met the woman he had wanted for his wife at that very station and had chased her around the globe.—Helen V. Weed.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM A FORMER TECUMSEHITE

More About Tecumseh Fifty Years Ago.

Editor Herald:

It is Long Beach, not Long Branch as you had it in my last letter. "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet" but there can be no other name for Long Beach, this gem city by the sea. The only thing that might happen however is the loss of a letter from some of my old school mates whom my letters have awakened from a memory slumber.

And now let us cross to the west side of Chicago St. to the old Michigan House, the sign of which stood out in the street in front on a high post and was a picture of the old Indian Chief Tecumseh which we used to pelt good and plenty with snow balls. I remember when it was burned and it was reported that almost an army of rats fled to other buildings in the neighborhood. Next to west was a row of little old frame buildings occupied by several families among them the Hendershot family. The boy "Bob" became quite a character in the Civil War as the "Drummer Boy of the Rappahannock" the story of whose life in book form is in my library and well worn by my pupils and boy friends.

The next building west was the residence of Mrs. Griffith who kept a select school of which I was a member for a short time. Some 35 years after the time of which I am writing I had a very unexpected and rather peculiar reminder of those days. I was spending a week at Bay View, Mich, with some friends. One day while we were enjoying a steamer excursion on bay and lake a gentleman came and took a seat with us. After a few remarks about the weather, scenery etc. he turned to me and asked, "Where are you from? Answering his question with "from Dowagiac" he asked, "Did you ever live in Tecumseh?" "Yes." "Isn't your name Stocking?" "William?" "Yes." Well to make a long story short, the gentleman was "Thooph," Griffith as we all called him when boys. He said he knew me at sight though we had not met during the 35 years, and have never met since. I sometimes wonder if we will have such meetings with long long ago friends and acquaintances on the "other side" Going west from Mrs. Griffiths the house that I have a distinct remembrance of was the two story frame house on the N. E. corner of Chicago and Ottowa St. built and still owned at that time I think by P. R. Adams and was called the "bank building." At the back of it and extending north on Ottowa St. was a large shed for fuel. From this shed north to Logan St. was a vacant lot with a path diagonally across it to Logan street and ending in front of the house in which we lived for a time and known as the Bissell house. Across the street west from the Bank building began a block of frame buildings which was afterward burned. In the east end of this block, before the fire, my uncle Charles Stocking and Fred Emmerson had a marble shop and I think Jerry Allen had a gunsmith shop with them; after the fire they built a little shop a little farther north on Ottawa St. where they were doing business when I left. The other day I stopped into a marble shop here and saw a man engraving a fine stone with an electric tool. I had never seen it done before and was intensly interested. The rapidity with which a letter or figure 8 was cut in the marble was surprising to me, and as I walked away my thoughts went back to that little shop in Tecumseh and I could see Uncle Charles pulling and pushing over marble slabs back and forth over the face of another with sand between them to polish them. Day after day, week after week and month after month would Uncle, with patience and perseverance, work away at this slow tedious way of polishing the marble ready for engraving, while Fred would bend over the marble and just as patiently chip away at the letters or figures with his mallet and chisel, brushing off the larger chips and blowing off the smaller ones with his breath stopping occasionally to play a tune on his cornet. Well, I think this is enough "reminisence" for this time

Now may I tell you of our April? From the 22nd to the 25th we had the hottest weather for April known in this region for several years. It was 96 and 98 in the shade while you Michigan people are having a cold blizzardy spell I saw in one of our papers that Micdigan loss is $10,000,000 but I hope that it is nowhere near that. Sunday the 24th the Pacific Electric brought 14000 people to this city.

Friday, April 28th the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Southern California are celebrating the 91st anniversary of the founding of Odd Fellowship There are 13,000 of them here. The grand parade this p. m. was worth going a long way to witness and thousands viewed it with pleasure. The Rebecas were a pretty sight.

Foley's Honey and Tar has been a household favorite for all ailments of the throat, chest and lungs. For infants and children it is best and safest and it contains no opiates and no harmful drugs. None genuine but Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

A Washing Fluid.

This fluid is excellent to add to the water when you wish to bleach sheets, pillow cases and white counterpanes that have yellowed during the winter: Take one pound of potash (it comes in cans), one ounce salts of tartar, and one ounce liquid ammonia. Put the salts of tartar and potash in a gallon of water on the stove and let the ingredients dissolve. When cool, add the ammonia and put the liquid into a jug, which should be corked. A cup of the fluid can be added to 12 gallons of water. Boil the clothes in this lye water, use blueing plentifully, and hang the clothes in the sunshine, leaving them out as long as possible.

The chiropodist advises persons suffering with very tender feet not to put the feet in extremely hot water and not to keep them in water long. Witch-hazel makes them less tender.

Washing the face with water in which granulated sugar has been dissolved is said to improve the complexion just as much as the salt bath. We all know the beneficial results from honey—the balm of a thousand flowers—but the sugar cure is quite new and, so far as we are concerned, quite untested.

Massage assists in making the neck plump, but no noticeable change results unless the health is in good condition and there is a tendency to take on flesh. The massage, however, softens and tones the skin, offsetting the injurious effect of tight collars.

If you contemplate taking blood medicines this spring, it will be absolutely necessary to avoid coffee, tea or cocoa. All drinks of this kind have a tendency to counteract the medicinal properties of blood purifiers. If you take sulphur, mix it with good milk or cream and it can not be tasted when swallowed.

Rapid Feathering Bad for Chicks.

The feathering of little chicks not only depends upon the breed but upon other matters as well. The feathers of non-sitting breeds begin to show upon the wing when the chicks are but three or four days old, but this is a drawback, as rapid feathering is weakening, says the Mirror and Farmer. The Brahma and Cochin chicks feather very slowly but when they get a good start they acquire apparently more feathers, than any other breeds. They are breeds which do not weaken from rapid feathering, for, they do not begin hurriedly as do some of the smaller and more active breeds. The food must be plentiful and varied when chicks are growing and acquiring feathers. When the little ones are being raised for broilers they must be fed for such purpose outside of the food which must of necessity be given them in order to enable them to grow muscle and a covering for their bodies. If the chicks have a good run, plenty of fresh air and sunlight, and are given all the food they require, the rapid feathering is not such a hindrance. It is harmful only when the proper food is not supplied upon which their systems may draw fo feather-making besides for the accumulation of flesh.

If you don't give the devil his due he will come after it.

Seeley. Who Fitted the Czar of Russia, at the Maumee Hotel, Adrian.

F. H. Seeley of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted truss expert, will be at the Maumee, and will remain in Adrian, Thursday and Friday, May 5 and 6, only. Mr. Seeley says:

"The Spermatic Shield Truss as now used and approved by the United States government will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete relief, but closes the opening in 10 days on the average case, and costing only proportionate to common trusses" This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery or harmful injections. Mr. Seeley has documentary evidence from the United States government, Washington, D. C., for your inspection. If any interested call, he will be glad to show the truss without charge or fit them if desired. Anyone ruptured should remember the date and take advantage of this unusual opportunity.—Home office, 70 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Reception

AT ST. PETER'S PARISH HOUSE SATURDAY AFTERNOON

A Most Delightful Affair

The reception at the Parish House on Saturday afternoon to meet Mrs. Corey and daughters was a most delightful occasion and was thoroughly enjoyed by all, and the pleasure of meeting old friends was enhanced by the beautiful surroundings. The house was decorated with blossoms and greens and was a bower of beauty.

A fine musical program both, vocal and instrumental, added to the pleasure of the occasion. Miss Hazel Zimmerman gave two fine solos. Bonnie Brown, with Mrs. Wood at the piano, charmed the company with her sweet singing. Miss Mingay also sang in her usual delightful manner with Florence Linton as accompanist. Mrs. F. B. Wood and Miss Edyth Shull gave an instrumental duet and several single numbers to the delight of their music loving friends.

The young ladies served light refreshments in a very dainty manner.

Just here it would not come amiss to make mention of the Parish House and its appointments. The rooms are all so very pleasant and the arrangements so complete for the use for which it is intended; a place for the business meetings connected with church work, and a gathering place for old and young in social relations. Through the kindness of those who cling to St. Peters as their church home, they have a fine piano and rugs for their floors, also in the dining room a beautiful supply of silver and china the very best.

We congratulate the parish on the success that has attended their work in this direction.

TAKE NOTICE

The session of the Presbyterian church has called a congregational meeting for Wednesday evening May 11, 1910 to act on the report of the pulpit supply committee and such other business as may come before the meetiug. A full attendance is requested. There will be no prayer meeting in consequence.

ALMA COLLEGE

The intercollegiate situation looks far from discouraging, with Olivet and Albion both minus a leg, Albions being sawed off by Adrian and Olivets in turn by Albion. An even break with Adrian will keep Alma in the foreground and insure her a chance in the final show down at Kalamazoo in June. Thus far this season the Presbyterians have won four games out of the six played, dropping one to Saginaw league team and the University. Between Duncanson and Hole the Maroon's pitching will be well held up. The infield is the pride of the college and seems air tight at all times. Phillips, last years star, is the life of the team, playing the game in every way better than in previous seasons. Call accepts all chances at short, Burke, a Freshie, covers third like a vet, while Pohley and King head the list of the second sack candidates. Two important games are played here, Albion, May 11 and M. A. C. May 14.

Thursday, May 12, the Northern Michigan Club of Alma college will celebrate its initial banquet in the form of an elaborate picnic up Pine river. This club was recently organized, its members comprising students from Harbor Springs, Petoskey, East Jordan, Elk Rapids, Traverse City, Cadillac and other cities claiming a location in the northwestern part of the lower peninsula. Following the big spread will come a display of oratory, Frank Hurst, Donald Call and Royal Blaske, each being down for a spell.

MAY "EVERYBODY'S"

Everybody's for May adds another to the list of really important articles on commercial subjects that have long been a feature of that honestly American magazine. Under the title "The Barred Gateway," John L. Mathews tells of the haples incongruity between our liberal channel and harbor improvement policy, and our monopolized and obsolete dock systems. To spend countless millions for the betterments of ports, and then permit the railway-owned water fronts to forbid the landing of vessels seems too foolish to believe. But it is true. In the same number of Everybody's Judge Ben B. Lindsey concludes his inspiring story of the long fight against the System in Denver. With all its discouragements it is an optimistic story, and the victory that marks this installment should be an inspiration to other men elsewhere.

FRUIT CONDITIONS

There is quite a diversity of opinion among fruit correspondents relative to the damage suffered from frost throughout the State. Correspondents in the southwestern portion of the State, where the frost in April was the most severe, report fruit prospects much better than expected immediately after the freeze and very generally are of the opinion that the outlook for an average crop is encouraging. The spraying of fruit trees has greatly increased this season.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Colds, Croup and Whooping Cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of Croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. Its a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hemorrhages, Weak Lungs. 50c $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by C. Town Federation

ANNUAL MEETING AND ELECTION OF OFFICERS

At Mrs. J. D. Shull's Friday Afternoon, May 6.

The Town Federation of Clubs met last Friday afternoon at the pleasant home of Mrs. J. D. Shull for their annual business meeting and election of officers, also a social good time. Officers were elected as follows:

Pres.—Mrs. J. D. Shull.
1st vice pres.—Mrs. Andrew Wilson.
2nd vice pres.—Mrs. A. C. Bryan.
Sec.—Mrs. Milburn Keyser.
Treas.—Mrs. O. B. Finch.

Other business followed. Committees were appointed and the federation is now ready for another year's work.

A pot luck supper was the order of the day, each lady bringing one article of food with plate, cup, spoon and napkin for self. This occasioned much merriment as the assortment of viands was almost equal to the number of ladies present.

The meeting was a very fine one in every respect and as a social factor each one echoed the sentiment "Blest be the tie that binds," etc.

Labor May Run Short

BUMPER FRUIT CROP LIKELY TO CAUSE EMBARRASSMENT TO YAKIMA GROWERS.

With a bumper fruit crop in prospect, Fred E. Thompson, president and manager of the Thompson Fruit company, believes that the labor problem this season will a serious one for Yakima. That the labor available will be insufficent to meet the demands is the fear expressed.

"If the crop is as large as every indication points to its being," said Mr. Thompson, "we shall need every person, young, middle aged and old, that we can get hold of, to handle it."

Although labor is by no means a curio in ordinary years, the unusual proportions of the yield this year may set the labor market in a furore.

The above article came from our old friend Mr. Abrams and speaks well for the prosperity of Yakima.

Guaranteed to Cure Indigestion,

Let Mrs. Griffith tell you about Mi-o-na, the greatest prescription for stomach troubles ever written:

For years I have doctored for acute gastritis, but only received slight benefit, and had to be careful what I ate. But, thanks to Mi-o-na stomach tablets, I can now eat anything. Last Christmas, after partaking of a hearty turkey dinner, I was seized with an attack of acute indigestion and the doctor worked over me for hours before I got relief. He paid me eight visits before I could say I was well enough to sit up. But since then I have taken Mi o-na tablets, and I have not been troubled since. Before using Mi-o-na I had attacks about every month."—Mrs. Ida Griffith, 1213 C St., Washington, D. C., July 5, 1909.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold by druggists everywhere and at C. A. Wright & Son's for 50 cents a large box. They are guaranteed to cure indigestion, sour stomach, belching gas, dizziness, biliousness, heaviness, or any stomach ailment.

Kick Repays Goodwill.

There is a kindly old gentleman somewhere in the city whose love for children, even the ragged offspring of the great unwashed, was turned to deep distrust yesterday by an experience that was ridiculous for everybody but the old gentleman.

Two grimy urchins were peering big-eyed, into the laden basket of an itinerant candy man, who had taken his stand at Ninth and Market streets.

The old gentleman passed by and paused. He noted the thin little bodies and the wistful faces, with "Wish I had a penny" written large on each.

Digging down into his pocket, he drew up a handful of silver and one dark copper. He placed it in the nearest expectant palm.

"Sorry I've only got one," he told the other disappointed lad, "but I'm sure your friend will 'wback up' with you."

But as soon as the old gentleman's back was turned, the "friend" whisked away around the corner, his penny in his hand.

"Wow!" yelled the old gentleman as a vicious kick in the shins made him drop his cane and clutch wildly at the disappearing figure of the youngster whose taste for sweets was still unsatisfied. And as he limped home he resolved that indiscriminate charity is a bad thing.—Philadelphia Times.

Evidence Enough.

The landed proprietor purchased a carriage horse to match one he already possessed. A day or two later he asked his groom what he thought of the new arrival.

"Weel, sir," said Sandy, "he's certainly agran'-looking horse, but he's a wee bit touchy i' the temper."

"What makes you say that, Sandy?"

"Weel, he disna seem to tak' kindly to anybody, sir. In fact, he disna like me to gang inae his box to feed him even."

"Oh," lightly responded the horse's owner. "He hasn't settled down yet that's all. His surroundings are strange to him. I don't think there's anything wrong with his temper."

"I didna either at first sir," remarked Sandy, "but he kicked me clean oot o' the box twice, an' when ye come to think about it that's sort o' convincin'!"—Tit-Bits.

Yet He Wished Him Well.

"Between emotionalism and fatalism in religion," says a Washington clergyman, "there is a golden mean—a reflection that came to me recently upon the conclusion of my remarks to a colored congregation in Richmond.

"I had invited an aged deacon to offer prayer, "O Lord," prayed he "gib dis pore brudder de eye of de eagle, dat he spy out sin afar off. Glue his hands to de gospel plow. Tie his tongue to de line of truf. Nail his yere to de gospel pole. Bow his head 'way down between his knees, O Lord, an' fix his knees 'way down in some lonesome, dark and narrow valley, where prayer is much wanted to be made. 'Noint him wif de kerosene ile of salvashun, an' set him on fire."—Harper's Weekly.

Why He Was Satisfied.

A story is told of the famous Richard Brinsley Sheridan, that one day when coming back from shooting, with an empty bag and seeing a number of ducks in a pond, while near by a man was leaning on a fence watching them, Sheridan asked:

"What will you take for a shot at the ducks?"

"Well," said the man, thoughtfully. "I'll take half a sovereign."

"Done," said Sheridan, and he fired into the middle of the flock killing a dozen or more. "I'm afraid you make a bad bargain," said Sheridan, laughing.

"I don't know about that," the man replied. "They're not my ducks."—The Christian Advocate.

Doesn't Now.

"I used to worry a good deal," said the boarding house philosopher. "I've lain awake till midnight thinking about it. But one night when I was asleep I dreamed that George Washington, looking just as he does on the 2 cent postage stamp, came and touched me on the shoulder and said: 'My son, don't fret your gizzard about that deficit. You don't have to pay it.' And, by George, I haven't done any worrying over it since!"

Futile.

There once was a man with money to burn,
Who never burnt any, that you could discern.
What was the use?
There once was a worm that wanted to turn,
But didn't attempt it, so far as I learn.
What was the use?

Out in the Kitchen.

Potatoes half fried, then suddenly plunged into boiling fat, will almost instantly double their size. This is a French method of preparing browned potatoes.

After cleaning house often the odor of soap or disinfectants remain for several days. You can kill the odor by burning powdered cinnamon on a hot shovel, or it can be burned in a tin can. The odor is very penetrating and not the least disagreeable.

The woman moving into a flat with small rooms will find the most convenient beds for small bedrooms, made of iron, each side of which can be lowered and the bed made into a couch. Cover with a striped counterpane.

Clean ivory knife handles with peroxide of hydrogen and pumice.

Rinse blue hosiery, silk or cotton, in water containing a tablespoonful of vinegar. It restores the faded tint.

Sauerkraut Lunch.

The sauerkraut luncheon need not be dreaded if the kraut has an onion cooked with it. This seems to keep the odor from going through the house, probably on the homeopathic principle that one bad smell kills another.

Sauerkraut should have as accompaniments nothing but roast pork, mashed potatoes, thin bread and butter and a cup of weak tea. Never serve it with several courses. If there be a dessert, it should be something in keeping.

Baked apples and cream make a digestible dessert after sauerkraut. Too simple for company? The devotees of kraut don't care whether they eat a dessert at all, and guests who do not like the cabbage delicacy should never be invited to a sauerkraut festa.

Free Sample For Baby's Ills

Something can and must be done for the puny, crying baby, for the child that refuses to eat and is restless in its sleep. And since the basis of all health is the proper working of the digestive organs, look first to the condition of the stomach and bowels.

A child should have two full and free movements of the bowels a day. This emptying of the bowels is very important, as with it comes a clear head, a lightness of step, good appetite and sound sleep. But it is equally important to know what to give the child in the emergency of constipation and indigestion. Cathartics are too strong and salts and other purgatives are not only too strong, but the child refuses them because of their bad taste. Have you ever tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin? It is a liquid tonic that families have been using for a quarter of a century. It is mild, pleasant-tasting and promptly effective. It is good for you as well as the child, but there is nothing better to be found for children. They like its taste—you will not have to force them to take it.

First of all, if you have not yet used it, Dr. Caldwell would like to send you a sample bottle free of charge. In this way you can try it before buying. Later, when convinced of its merits, you can get it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as thousands of other families are doing. The family of Mr. D. W. Spangler of Strattonville, Pa., as well as that of Mr. A. F. Johnson of Walnut Grove, Tenn., started with it in that way and now write that it is their one family necessity next to food itself. If you are unfortunate enough to have a sickly child, one given to constipation and indigestion, you should send for a free sample of this remedy.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

THE VALUE OF RHUBARB.

If Mr. Burbank or some other naturalist should discover a fruit or vegetable which would prove as valuable an addition to the home garden or market truckman as has the rhubarb plant, surely the whole world would know it, and their fortune would be made. Rhubarb is one of the hardiest and most easily produted vegetables on the market, says the Rural New Yorker. It has a good sale at remunerative prices from Christmas until about May, when it becomes too plentiful in some markets. The summer prices range 75 cents to $1 per bushel, while earlier in the season two cents per stalk is a common price. An acre of rhubarb will yield approximately 4000 bushels in a year, but to obtain the highest prices of course it must be forced in a greenhouse or cellar. To do this the plants are lifted before the frost comes—about October 1—and place in good earth, where they have a warm temperature, but sunlight is not necessary.

A bed may be started by either sowing the seed or planting the roots. It takes a year longer to get started if the seed is sown, and the plants set with roots. These are set in the ground about two inches deep. The rows are four feet apart and the plants are set three feet apart in the row. October or November is the best time for planting, but it may also be done in early spring. After planting and when the ground is frozen hard it is all covered about three or four inches deep with coarse stable manure. In the spring the coarse manure is raked off and the finer part is forked or cultivated in between the rows. Very little cultivation is necessary except to keep the weeds down for a short time, when the large leaves practically cover the ground which keeps the weeds from growing. A bed started in October will yield a small crop the first year and a full crop the second. At the end of the second year the plants can be used for forcing, but they should only be used for this purpose once in three years. This can be done by using only a part of the bed each year. Rhubarb, or pie plant, as it is sometimes called, is valuable as both a food and a medicine. When canned for winter use it keeps perfectly and is always relished.

Protection of Fruit Trees.

Fruit trees are often injured severely—sometimes killed outright—by mice and rabbits in winter. In localities where these animals are found in large numbers some means of protection against their ravages should be resorted to. Several methods are advised by orchardists. One is to wrap the trunk of the tree with wire netting having a fine mesh, like that used in making window and door screens. This is easily put in place and will last a good many seasons if properly cared for in the spring. Another is to wrap the tree with tarred paper. Be sure that whatever is used as a wrapper reaches to the ground. It is a good plan to bank up against it, after putting it in place, with earth or snow, taking care, if the latter is used, to tramp it solidly into place. Some make use of a wash prepared as follows: One gallon sweet milk, two pounds flour of sulphur, two pounds yellow ochre, one dram tincture of assefoetida, one dram gum arabic and four eggs. The solid ingredients of this preparation must be dissolved and then mixed. Allow the mixture to stand 24 hours, then apply with a stiff brush. A simpler wash is made of soft soap, one gallon; water, one gallon, and two ounces crude carbolic acid. This will have to be applied two or three times during the winter. It does not take much time to make and apply a wash of this kind, and the expense is slight, but a precaution of this sort often prevents the loss of many valuable trees. Better take the precaution and make sure against possible loss.—Outing.

KING GEORGE NOW KING

Oath Administered to New Ruler.

POET AUSTIN'S TRIBUTE

English Ministers Laud Edward as England's Greatest King.

ENGLAND FEELS LOSS KEENLY

Kings Last Look of Recognition Was at His Beloved Queen.

"THE TRUTH OF GOD."

London, May 9.—Afred Austin, the poet laureate, has written the following on the occasion of the king's death, entitled "The Truce of God" with a sub title "A King's bequest:

What darkness deep as wintry gloom,
O'er shadows joyous spring?
In vain the vernal orchards bloom,
Vainly the woodlands sing.
Round royal shroud,
A mournful crowd,
'Is all now left of one but yesterday a king.

Thrones have there been of hateful fame,
Reared upon wanton war,
He we have lost still linked his name
With peace at home, afar,
For peace he wrought,
His constant thought
Being how to shield his realm against strife's baleful star.

So let us now all seek to rest
From fateful feuds release,
And mindful of his wise bequest
From faceteous clamors cease.
Treading the path he trod,
The sacred truth of God,
The path that points and leads to patriotic peace.

London, May 9.—The future steps remorselessly on the heels of the past. While the body of the dead king, Edward, lies awaiting removal from Buckingham palace to Windsor castle and the hearts of the royal family and his majesty's loyal subjects are wrung with sincere grief, official preparations are being made with dignified haste for the installment of his successor into the great office from which death suddenly removed Edward VII. Everything is now arranged for the proclamation of George V. and during the day, with all the stately forms and ceremonies handed down from England's historic and picturesque past, the new sovereign will be proclaimed king and emperor in the metropolis and the other great cities of the empire.

The nation is yet too much dominated by its acute sense of the loss sustained by King Edward's death to bestow more than formal well wishes upon his little known and diffident son. It was otherwise when Queen Victoria died. Edward, while Prince of Wales, had become known to the people intimately. He was known to every man in the street and was a popular idol everywhere in all walks of life. King George, on the other hand, owing partly to his extraordinary retiring disposition and partly to his father's overshadowing personality and popularity, has been little more than a figure head so far as a majority of the people are concerned.

Statesmen and politicians, however, are deeply interested in the new king. They are questioning everybody about him, trying to discover what underlies the shy disposition and diffident manner of the slender little man with the soft voice who is to reign over the nation. The sermons and other references in the pulpits of Great Britain brought home to many thousands even more keenly than the black bordered newspapers have done, how great a part King Edward played in the national life. His high ideal of kingship, his work for peace and his wise tactful personality were all themes of pulpit eulogy.

Nothing appeals more strongly to grave minded subjects of the dead Edward than such a conception of duty as he revealed during the last two days of life when, despite the protests of a group of the most eminent physicians of the metropolis, King Edward insisted between paroxysms of coughing, upon attend to the affairs of state. "No," he said, smilingly, "my back is to the wall. I shall fight it out."

It is not known whether Edward himself fully realized the gravity of his sudden illness, but it is significent of the sanctity with which he regarded the promise he made when taking the oath before the privy council in 1901 to work for the good of his people so long as breath was in his body, that the last words he spoke just before the final coma, were a renewed resolve to let public affairs alone. "No," said the dying king, "I shall not give in. I shall work to the end."

"There is a divinity which doth hedge a king" even when a king is dying that prevents the public from learning quickly the incidents of the death chamber for some time. His majesty had been unconscious, and none of those present in the death chamber hoped ever again to see the light of recognition in his eye. The queen stood by his majesty's side with her hand placed in that of her husband and nothing could be heard but the solemn voice of the archbishop of Canterbury as he read a prayer. Then, almost in the presence of death, Edward opened his eyes and with a look of recognition, gazed at the queen. Once again his eyes closed—this time in death. It was just as if he was sinking into sleep.

Her majesty bears her sorrow bravely. It is officially announced that she is fairly well and is facing her bereavement with calmness and resignation.

The Sound Sleep Of Good Health

The restorative power of sound sleep can not be over estimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Southers, Eau Claire, Wis., says:—"For a long time I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock. I eat and enjoy my meals, and my general condition is greatly improved. I can honestly recommend Foley's Kidney Pills as I know they have cured me." For sale by all druggists.

SWORN IN OF ENGLAND

QUEEN VICTORIA MARY.

Who Will Share the Cares of State with King George V.

GEORGE V. TAKES KINGS OATH

A Plain King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

London, May 9.—The king's privy council met early in the day and Earl Carew, the lord president, after announcing the death of King Edward, administered the oath to King George, immediately after which each member of the council swore allegiance to the new king in the form prescribed since the time of William the Conqueror.

Every arrangement has been made to meet calmly the crisis in financial and political conditions precipitated by the death of Kink Edward, and the financial leaders of the United Kingdom, headed by Lord Rothschild, announced that the public need have no cause for alarm.

The proclamation of the succession of George said that the privy council "with one voice and the consent of tongue and heart publish and proclaim that the high and mighty Prince George is now, by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory, become our only lawful and liege lord, George V., by the grace of God king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, defender of the faith, and Emperor of India, to whom we do acknowledge all faith and constant obedience, with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by whom kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal prince, George V., with long and happy years to reign over us."

The official proclamation of King George V. was made in the throne room at St. James' palace.

King George's first proclamation was issued immediately thereafter. In it he requires all officials to proceed with their duties. Formerly all offices, excepting the councilors, were vacated by the death of the sovereign.

POLITICIANS DECLARE TRUCE

Queen Alexandra Will Now Be Known as the Queen Mother.

London, May 9.—Politicians admit that there will be a truce between the government and the opposition, not only until after the funeral of the king, but until the country recovers from the adverse commercial effects of his sudden death, and that truce, unless even which cannot be foreseen now break out, may continue so long that a general election may be stayed off until late in the autumn and possibly until the end of the year.

It is stated in the future Queen Alexandra will choose to be known as the queen mother, a title that has not been used in England since the days of Henrietta Maria, consort of Charles I. The new queen will be known as Queen Mary. This title is taken by the expressed wish of King Edward who chose it some time ago.

The dower house of the queen mother will be Marlborough house. It was her first home in London, for she was brought there as a bride in 1863. It is suggested that Sandringham house may be used by the queen mother, although the extensive estate and the shooting may be devised to the Prince of Wales.

In all probability the queen mother will spend a portion of each year in her native Denmark. In 1907 she built a summer residence on Klampenborg bay, seven miles from Copenhagen which during the last two summers she shared with her sister the dowager empress of Russia. These sisters have always been deeply attached to each other and they will probably spend a great deal more time together in the future.

ROOSEVELT ENVOY TO KINGS FUNERAL

Accepts Appointment to Attend as Representative of U. S.

EUROPEAN ROYALTY ARRIVING

Relatives of the Dead King Reach London to Attend the Obsequies—Parliament Meets and Hears Message from George V.

London, May 12.—Advices from Washington say that Theodore Roosevelt has accepted by cable the appointment by President Taft to represent the United States at the funeral of King Edward. The cablegrams exchanged between the president and Col. Roosevelt are as follows:

"The White House, Washington, May 10. Roosevelt, care American Embassy, Berlin.

"I should be very glad if you would act as special ambassador to represent the United States at the funeral of King Edward VII. I am sure that the English people would be highly gratified at your presence in this capacity, and that our own people will strongly approve it. I have yet received no official notice of the funeral, but it is reported that it will take place on the 20th of this month. Please answer. "WILLIAM H. TAFT."

"Berlin, May 10.

"The President, Washington:

"Accept. ROOSEVELT."

The kin of the British royal family are arriving here to attend the funeral of the king.

Empress Dowager Marie of Russia, a sister of Queen Mother Alexandra, reached here accompanied by Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, younger brother of Emperor Nicholas, who will be the official representative of the Russian government at the funeral. The empress dowager and the grand duke were met at the railway station by King George and Queen Mary, who drove with them to Buckingham palace.

Parliament met to pay a national tribute to the memory of King Edward and to welcome his successor, George V.

A message from the new monarch, in which he announced the death of his father and his own succession, was read in both houses, which subsequently adopted addresses of condolence and congratulation to the king.

DOGS ATTACK A WOMAN

Seventy-Two-Year-Old Victim May Die of Her Injuries.

While She Is Returning from Grocery Store in Chicago Two Bulldogs Attack and Mangle Her.

Chicago, May 12.—With her face, throat, arms and body torn by the teeth of two bulldogs, Mrs. Mary Ryan, seventy-two years old, 136 South Western avenue, lies dying in Grace hospital. She was attacked by the dogs after she had purchased a bottle of milk at a grocery and was on her way home.

As the aged woman passed the residence of Albert Bixby, 2417 Wilcox avenue, the two dogs leaped from the railway of the building and sprang growling upon her. She called feebly for help, but in a minute the dogs had knocked her down and began biting her savagely.

One buried his teeth in her throat, tearing out the flesh; the other tore off her right cheek. After this the helpless woman was further bitten and lacerated by the dogs before they were driven off by rescuers.

Washington, May 12.—James S. Patten and his bull pool in wheat in May and July, 1909, are the target of a resolution offered by Representative Craig, Democrat, of Alabama.

The house judiciary committee voted to report the resolution, which asks the attorney general if any investigation or prosecution was ever begun against any persons for "illegally combining and conspiring to advance the price of wheat in the United States in May and July, 1909." Mr. Craig's action was taken in connection with his resolution of inquiry regarding the bulls and bears in the New York and New Orleans cotton market.

Attorney General Wickersham's subordinates said that there had been no formal investigation by the government of the wheat pool maintained by Mr. Patten.

NAGEL AND NEILL CONFER ON LABOR

Shocking Conditions Prevail in Steel Industry.

WORKERS HAVE NO REST DAY

Week's Work Is 84 Hours—12 Hours a Day for Seven Days of the Week—Relief Plan Is Suggested by Charles Neill.

Washington, May 12.—That "shocking" conditions generally prevail in the steel industry throughout the country, and are not confined to the Bethlehem Steel works at Bethlehem, Pa., as recently set forth in a report to the senate, is the substance is a statement made public by Charles Neill, commissioner of labor.

The statement was issued as a result of representations made by Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel works. In a recent conference with Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Mr. Schwab said the report to the senate put him in an unfair light, as it gave the impression that conditions at the Bethlehem works were exceptional in the steel industry. Following Mr. Schwab's visit, Secretary Nagel had a talk with Commissioner Neill.

In his statement Mr. Neill said the resolution of congress in response to which the recent report was transmitted, called specifically for a report as to the conditions in the Bethlehem Steel works, and that the report therefore did not deal with conditions in the steel industry in general. It is, however, perfectly true, he said, that in some departments the men work the entire seven days of the week, month in and month out, in the Bethlehem Steel works, and this has been the practice throughout the entire steel industry.

Commissioner Neil said that the annual reports of the bureau of labor on wages and hours show that in the blast furnaces in the steel industry eighty-four hours a week has been the working time in every section of the country and this means practically a twelve hour day and every day in the week. Continuing, Neill said:

"These are conditions of labor which may well be termed shocking, but they are not confined to the Bethlehem Steel works. Blast furnaces work is necessarily a continuous process, requiring operation twenty-four hours a day every day in the week, and for this reason three shifts of eight hours each offers the only plan of relief."

RAJAH INJURES KEEPER

Circus Elephant Runs Wild in Berkeley Streets.

Tony Lustano Is Seized by Infuriated Beast, Hurled to the Ground and Trampled Upon.

San Francisco, May 12.—Rajah, one of the biggest captive elephants in this country, broke away from the circus grounds here and ran wild through streets of Berkeley. His keeper, Tony Lustano, vainly tried to control the elephant, which seized the trainer with its trunk, flung him to the ground and then trampled on him.

Fortunately few people were on the streets and the circus employes soon subdued the elephant. The trainer was found to have two ribs fractured and to be suffering from internal injuries. Doctors fear the man will not recover.

STATUES TO WAR HEROES UNVEILED

Statues of Kosciusko and Pulaski Exposed to View.

POLES THRONG WASHINGTON

President Taft, Secretary of War Dickinson and John Smulski of Chicago Deliver the Principal

Washington, May 12.—An army of 10,000 American Poles took possession of the national capital for the dedication of the statues of Generals Pulaski and Kosciusko, the Polish heroes of the American revolution.

Appropriately enough for the city of the largest Polish population in the United States, Chicago took a leading part in the ceremonies of the double dedication. Everywhere the air was vibrant with the Polish language.

President Taft and John Smulski of Chicago were the principal speakers at the dedication of the Pulaski statue at Pennsylvania avenue and Thirteenth street.

The ceremonies were opened with prayer by Bishop Rhode of South Chicago. Then Secretary of War Dickinson, another Chicagoan, made the formal presentation of the statue to the nation. The president accepted on behalf of the republic. Then Mr. Smulski delivered an address in English in behalf of the Polish National alliance, which presented the statues.

The veil was lifted from the statue by Franz Pulaski, a great grandson of a brother of the famous general, who came from Warsaw for the celebration. A congratulatory message from Colonel Roosevelt was another feature.

From the Pulaski statue United States artillery and other troops, the official guests and and members of the Polish societies paraded through the streets to LaFayette square, where the dedication of the Kosciusko statue took place.

M. B. Stenzynski of Chicago opened the program with a speech in Polish, after which Anthony Schreiber of Buffalo made the presentation of the statue, which was received on behalf of the nation by Secretary Dickinson.

The Pulaski statue was designed by Kasimer Chodzinski and the Kosciusko statue by Anthony Popiel, a university professor from Galicia.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. THE BRASS BOX.

It Brought About the Speedy Marriage of the Lovers.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

The curio dealer weighed the brass box in his outstretched hand.

"It weighs all of a pound, sir," he said to Hayward. "I bought it ten years ago from the estate of a French antiquary with a lot of other stuff. No one seems to care for it, although I've offered it for almost nothing. It really is a paperweight. You see there is no lock or hinge. It is merely a lump of brass shaped somewhat like an ancient chest. If you care for it you can have it at your own price. It may interest you to know that it was once owned by"— He leaned forward and whispered a few words in his customer's ear.

"I'll take it," said Hayward promptly.

"I thought you would," said the dealer with a nod as he wrapped the brass box into a neat package.

Once in his own rooms Hayward examined the box with interest. It was, as the dealer had said, merely a lump of brass roughly molded into the shape of an ancient chest. The tracings that had once outlined false locks and hinges and nail studded bands were almost obliterated by dirt and discoloration. Restored to its original brightness, it would make a unique paperweight for his desk.

He would reserve the cleaning of the brass box, as he chose to call it, for a rainy evening. Some night when he was not due at Edith's—those evenings were the dullest of the week—he would restore the brass box.

Ten days afterward the rainy evening found him smoking a pipe before a cozy fire. The brass box was within easy reach of his hand, and near by was a drawer full of rags and oil and various chemicals, so he spread a newspaper on the floor and fell to work.

Little by little the discoloration yielded to his efforts until at last the brass box shone forth in the splendor of its primal luster, beautiful indeed.

Hayward admired the delicate engraving that the acids had revealed, and as he turned the box over in his hands the conviction grew upon him that the piece of brass had been intended for some other purpose than that of weighting piles of documents.

"I CAN'T DO IT," HE SAID FRANKLY.

If the curio had really belonged to that beautiful woman, a favorite of kings and whose lightest words had changed the destiny of an empire, as the shopkeeper had hinted, in itself it was valuable as a souvenir of the most famous woman of her time.

With his penknife he idly scraped clean the tracery of a little circle drawn on one end of the box. It was perhaps a quarter of an inch in diameter, and in the center of the circle was a dot. The circle and the dot formed part of a similar decoration that ran around the ends and sides of the box.

As he worked it appeared to Hayward that this circle was different from its fellows; the line was more deeply indented than the light tracery of the others. As he realized this the young man pursued his labors until the point of a fine blade could be inserted to the depth of an eighth of an inch in the aperture.

Examination of the other end of the box revealed the same conditions in the center circle of the row. After diligently cleaning the second circle Hayward now had before him what appeared to be a small round rod running from one end of the box to the other, yet so tightly wedged in as to be immovable by ordinary means. The purpose of this rod was yet to be determined. Its presence there convinced him that the box was indeed a box.

He placed it in his vise and with hammer and tools prepared to force the rod out of the box. It was long after midnight when it suddenly yielded to his efforts and fell to the floor.

Hayward picked it up and carried it to the lamp. It was a small steel cylinder four inches in length, capped on either end by the circle of brass. It was the work of another hour to pry out the rusted cap from one end and reveal a hollow cavity.

From the cavity there dropped a small roll of stiff parchment, yellowed with age and much creased and worn. Hayward's fingers trembled as he unfolded with reverent fingers this missive that had come so strangely to him out of a dead century.

His face paled as he saw the royal crest that topped the sheet and the kingly signature that followed the finely written words. The letter was in French, and as he read the tender, endearing epithets to this woman whom a king had loved Hayward realized that into his alien hands had fallen a great secret which, if revealed, with its hint of plot and counterplot, would prove the literary sensation of a lifetime.

He had but to go forth and say: "See what I have found in an old brass box picked up in an auction room. It is a monarch's autograph letter to his sweetheart. It is as simple and pure in its tender sentiment as a letter that you or I or any other commoner might write, and yet it contains a secret which the world would snatch at eagerly, a mystery for which historians have probed in vain, a doubt which has inspired a mighty volume of speculation! It is here. How much am I offered?"

If he published his find to the world it meant riches to him. It meant more than enough to marry upon and be happy. Edith had waited two years for him to make good the promise of his brilliant college career. Another year or so of upward struggle and he would have arrived at his desired goal. But if in those years he might have Edith by his side!

If he published the letter he had found in the brass box he would be rich. They could be married immediately. Not one man in a hundred would have hesitated, yet Robin Hayward did. He was the exceptional man.

He carried this problem, as he had many others, to Edith herself. The next evening found him explaining his purchase of the brass box and the wonderful secret it contained.

Edith Layton brooded over the royal love letter with tender eyes.

"That is real love, Robin," she said at last. "The poor woman must have treasured the letter. See how it is worn and creased with much reading. She could never bear to part with it, and so she had this box made with the secret cylinder in which to conceal her precious possession. She would not have dared keep it otherwise, and possibly she hoped it would be buried with her."

Hayward nodded. "She died suddenly, you know."

"She probably did not realize that she might be leaving the letter for posterity to scoff at. I know you feel just as I do, Robin. If it would do any good to the world, if it taught a lesson or added to the world's literature—but it does not! What shall you do with it?" Her question came directly at him, as he knew it would come. Her clear gray eyes sought his anxiously, as if she doubted whether he might withstand the temptation.

Hayward stiffened in his chair. "I am tempted to sell it for money, for a price that will enable me to offer you a home worthy of you. That is what I want to do," he said bluntly.

She made no reply. She knew the temptation that assailed him, and she knew the struggle he was making against his better principles.

No man had greater pride in the fruits of his personal endeavor than Robin Hayward. She wanted him to prove his capabilities, not to purchase an easy road to fortune through bartering the frailties of persons long dead. She wanted him to fight a fight and come out victorious.

"We could be married at once," said Hayward, rising and going to her with outstretched hands.

She placed her hands in his. "We could," she said slowly.

"Do you mean it, darling?" he cried ecstatically.

"Yes, Robin."

Five minutes later he was on his way to the door. "I am sure Latham will want the whole thing. You know, he is writing a history of the French courts, and this will be a 'find' for him." He paused abruptly as his glance encountered the stern visage of Edith's grandfather in its gilded frame near the door.

That sturdy American pioneer, Simeon Layton, had asked no odds of any century save his own. No other hands had helped to pile up the immense fortune that arose like a barrier between Hayward and the girl he loved. High ideals, hard work, pluck and steady application had made him a model citizen and a rich man.

With a sudden revulsion of feeling Hayward looked away from the portrait to Edith standing before the fire. She always wore her plainest gowns when Robin came, and now, standing there in her simple white dress, with his modest ring shining alone on her slender hand, she seemed very near within his reach. He would win her by work alone. Every dollar that he earned might pull down a dollar of that great wall of wealth that stood between them.

"I can't do it," he said brusquely. With a single stride he was beside her, and the king's autograph letter fluttered from his hand and fell into the fire. In an instant it was licked into flames and then flew, a gray ghost, up the chimney.

"I was sure you'd do that, Robin," she said, leaning her head against his shoulder. "And now, if you like, I will marry you any time!"

"Dearest, I cannot let you. I shall be poor for a year to come, and you will miss all this!" He flung his hand toward the richly furnished room. "I must work hard and make you a fortune and then"—

"You will work hard and build your fortune, and I—I will be your apprentice. We will work together. Think how sweet that will be!"

"And we will keep the brass box for a mascot," he said.

THE SAVIOUR'S TEACHINGS
BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDIES

THEY HATED ME WITHOUT A CAUSE.

Matthew 12:22-32; 38-42.—May 15.

"He that is not with me is against me; and he that gatheredh not with me scattereth abroad."—V. 30.

SOMETIMES on a battle field it would appear as though each man were fighting for himself. All battle lines seem lost in the confusion; yet in the end the victory will show the same clear-cut distinctions as prevailed in the beginning of the battle. According to the Great Teacher the entire human family is either on one side or on the other side of a great battle between right and wrong, truth and error, God and Satan. There is no doubt whatever as to how the battle will end—God will have the victory. Indeed the Bible assures us that at any time he could quickly put an end to the conflict, deliver his saints, overthrow Satan and his empire, etc. The Divine promise is that this will be done in God's "due time"—when the Church will be completed and changed by the power of the First Resurrection, and the time shall come for the establishment of Messiah's Millennial Kingdom for the blessing of all the nations of the earth.

Is it asked why the long delay of now six thousand years that sin has triumphed, two thousand of this since Messiah died for the redemption of sinners and their release from the death sentence? The answer is that during these nineteen centuries those whom he has favored with some knowledge of his will—testing their loyalty to him, to his Law, to his representatives—he is testing because he seeks to find, amongst those professing loyalty, such as have the principles of righteousness at heart. Our present Study shows how some at the First Advent were thus tested and we know that throughout these nineteen centuries the experience of the footstep followers of the Nazarene have been similar to his own. Frequently they have been hated without cause—maligned, misunderstood, slandered—sometimes by fellow-religionists of honorable standing. In every such instance we are to remember that there are but two sides to the conflict—the side of God, truth, righteousness, and the side of error, falsehood, Satan.

As we see how blindly scribes and Pharisees and Doctors of the Law hated Jesus and said all manner of evil against him, we perceive that really they were on Satan's side. As we see Saul of Tarsus stoning Stephen to death and others persecuting followers of Jesus, we see clearly that they were in Satan's service, deluded by him and, in some instances, we are assured that these servants of Satan and unrighteousness verily thought that they did God service. Let us therefore be on guard along these lines, remembering the words of the Great Teacher, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." "He that is not for me is against me." "He that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad." Alas, how many noble people have unwittingly been on the wrong side of the great controversy—fighting against God and the Truth, ignorantly deluded by the Adversary. By permitting this conflict and the measure of darkness, God is the more effectively trying, testing, those whom he has called to be his people. Not only are we tried directly as to the side we will take, but, in a secondary sense, we are tried as respects our humility. Those who are honest of heart and who make the mistake of fighting against God, when their eyes are opened, have a great test of humility in the matter of confession of their error and becoming zealous for the Truth. Those who are on the right side have also a test of humility that they be not puffed up by their victory, but humble themselves under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt them in due time.

Satan, because created on a higher plane, is styled the Prince of demons in his relationship to the fallen angels. Judge of the delusion in the hearts of the Pharisees which prompted them to charge the Master with being Satan himself and, on this score, accounted for his power to cast out demons! The Master took the time to philosophize with them on this subject and to show that if the time had come when Satan would work against his own associates and servants it would imply the speedy fall of his empire. He also pointed out that demons had been cast out by some whom they acknowledged and honored. If he must be Beelzebub to cast out the demons, what would their logic be in respect to their neighbors and friends who at times had exercised this power? On the other hand, if he, by God's power, cast out demons, it was an evidence that God's Kingdom was nigh, just as he had proclaimed.

Having thus answered their objection, he showed that they were against him and opposing his Word and that this meant that if he were God's representative, they were opposing God. Then he called their attention to the fact that their words were blasphemous in that they attributed God's Spirit, God's power in him, to Satan's power. Since they did this without any real provocation and in opposition to every evidence, it implied that they were wicked at heart. Ordinary sins resulting from the fall, ignorance, superstition, etc., would all, in God's providence, be ultimately forgivable, but a wilful sin against light, against knowledge, would be a sin against God's Spirit. And for that sin there would be no forgiveness, either in this Age, or in the coming Age—neither during this Gospel Age nor in the Millennial Age. If the sin were committed against full light, its merit or punishment would be destruction, Second Death. But very evidently it would be such a sin to only a few. With the majority there would be a mixture of wilfulness with ignorance, and, if so, the proportion of wrong represented by the ignorance could be forgiven; but the proportion represented by the wilfulness would need the extreme penalty, because unforgivable.

The scribes and Pharisees, envious of his popularity, asked for a sign, a proof of his Messiahship—not recognizing his teachings and his miracles as proofs sufficient. He then told them of one sign which would come to them too late—his stay in the tomb would correspond to Jonah's stay in the belly of the great fish. The people of heathen Nineveh in the Judgment Age, in the Millennial Age, he assured them, would rank higher than they, for the Ninevites did repent at the preaching of Jonah, while these repented not at the preaching of a greater than Jonah. The Queen of Sheba had journeyed afar to hear Solomon's wisdom; yet these were in the presence of a greater than Solomon and realized it not and heeded not his message. Let us not be thus blinded, but, with our whole hearts, accept and follow the Nazarene!

Feeding Beef Feeds the Soil.

The question of maintaining soil fertility is a vital one to all farmers. An analysis of foods used in experimental feed lots at Purdue experiment station shows that the plant foods in the form of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, which a farm crop contains, if replaced in the form of commercial fertilizers would actually cost more than the average selling value of the particular crop. This is especially true of rough feeds such as clover, shredded stover and wheat and oat straw. If these same crops are fed to beef cattle less than 10 per cent of this plant food is sold when the animal goes to market. Feeders generally buy sufficient plant food in the form of bran, cotton seed meal or linseed meal to replace this 10 per cent. Thus the fertility of the land is actually augmented instead of depleted by growing steers. Another important item and one which should not be overlooked is that the fertility supplied is of vegetable origin having value as humus that no commercial fertilizer possesses.

Why I Like the Mule.

Because he is the most tireless worker on the farm. He never gets excited in a heavy pull. He eats less than a horse, but does more work. He is always as good as cash in the bank. He never falls through a hole in a bridge, and generally keeps out of danger He is an excellent saddle animal if you know how to saddle him. His feet stand hard roads better than those of a horse. He is more intelligent than a horse. He is never in love, but attends strictly to business all the time. He is never sick but once and then he dies. But whoever saw a dead mule since the war? He never stops to fight flies as a horse does, because his hide is tougher. He is just as gentle as a horse if he has not been spoiled in breaking. His age cuts little figure in a sale; nobody cares much how old a mule is. He will bring from $150 to $250 when he is full grown if he is big and smooth and strong.—Jacob Berg in Indiana Farmer

MICHIGAN NEWS.

State Geologist Allen has gone to the Iron River district to begin the work of mapping that district with the aid of five expert assistants. The work will probably take until October

Just how much will be mapped is uncertain but the portion mapped will contain information regarding mineral and rock deposits in every acre of the district. It is believed new beds of ore will be discovered as a result of this work.

If Chase S. Osborn, candidate for governor, does as he tried to induce the other candidates to do, he will lay aside campaigning until June 1, and then take up the battle again decked in full war paint. The month of May ee wanted to be kept free from political talk fests and give the people a rest as well es themselves. The other two candidates are still able to talk.

BASE BALL

The opening game of baseball in Adrian bought out all the beauty and chivalry of the city and the nearby towns. The streets were crowded with eager rooters. The parade was headed by the Imperial band and the local Elks leading the two clubs. Mayor Treat pitched the first ball which the league secretary, James Fra k tried to catch. President Navin of the Tigers was in one of the boxes.

Stores were closed and factories were shut down for a half holiday, and the Adrian club did honor to their town by handing Saginaw a shut out 4 to 9. Success to the Adrian club. May they go iu to win for the season.

SOMETHING FOR SCHOOL BOYS

The high school boys of Saginaw about 20 in number will plant a plot of ground donated by W. R. Burt to sugar beet seed. The ground has been prepared for them and they have to plant the seed and watch them grow. The work is taken up as an experiment, the success or failure will develop later. Where can the boys of our schools have a plot, and would it not be a fine thing for them to plant and cultivate some crop this season.

HOW TO IMPROVE CORN.

The following hints for improving corn are given by Farm, Stock and Home: First select a piece of land—an acre or a half acre will do. We will call this the nursery or seed patch. This seed patch should be isolated from other fields to be planted to corn. Plant the best seed obtainable and of a variety suitable to the locality in which you live. Give this seed patch extra care in the way of cultivation; pull or cut away all suckers, and before the plants bloom cut off or detassel all inferior stalks. Allow none but well-developed plants to bloom and fertilize the growing crop. It is important that this be attended to before the plants bloom. From this seed patch select the finest ears to plant the seed patch the following year. Select ears of good form; ears that are well filled from tip to butt; ears that mature earliest, to transmit the quality of early maturity. Ears should be chosen that grow as low down on the stalk as possible; bear in mind that early maturity is an important factor in all regions north of central Iowa. The joint of the stalk that the ear is produced from has an important bearing on early maturity. It is a well-established fact that all varieties of corn, that produce the ear high up on the stalk are late in maturing, while a variety that produces the ear low down, say the fourth or sixth joint from the ground, matures earlier under the same soil and climatic conditions. After more than 50 years special study and a personal visit to and close inspection of many hundreds of fields of growing corn, the writer is convinced of this fact.

MAY PARTY

A GREAT SUCCESS.

About 60 Couple Present.

The May party given by the young ladies of Tecumseh on Tuesday evening was one of the prettiest ever given here. The hall was a bower of beauty being decorated with lilacs and greens in the most artistic manner. The air was redolent with the perfume of the flowers.

There were about 60 couple present and the grand march led by Gertrude Bowen of Adrian with Lester Heesen as partner, was a very graceful one. The changes were quite intricate but were followed in a very fine manner. Several new dances were introduced and reflected great credit on the many gay participants.

There were quite a number of visitors from other towns to help make merry and the wee sma' hours resounded to the music of tripping footsteps, and how beautiful were the many gowns as they flashed their colors here and there, now billowy white then a tint of rose or a gleam of blue as the merry dancers passed in the giddy whirl. Surely it was a scene of youth and beauty and a delight to all beholders. The color scheme for the refreshments was red and white, consisting of red punch, white ice cream and cake and strawberries.

Taken all together the party was a great social success and reflected great credit on those who worked so faithfully in getting it up.

MUCH MISTERY IN HER DEATH

THREE RIVERS YOUNG WOMAN LOSES LIFE AND VALUABLES IN CHICAGO

THREE RIVERS, Mich., May 10—George T. Wolf and Dr. Scidmore, of this city, left for Chicago to attend the autopsy on the body of Miss Anna Kincaid, the Three Rivers young woman who died in that city following an operation about three weeks ago.

With the death of Miss Kincaid a mystery has developed. She was the daughter of a late physician of this city and was a devout Christian Scientist. Before going to Chicago she placed in the State bank at this place a box containing a life insurance policy for $6,000, $5,000 in bonds and other currency. This has since disappeared and according to reports was sent to Chicago, supposedly at the request of Miss Kincaid. When the news of her death reached this place friends of the woman conducted a quiet investigation and learned of the missing valuables. They at once went to Chicago and notified the police with tae result that the body was ordered disinterred and a thorough investigation started. —Detroit News.

The body of Miss Kincaid was brought to Tecumseh for interment about 3 weeks ago and the post mortem was held Tuesday. The results were such as to justify the investigation and time may develope facts that will prove foul play.

SEATON ANDERSON

Passed Away at Midnight Thursday

ONE OF TECUMSEH'S MOST PUBLIC SPIRITED AND PROMINENT BUSINESS MEN

Will Be Missed and Mourned by the Whole Community.

A great shock came to the people of Tecumseh this morning when the news was received of the sudden death of Seaton W. Anderson. His illness was of such short duration, that even his most immediate family had not realized that there was anything serious in his condition.

He was one of the most public spirited men Tecumseh has ever known, was ever ready to advance the interest of the town, and no one ever came to him for council or advice that he did not give them of his best.

As a business man for over 40 years Mr. Anderson had made many friends both at home and abroad, who will miss his kindly face and cheerful welcome. It is difficult to pay a fitting tribute to the memory of such a one whose life was a blessing and a benefaction to all within its influence.

So is the death of such a one a public misfortune as well as an irreparable loss to the home circle made desolate by his departure. In the presence of such a sorrow, how cold and impotent are words. But we know that his many friends join with us in expressions of deepest sympathy to his wife, his daughter Helen and his son Faron. Funeral Monday at 3 o'clock.

THE SOUTHLAND

Concert At M. E. Church Wednesday Eve May 11th.

The concert given by the Southland Nightingales Wednesday evening proved a great success and was a rich treat to the lovers of music and song. The impersonations were exceptionally fine and the comical hits were received with applause. The attendance was very good indeed. The trio had a day off Thursday and spent it in Tecumseh in fishing and other recreations and complimented us on the beauty of our town.

Move Out When Hyomei Moves In.

No stomach dosing. Hyomei is made chiefly of oil of eucalyptus and eucalytol taken from the eucalyptus forests of inland Australia, and combined with the excellent antiseptics employed in the Listerian system.

In inland Australia the atmosphere is so impregnated with balsam thrown out by the eucalyptus trees that germs cannot live, and in consequence catarrh and consumption are unknown.

Breath Hyomei and get the same pleasant germ killing air as you would get in the eucalyptus forests.

Hyomei is sold by druggists everywhere and by C. A. Wright & Son at $1.00 a complete outfit.

An outfit consists of a bottle of Hyomei, a hard rubber pocket inhaler and full instructions for use. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, but if you need another bottle of Hyomei you can get it at druggists for only 50c at any time. Guaranteed to cure catarrh, croup and throat troubles or money back. POULTRY NOTES.

A news item claims that the first three months period record of an egg-laying contest in England resulted in six Buff Plymouth Rock pullets leading with 374 eggs, which is on a basis of 249 eggs per hen per year, with three-quarters of the year to be heard from. Buff Orpingtons took second, fourth and sixth places, with an average of 343 eggs. The Buff Rocks lay their weight in eggs in less than three months.

In looking over the reports of the poultry shows we fail to find any mention of prize capons. This is about equal to having a cattle show without a beef-steer contest. The poultry fanciers don't seem to consider meat production as having any place in the chicken business.

It is just as well to have a well-bred chicken as a well-bred horse or cow. Any amount of food and care will not make a mongrel as profitable as a pure-bred under the same conditions.

Healthy breeding stock is not found in a hen house that is only cleaned out once a year. Houses should be cleaned out every week. Bad odors accumulate where droppings are allowed on the floors.

We cannot learn all about an incubator from a book. Experience comes from work in all lines of the poultry business. Raising poultry is a fascinating occupation, but it is not a successful business until one can be sure of good results from the use of an incubator. The incubator is like any other machine—it requires intelligence and preseverance and some skill. The incubators are all good, but they do not always receive constant attention.

Did you ever notice that the hens that have range about the stables are the best layers on the place? The question is how to make the hens lay more than ordinarily. If you look at it right, you will see why the hens at the barns and sheds lay the most eggs. They always have a deep litter to scratch in. There is plenty of scratching and digging to do in order to find the grains which are hidden away. They are at home, happy and contented. That is the natural condition of the hen.

John Fales, living near Waterloo, Ia., has a brood of seven chickens that were hatched without the aid of a hen or incubator. During the hot dry weather of August he discovered that one of his hens had laid seven eggs in the seed box of his corn planter, which he had left on the south side of his barn. To protect the eggs until later, when he expected to take them to the house, he closed the lid, but that was the last he thought of the eggs. One day about three weeks later his hired man while passing the planter, was attracted by a noise within the box. He raised the lid and found seven thrifty young chickens. During all the time the eggs were in the planter the sun had been beating down with abnormal heat by day, and there had been no rains or very cold nights to check the development of the embryo chicks.

Free Sample For Baby's Ills

Something can and must be done for the puny, crying baby, for the child that refuses to eat and is restless in its sleep. And since the basis of all health is the proper working of the digestive organs, look first to the condition of the stomach and bowels.

A child should have two full and free movements of the bowels a day. This emptying of the bowels is very important, as with it comes a clear head, a lightness of step, good appetite and sound sleep. But it is equally important to know what to give the child in the emergency of constipation and indigestion. Cathartics are too strong and salts and other purgatives are not only too strong, but the child refuses them because of their bad taste. Have you ever tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin? It is a liquid tonic that families have been using for a quarter of a century. It is mild, pleasant-tasting and promptly effective. It is good for you as well as the child, but there is nothing better to be found for children. They like its taste—you will not have to force them to take it.

First of all, if you have not yet used it, Dr. Caldwell would like to send you a sample bottle free of charge. In this way you can try it before buying. Later, when convinced of its merits, you can get it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. Just as thousands of other families are doing. The family of Mr. D. W. Spangler of Strattonville, Pa., as well as that of Mr. A. F. Johnson of Walnut Grove, Tenn., started with it in that way and now write that it is their one family necessity next to food itself. If you are unfortunate enough to have a sickly child, one given to constipation and indigestion, you should send for a free sample of this remedy.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

PACIFIC TRAIN HELD UP

Crime Committee By Two Men Near Phoenix, Ariz.

Sheriff on Way to Penitentiary is Relieved of His Guns and Passengers' Valuables Taken.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 12.—All passengers to the number of seenteen, together with the conductor and brakeman on a Southern Pacific train which left Maricopa for the thirty mile run to Phoenix, were held up here by two men who boarded the train with the passengers at Maricopa. They went first to the smoking car, where one robber stood in the door and covered the passengers while the other went through the car.

A deputy sheriff from Globe, conveying two prisoners to the penitentiary, had his gun taken and all the guns of the other passengers were taken. The robbers then went to the rear coach containing mostly women and took all their money. The robbers were young men, apparently cowboys and did not molest the express car.

WORK RUSHED ON MANSION

Approaching Wedding of Miss Harriman Causes Great Activity.

Middletown, N. Y., May 12.—The approaching wedding of Miss Mary Harriman, which, it is said, will take place at the country mansion on Tower Hill, at Arden, Orange county, is causing great activity on the Harriman estate at that place.

The house, which was the pride of the late E. H. Harriman, is now occupied by 150 carpenters, decorators and painters, who have been directed to have a certain number of rooms in readiness on the day of the wedding.

One on the Stranger.

It was at the country grocery.

"When I was fishing in the mountain pool," said the nature faker on the herring keg, "I dropped my watch over-board and a big trout gulped it down on the spot."

"That's queer," spoke up the unsophisticated city man. "I thought that trout were fond of insects?"

"So they are, mister."

"Well, why did this one swallow the watch?"

"Well, I don't know for certain, but I reckon he was after the tick. That's one on you stranger."

And the unsophisticated city man had to "set up" the cider for the crowd.

Where field peas were used as a green manure for the preparation of land for winter wheat in some Ontario experiments, an average age of a about 6.5 bushels more wheat per acre was secured than where buckwheat was plowed under.

In starting a strawberry bed for home use three rows four or five rods long will yield all the berries a large family can take care of.

FOREST FIRES STILL BURN

No Rain Has Fallen in Minnesota So Far This Spring.

Reports from Calumet, Allston, Hainedale, South Range and Baltic Are More Encouraging.

St. Paul, May 12.—Owing to the unusual drought in Minnesota the forests in the north and eastern part of the state, in northern Wisconsin and Michigan have been burning for several days, and great damage has been done. So far, however, no fatalities have been reported. No rain has fallen in Minnesota this spring in any amount.

Reports from Calumet, Mich., state that the fires about Allston, Hainedale, South Range and Baltic are less serious. From Cass Lake, Minn., the reports are reassuring.

MADMEN SAVED AT SEA

Sailors Rescue Shipwreck Victim from School of Sharks.

Ship Tocantines Also Saves Fourteen Other Fishermen from Capsized Boat—Entire Crew Crazy.

New York, May 12.—The steamship Tocantines, a famous vessel which ran the mined harbor of Port Arthur to escape from the Russians, swings gracefully at her dock in Brooklyn after a trip from Brazil, bringing a new tale of adventure and rescue.

The gold medal won by the captain and presented by the Brabilian government commemorates this latest achievement of the little ship—the saving of sixteen fishermen off the Brazilian coast March 22. The first of the sixteen men was sighted by the lookout before dawn. He was clinging to a plank in the open sea and waving a weak arm to the oncoming ship.

A school of sharks swam about him and his rescuers found that his legs had been badly torn by the big fish. The man had been in the water twenty-four hours and had eaten his last meal six days before. He had set out from Rio Janeiro with fifteen companions.

A squall took away their rig and left them to drift. All went crazy except this one man, who was compelled to take to the water to escape his companions' frenzy. After hearing his story the Tocantines cruised about several hours, finally locating the wreck and rescuing all the fishermen.

TWO ENGINEERS DROWNED

Members of Corps Constructing Water Plant Near Helena.

Newburgh, N. Y., May 12.—According to a dispatch received here John Catchart, a graduate of Yale, was drowned in a river twelve miles from Helena, Mont. Catchart was a member of an engineering corps engaged in the construction of a water plant near Helena. He and other men were stretching a wire across a river preparatory to making soundings.

The wire was fastened to one side of the river and they were paying it out from a reel at the bottom of a boat. The wire caught at the bottom of the river and pulled the stern of the boat below the surface. When the boat began to fill, Catchart and his companions jumped into the river, and two, including Catchart, were drowned.

KING'S BODY LIES IN THRONE ROOM

Remains Go to Westminster Hall Tuesday Morning.

ROYAL SERVICE HELD TONIGHT

Public Obsequies Begin at Noon on Tuesday and Continue Until Departure of Cortege for Windsor Castle, Friday, May 20.

London, May 16. — Court, military and municipal officials, working at high pressure for the past few days, have completed the details of the arrangements for the king's funeral ceremonies this week. The preliminary obsequies began when the king's body, after his brother, the Duke of Connaught, took his farewell look, was removed from the simple death room to the splendid throne room of the palace, which has been converted into a chapelle ardente, where it lay privately in state Sunday and today. On Tuesday it will be removed with processional pomp to Westminister hall, where it will lie publicly in state until Friday.

Upon the arrival of the body at Westminster hall at noon Tuesday there will be a brief religious service conducted by the archbishop of Canterbury and the bishop of London. The service will be attended by the members of the house of lords and the house of commons.

The only sign of decoration in the ancient hall will be a purple cloth covering the platform of the catafalque, and the trappings of the bier. The king and queen, the queen mother and other royal mourners will be grouped about the catafalque during the brief service. Tonight the king, queen, queen mother, other members of the royal family, officials, and servants of the palace, will attend a special devotional service before the body is removed to Westminster hall Tuesday morning.

The participation of the public in the obsequies will begin Tuesday noon, when the public lying-in-state begins. From then until the departure of the cortege from Paddington station for Windsor castle Friday the inhabitants and visitors will be spectators of a succession of solemn and impressive services.

In King Edward's funeral the people will be able to see the transit of the coffin from the palace to Westminster hall, the two days' lying-in-state, and the final military pageant Friday, when the cortege will traverse [illegible]

The city will be crowded Tuesday with an army of spectators, who are flocking to town from the provinces and the continent. During four mournful days the people will pay a tribute to the royal dead that will probably be greater than any such tribute paid before.

An idea of the probable cost of the funeral can be gained from the expense in connection with Queen Victoria's. The latter amounted to $150,000, of which $42,500 was spent for the entertainment of royal foreign guests, and $50,000 for the expenses of the troops. Many more royalties will be present at King Edward's funeral than were at Queen Victoria's.

ILLINOIS WHEAT HURT

Loss to the Winter Crop Placed At 11 Per Cent.

Since the Frosts of April 22-24 the Outlook for Fruit Has Not Been Favorable.

Springfield, May 16.—Eleven per cent of the winter wheat of Illinois seeded last fall for harvest in 1910 has been killed, according to a report just issued by the state board of agriculture.

The destruction is charged chiefly to Hessian fly and to floods. Part of the crop has been winter killed.

The total acreage seeded was 1,174,700, which leaves an acreage of 1,049,413 for harvest. The report is based on subreports made to Secretary J. R. Dickerson of the board up to May 1, by the board's force of correspondents.

The report says of fruits "that the abnormal temperature of March caused trees to blossom early and the prospect for the fruit crop of 1910 was most encouraging until the frosts of April 22-24. Since that time the outlook has been most unfavorable, although many correspondents are hopeful regarding the strawberry and blackberry crops. In the southern division of the state apples are expected to average one-fourth to one-half a crop."

Syracuse, N. Y., May 16.—After murdering her 15-year-old daughter, Hazel, Mrs. Emma Chapman, aged 47 years, wife of Chief of Police Charles F. Chapman, of Baldwinsville, committed suicide. The tragedy was enacted at the Chapman home at Baldwinsville with a revolver.

Until two weeks ago Mrs. Chapman was under the care of a specialist at a Syracuse hospital almost hopelessly insane. While the chief and his sister were asleep Mrs. Chapman found the revolver and going to her daughter's room fired a bullet into the girl's left temple. Then she fired another into her own right temple.

This is the longest flight made with the exception of one made by Wilbur Wright from Governor's Island to Grant's tomb and return, and the flight of Glenn H. Curtiss for the Scientific American trophy was made practically over the same grounds.

Wayman Seeks to Get Possession of Representative Link and Burke Plans to Summon the Cook County Grand Jury.

Chicago, May 16—A writ of habeas corpus to get Representative Michael S. Link out of the jurisdiction of the Sangamon county courts has been prepared by State's Attorney Wayman for presentation to Judge Kersten.

Link was put under arrest at Springfield on a charge of contempt of court because he refused to give his confession of the legislative bribery scandal to the Sangamon county grand jury, although promised immunity.

State's Attorney Edmund Burke of Sangamon county is prepared to summon, if necessary, every legislator, Democrat or Republican, who voted for Senator Lorimer, and began by calling Representatives Charles Durfee and Thomas Campbell to appear before the grand jury.

State's Attorney Burke announced in Springfield that he is planning a new coup. He declares he contemplates the issuance of subpoenas for members of the Cook county grand jury, which has about finished its investigation of the bribery scandal, requiring them to appear before the Sangamon county inquisitors and repeat the testimony heard in Chicago. In this way Mr. Burke plans to get State's Attorney Wayman's entire case before the local grand jury at the start.

Also in this way he intends to get before the grand jury the confession of Representative Link of Mitchell who refused to testify and was arrested on the order of Judge Robert [illegible]

PEARY GIVES LECTURE

Address in Rome Is Attended by King and Duke of Abruzzi.

Receives Medal From Geographical Society—Congratulated on His North Pole Success.

Rome, May 16. — The hall of the Roman college was decorated with American and Italian flags for Commander Peary's Lecture. The hall was overcrowded. The king and the Duke of the Abruzzi attended. The explorer was presented by the president of the Geographical society. It was announced that the society had awarded its gold medal to Commander Peary and a silver replica to Capt. Bartlett, the Nova Scotian, who commanded the steamer Roosevelt on the expedition.

Commander Peary, in acknowledging the honor, said he had merely profited by the experience of his predecessors, among whom the Duke of the Abruzzi and Cogni were foremost. Hence his success was shared by them. The secretary of the Geographical society read a laudary Italian address. The audience applauded. After the lecture the king and the Duke of the Abruzzi heartily congratulated Peary.

SENATOR OWEN MAKES ADDRESS

Solon From Oklahoma Define Meaning of An Insurgent.

SAYS GOOD GOVERNMENT IS AIM

Meeting Held Under Auspices of the American Civic Alliance in Columbia Theater in City of New York.

New York, May 16.—Senator Robert M. Owen of Oklahoma, who is a bit of an insurgent in congress himself, told an audience gathered at the Columbia theater under the auspices of the American Civic Alliance that the single aim of the insurgents at Washington was to bring about honest government within their party, alone if they could, but in conjunction with the Democrats if they had to.

Henry Clews, who presided over the meeting, introduced the senator from Oklahoma as one who could tell a New York audience something new and informing about the mysterious body in congress which was doing things under the name of insurgents.

Senator Owen put before his audience categorically just what in his conception the insurgents stood for. He recited their platform tersely thus:

"The insurgents in congress represent a protest of the people against the rule of the few. They represent a protest of righteousness and fair dealing against the craft and sordid meanness of special privilege. Intrenched by possession of the machinery of a great party. They represent lower prices for the people against higher prices for the monopoly. The insurgents stand for reform and an improved condition within the ranks of the Republican party—if that be possible. They are marching steadily in the direction of the rule of the people against the rule of the few. The chief insurgents believe cordially in the election of senators by direct vote of the people; they believe in the initiative and referendum; the mandatory primary; honest registration; the Australian ballot and a fair count; in the corrupt practices act; in the right of recall. The distinctive badge of insurgency is integrity and courage under difficulties.

"Both parties are affected by much politics," said Senator Owen, "and the party in power infinitely more because the party in power can deliver the rewards of corrupt bargaining and the minority party cannot. Corruption in public life knows no such thing as party. It is a question of opportunity and opportunity alone.

"All honor to the insurgents, who are making a gallant fight for the purging of the party to which they belong. All honor to the Democrat who refuses to recognize or connive at organized rascality on the inside of his own party."

The young woman was but 23 years old. For several years the young couple had been engaged, and about eight weeks ago she was stricken with tuberculosis. When it became apparent that her life would go out before nightfall, and listening to the pleadings of her lover, she consented to the ceremony.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

THE MISSING INGREDIENT.

An Inventor Left His Secret Guarded Well.

BY EVELYN WITWOTH.

[Copyright 1910 by American Press Association.]

"Oh, father, I'm afraid that some day you'll blow yourself up."

"Never fear, sweetheart! There is but one thing combustible about these ingredients, and that I never put in till the last. And it must have been mixed with the others an hour before there can be an explosion."

This dialogue occurred in old Severance's laboratory between him and his daughter Fanny. She was his only child, and he had no wife, so that, being all he had to love in the world, she was his idol.

"Father," she said, changing the subject abruptly, "Will has spoken." She threw her arms about his neck and hid her face in his bosom."

"Has he, chick? I'm glad—for your sake, dearie—but for me"— He finished with a deep sigh.

"Oh, father, I will never leave you! We will always be together."

"Daughter," said the old man, "I, too, have something of importance to tell you. I have discovered a fulminate powder that will revolutionize warfare. It will treble the range of a cannon or a rifle. I have been offered $100,000 by the government for my secret. Now that Will has spoken you may tell him that you will have a fortune for a dowry. He is a fine fellow and deserves it and you."

Peter Gower, a man of thirty-five, whom Severance used for an assistant, was eavesdropping outside the door and heard every word of the conversation. Although he had worked with Severance, he did not know that his principal had succeeded in his effort. Severance had made the crowning discovery while working alone at night and had guarded his secret carefully even from his assistant. Gower, like Severance, was a chemist, but was employed simply as an assistant and not entitled to any interest in his inventions.

SHE READ IT AND STAGGERED.

From this time forward Severance was conscious that Gower was watching him in order to get the secret. The assistant knew the main ingredients of the composition, but the one substance without which the union was incomplete he did not know. One day while Severance was at work making the compound he saw reflected in a mirror before him Gower's face intent upon him. Severance put all the ingredients, substituting for the uniting substance another than the correct one. An expression of joy came over the face in the mirror.

After this Severance conceived a dread of his assistant. One day he gave his daughter a bit of paper with a single word written on it and told her to put it away in a little trinket box she had and to be extremely careful as to its preservation.

One day Fanny Severance was startled by the sound of an explosion in the laboratory. Every drop of blood left her face instantly. Rushing into the laboratory, her worst fears were realized. Her father's body was lying on the floor so disfigured that he was scarcely recognizable. Gower followed her. He was pale and trembling.

"I've been fearing this for a long while," he said.

But the girl did not hear him. She had swooned. He carried her into the house and ministered to her till she came back to consciousness. Then he left her.

Fanny Severance and William Clarke, her fiance, found themselves thus unexpectedly cut off from the dowry they had expected at their wedding. But the young man showed no disappointment to the girl he loved, and they were married soon after her father's death.

Gower put the laboratory in order, shut it up and gave Fanny the key. She saw no more of him till soon after her wedding. Then he called ostensibly to learn of her welfare, but really to see if he could get from her a bit of secret information. He had put together the chemicals necessary to the compound Severance had invented, had put in the uniting substance he had seen Severance use, but notwithstanding that he had tried every known percussion substance he had never been able to get an explosion. Recognizing that he had been foiled and that a fortune had slipped through his fingers, he was about to accept the situation when it occurred to him that Severance might have left his secret with his daughter. After making formal inquiries he told her that her father had given him all the elements of his compound but one. If he had left her the name of this uniting chemical she might yet be rich, for he (Gower), having all the rest, with this could manufacture the powder.

When her husband came home that evening Fanny told him of Gower's call and what he had said. Later on, going to her trinket box, she noticed the paper her father had given her. Taking it to her husband, she told him of the circumstance attending her receiving it and asked him if he knew what it meant. The young man looked at the word written on the paper. It was a curious mixture of letters, spelling an almost unpronounceable word. Then suddenly an idea occurred to him. He told his wife that it might be the crowning chemical used by her father for his compound.

"Then," said Fanny excitedly, "all we have to do is to give it to Mr. Gower and we will yet be rich."

But William Clarke believed in the adage "Make haste slowly." He slept but little that night, thinking why, if this was the required substance, Severance had left it without the other ingredients of the compound. He must have had a reason for doing so. Clarke thought for hours upon this reason. Was it that Gower knew the other ingredients and in the event of the inventor's death could go on with the manufacture of the powder in case Fanny would give it to him. If so it meant that Fanny was the real possessor of the secret. But why had not Severance told her that what he had given her was the key and what she was to do with it in case of his death?

"Fanny," said the young husband the next morning, giving her the daily parting kiss, "go into the laboratory today and see what you can find there."

Fanny took the key to the building and, with a shudder, going into the laboratory, began to hunt—what for she did not know. There was a tiny safe in the wall that interested her. Remembering that she had father's keys in the house, she went for them and, picking out an odd looking one, slipped it into the lock. It fitted exactly, and, turning it, she opened the small door and took out several papers. Selecting one, she read it and staggered as if stricken. It read:

Suspecting that my assistant, Peter Gower, will murder me (he thinks he possesses my secret) I leave this paper in case anything happens to me. I dare not give the secret to any one, even to my daughter, now, but trust this action will insure it to her without the risk that would occur if it left my keeping.

On another paper was a list of the ingredients except one, which the writer said he had given to his daughter.

A horrible thought entered the young wife's mind. Her father had probably been murdered.

"Bless him!" she exclaimed, kissing the record he had made. "Had it not been for his care a murderer would have robbed me of my rights."

The hours dragged slowly till her husband came home, and she told him of her discovery. He read the paper and, taking his wife in his arms, said:

"Sweetheart, it is our duty to avenge your father."

"How?"

"There are ways in which Gower could have contrived an explosion. He might have mixed substances that would require a few minutes or a few hours to unite chemically. He might have run a wire underground to the outside of the laboratory and ignited some substance within by an electric spark. He might have tossed a bomb at his victim's feet. Whatever his means, he doubtess removed all evidences of its character, for you left him to lock up the laboratory."

"So I did," she said wonderingly. "But could I have done otherwise? I wouldn't have gone there myself on any account."

The next day Clarke took steps to renew the negotiations with the government broken off by his father-in-law's death. The matter dragged, as all matters connected with governments are bound to drag. But Clarke, who had more business ability than the inventor, started negotiations with another country and before long had two nations bidding against each other. The result was that he finally received five times as much as was offered Severance.

When payment was handed to Clarke it was in one check on the national treasury. He took it home and waved it triumphantly over his wife's head, exclaiming:

"There's your dowry!"

But the wife's joy was subdued by the sad memory of her father's death. "Alas, poor father!" she said, with tears in her eyes.

The next day Clarke did the more melancholy duty of handing the police the paper incriminating Peter Gower. A warrant was issued for his arrest, and as soon as he was taken an investigation of the laboratory was made. A tiny hole was found under a workbench through which a wire might have been passed to the cellar. To lead it from there to the outside of the building no other hole was needed since it could have been passed through a window. This single hole was the only evidence against the accused, and it was not sufficient to convict him. He was acquitted of the murder by the jury, but not by the public. When freed he disappeared and has never since been heard from.

ADVICE FOR CORN GROWERS

Drag Should be Used Just Ahead of Planter—Advantages of Dents Over Flints.

To get a good crop of corn we should begin to plant for it just a year ahead says F. W. Taylor of the New Hampshire agricultural college, in the New England Homestead. Go out to the field just before cutting time and with a five-cent ball of red string in your pocket. Go through the corn and pick out enough ears for your own seed, and also some for your neighbor, because he will be sure to want some next spring. Select those ears which are most mature, which are well filled at both ends, which have a small shank attachment to the stalk, which are good size and which come from good, large, vigorous stalks. Mark these ears with the red string and when husking lay them aside and then store away in a cool, dry place for the winter. Always test seed. Poor ears give poor stands, and poor stands give small yields. We found at the station last year a variation in production of 37 to 79 bushels per acre from different ears of the same variety.

Old sod ground is just the thing for corn, but it ought to be plowed in the fall. Why? In the first place, because the farm work is not so crowded in the fall; in the second place, because the soil will have a better chance to weather, the sod to decay, and weeds and insect pests to be destroyed; and in the third place, the moisture condition of the soil will be greatly improved. Don't harrow in the fall, but get busy in the spring with the cutaway disk just as soon as the ground is dry enough. Have the seedbed fine and deep and mellow, and just as near like a garden as you can get it before planting. A planker or drag is preferable to a roller for corn ground, because it does not compact. Use the drag just ahead of the planter.

Begin the cultivation with the weeder or spike-tooth harrow before the corn is up, and continue with this until it is several inches high. Cultivate frequently and deeply for the first three weeks. The last cultivations should be shallow. When using a one-horse cultivator go twice to the row; you want to get all the soil stirred and once going is only half doing it. In addition to the harrowing, five cultivations ought to be sufficient with the last one given when the corn is so tall that the horse must be muzzled.

In the matter of fertilizers much will depend upon the quality and previous treatment of the land, also upon the pocketbook of the farmer. There is nothing better for corn than barnyard manure. This should be applied to the plowed ground during the winter and worked in with the harrow in the spring. On stubble ground which is not plowed until spring the manure may be turned under, and a coarser, more strawy quality may be used. On sod ground not as much manure is necessary as on stubble ground, since the decomposed sod will partially take the place of manure. If commercial fertilizers must be depended upon, use a high-grade mixture with plenty of nitrogen in it. The mixture we have used successfully for several years is a "4-9-5," made up as follows 200 pounds nitrate soda, 200 pounds sulphate of ammonia, 400 pounds tankage, 1000 pounds acid phosphate and 200 pounds muriate of potash. The amount to use will depend upon the needs of the soil. Without manure we use 500 pounds, applying 300 broadcast and 200 with the planter. With manure we either use none at all or else only a small quantity in the row.

For field corn plant in hills 10x42 inches apart each way. This will permit of cultivation both ways and will save lots of hoeing. Unless the two-horse check row planter is used it will be necessary to mark out the field in both directions and then plant by hand. The latter method is most generally practiced on our small, irregular shaped fields. A convenient marker may be made by simply making a sled with three runners (2 by 3) four feet long, placed 42 inches apart. A guide pole 19½ feet long with a chain or weight dragging at the end, and which can be shifted from side to side as the direction of the marker is reversed, will serve as a guide in keeping the rows straight and evenly spaced. Three stalks to the hill are enough.

For silage corn the most approved practice is to plant in drills 42 inches apart. Don't plant too thick if you want the best quality of silage. Give the corn a chance to ear out and mature. One stalk every eight or 10 inches apart in the row is thick enough for any variety. The variety for silage is the one which will give the largest yield and still reach the glazing stage in your particular locality. Except in the more northern sections the larger and earlier dent varieties are most satisfactory.

Among the varieties for field corn there is a great diversity of opinion. Having been raised in the west, the writer is partial to the dents. There are two or three early dent varieties, such as Minnesota 13, Rustler White Dent, Pride of the North and Bled's Yellow Dent, which, after several years of acclimatization are practically as sure of maturing as are the common flint varieties, with the possible exception of a few very early smaller-eared strains. The flints do not have

Home-Made Covers.

Magazine covers are made from heavy linens and craftman's canvas. For the post card albums the latter fabric is preferred. Both materials can be had in a variety of colors, and an applique of cretonne is a popular form of decoration.

Book covers in a cool gray linen, adorned with a spray of purple orchids cut from cretonne, are pretty, and so are those in terra cotta craftman's canvas, displaying a Swastika cross cut from cretonne in dull oriental colorings.

A "far greater feeding value" as some writers have contended, although they do average about 0.2 of one per cent higher in protein. The great advantage of the dents over the flints lies in their larger yield per acre, both in corn and stover, and in the ease and facility with which they are husked. Corn husking is a pretty expensive operation here in the East compared with what it is in the West, and any move to lessen this expense should be looked upon with favor.

FROM WASHINGTON.

(BY OUR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.)

Washington, May 16, 1910.

There just arrived at Washington a delegation of sixteen citizens of California headed by the Governor of that state, with the object of inducing Congress to favor an International Exposition to be held in San Francisco for the purpose of celebrating the opening of the Panama Canal in 1915. The delegation has been received by President Taft, and will be granted hearings before the House Committe on Expositions and the Committee on Appropriations. Most of the California Congressman, of course, are in favor of this exposition at the recent earthquake-shaken city but some members from southern California favor San Diego. The majority of the members of Congress, however, believe that the capital of this country is the proper city for the celebration and that, owing to the fact that it is nearer the great centers of population, millions more people will be able to see the exposition at Washington than would be able to see it at either of the cities of San Diego or San Fransico on the Pacific shore.

In military and naval circles there is much interest manifested with reference to the plans for fortifying the Panama Canal. It appears that the military strategists have planned for much fortifications on the Pacific than on the Atlantic side. This is thought to be a great compliment to a certain insular nation 5000 miles across the Pacific. Both sides of the Canal, it is said, are to be put in a fortified condition so strong that no reflecting nation will wish to attack then. It seems that we, with our outlying fortified picket post, says the may be called, at Porto Rico and in Cuba and Hawaii, ought to be able to protect a powerfully fortified canal, but it may be hoped that we will never have to make a practical demonstration of our ability to do so. Our ex-President, it seems from the morning papers, is still repeating his "peace with a big stick" speech in Europe. Only yesterday he made it in Christiana. England has never yet had to defend the Suez Canal, but possibly this is because of her powerfully fortified defenses at Gibralter, at Port Said, and her control of the entrance to the Red Sea at Aiden; or, to put it in a notshell, her control of the waters of the world. It is believed that finally the United States will be found in a position, should Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion at Christiana for a coalition of all the great powers in favor of peace be adopted, to participate in the formation of a peace compact binding not only the first class signatory powers to keep the peace among themselves, but to prevent warlike strife among the powers not rated as first, or even second class.

PRETTY EYEBROWS.

They Require as Much Care as Teeth, Skin or Nails.

It may astonish some women to know that the eyebrows are often ruined at this season of the year, and unless one is careful, pretty brows become coarse and not infrequently thin. This calamity is caused by salt water, much exposure to dust when motoring, and the sun, that occasionally dries them up to such an extent that the glands are unable to nourish the hair roots. Once this catastrophe happens every effort should be made to better the condition by feeding the roots.

In this treatment one of the best essentials is to keep the brows thoroughly clean. This means more than a superficial wash, for while mere dust may be loosened, it cannot be taken out, and thus the pores get choked. To properly wash them a small brush like that used for the nails, only much softer, some plain soap, such as castile, if it agrees, and then a scrub. Always, when coming in from the summer wind the brows should be given a gentle but thorough bathing. This washing, in the very nature of things, extracts natural oils, and they must be restored, or the skin given their equivalent.

Vaseline as a substitute for them is excellent, so is sweet almond oil. If the former is used it may be applied rather thickly with the finger tip, wiping off any superfluous amount with soft muslin.

At the place where the natural curve starts there should be a downward stroke that will point the hairs in the right direction. By getting this straight line over the eyes an effect of width most becoming to the face is given, while the downward line finishes off to a tapering point.

In this massaging red vaseline is necessary for the brows, though the merest point of grease is enough, for if the brows are kept fed with it the hair will grow better and take on a polish.

For thin eyebrows a combination of quinine and vaseline is a most beneficial tonic. In the making about as much quinine as can be put on the point of a small pocket knife blade should be mixed with a teaspoonful of vaseline. This may be applied night and morning, letting it remain.—Marguerite Mooney.

ONION FERTILIZER HINTS.

Onions should not be planted on the same piece of land year after year, and some system of crop rotation should be maintained, according to farmers bulletin 354 of the United States department of agriculture. Care should be taken, however, to use crops in the rotation that will not be exhaustive of the high fertility necessary in the onion land. During the years when the land is not devoted to onions it can be planted to some truck crop that will give a return that will justify the application of large quantities of fertilizers, or, better, to a leguminous crop to be turned under as green manure. Continuous cropping with onions will cause the land to become infested with both disease and insect enemies that will sooner or later injure the crop to such an extent as to render it unprofitable. As the onion is an intensive crop and yields great quantities of marketable bulbs for the area planted, the grower is justified in manuring heavily. It would be difficult indeed to make the soil too rich for onions provided the manures are thoroughly incorporated with the soil. A heavy application of fresh raw manure just before planting would have an injurious effect, but where the manure is well rotted and uniformly applied there is nothing to be feared.

There is perhaps no fertilizer so well adapted to the production of onions as plenty of clean, well-composted stable manure, and the quality and frequency of application will depend upon the nature of the land under cultivation. The Bermuda onion growers of southwestern Texas apply as much 20 tons of sheep and goat manure to an acre every three years. In addition to the manure there is used 1000 to 2000 pounds of cotton-seed meal or commercial fertilizer, and sometimes a top-dressing of nitrate of soda. This sheep and goat manure is from animals that are fed largely upon cotton-seed meal, is saved in the corrals in a climate where there is very little rain, and it contains the essential fertilizing ingredients in very high percentages. The manure is first piled where a little water can be thrown over it and it is composted for several months before spreading on the land. The best results from this manure are not realized until the second or even the third year after its application.

All stable manure used on onion land should be well composted before use and then spread upon the land several months before planting to onions. In the northern states the manure may be applied during the autumn and well disked into the soil. The land can then be allowed to lie in the rough state and exposed to the action of frost during the winter, or it can be smoothed and seeded to rye, in which case it will be necessary to replow during the early springtime. In the Bermuda district the manure should be applied during the springtime and the land kept frequently stirred during the summer months, with occasional irrigations in order to assimilate the manure and destroy weeds; the planting is not done until the autumn. Another practice in the Bermuda district is to apply fresh manure broadcast at the rate of 10 to 11 tons to the acre during the spring months, then plant the corn and cultivate through the early summer, and add a top-dressing of well-rotted manure after plowing the land for onions in the autumn. This top-dressing should be well worked into the soil by means of disk harrows. Large quantities of fresh manure applied to onion land just before planting will have a tendency to produce an overgrowth of tops at the expense of the bulbs. This is especially true of irrigated lands and soils that are naturally moist.

Where there is an abundance of humus matter in the soil the onion crop will be greatly benefited by moderate applications of high-grade commercial fertilizers. A fertilizer that is suited to the growing of potatoes will serve quite well for onions, but the potash should perhaps be supplied in the form of muriate rather than of sulphate. A fertilizer adapted to the growing of onions should contain five per cent of nitrogen, five to seven per cent of phosphoric acid, and eight to 10 per cent potash. A fertilizer of this character will cost $38 to $40 a ton and can be profitably applied at the rate of 1000 pounds to the acre on most soils. Where very intensive culture is practiced it may be profitable to apply as much as a ton to the acre in addition to stable manure.

Household Helps.

Don't put clothes around the fire to dry, and then go to bed and leave them. A spark may easily fly out of the fire and set them alight. Never leave a wood fire unguarded. Always put a metal screen or something of that sort in front of it to prevent the sparks flying.

Don't try to make a fire in the open grate draw by holding a newspaper up in front of it. If it doesn't set fire to the manteipiece hangings or to your own clothes, it may fly blazing up the chimney and set that alight.

If you use a gas stove never leave it with anything that might boil over cooking upon it. It is quite possible for soup or milk boiling over to put out the gas flame, and the escaping gas will gradually fill up the room. And then as soon as somebody comes in with a light—bang!

Table linen should be hemmed by hand. Not only does it look better and more dainty, but there is never a streak of dirt under the edge after being laundered, as with machine sewing.

The doors and windows of a kitchen should be so arranged that there will be a current of air to carry off the unavoidable odor of cooking. The walls should never be papered. Paper absorbs impurities, and therefore becomes unwholesome. Have the walls painted, so that by frequent washing they can be kept sweet and clean, a condition impossible with paper.

Laid to Rest

OUR BELOVED DEAD.

"Not dead but sleeping."
"Night came releasing him from labor—
When a hand from out of darkness
Touched him and he slept."

Impressive funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock over all that was mortal of S. W. Anderson, the much loved friend of our one big family. Tecumseh, after which he was tenderly conveyed to our own Silent City, where he rests in peace.

To the strains of sweetest music the bier that bore his casket was placed before the altar which was banked with beautiful flowers, tokens of love and esteem of his many, many friends. "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" was rendered with deep feeling by Mrs R. Mead, Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. Ruthruff and Miss Edith Magers, followed by Scripture reading by the Rev. C. M. Brown. He gave a fine eulogy over this brother whom he loved as David loved Johnathan, concluding with a beautiful poem, "He Giveth His Beloved Sleep." After a closing prayer the quartette sang "Abide With Me."

The Masons then took charge and conducted the cortege to beautiful Brookside where the final rites were paid to their departed brother. About 78 Masons and 40 Sir Knights were in line and the impressive ritual of the Masonic order was given, and as the chain that bound them together was broken and the links dropped one by one, we were comforted with the thought that the golden chain will be unbroken in our home on high.

A perfect wealth of flowers covered his last resting place and the host of people who gathered from far and near attested to the love and friendship in which he was held.

The honorary pall bearers were Sir Knights; Gen. F. B. Wood, Fred Westgate, J. H. Smith. Lavern Smith, L. C. Hayden, James Lowry. Active pall bearers—J. D. Shull, Dr. Reed, Chas. Patterson, Raynor Brewer, C. A. Wright, Dr. Dean Loree.

While waiting for the train in Adrian Friday, Geo. Harriott found a pocket book containing quite a sum of money. JUNIOR RECEPTION

HELD AT THE M. E. CHURCH PARLORS

Friday Evening, May 13.

The reception tendered by the Juniors to the Seniors and teachers was held in the parlors of the Methodist church parlors Friday evening.

The parlors were very beautifully decorated. The large room was for the Seniors. The color scheme being red, white and green, the ceiling was hung with silver larch and among these branches was seen the red of the gorgeous poinsetta. A frieze of willow was put around the top of the walls, over this was festooned red and white crepe paper. Long strands of red and white were hung from corner to corner. The lights were mellowed and toned down by the use of Japanese lanterns.

The east parlor was the Junior room, the scheme being executed in green and white, the Junior colors. The walls were hung with weeping willow and the ceiling with silver larch and white lilacs. The furniture in the room was all green

The west parlor was the High School room. Orange and black, the High School colors, were used in here profusely. The ceiling and walls were hung with weeping willow. At the windows were hung orange and black curtains. In the large arches between the parlors were white tile filled with large bouquets of lilacs.

A number of penants and banners adorned the walls of the various rooms. Many rugs, easy chairs, tetes and couches were scattered about making the rooms appear very home and cosy.

In the lecture room were about 25 small tables to which the hosts and guests were called about 9 o'clock. The favors were pond lillies and red roses. After an exciting hunt for their places all were seated and served to a four course supper prepared by the ladies of the church, consisting of chicken patties, dutch cheese, sandwiches, coffee, salad, fruit, ice cream, cake and punch.

After this the toastmaster for the evening called the guests to order and introduced the first speaker, Earl Hanham as president of the Junior class, who gave a very witty and well delivered toast to the Seniors. Frank Snell, the Senior class president, responded to this and gave the Juniors some pretty hard knocks, Ula Underwood favored the guests with a piano solo which was excellently rendered. Josephine Orr gave a humorous toast to the teachers on "How they like their toasts," saying that Miss Bishopp liked hers tied with a Bow-en; Miss Root likes hers served dry, dryer, dryest, and still more dry in Jackson; Mr. Smith liked boarding house toast so well that after trying it for a year and a half, he has taken it for life. Miss Bishopp gave an excellent toast to the pupils which was well received by her listeners. Bonnie Brown gave a vocal selection "Spring," which she sang with fine expression. Dale Hodges gave a toast to "Friday, the 13th," which created much merriment. A piano solo by Ivah Gove closed the evening's entertainment. The gathering broke up shortly after and all went away telling what a splendid time they had.

Robert Stretch has been appointed sewer inspector by the common council. Sewer committe was also appointed.

A DEAD STOMACH

OF WHAT USE IS IT TO ANYONE?

Thousands? yes hundreds of thousands of people throughout America are taking the slow death treatment daily.

They are mudering their own stomach, the best friend they have, and in their sublime ignorance they think they are putting aside the laws of nature.

This is no sensational statement; it is a startling fact, the truth of which any honorable physician will deny.

These thousands of people are swallowing daily hugh quanties of pepsin and other strong digesters, made especially to digest the food in the stomach without any aid at all from the digestive membrane of the stomach.

In other words, they are taking from the stomach the work that nature intended it should do, and are also refusing it the only chance for exercise it has.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets relieve distressed stomach in five minutes; they do more. Taken regularly for a few weeks they build up the run down stomach and make it strong enough to digest its own food. Then indigestion, belching, sour stomach and headache will go.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold by C. A. Wright. 50 cents a box.

GOOD MEMORY.

Just amuse the children a little while," said Mrs. Jarr, the other evening. "Mrs. Rangle and I are going over to see Kittie Robinson's baby. You know, she was one of the Mudridge girls, and her husband is that tall man. I introduced you to some weeks ago when we met him outside the store the day we went down-town to complain about the new ice box warping when it was sold to us fully guaranteed, and the man had the nerve to say that it wasn't guaranteed against warping if the drain pipe was allowed to get choked up and the water got in behind the woodwork, although, goodness knows, it's just as well if the drain pipe does choke up, because I never had a girl that could remember to empty the pan under the ice box, and the water runs all over the floor and through it and the ceiling comes down in the kitchen of the flat below, and the tenants shout the most insulting things at you up the dumbwaiter shaft, as if it were my fault that the waste water pan of the ice box overflowed, for do you think if I am paying a girl I am going around emptying the ice box drain pan for her?"

Beg pardon, did you say you were going around to see somebody's baby?" asked Mr. Jarr, wearily.

"Yes, it's Kitty's first baby," said Mrs. Jarr, "and she's raising it according to health rules, although I never saw a child yet that thrived simply because you took its temperature. She's always sticking a thermometer in the poor little thing's mouth, I hear. What good does that do a baby?"

"I shouldn't imagine there was much nourishment in a thermometer," said Mr. Jarr, "but what's the icebox got to do with it?"

"Well, if I'm a little late, although I won't stay long because Mrs. Rangle says Kitty Robinson doesn't seem to care whether people call or not unless they talk about her wonderful baby. So, if I'm late, don't forget to empty the pan under the icebox. I'd empty it now myself before I go, but I've got my things on, and you simply can't stoop over when you're wearing one of these new tight gowns."

"What do you wear it for, then?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Do you think I'm going to dress for housework all the time?" said Mrs. Jarr, shrilly. "Here the girl's gone off, and I know she's forgotten to empty that pan under the icebox, she's left the supper dishes unwashed, and if she thinks I'm going to wash them she's mistaken. So I want you to empty the pan. Now, don't forget it."

"Oh, I won't; I'll empty it now," said Mr. Jarr.

"Now don't go running off just because I want to say a few words to you before I go out, and, goodness knows, I get out but seldom!" said Mrs. Jarr. "Make little Emma drink some milk before she goes to bed, and if it is too cold warm it a little for her, and that will remind you to empty the pan when you go to the icebox for the milk."

"Depart in peace," said Mr. Jarr. "I won't forget."

"And don't go out of the house when the children go to sleep, because I won't take the key, and nobody can tell what will happen when children are alone in a flat. Suppose there'd be a fire! Dear me, I have half a mind not to go!"

"I will not fail you," said Mr. Jarr. "I'll attend to everything and will stay right here watching for fires, burglars, bill collectors, old friends with a grudge and all other constant visitors and visitations."

So Mrs. Jarr finished putting on her gloves, adjusted her veil, seeing if her skirt hung properly and all the other feminine preliminaries and departed to see the little stranger.

Mr. Jarr read, played with the children, saw them to bed, gave them milk and emptied the pan under the icebox.

In due time Mrs. Jarr returned. "No," said Mr. Jarr, greeting her at the door, "I did not forget a thing. I emptied the pan; there it is!"

"And you didn't put it back?" asked Mrs. Jarr. "Why, the water has run all over the floor!"

Mr. Jarr got mad first. "If you'd stay at home and tend to things—" he began.

They'll be on speaking terms again, it is hoped.—Roy L. M'Cardell.

How to Wean a Child.

The bottle fed baby, never accustomed to the natural method of obtaining its nourishment, is very difficult to wean, for which reason a mother will often give the little one one of those gum comforters or the gum nipple from the bottle and it really becomes a little "wind-sucker." Not long ago I saw a little child almost in spasms because the nurse could not find the empty nipple to appease—well, what was it? Certainly not hunger, but something merely to gratify a habit. I have heard mothers say it almost broke their hearts to wean babies simply because the pleadings were so pathetic. No doubt there is some truth in it, but what was one mother doing for her little boy when she permitted him to drink milk and go to sleep with the empty gum nipple in his mouth? This habit lasted six years! He was almost a nervous wreck, but tender heartedness was the real cause. The old-fashioned method of weaning a child during certain signs of the moon holds good even today, and it is said never wean a baby when the zodiac signs are in the head, chest, heart or bowels, always when the signs are in the lower extremities. What this has to do with it is not known, though you won't find a careful mother going contrary to it. Take away the bottle and give the child a drink of milk from a glass. He will be more restless at night. If he refuses, let him get tolerably hungry and he will drink the milk when offered in a glass. The warm bath is soothing, and a child will often fall asleep if the spine is gently massaged. It is rather pathetic, indeed it is genuinely so, for a baby to start up out of a half sleep and plead for its milk, but with a little kindness, patience and enforced hard-heartedness, it can be dented. If the child is old enough to talk, and many are before they are weaned, it will grow sleepy by having someone talk, play and sing little songs, anything to attract the attention from what is uppermost in the mind to save it from the "comforter" which destroys the shape of the mouth; and the nipple, often found upon the dusty floor, can be dispensed with.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic bowle, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. P. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's, of 126 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 356 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

CANNED VEGETABLES.

Canned Beets (Whole)—Wash the beets, selecting those that are small and of medium size. Leave on a couple of inches of the top, so that they will not bleed, and be careful not to break the skin. Boil half an hour, or until done; turn off the hot water and put the beets carefully into wide mouthed jars. Fill with hot water, set into a pan of boiling water, and cook until the water in the jars has reached the boiling point. Fill up the jars to overflowing from the boiling kettle, put on the top, and seal at once.

Canned Beets (Sliced)—Boil and peel early beets as for immediate use, slice, and put into fruit jars. Add salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of sugar to a quart of good cider vinegar, and bring to the boil. While still scalding pour over the beets in the jars, and when filled to overflowing put on the tops of the jars and seal.

Canned Tomatoes (Whole)—Choose large, firm tomatoes of uniform size, lay them in boiling water for a few moments, until the skins are loosened, and slip these off. Lay just enough tomatoes to fill one jar in a large saucepan of boiling water, cover, and leave for eight minutes. Take them out carefully, put into the jar, fill full with boiling water and seal.

Canned Tomatoes (Stewed)—Scald the tomatoes, take off the skins and lay the tomatoes in a colander to drip. When all are ready put into a preserving kettle, bring to the boiling point, and cook for fifteen minutes. Drain off the surplus liquor, add salt to taste, and turn the tomatoes, boiling, into the cans. Close at once.

Canned Corn and Tomatoes—Boil twenty-four ears of tender green corn until done, and cut from the cob while still hot. Peel and chop into small pieces twenty-four ripe tomatoes. Put the two vegetables together, salt to taste, and return to the fire in a preserving kettle. Cook for a minute after it reaches the boil; can and seal immediately.

Canned Spinach—Pick over the spinach and wash it carefully in three or four waters, that no sand or dirt may be left in it. Pick the sprays apart, discarding all tough stems and wilted leaves. Put over the fire in boiling salted water, and cook, as for the table, for about twenty minutes, or until the spinach is tone. Take it out with a fork or skimmer, and pack into jars, filling them full. Pour in boiling water to fill all the cracks and overflow the tops, and seal. When to be used, it can be taken out, heated, chopped, and seasoned as the fresh spinach.

Several of the vegetables stand several degrees of frost without injury. Peas, beets, onions, radishes and lettuce may with advantage be planted as early as the ground can be placed in good condition. Ground not properly prepared is cold and in no time is gained by early planting. Early onions may be obtained by planting some old sprouting bulbs. For later onions for eating or cooking use bottom sets. These are small mature onions less than an inch in diameter and may be procured from any seed house. These will continue to increase in size and will supply the table with cooking onions till those from the seed are ready.

THE HOME.

Dr. A. C. True, director of experiment stations of the federal department of agriculture, has defined the ideal home as "the pure source and happy environment of a vigorous childhood, the satisfactory supporter and encourager of manhood and womanhood and the sure solace and refuge of old age." It certainly ought to be all of this; it could not well be ideal and be less. But how many ideal homes are there? How many homes are the pure source and happy environment of a vigorous childhood? How many are satisfactory supporters and encouragers of manhood and womanhood? How many are the sure solace and refuge of old age? Why are we, an intelligent and civilized people, so very far from realizing the best in home life? It certainly is not because we do not desire to have ideal homes. It must be, then, because we do not know how to provide such homes. And that, in truth, is the reason. What does the great mass of the American people know about the best methods of developing vigorous children? What does it know about the great subject on which Dr. True touches in his demand for a "pure source and happy environment" of a vigorous childhood? What does it know about making the home the supporter and encourager of manhood and womanhood? What does it know of the methods that would lead to the home protection of the aged? We have much to learn in our search for happiness. We have only lately discovered that home making is a science—the greatest science, some say, which man or woman can study. We are trying to teach home making in our schools, but the work has just begun. Fifty years ago men would have laughed at the one who suggested that the home should be conducted on scientific principles. They would have sneered at the person who advocated the instruction of our girls in home economics. They would have scornfully declared that there was nothing to be done about a home that could not be done by any woman, whether she was possessed of brains or not. Of course it requires intelligence and training to make a good stenographer or bookkeeper of the average girl—no man ever disputed that, because it concerns his world. But as for making a good home, behaw! there is nothing to that but getting a wife, a place to live and a few children. Provide the essentials, and the home makes itself.

We proceeded on this theory until about twenty-five year ago. Then we began to realize, as a people, that while we are making great strides in business and industry and many of the sciences, we are not providing ourselves with homes that were much of an improvement over those that our forefathers had in the days when the republic was born. Perhaps our attention was called to the matter by the uprising of factors that threatened the destruction of the home. The boarding house, the family hotel and the apartment house have developed marvelously within the past few years. Nor have they been supported, even in a large measure, by single men and women. Their best and most profitable patronage has been from families that have become dissatisfied with home life as they knew it. We came, somehow, to understand that there was something wrong with the home. Pioneers in the field of investigation were not long in establishing the cause. They charged it, and rightly, to ignorance of the best methods of home making. They preached their gospel far and wide. They are still preaching it and thanks to them, the people are at last awakening. They are giving thought, perhaps for the first time in the history of the human race, to the well-being of future generations. The old idea that "what is good enough for me is good enough for my children" is losing its once great army of supporters. One can not cling to that theory now and expect his neighbors to show to him the respect that is due to intelligence. For the intelligent man knows the world owes to every child, regardless of its parents' conditions, every educational advantage that the times afford. Thus only may we hope to progress. The future of the race is dark indeed if no child is to be given advantages that its father and mother did not enjoy. We educate children in order to have better men and women than lived in the days when we went to school. We are not so much interested in making them "quicker at figures" as we are in giving them a better understanding than we have of how to live. When men learn how to live, the millennium will have come. We are far, far, from it now, but we are creeping closer, and one of the best evidences we have of the fact is that just now we are giving attention to the difficult science of home making—the science to which the women of the future will devote their time and greatest energies.

Lemon Jelly—One-half box of gelatine soaked in one-half pint of cold water one hour, add one pint of boiling water, one and one-half cups of sugar, three lemons grated, stand on stove until it boils, pour in moulds and set away to cool. Gelatine should always be dissolved in cold water as being brought to a high temperature is likely to give a strong flavor.

When a tree reaches its prime it is best to cut it out and give the young trees a chance to develop. In doing this, care should be taken not to injure the young growth. A judicious thinning out of the young trees will often be desirable. Enough firewood can be generally obtained to pay for the labor, and the trees that are left will be benefited. In the case of trees that will be used for timber purposes the removal of the lower branches will improve their quality for lumber.

The Sound Sleep Of Good Health

The restorative power of sound sleep can not be over estimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Southers, Eau Claire, Wis., says:—"For a long time I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock. I eat and enjoy my meals, and my general condition is greatly improved. I can honestly recommend Foley's Kidney Pills as I know they have cured me." For sale by all druggists.

J. W. VAN CLEAVE DEAD

Former Head of Manufacturers' Ass'n. Dies at St. Louis.

Had Been Ailing About Three Weeks With Organic Heart Trouble—Death Is Lamented.

St. Louis, May 16. — J. W. Van Cleave, the stove manufacturer, died at his home here of heart disease. He has been ailing about three weeks of organic heart trouble.

Mr. Van Cleave is survived by a widow, three sons and a daughter. Mr. Van Cleave became known when, as president of the Bucks Stove and Range company of St. Louis, he joined forces with D. E. Lowe, of Danbury, and carried through the courts the fight to restrain President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and Ex-President John Mitchell and Secretary Frank Morrison from interfering with the Bucks company and the Danbury hat manufacturers' business by carrying on a boycott by publishing a so-called "unfair list."

The news of the death of Mr. Van Cleave came as a shock to the delegates of the National Association of Manufacturers, who are at New York for their three days' convention, that begins at the Waldorf today.

ROOSEVELT RECEPTION

Speeches on Welcome Home Held in Battery Park.

Parade Will Follow Reception at Stand Led by Mounted Police Band—Rough Rider Escort.

New York, May 16.—The Roosevelt reception committee has decided to have the speech making part of the ceremonies in connection with Roosevelt's welcome home take place in Battery park. The exercises at the Battery as provided for, will last but a few minutes.

At the foot of the platform steps he will be met by Mayor Gaynor, who will escort him to the center of the platform and will there deliver a brief speech of welcome, to which Col. Roosevelt will respond.

The carriages for Col. Roosevelt and the committee will form on the west side of West street and the parade will follow the exercises on the stand. It will be led by mounted police and the mounted police band. Col. Roosevelt's carriage will be escorted by the Rough Riders, after whom will come the committee and other organizations.

If trees and plants were "puddled in" the holes dug for them instead of having the surface of the ground moistened with a water-can, there would be fewer failures in transplanting, says a writer in the New York Tribune Farmer, and if plant roots were protected from sun and air when dug from the ground and were put under ground as quickly as possible after being dug out of it there would be fewer failures. Plants, both trees and vines, are in many cases kept out of the earth too long when transplanting. The root system dries out, and if they live at all it takes a year or more for them to acquire enough life force to get their nourishment in sufficient quantities from the soil. They languish and "just pull through" in many cases because roots, stem and branches have become dry. If plants must be kept after having been received before they can be planted, dig a trench, heel them in and drench them with water. And when planted do not set them too deep in the ground. Many trees are injured by deep planting. A couple of inches deeper than they stood in the nursery row is deep enough. Sprinkle fine earth among the roots, tramp it down firmly, wet thoroughly, and when the water has soaked in fill in the rest of the earth and the plant will probably live and grow.

Candle Light For the Table.

What is it about the soft mellow candle light that makes a table so much more attractive than almost any other light? The handsome electric lights, globes, lanterns and the like used to light the table are all ornamental features of the dining room, yet the small candles afford the greatest attraction. Of course they "gutter and sputter," but I saw some twilight candle lamps which have the appearance of being genuine candles and they are lighted with kerosene and are furnished with miniature chimneys and shades. No doubt they will take the place of the old fashioned spermaceti candle because they will prove safer, yet have the same appearance as the tallow "dip."

FATAL FIGHT OVER LAND

Charles Mecum Held in Jail for Murderous Attack.

Wexford Farmer Beats Another and Kicks His Wife Over the County Line.

Cadillac, Mich., May 16. — Charles Mecum is in jail in default of $1,000 bail for inflicting perhaps fatal injuries upon William Pewjam and for kicking Mrs. Pewjam from Wexford county across the line into Grand Traverse county.

Pewjam sold Mecum forty-seven acres of land, with some standing crops, and the agreement was that he was to cut them. Pewjam pastured his horses in the grain and the men met in the road adjacent to the land, and started to fight. Pewjam's wife attempted aid with an ax handle, but Mecum wrenched it from her and used it with telling effect upon her husband.

PLOT TO BURN MISSION

Yale, in Hunan Province in China, Placarded for Destruction.

Pekin, May 16.—Advices from Changsha, the capital of the disturbed province of Hunan, state that the Yale mission in that city has been placarded for destruction by fire, but that the plot of the natives has not yet been carried out.

The foreigners, who were beginning to return to Changsha, are again living in the boats on the river under the protection of the Chinese authorities or of their own flags.

RAILWAYS GET AN ULTIMATUM

"Arbitrate or Fight" Is the Slogan of Shippers.

$50,000 FUND IS STARTED

Shippers Will Meet the Railroads Half Way if Arbitration Is Chosen, but Will Fight to the Bitter End Otherwise.

Chicago, May 19.—Having expressed the conviction that the railroads will be unable to maintain their position and justify the horizontal increases in the class rates and in the commodity rates in eastern territory, the mass meeting which was called by the Illinois Manufacturers' association and attended by over 400 representatives of more than 200 of the largest commercial organizations of the country, perfected a permanent organization with a guaranteed fund of more than $50,000 to pay for the battle to be waged against what was termed the injustice and greed of the railroads.

Although temperate in character, the convention went on record in no uncertain terms and served notice on the railroads that it must be "arbitrate or fight."

If arbitration is chosen the shippers declare they will meet the railroads half-way, but if it be fight, then it will be a fight to the bitter end, with no quarter asked and with the shadow of dire legislative and political action directed at the railroads all along the line. Here is what the shippers decided to do:

Offer the railroads arbitration through the interstate commerce commission upon the question of whether or not they are entitled to increase freight rates in order to increase their revenues.

The arbitration must be coupled with the agreement that pending it the present rates shall pertain, all increases being held in abeyance.

Should conciliatory measures fail, the shippers are pledged to take immediate action either before the interstate commerce commission or the federal courts.

Should the commission be appealed to, that body will be asked to declare the rates when put into effect to be unreasonable and unjust.

Should the courts be appealed to, they will be asked to issue an injunction restraining the railroads from putting the proposed increases in rates into effect until the commission shall have the opportunity to examine and pronounce upon their reasonableness.

Organize a permanent body to carry on the fight, if a fight should become necessary.

Create a conference committee of fifteen members whose duty it shall be to have charge of the campaign and place the arbitration plan before the railroads.

Tax every member of the organization present 50 cents, with a view to raising a fund to begin and carry on the battle, the initial fund being about $50,000.

Brief Description of Funeral of England's Dead Monarch.

WILL INTER BODY AT WINDSOR

Col. Roosevelt and M. Pinchon Will Ride Side by Side in the Eighth Carriage of Twelve Near End of the Cortege.

London, May 19.—The official program of tomorrow's ceromonial has been issued. It is exceedingly detailed and would fill five or six columns of a newspaper. In brief, it is as follows:

The coffin will be transferred from the catafalque at Westminister hall to a gun carriage at 9:40 a. m. The royal regalia will be placed on the coffin and the procession will then be formed. It will be headed by a multitude of men prominent in the British and foreign military and naval services, their names and ranks being fully set forth in the program and massed bands and royal suites. Immediately behind the gun carriage will come Prince Louis of Battenberg, King Edward's charger will come next, led, and then the royal standard. Behind will come a cavalade of royal personages, King George leading. The Kaiser will ride on his right and the Duke of Connaught on his left, a few paces to the rear. In ranks of three there will ride the kings of Norway, Greece, Spain, Bulgaria, Denmark, Portugal and Belgium, the Austrian heir apparent, the Ottoman heir apparent, Prince Fashimi of Japan, Grand Duke Michael, representing the Czar, the Duke of Aosta, representing the king of Italy, Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria, the Duke of Sparta, the crown prince of Roumania, Prince Henry of the Netherlands, Duke Albrecht of Wurtemberg, the crown prince of Servia; Prince Henry of Prussia, the Grand Duke of Hesse, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the crown prince of Saxony, the Grand Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, the Prince of Waldseek-Pyrmont, Prince Mohamed Ali of Egypt, Prince Tsai Tao, uncle of the emperor of China, Prince Charles of Sweden, Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, Prince Arthur of Connaught, Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, the Duke of Fife, Prince George of Cumberland, Prince Alexander of Battenburg, the Duke of Teck, Prince Alexander of Teck, Prince Francis of Teck, Prince Maximilian of Baden, Prince Andrew of Greece, Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, Prince Danile of Montenegro, Prince Christopher of Greece, the Duc a'Alancon, Comte D'Eu and three other Orleans princes, the Crown Prince of Siam, Prince Leopold of Coburg, and Prince Wolrad of Waldeck-Pyrmont.

The crown equerry, Gen. Ewart, will ride alone behind this company of mounted royalties. Then will come a glass panelled coach and pair, in which the queen mother, the dowager czarina, and Princess Louise and Princess Victoria will ride. A similar coach will follow, occupied by Queen Mary, the Queen of Norway, the Duke of Cornwall and his sister, Princess Mary. Then there will be four coaches filled with princess belonging or immediately related to the British royal family, and another carrying a Chinese prince and the members of the Chinese mission, all the foregoing being royal.

Mr. Roosevelt and M. Pinchon, the French foreign minister, will ride side by side in the eighth carriage of twelve near the end of the procession. Lord Strathpina, Sir G. Reid and Mr. Hall Jones, representing Canada, Australia and New Zealand respectively, will ride together in the ninth carriage. Other carriages will be filled with members of the royal suites. After these will come detachments of English, Scottish and Irish police as delegations from these forces, followed by a detachment of the London fire brigade.

The foregoing list takes no notice of the numerous highly placed officers who will precede, surround and follow the gun carriage. Blood will go before the delegates of the United States and France. Etiquette in European courts accords honor and precedence in ceremonial matters, not to the nations represented, but to the individual representing, hence the anomaly that the French royal princes who represent nobody but themselves, and the royal delegates from such camparatively insignificant states as Waldeck-Pyrmont, Siam and Montenegro, for instance, take precedence over the representatives of the world's two great republics.

ROOSEVELT'S THROAT WORSE

Ex-President Makes Special Call on the King of Denmark.

London, May 19. — Mr. Roosevelt's throat trouble is proving more obstinate than it was thought ot would be. He obeys the London specialists' strict orders to be as quiet as possible to the best of his ability, but his throat seems to be worse than it was some days ago.

His position as official envoy to the funeral entails a certain amount of social duty, which, however, is not exacting. He "inscribed" on the king, queen, queen mother and the Duke of Connaught; in short on all British and foreign royalities now in London. This only amounts to calling at their residencies and writing his name in their visitors' books. Outside of this Mr. Roosevelt made a special call on the King of Denmark, whom he missed when he visited Copanhagen.

CROWDS STORM GATES

People Break Through Lines of Guards at Westminister.

Sharp Struggle Ensues but Officers Control Situation—Try to Force Doors to See King Edward.

London, May 19.—As the time approached for the closing of Westminster hall last night, the crowd whose number was enormously, lost patience, broke the line, swept the police asde, and surged forward in a dangerous rush. Fresh police were close at hand and they promptly drew a strengthened cordon. This was quickly broken, and the people stormed into the palace yard, where those who have passed the king's coffin make their exit, and tried to force the dors.

Fortunately, the police were able to close and bar the doors, but only after a sharp struggle, in which they were compelled to fight for the upper hand.

It is figured that about 120,000 persons passed through the hall. Among wreaths sent is one of palm leaves and orchids with a silk American flag from President Taft and another of white orchids from Mr. Roosevelt.

DYNAMITE BLOWS UP; 100 KILLED

Barracks of Rural Guards at Pinar Del Rio in Ruins.

CRIME LAID TO REVOLUTIOISTS

Many Buildings Wrecked—Corporal Is Only Survivor—3,000 Pounds of Dynamite in Explosion— Negroes Are Blamed.

Havana, May 19.—The barracks of the rural guards at Pinar Del Rio was blown up and 100 persons were killed. Owing to the race disturbances the dynamite being used on the various public works in that section had been collected and stored in the barracks, the quantity there being 3,000 pounds.

Orders had been given for the removal of the dynamite to the regular powder magazines, and the government reports state that the explosion occurred while this was being done. However, this was the day fixed by the negro conspirators for an uprising, the earth entering the tail of the comet to be the signal, and many entertain the belief that the explosion was the first overt act of the revolutionists. Several special trains carrying troops have been rushed from Hanava to Pinar Del Rio. Gen. Monteaguda, commander of the Rurales, and several officials accompanied the troops.

The barracks in which were quartered the Rurales, a number of public works employes and officers' families were completely destroyed. Commandant Ravena, with all his family, and other families are among the killed. A corporal of Rurales is the only survivor.

Many buildings in the vicinity of the barracks were wrecked. There is the most intense excitement, both at Pinar Del Rio and Havana, every one remembering the abortive attempt to start a revolution some time ago by murdering the sleeping Rurales in their barracks at Guanabacoa, a few miles from Havana, which atrocity the late Senator Morua DelGado instigated. The negro uprising, which Senator Estenoz, who is now in jail awaiting trial, is alleged to have been planning, was, it is said, arranged to start simultaneously in Pinar Del Rio and Santiago provinces on the night of May 18. The government insists that the explosion was an accident, but meanwhile it is rushing troops to Pinar Del Rio.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

THE SAVIOR'S TEACHINGS — BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDIES

THE POWER OF A WOMAN.

Matthew 14:1-12.—May 22.

"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."—Proverbs 16:32.

JOHN THE BAPTIST, because of his boldness and courage as a servant and mouth-piece of God, was a thorn in the side of King Herod and his courtiers and the great of that day. Herod and the High Priests and the more prominent people considered John the Baptist and Jesus fanatics. Doubtless they would have made away with them quickly had it not been for their fears of the people. The common people heard the Master gladly and declared that "never man spake like this man;" the same common people believed John to be a prophet.

We will not undertake to say whether John exceeded his commission or not when he reproved the King and Queen. As a rule, however, we believe it to be the wiser plan for Christian ministers to speak forth the Word of God fearlessly and plainly, without attempting personal application—allowing each hearer to apply the message to his own heart. Herodias fortunately represents an uncommon class of women. She was governed by boundless ambition. She married the man who, for a time, seemed in line for promotion to a kingly position. But when the title was given by the Roman Emperor to his brother, Herod Antipas, she inveigled the latter by her charms and, deserting her husband, became Herodias the "Queen." John the Baptist, while fearlessly denouncing sin, felt led to make a personal application of his teachings to King Herod.

Some have assumed that Herod had requested John the Baptist to visit the palace and give a talk on the reforms he advocated, and that, in this connection, the prophet pointed out the wrong of the King's conduct, saying that it was not in harmony with the Divine Law that he was living with his brother Philip's wife. Herodias heard of this and realized that if the King accepted such counsel it would mean that herself and her beautiful daughter, Salome, would become outcasts from the palace and be without a home, as it would be impossible for her to return to her husband, Philip. The power of Herodias over the King led to John's imprisonment. Her next move was to effect his death, for she realized her position insecure so long as he lived. John's fearless speech might yet influence the King.

This ambitious, wicked, artful woman plotted murder, and the King's birthday celebration was her opportunity. She forwarded the arrangements for a great banquet, at which were present the nobles and princes of the land. Wine was in plentiful supply. She well knew that the wine would inflame the passions and relax the moral tone of the company. So she had her beautiful daughter, Salome, specially prepared and attired, and instructed her to perform one of the obscene dances common to the east on such occasions, but not commonly indulged in except by the lower classes, and never by princesses. The occasion was to be a rare one. It was intended to influence the King exactly as it did—to admiration and a boastful offer to the girl of any gift she would ask. The plan succeeded to the letter. The King's words were, "Ask of me a gift, even to the half of my Kingdom"—possibly a suggestion of his willingness to make her his true Queen.

Following her mother's instructions, Salome reported the matter at once, inquiring of the mother what gifts she should request. We can better imagine than describe the surprise of the girl when told by the mother to request "the head of John the Baptist on a platter." We may conceive what a disappointment this would mean; what visions of the beautiful and precious things it would destroy!—with what surprise Salome must have asked as to why this gruesome gift should be given. We can imagine the mother hissing to her that the death of John the Baptist was the most necessary thing in the world for them both—that without it any day might see them hurled from conditions of affluence into the abyss of degradation and poverty. We can imagine her saying, "This, Salome, is the priceless gift which you must ask from the King." And the power of the woman over both the King and the daughter was wonderfully exemplified in the result. Salome went gaily again amongst the company of nobles whom she had charmed, and in a loud voice accepted the King's offer of whatever she would choose, even to the half of his Kingdom and stated that accordingly, the gift should be the head of the Prophet on a platter.

The King's conscience was not quite dead. He was grieved; but his pride as well as his subserviency to Herodias controlled him. He reasoned that for a King to give his word of honor in the hearing of nobles and princes and then to repudiate it, would be to him a lasting shame. Ah, what an illustration of how "the fear of man bringeth a snare!" What a lesson we read in this!—that a man's first responsibility is to his God and to his conscience, whatever the cost. Tradition has it that Herod was haunted with fear the remainder of his days. It is in line with this that when he heard of Jesus and his mighty works, he expressed the conviction that somehow, the spirit or power of John had passed to Jesus.

Our lesson brings before us two strong and two weak characters. John and Herodias were strong characters, the one for the right and for God, the other for selfish ambition and sinful indulgence of it. The one swayed his nation for their good and prepared the worthy remnant to receive Messiah's message. The other swayed the King and her daughter to infamy, murder and disgrace, and terribly blackened her own character. John's reward lies in the future, when he, as a member of the Ancient-Worthy class, will come forth to a "better resurrection"—to be associated with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the earthly phase of the Millennial Kingdom.

Herodias, surely continuously unhappy, finally persuaded the King to a course which led to his banishment, in which she shared. Her future, according to the Bible, will be a resurrection to shame and lasting contempt. (Daniel 12:2.) Inasmuch as she degraded herself and missed grand opportunities, we may assuredly know that she will come forth in the Millennium greatly handicapped by her improper course in the present life. It may take centuries, even under the favorable conditions of Christ's Kingdom, for such a deeply-dyed character to purge itself of the shame and the lasting contempt and to rise gradually to true nobility and human perfection, or, failing so to do, to die the Second Death.

TRAINED TREES.

They May be Made to Fit Any Space or to Take Any Form.

An expert can make a vine of an apple or a pear tree, a tree of a gooseberry or currant bush, or a snake of either. He will twist, pinch and fondle the descendant of some mighty apple tree, with its gnarled branches and its forty foot spread measuring, planing and nursing until instead of assuming the shape of its parents it will grow to fit some space on the side of his house, hugging the wall like a vine, or possibly will form a screen to hide his kitchen porch.

In the rich man's garden abroad we see all sorts of curious forms to which fruit trees have been trained. Some are beautiful, some are freakish, but all are wonderful. In vases, lyres shields, crests, monograms, soldiers, beautiful maidens, the apple or pear tree and the currant bush lose their identity.

Those that are trained like vines, says Country Life in America, certainly possess a distinctive decorative value. In the old days every estate in England worth while had a specimen box tree—a superior example of topiary work—which was pruned to resemble Queen Elizabeth.

In the poor man's garden abroad a trained fruit tree finds its greatest usefulness. No garden is too small for a few trees. The peasant, with a scant six inches or a foot between his walk and his neighbor's fence, still has room to plant a tree and train it against a lattice. While the necessity for maximum returns from minimum acres is not a part of our national point of view, the possibility of the training of trees as a hobby has been very much overlooked.

In Germany you can buy a tree to measure to fill in any space on your garden wall or house, just as we buy a ready made suit of clothes. While the training of fruit trees has become popular only within ten years, the Formobstbaumschulen, or schools where trees are trained, are now to be found everywhere in Germany. There are commercial nurseries where experts in espalier work are constantly making new forms and creating new marvels. Certain shapes have become standard, such as pyramids, cordons palmettos and so on.

There are practically no nurseries in America that have taken up the propagation and sale of trained fruit trees in a serious way, and there is almost no American literature on the subject; consequently one who wished to take this work up as a hobby will be forced to look to Germany, France or England for an inspiration and for his stock.

The Ideal Nursery.

Today the nursery is looked upon as an essential apartment in a house where children abide and, from a hygienic standpoint, it may justly be called a sensible room, for children after they can walk should not sleep in the mother's room. To deny them this privilege previous to the second year is really unkind, for a child less than one year old should never be left alone; it demands too much attention. Whether the room is large or moderately small, it should, by all means, have plenty of ventilation, the more windows the better. The room should be papered in light paper, also painted in light tones, though the blinds should be the darkest shade to darken the room when necessary. Each child should have a bed to himself, with a soft mattress, soft, low pillow, double sheets, made in one piece, one blanket, thin quilt and cover. If a nurse is engaged, she may have her bed in the same room, and frequently does, though more often she has a room opening into the nursery. There is little need for much furniture, the chief requisite being a large clothes press on one side of the room with apartments for every article. This can be built in the house or afterwards made and covered with a curtain, though doors are best. There should be a table with a lower shelf upon which toys can be kept. Walls can be brightened with framed pictures of little Dutch children, flowers, animals, birds, in fact anything that will be attractive to a child old enough to observe such objects. The curtains in such rooms should be fitted to the lower sash so as to be raised with the window. A child's room should contain only what is really needed for its comfort and such articles as will be found necessary for its pleasure.

Cut Off with Shilling.

We often hear the threat of being "cut off with a shilling" by our peculiar and crochety relatives, but the following clause of a will is literal execution of it which would not be considered by many of us to be a very effective salve for the pain attending their demise:

"Whereas, it was my misfortune to be made very uneasy by Elizabeth M—, my wife, from our marriage, by her turbulent behavior, for she was not content with despising my admonitions, but she contrived every method to make me unhappy; she was so perverse in her nature that she would not be reclaimed, but seems only to be born to be a plague to me. The strength of Samson, the knowledge of Homer, the prudence of Augustus, the cunning of Pyrrhus, the patience of Job, the subtlety of Hannibal, and the watchfulness of Hermogenes could not have been sufficient to subdue her; for no skill or force in the world could make her good; and as we have lived separate and apart from each other for eight years, and she having perverted her son to leave and actually abandon me, therefore, I give her one shilling only."

Professor Wasserman, of Berlin has succeeded in finding a serum which cures ptomaine poisoning.

SHORT SAYINGS.

There is little harmony between hard luck stories and hard licks at work.

Be he ever so strong, the willing horse is eventually worn out by the selfish rider.

The fellow who imagines he could marry any woman he pleased is generally a failure at pleasing any.

It is not because absence makes the heart grow fonder that so many men linger so long from home.

Houses that fools build do not always become the homes of wise men; there are always knaves prowling about.

Many a woman, if she but knew it, has cause for congratulation in the fact that her husband does not always tell her the whole truth.

ALMA COLLEGE

Class spirit was seen at its fiercest last Saturday night when freshmen and sophomores clashed in the annual scrap to place the numerals of this year's class on the chimney of the power house. This chimney rears itself 80 feet from the ground, and every year each class endeavors to paint its numerals higher than the class preceding them.

About midnight, Saturday, the freshmen were discovered by the sophs right in the midst of operations. Ladders bearing freshies were toppled over, while gutteral yells and heavy thuds broke the stillness of the night. A right royal battle ensued, the interloping sophs were captured, ducked in a tub and sent tenderly to bed. Then the jubilant freshmen proceeded to put a figure "13" on the very top of the chimney. The trick was done, and neatly too, by little "Bob" Wilson of Tecumseh.

A Tribute to S. W. Anderson

FROM CHAS. M. BROWN, D. D.

"Seaton Anderson is dead." Such was the startling message of the phone early last Friday morning. The community was dazed. No one knew he was ill. In fact he was not ill. He had been somewhat indisposed but not ill. Out of a clear sky came a message of death without a moment's warning.

Seaton W. Anderson was a child of Tecumseh. He was born here 61 year ago. His entire life was lived here. He was united in marriage in 1871 to Miss Ella Randell. It was truly a love marriage. Their affection began in early childhood. It grew deeper and more tender with added years. Two children come to brighten their lives, Helen E. and Faron S.

For over 40 years Mr. Anderson engaged in business. The first year was spent with Moses Wright in the drug store. Then began the apprenticeship in the dry goods business with his uncle W. and H. E. Anderson. Later the partnership was formed.

As a business man Mr. Anderson was the soul of honor. He was regarded by experts as a connoisseur in his line. He held many places of honor and trust, always filling them with credit and satisfaction. For a number of years he was an Elder in the Presbyterian church. He was actively engaged as a teacher in the Sabbath school for a long time. For 18 years he served on the school board. He made its interest a matter of close study. In fact the last time he came down town was to attend a meeting of that board. He was a member of Tecumseh Lodge, No. 69, F. & A. M., Tecumseh Chapter, No. 43, R. A. M., Blanchard Council, No. 34. R. & S. M., Adrian Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar; Eastern Star and Knights of Pythias.

He was one of Tecumseh's foremost citizens, public spirited, always progressive and ever awake to the interest of the village. In many ways he was a most unique character. His power of loving and giving was unusual. Probably no man had a wider acquaintance than he did. Few ever are loved so universally as he was. Friendship, sympathy and helpfulness were his strong characteristic. He seemed to have a special ability to know where help was needed and to be first to give it. He stopped only at the extremity of his ability. A common expression from all classes is "He helped me." For years he has been a special friend of young men and young women. He sought to aid them in finding employment and always encouraged them to attempt greater things. Because of his sympathy and power of friendship, he became the confidant of the troubled. Many a tale of sorrow and trouble has been told him and the burdened heart went on its journey with a lighter load by reason of his helpfulness.

The years have come and gone. Seaton Anderson came with them and is gone. It will be many a year before the memory of his good, beautiful and helpful life shall be forgotten.

The last rites were said at the Presbyterian church Monday afternoon to an audience that filled every bit of available space. Rev. Charles M. Brown, D. D., of Joliet, Ill., a bosom friend conducted the service at the church. Tecumseh Lodge had charge of the service at the grave, R. A. Heesen acting as Worshipful Master. A very large number of the Lodge, together with a splendid escort of Adrian Commandery, Knights Templar and many friends accompanied the body to the Tomb in Brookside cemetery, where he was laid to rest beneath a great bank of flowers.

The Review of Reviews

...t, because it is a necessity—that is ... rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

¶ It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

CORN PLANTER FACTS

Never in years has there been such a demand for planters. There is a shortage now. We planned for this shortage and had a stock on hand, it is going fast, only a few left, have our orders in for more, it is doubtful if we get them. First come, first served is four years ahead of others. Four years ago it came out with the 2, 3, 4 changing device, been through the experimental work, others coming out with an imitation this year.

It has also a rotary fork and only two spools on a side which prevents wire catching, knot breaking, stringing of corn. Both wheels are drivers like a mower.

The foot lift is so powerful the hands are used only to get the depth. Either plain or fertilizer. Both edge and flat drop.

Don't wait, buy now. Warranted to work right. Prices low.

FINE LOCATION

FOR TECUMSEH STATE SAVINGS BANK

Work to Commence At Once On The Corner Now Occupied By The Barrett Bros. Hotel Office.

Owing to the large increase in their business and the necessity for more room, the Tecumseh State Savings Bank have leased the corner now occupied by the Barrett Bros. hotel office, and will occupy the same as soon as the necessary changes can be made

They will have a modern up to date banking office with entrance on the corner. The private offices will be in the front on the west side. A ladies parlor, writing desk and toilet accessories will be at the north end, for the convenience of the lady customers of the bank.

They will build two vaults, one for their own use and one for the convenience of Safety Deposit boxes and for the use of their patrons. Handsome new furniture and modern fixtures will be added. The walls will be artistically decorated marble counters and a tiled floor will be added and everything in perfet harmony. They are in hopes to be in their new quarters by Aug. 1st

They desire to express their appreciation for the liberal patronage accorded them in the past. They will in the future as in the past endeavor to extend to their patrons every accommodation, consistent with safe and conservative banking.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Colds, Croup and Whooping Cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of Croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. Its a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma. Hemorrhages, Weak Lungs. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by C. Alhambran Who Saw First Halleys Comet

A MICHIGAN MAN.

Comparatively few residents of Alhambra can recall having seen Halley's comet away back in the year 1835. But at least one citizen does recall the memorable event and this person is Richard Cadmus, father in-law of Dr. Guernsey P. Waring, of 130 South Fifth street.

Mr. Cadmus was born in 1823 and was therefore 12 years of age when the great comet was in evidence. The Alhambran Advocate representative called upon him at the Waring home and found him reading a book, and that, too, without the use of glasses. He is certainly a well-preserved man and he has a truly remarkable memory.

He came from Seneca county, New York, to Macon, Michigan, in 1832, when but 10 years of age, and he still owns the farm place which he helped his father clear away. He spends most of his time with a son in Chicago, but will doubtless hereafter be much with his daughter Mrs. Waring in Alhambra, as he finds this climate quite agreeable.

Speaking of the visit of the heavenly wonder in 1835, Mr. Cadmus took occasion to remark that its coming was taken very seriously by the people who realley believed that the end of the world was at hand. He related many interesting stories regarding the happenings of those exciting days. As a matter of fact he finds it much easier to recall the incidents of those days of long ago than to remember what happened only a few years ago. —Alhambran-Advocate.

Richard Cadmus is well known in Tecumseh having lived in Ridgeway for many years. We known this article will be of interest to his many friends.

ANNOUNCEMENT PARTY

A pretty party was given at the home of M. A. Zimmerman and wife Weduesday evening announcing the engagement of their daughter Stella to Lavern Pratt. Nine of the intimate girl friends were in attendance and a merry evening was spent by all. A fine collation was served.

The table was made beautiful with a bank of lilies of the valley and candelabra. At each plate was a telegram numbered from 1 to 9 and each guest read her's aloud in the order named. The first was sent when Stella left Montana until the present day. The telegram from Eaton Rapids gave notice of the fact that Cupid had intervened and pierced the heart of Miss Stella with such a severe thrust that she had to give up all thoughts of business and come to her home in Tecumseh where she has armed herself with scissors etc. and will deny herself to the curious public for awhile. The last telegram announced her engagement and her many friends will join those who were present in wishing a happy future for the young couple.

At a late hour the guests wended their ways homeward, each one wondering who would be the next.

EASY TO CURE

Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat and Catarrh

Breathe Hyomei. It will cure catarrh or any nose or throat trouble if you follow directions. Don't lay it aside when the snuffing, hawking and spitting have ceased. Stick to it daily until you are sure that the catarrh germ is dead, and that your air passages are free from their poisonous influence. Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is the only treatment for nose, throat and lung troubles that has ever been sold with the understanding that if it did not cure, it was to cost absolutely nothing.

Hyomei can be obtained at druggists everywhere and at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store who guarantees it to cure catarrh, croup, sore throat, coughs and colds. A complete outfit $1.00, which is mighty cheap for a remedy that has cured more cases of catarrh than all the catarrh specialists.

An outfit consists of an inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei, a supply of antiseptic gauze, a medicine dropper, and full instructions for use. The inhaler is made pocket size, of hard rubber, and will last a lifetime. And bear in mind that extra bottles of Hyomei, if needed, cost only 50 cents.

EXCURSION BOAT SINKS

"Uncle Sam" Collides with Sand Barge and Goes Down.

Accident Occurs at Foot of Grand Avenue in Missouri River at Kansas City—150 Passengers Safe.

Kansas City, May 19.—The excursion steamer Uncle Sam collided with a sand barge in the Missouri river at the foot of Grand avenue and sank. One hundred and fifty passengers, twenty-five of them women, had narrow escapes. When the sand barge punched a hole in the stern of the boat and she began to sink, the engineer put on full speed ahead and the pilot headed her for the shore.

Within ten feet of the shore the boat sank and tipped over until her decks were at an angle of 45 degrees. All the lower deck was under water. The passengers clung to the rail of the upper deck while the people ran to the river from all directions. Planks were carried and thrown out to the boat, forming a bridge, and over this the passengers went ashore.

Advocate Small Farms.

Fifteen acres of land in southeastern Pennsylvania, cultivated according to the best known methods and yielding, principally in dairy products, an income of more than $2,400 a year have been selected and described by the Department of Agriculture as a model for the farmers of the United States.

The Department has thoroughly investigated the methods used, and finds it possible to point out that upon a comparatively small area a good income may be produced merely by the exercise of intelligence and knowledge. This farm, when it came into the possession of its owner, was mortgaged for $7,200. Six years later the mortgage was paid off and the profits had begun to accumulate. But thirteen acres of the land are under cultivation, the remaining two acres being occupied by buildings.

The Government is greatly interested in bringing attention to farms of this character. It has become a Government doctrine that smaller farms and better methods of cultivation will greatly add to the production and wealth of the nation and to the comfort of the farmers, besides multiplying by many times the number of persons who may obtain living from the soil.

In the newly irrigated lands of the Far West, the policy of selling not more than forty acres to any one person has been adapted, and the Department of Agriculture is endeavoring to demonstrate that upon even much smaller areas than this profits exceeding those made upon many of the larger farms can be obtained.—The World Mirror.

It is a time to exercise patience when the heifer becomes a mother. Not always do we realize what a crisis this is in the life of the young cow and we are often inclined to use brute force to "educate" the prospective cow. But this is only opposing brute force to brute force, and the result is quite likely as not the spoiling of a cow.

Not Orthodox.

Minister—"Young man, don't you know that you will be punished by fire if you don't mend your ways?"

Sport—"Oh, I don't know, Parson; they're cooking without fire now, and I'm expecting that by the time I'm ready they'll be punishing sinners without fire. We're progressing rapidly these days."

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Cullen's of 336 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 539 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Nicola, Pittsburg business man who, for the past three days, has been on trial charged with lending assistance to the bribing of Pittsburg councilmen. The jury accented the verdict by placing all costs on the county. The official charge against Nicola was "Accessory before the fact to bribery."

Instead of proving the bribery end of the case the commonwealth's own witnesses gave testimony tending to prove that Nicola tried to discourage all those who were having anything to do with obtaining city deposits when h efound evidences of crookedness. Nicola's friends cheered him loudly when the verdict was announced. Nicola, who is worth $20,000,000, broke down at this tribute.

Indiana Woman Wins 10 Weeks' Fight for Riches.

Money Left to Charity Because Relative Incited Mother Against Her, Is Complainant's Plea.

South Bend, Ind., May 23.—The jury in the contest brought by Mrs. Mabel C. Trainor to set aside the will of her mother, Mrs. Minerva C. Good, returned a verdict for Mrs. Trainor after having been out forty-one hours. Property valued at $300,000 was involved, the same, with the exception of $120,000 which was divided among three sisters, being left to charity. It was claimed by Mrs. Trainor that in drawing a codicil which disinherited her, her mother was influenced by her brother-in-law, William T. Carskadden, it being alleged that Carskadden had made the aged women believe her daughter was plotting to secure possession of the estate. The case lasted for ten weeks.

KIDNAPERS BEAT POLICE IN RACE

Carry Off Youth After Seventy-Mile Automobile Chase.

FATHER OF CHILD SUSPECTED

Woman Alights from Mysterious Car and Lures Boy from Playmates With Promise of Candy—Second Attempt Succeeds.

Detroit, Mich., May 23,—Distancing a member of the Windsor police force in a seventy-mile automobile chase, a party of two men and one woman made their escape after kidnaping 4-year-old Wilson Scott, son of Mrs. Margaret Scott. The lad was captured while he was playing with several other children near the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Eliza Wilson.

From the story told by Mrs. Scott, the police believe the kidnaping was planned by her former husband, Leroy Scott, to obtain possession of his child.

Seated in a big, black touring car, the kidnapers crossed from Detroit and attracted the attention of people along Elliott street and Dougall avenue by hovering around the neighborhood.

Finally the automobile came to a stop in the rear of the Dougall avenue public school, where little Wilson Scott was playing with two other children. The woman alighted and approached the children, asking one of them to get her a drink.

While the boy was away getting the drink she picked up Wilson and carried him to the automobile, telling him she was going to give him some candy.

The Windsor police were notified at once. Sergt. James Jackson secured an automobile and started in pursuit, disregarding all speed laws. At Essex he was told that a party answering the description had passed through about an hour before.

At Blenheim, about fifty miles from Windsor, he lost the trail and before he picked it up again the fugitives had gained such a lead that pursuit was out of the question. At Ridgetown he started back home.

Mrs. Scott has been a resident of Windsor for about a year, living with her mother, the widow of a former clergyman. Three years ago she secured a divorce in Detroit from Leroy Scott, after a short unhappy married life in Ridgetown and London, Ont.

According to her story, Scott made an attempt to kidnap the child shortly after the divorce was granted, while she was living in Detroit, but was head off at the ferry dock.

MONUMENT IN WRONG PLACE

Webster Birthstone Fails to Mark Proper Spot, is Claim.

Franklin, N. H., May 23.—Frank Proctor says that the stone monument marking the site of the birthplace of Daniel Webster is located in the wrong place.

The late George W. Smith, of Franklin, in his will provided that a monument should be erected on the spot of his illustrious friend, Webster. Mr. Proctor says:

"It seems incredible that Miss Annie Smith, executrix of her father's will herself a member of the New Hampshire Historical society, should have mislocated the birth spot. Such, however, is undoubtedly the fact.

"The rustic stone monument which she caused to be set up is on the site of the log cabin which Daniel's father, Ebenezer Webster, in 1761 planted on the outskirts of civilization. It is well known that Daniel and his brother, Ezekiel, were not born in this log cabin, but in the west front room of a frame house which was erected seven years after the cabin, and stood diagonally across the road."

$10,000,000 GIFT FOR PRINCETON

Isaac C. Wyman Gives Bulk of Fortune to University.

PRESENT TOKEN OF AFFECTION

Love for Alma Mater Prompts Prodigality of Massachusetts Multi-Millionaire—New Chapel is Provided for in Will.

Salem, Mass., May 23.—By the will of Isaac C. Wyman, of Salem, filed in the probate court, the bulk of his estate, which is estimated at nearly $10,000,000, is left to the graduate school of Princeton university as a memorial of Mr. Wyman's "lasting affection," as the will phrases it, for the alma mater.

John M. Raymon, of Salem, and Dean Andrew S. West, of the Princeton graduate school, named as trustees, are given almost absolute power in disposing of the property.

To Susan B. Dickinson, of Marblehead, a niece, and his sole surviving relative, the multi-millionaire directs that the income of a fixed sum be paid during her life. The will also directs that the trustees erect a chapel as a memorial to Mr. Wyman's parents.

As a member of the faculty put it, the legacy which fell to Princeton by the will of Isaac C. Wyman, is big enough to cover the differences of opinion which led to the withdrawal last February of William Cooper Proctor's offer of half a million dollars for the use of the graduate school of Princeton. Said one of the leading professors:

"We are heartily tired of the controversy which led Mr. Proctor to withdraw his offer and we are quite ready to have this gift accepted with no ado whatsoever. I have heard nobody intimate that the old contest will be renewed. The bequest looks like a solution of all our troubles."

The Adams girl declares that she saw William Seyler grab her sister when the latter wished to leave the pier.

Consort of Spain's Ruler Gives Birth to Third Son, Who Dies.

PRINCE BORN; SOON DIES

Queen of Spain Accouched While King is Absent.

Guns Announce the Arrival of Third Son, but Soon Tolling of Bells Tell of Infant's Death.

Madrid, May 23.—The fourth child of Queen Victoria and King Alfonso of Spain was born, but the infant prince died within a few minutes.

Shortly after the birth a bulletin was issued by the physicians of the queen saying that her condition was satisfactory. It is understood that the death of her uncle, King Edward VII, was a great shock to the queen.

King Alfonso, who has been in London for the funeral of King Edward, will find his own land saddened on his return.

The booming of guns announced the arrival of the third son to the young couple. Within less than half an hour, however, the tolling of bells in the great churches told the people that the young prince was dead.

MRS. HYDE SUES ESTATE

Wife of Convicted Physician Demands Division of Property.

Kansas City, May 23.—Mrs. B. Clark Hyde, wife of the convicted physician, has filed two partition suits against the estate of her uncle, Colonel Thomas H. Swope.

One suit asks for a division of the residuary portion of the estate. The other action requests a division of the property that would have gone to her brother, Chisman Swope, had he lived. So large are the interests involved, attorneys say, that the only way the property can be divided is to sell it.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. A BAD MEMORY.

Complications That Brought About a Wedding.

By THERESA C. HOLT.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"Mr. Rucker," said the pretty widow, Mrs. Taylor, "why will you be so uncomplimentary as to forget me, to pass me by as if you did not know me when we meet on the street?"

"I think it must be something in my eyesight," said Mr. Rucker apologetically.

"Eyesight! Nonsense!"

"You know perfectly well that I consider you one of my most valued friends."

"So valued that you can't remember you have ever met me before on seeing me after a week's separation."

"My memory for faces is execrable."

"You shall not treat me so slightingly again, I promise you. I will make you remember me."

"I beg you to do so. Then I shall be happy at receiving your smile that I don't get when I pass you without recognizing you. But suppose you forget me when you pass, what will come of that?"

"I'll bet you what you like I won't."

"What I like?"

"Yes."

"Very well. Let it be a kiss."

"A kiss?"

"Yes, a kiss against a dozen pairs of gloves."

"You mean, I presume, that if I fail to recognize you the next time we meet

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS!" EXCLAIMED THE LADY.

I am to give you a kiss. If I do recognize you, you give me a dozen pairs of gloves."

"That's right."

"It wouldn't be a fair bet. I am sure to recognize you."

"I dare say you will, and I shall have a good excuse for making up with the gloves for my forgetfulness."

Several weeks passed, when one day the widow, seeing what she believed to be the figure of Mr. Rucker on the street before her, hastened her steps. "I told him I would make him remember me, and I will," she muttered. Coming up behind the figure, she raised her parasol and gave the gentleman a vigorous poke in the back. He turned angrily; but, seeing a pretty woman smiling at him, he smiled, too, raising his hat at the same time. Nevertheless he looked puzzled.

"I told you I would make you remember me," she said laughingly.

"Ah!"

"And I'll take the gloves—I wear 5¾, usually four buttons."

"Eh?"

"I'm killing!" laughed the lady. "I've forgotten the bet."

"The bet?"

"I wonder if you really have forgotten it or are trying to get out of it."

"Not I," said the gentleman gallantly, by this time gathering his wits. "How many pairs have I lost?"

"Another lapse of memory—one dozen pairs, 5¾."

"Oh, yes; but would you mind telling me the terms of the bet? You know what an abominable memory I have."

The gentleman was walking with her and evidently enjoying her society.

"Oh, no," she said, "the last time I met you I bet you one dozen pairs of gloves against"— She hesitated. "It was the other way, wasn't it?"

"Your memory gone too?"

"Not a bit! Since you've lost there can be no harm in saying what it is—a kiss."

The gentleman opened his eyes and puckered up his lips. Then he smacked them as if he relished an imaginary kiss.

"Well, go on," he said.

"The bet was that I would know you the next time I met you."

"H'm!" said the gentleman.

"Of course I wouldn't have made such a bet if I hadn't been certain I'd remember you. I'd known you from your twin brother."

"Would you?"

"Yes; of course."

They came to a corner, and the lady said:

"I go down this street to my home. Good day."

"I'll go with you."

He walked to her door, and it was agreed that he should call the next evening to settle the bet. As soon as the door closed behind him he made a note of the number.

The man who made the bet with the widow was Mr. Ned Rucker. The man whom she met on the street was his twin brother, Mr. Fred Rucker. The latter had just returned from a long residence abroad. The two were bachelors and were in rooms together. Fred Rucker, after his meeting with the widow, went home and, finding his brother there, told of his adventure.

"Well, well," exclaimed Mr. Ned Rucker, "if that isn't the best thing I ever struck!"

"You ever struck!"

"Yes—I. Don't you see I've won a kiss?"

"Well, I like that. I propose to call on the lady tomorrow evening and receive payment. You've got nothing to do with this meeting. She didn't meet you and not know you."

Ned subsided. He pondered awhile and then said: "I tell you what we can do. You can go and get your kiss (if she'll pay it). Then I'll pass her and pretend I'm you. That'll give me a kiss."

"It wouldn't be fair."

"It isn't fair for you to claim a kiss either. She didn't make the bet with you. She made it with me."

"Do you object to my having what fun out of it I like?"

"No."

"Then I'll see it out."

The next evening Mr. Fred Rucker, armed with a dozen pairs of kid gloves, called on the widow. She came down pleased at having won the gloves.

"How nice of you," she said. "I wonder you remembered to bring them or your appointment this evening."

"I'm very forgetful," he said mournfully.

"Very."

"Still, this meeting today was no test. How would you like to bet a kiss against another dozen pairs of gloves that you won't know me next time we meet."

"Oh, I don't wish to win any more gloves from you."

"But I wish to win the kiss."

"You can never do that."

However, he pleaded so hard that she made the bet. He entered a memorandum of it in his book, and they both signed it. It read:

We bet that Mrs. Taylor doesn't know me, Mr. Rucker, when we meet again on the street—a kiss against a dozen pairs of gloves.

During the call Mr. Rucker appeared as interested in her as before he had appeared indifferent. When he had gone she was quite astonished to note that instead of the hour being 10 o'clock, as she had supposed, the hands of the clock stood at 11:30. Indeed, she experienced quite a pleasurable sensation for the rest of the evening.

Mrs. Taylor was somewhat excited over the bet she had made and felt the necessity for watching very closely for Mr. Rucker on the street, fearing that if she passed him unnoticed he would claim payment of the bet. This kept her thinking of him most of the time. During his visit he had appeared very different from what he had ever appeared before—more vivacious, brighter; indeed, she had found him clever and entertaining. She was not averse to marrying and wondered why she had not thought of him before as a possible husband.

When Mrs. Taylor met Mr. Rucker again she was paralyzed with astonishment. He was doubled. The double's two right arms went up to his two hats, and there was a smile on his two faces.

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed the lady.

One of the Mr. Ruckers said: "You have a bet with one of us that you would know him when you met him on the street. One of us is a stranger to you. Therefore you can't know him, because a lady can't know a man to whom she has never been introduced. Please tell us which you have bowed to."

Mrs. Taylor was flustered. She tried to make out the one she had known, but failed.

"That's not fair," she said.

"Why not?" asked one of the twins.

Mrs. Taylor was not in a condition of mind to point out just why it wasn't fair. Had she been cool she might have thought of a way out of the dilemma. She made choice between the two and named the wrong man. Both men burst into a laugh.

"I've won," said Mr. Fred Rucker.

Mrs. Taylor colored to the roots of her hair.

"So long," said Ned Rucker, and he passed on.

"Of course, as a gentleman," said the lady to the remaining Rucker, "you'll not ask me to pay the bet."

"Not now," he replied, "I'll pay it myself. I'll call this evening with a dozen pairs of gloves."

"What do you mean by 'not now,'"

"I'll give you a sort of ticket of leave based on your good behavior."

That evening Mr. Fred Rucker called on Mrs. Taylor not only with a dozen pairs of gloves, but with a plentiful supply of flowers.

"How good of you," she said, "to win a bet and not only pay it, but bring these lovely flowers."

She sniffed the perfume with her beautiful nose, then continued:

"What did you mean by a 'ticket of leave' and all that?"

"The ticket may be exchanged for a full discharge this very evening if you prefer it."

"Explain."

"Mine is a case of love at first sight. Will you marry me?"

"What has that to do with it?" asked the widow in a low tone and with averted head.

"This: There is no harm in a kiss between an engaged couple."

Before Mr. Rucker left the bet was paid and the matter settled.

Experts have held that the so-called "cat" of the ancient Romans and Greeks ("ailurus," the wavy-tailed one) was not a cat at all, but a kind of weasel. The mummified Egyptian animal, however, was a genuine cat, even if certain peculiarities about its teeth make it difficult to regard it as a near relative of the modern domestic puss.

Wanted No Waste of Time.

The father of Chauncey M. Depew was a frugal farmer and a pious man. He never liked to waste any time at a prayer meeting. One night when all the experiences had been told and interest lagged and the prayers grew feeble, Brother Depew arose and solemnly said:

"I ask, what is the use of this valuable time wasting? Can't some of the brethren tell their experience, or at least pray?"

No one made any effort to respond whereupon Brother Depew said:

"Well, my brethren, as the regular exercises seem to halt a little and no one desires to pray or tell his experience, I will improve the time by making a few observations on the tariff."—Cleveland Leader.

A QUESTION OF IDENTITY.

"Guilty!!"

I heard the verdict of the jury indifferently; I braced myself against the rail and waited for the exordium of the judge. In that supreme moment I felt that I alone dominated the court room. Every face among the spectators was turned on mine in horror. The senile old foreman was pulling his beard, and his lips moved; I knew that he was uttering a prayer.

Then the judge commenced his speech. I had been justly convicted of a dastardly crime, he said; I had crept by night into the bedchamber of a millionaire sheep-owner and blown him into eternity with a bomb. As for my defense of mistaken identity, that was too contemptible to require notice. The cowardly cattlemen's organization which had, he did not doubt, inspired and hired me, might for the moment, have escaped justice. But the law, though slow, was sure; it would track down their leaders as it had tracked me down. I could have no hope of a reprieve, and he recommended me to spend what short time remained to me in making my peace with God.

Men under sentence of death seem, even to their jailers, to have atoned already for their crimes and sins. For the first time since my imprisonment began the sheriff evinced compassionate pity toward me as he sat beside me in my cell that night.

"My boy," he began, "why not confess and make your peace? Jim, you ain't never had no case, boy. Jim ain't your name, you say? You ain't Jim Crawford, but Frank Sandford, and happened along about the time the explosion occurred. Lad, didn't they find the giant powder in your bedroom? Isn't there 30, and more people in this town identified you. Your own brother came all the way from Omaha to disown you, and then had to admit you. You've been identified by your own photographs and thumb prints and measurements in the St. Louis penitentiary, and that's surer than the Gospels, Jim. An' your own dog identified you in the court room. Jim, lad, I've never had to swing a man but he owned up to me before he died. I'd hate to send you into eternity with a lie on your lips."

The good old man ambled away at last shaking his head over my obstinacy. Well, I was prepared to die, but never, while the truth was in my body, would I admit that I was the desperado they claimed me to be. Perhaps I, too, had I been in the jury box, would have convicted. Yet there was one person who still believed in me through all, since the first day of my incarceration, and that was Muriel, the sheriff's daughter. She accompanied her father the following morning when he brought me my breakfast, and gave me a great bunch of roses.

"Frank, dear," she whispered, as the old man turned away from my cell door. "I trust and believe in you. I know you're not Jim Crawford, but my love. And I'll save you, Frank, I'll save you."

I surmised from what direction the held would come, and my next interview with Annie confirmed my suspicions.

"Frank, dearest," she whispered, "your friends are going to make a jail delivery at midnight. And when you're in the east again and safe from all danger you must send me word somehow and I will come to you. And I'll wait patiently for months and months or years if need be; for I know you are innocent, Frank, and I shall love you always."

It was a night of horror such as I had never known. The suspense, always the suspense; the silent night, broken by pistol shots; the battering of logs against the prison doors; the cries that resounded through the stone halls like rifle fire; the long, eternal agony of doubt—and then my rescuers, masked men, brandishing their guns like torches, bursting along the corridor to free me with the keys which they had taken from the old sheriff, who stood in their midst, helplessly protesting—all this was like the phantasmagora of a dream until at length, coming to my senses, I found myself seated upon the swiftest horse in Cobweb, leading a mare packed with the necessities of life wherewith to cross the desert.

I thrust my feet exultantly inside the stirrups of wood; I pressed my knees against my horse's flanks and gathered the snaffle reins between my fingers. Then casting one glance backward, I saw Muriel's eyes fixed upon mine in love such as had not before come to me.

She had trusted me as few women had done. I could not leave her to eat out her heart through the months and years of doubts and hopelessness. I could not go to freedom with a lie in my heart such as I could have carried to the gibbet. I leaned over my saddle-bags and whispered to her:

"Girl, I AM Jim Crawford."—Harold Carter.

Where Checks are Signed by Thumb Prints.

Out in Cheyenne, Wyoming, there is a bank which has depositors of so many different nationalities that it has found it necessary to require identification by some means other than a written signature. The bank officials have, therefore, made it a rule that its foreign depositors must sign their checks with the impression of their right thumb, in addition to their written signatures. Railroads in Wyoming have brought in, as laborers, hundreds of Asiatics, including Japanese, Chinese, Koreans, etc., while big coal mines around Cheyenne have imported many thousands of workmen from southern Europe. Hundreds of these have made deposits with this bank, but are mostly unknown to the bank officials. Writing English but poorly, these depositors could scarcely ever duplicate their own signatures, and for the protection of the bank the officials were obliged to demand an additional identification. When a would-be depositor asks to open an account with that bank he places on file his written signature, and at the same time the impress of his right thumb is filed. Afterwards when a check from this man is received at the bank, it must have the thumb-print attached as well as the written signature, and this thumb-print must, of course, correspond with that on file in the bank's records. The thumb-print system, it may be added, is the old Chinese method of identification.—Strand Magazine.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE COMET? HAD IT A TAIL?

Comments from Everywhere

Many and curious are the reports of those who have been scanning the heavens of late for a glimpse of Halley's comet, not among the common people alone but scientists as well, have a different story to tell. According to all the latest reports the tail is strangely missing and the poor head is wandering around through space in a most forlorn manner and dashes out of sight when every one is trying to locate it. Heat, cold, rain, no rain, luck, good or bad, all have the comet to thank for its influence.

A comet whose tail grew like blazes
Astonished the learned old sages
For it dropped off the whole
Like a common tadpole,
That tail that has lasted for ages.

To the phrase "Man doth propose, but God doth dispose" might be added another line "The scientist knows, but the comet just goes."

Now we can give the naked eye a rest.

Next time Mr. Halley will put a bell on it.

Lost, strayed or stolen—One comet. When last seen, had a tail, which may have been run over by an areoplane. Reward if returned—Edmund Halley.

The view we are compelled to take of the opinion of some astronomers, we don't get through any telescope.

A fusilade about 10 o'clock last Wednesday night brought out many of the anxious ones in the southwestern part of ths village, but things soon quieted down when it was discovered that the disturbance was caused by some one shooting cats.

One observer who remained up late to late to see the comet remarked that "the clouds were beautiful."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

A number of seats have been changed in physics class.

One of the high school teachers can't refrain from mixing up in a 'kids' quarrell. He succeeded very well in making a mountain out of an ant hill.

Horray! No school next Friday. All aboard for the Field meet at Adrian.

Josephine Orr does have such delicious candy the last period in the morning.

Miss Bishopp seems to think that no opinion has a right to show its face in one of her classes except her own. I wonder if that is the reason why some got marked down so low in the recent examinations.

English III has begun the study of "As You Like It."

The freshmen have really got some nerve at last. (I wonder what kind of nerve tonic it was because the Seniors need it bad.) The freshies have succeeded in placing their colors on the lightening rod, but it is 10 feet yet to the top of the tower.

We are glad to see Georgie back at school. We missed his pleasant face.

For Mothers.

At the Mother's meeting last Sunday evening the speaker emphasized the importance of mothers looking after their young girls more closely and seeing to it that the education of the street did not get in ahead of other instruction.

When one sees the host of little young girls who pass up and down one side of the street and then the other, there can be no wonder that so many are led astray. Mothers, watch your dear young daughters. They are too precious to be lost.

A Suggestion for Memorial Day.

Thirtieth day of May, Memorial Day. Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah! for the brave boys in blue and gray!

"Over the cannon's mouth the spider weaves her web." By spinning the web over the cannon's mouth she tells us it is time to stop war. The spider was the world's first engineer and suspension bridge builder. Would it nrt be fine to have our boys in blue wheel up one of their old cannon and the boys in gray wheel up one of their old cannon and leave them close enough for the spider to spin her suspension bridge between them? While the mother spider is building the bridge the Junior spiders could spin a beautiful web over the mouth of each cannon. On the morning of the thirtieth of May the Juniors of the North and South could march around the cannons and sing "The Saar Spangled Banner." Early in the morning they will see something like diamons on the web of the suspension bridge. Some might call them dew drops—the Juniors can imagine they are tears. Imagine that nature has been crying about the brave boys in gray and the brave boys in blue, who sleep in soldiers' graves.

I have read that the humming bird in Australia protects its home with a lightening rod. Before a thunderstorm bursts the prudent bird covers the outside of its nest with a spider's web. Silk is a non-conductor of electricity, and since the spider web is silk the humming-bird's nest is thereby made lightning proof. The spider web between the cannon of the North and cannon of the South will, let us hope, protect us from all future thunder-storms of war. Three cheers for the spider and her web.—Rev. J. M. Farrar in Christian Herald.

The Little Courtesies Of Life.

In an exchange we find that 80 male parishoners of the Brooklyn Episcopal church have organized in a fight against the wearing of the immense hats worn by women at the Sunday services. They have circulated letters among the offending parties.

And indeed we do not blame them for who can enjoy a sermon when they have to crane their necks in all directions to get a sight of the speaker. We also enter our protest. Wear them on the streets, ladies, if you wish, but for church wear adopt a more modest head dress.

And another thing that is getting to be a menace to the safety of the pedestrian is the bicycle on the walk. If every one would "keep to the right as the law directs for that is the rule of the road" there would be no cause for complaint but so many are so thoughtless and expect to have the right of way regardless.

Shall we say anything about roller skating? We love it dearly and enjoy seeing others as they skim over the walk, but these too forget the rights of others and drive the unwary into the gutter.

Please friends remember to observe the golden rule in these things and rest assured no one would find fault, or appeal to the Council for redress.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Colds, Croup and Whooping Cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of Croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. Its a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hemorrhages, Weak Lungs. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by C. Senior Reception

HELD AT WITHERELL HALL, FRIDAY EVENING.

Witherell Hall was a scene of youth and beauty on Friday evening, May 20, when the Seniors gave a reception to their friends among the Tecumseh High school Juniors.

The reception room was gaily decorated in the High School colors, black and orange, and in the glow of the electric light was fine. Various pennants from colleges and high schools lent an added interest to the surroundings.

The dining room was made beautiful by a blending of the Junior colors, white and green, with those of the High School. The spotless napery on the tables and the green vines scattered over it brought out the Junior colors effectively. The sun-flower effects in orange with black centers and a wax candle, to give the necessary light, just dimly set forth the light and brightness of Tecumseh High. Japanese lanterns, graceful willow boughs and flowers in vases all blended in a most pleasing effect.

The entrance to the dining room was made through a sylvan gateway surmounted by lanterns and the beauteous springtime of life was well represented by tokens of the season of the year through which we are passing.

A two course supper was served consisting of chicken loaf with mushroom dressing, mashed potatoes, sandwiches, pickles, jellies, etc., with ice cream, cake and strawberries to bring out the Senior colors of white and red.

A short program was given with toasts and lent an added zest to the occasion. Ella Titus gave a very sweet solo which was received with pleasure. A toast "The Fellow" was responded to by Harriett Teachout '10 in a most spicy manner. The response to the toast "The Girls" was given with all the enthusiasm of an appreciative young man by Verne Rogers '10. A piano duet was charmingly given by Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Hodges. Prof. McAlpine responded to the toast "Brains;" using his own in a very effective manner to illustrate his subject. Miss Mingay gave a very a fine reading which gave much pleasure to her hearer. "Problems" were faithfully wrought out and the answers verified by Alice Satterthwaite. Miss Root treated "Bluffers" in a very happy manner, considering the subject she had to handle.

The evening passed all too swiftly but all things must have an ending and as the happy crowd dispersed for their homes it was with a half-sad, half-glad feeling.

For parting comes with loving friend
And happy school days have an end,
The ties that bind each class together
Resisting every change of weather,
Are broken when the year is ended,
And lives with other lives are blended.

A DEAD STOMACH

Of What Use Is It to Anyone?

Thousands? yes hundreds of thousands of people throughout America are taking the slow death treatment daily.

They are mudering their own stomach, the best friend they have, and in their sublime ignorance they think they are putting aside the laws of nature.

This is no sensational statement; it is a startling fact, the truth of which any honorable physician will deny.

These thousands of people are swallowing daily hugh quanties of pepsin and other strong digesters, made especially to digest the food in the stomach without any aid at all from the digestive membrane of the stomach.

In other words, they are taking from the stomach the work that nature intended it should do, and are also refusing it the only chance for exercise it has.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets relieve distressed stomach in five minutes; they do more. Taken regularly for a few weeks they build up the run down stomach and make it strong enough to digest its own food. Then indigestion, belching, sour stomach and headache will go.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold by C. A. Wright. 50 cents a box.

THAT DOLLAR

Anthony knots to the Farmers Mean Dollars

There is just about as much difference between Anthony woven wire fence and some other wire fences as between Anthony fence and the old "Virginia Worm" rail fence.

You Can Compare ANTHONY with any Fence

The decision is always in favor of Anthony Fence. Never in the history of fence making has a tie been used in construction that is so perfect as the Anthony knot which is used exclusively in Anthony fence—no other. The knot is made from tough wire, same size as the line wire, will not come off, and leaves no kink in line wire inside knot. No possible damage to stock, nor loss of wool from sheep from an Anthony knot—it is smooth, compact, strong. Nothing but the highest grade of heavily galvanized, hard spring steel wire; and every bundle of it is rigidly inspected and the fence made from it is given a like inspection. We buy the best wire we can get. We make the best fence we know how—and we know how. When you have your farm fenced with Anthony fence your fence troubles are over.

WILD GOAT PEST OF HAWAII.

Destroy Young Forest Trees—Hunting the Animals Popular Diversion.

The wild goat of Hawaii has in recent years become a serious menace to agriculture in various parts of the Territory. Secure among the almost inaccessible cliffs of the mountains, thousands of these nimble animals find a congenial home, and although no systematic efforts have as yet been inaugurated for exterminating them, they are nevertheless extremely wary and difficult to approach.

All of the islands in the group have large areas of extremely broken and rugged mountain country, of no value except for the watersheds they afford, but this of greatest importance. Although the rainfall on the windward sides of the islands is very heavy, in some instances ranging as high as high as twenty or thirty inches a month, the lee sides in many cases get almost no rain at all, all the moisture being wrung from the steady northeast trade winds by the chill of the high altitude of the great volcanic mountain ranges over which they pass.

These dry districts in many instances have splendid soils, and extensive irrigation systems have been built to carry the water from the wet sides of the mountains in order that they may be cultivated. But owing to the precipitous nature of the mountains and the porous character of the volcanic formations, without a good covering of forest growth to hold the rain the greater part of it runs off to the ocean in foaming torrents almost as fast as it is precipitated.

The Territorial Government is doing much in the way of forest planting and in the encouragement of forestry, but its work has in some instances at least been undone by the wild goats and cattle. Not only do the goats destroy the foliage of the smaller vegetation, but when this supply falls short they dig out and eat the tender roots.

Goat hunting is a popular diversion in some parts of the Territory and as a sport is by no means to be despised. Although the animals are numerous, it requires some hard tramping and climbing to get to their haunts, and then a true aim and good eye for distance in order to have much success. Occasionally parties are organized and a week or more spent in goat shooting, with the result that sometimes several hundred are slaughtered.—Honolulu Cor. Forest and Stream.

Pat's Bright Idea.

Laziness, not necessity, is frequently the mother of invention. Pat, the laborer, who was digging a ditch out near Darby last week, was rather lazy, hence a brilliant idea came to him. On the first day of the job he dug and dug but made small progress. He came back next morning only to find that what he had done the day before was entirely wiped out by a cave-in. It was plain to see that there had been a cave-in, so that suggested to Pat his idea. Half-burying his pick and shovel in the earth leaving only the ends sticking out, he carefully threw his coat and dinner pail near the edge of the cave-in and then hid. In a short time people came along, took in the situation at a glance, jumped at the conclusion that a laborer had been caught in the fall of the bank, and went to work hastily, trying to uncover his body. Half an hour later three sweating and puzzled men stood by the now nearly completed ditch and wondered where the buried man was. Then Pat came out from the retirement and said: "Thank ye, gentlemen. I knowed you'd bite on that. I've been enjoying a quiet smoke all by me lonesome."—Philadelphia Record.

Shooting Stars.

Shooting stars are not real stars at all, but are small bodies which the earth runs into and which are made so hot by friction in the atmosphere that they are burned up. The real stars, are those of the dipper, are very very far away, so far that no one knows the distance. They are bright bodies like our sun, but seem like points of light because they are so far off. As the earth moves about the sun, it frequently meets these bodies. It is moving so fast that when it strikes them the friction in the air is very great an usually they are burned up. They seem like moving stars, but are really only a few miles above us in our atmosphere. Sometimes one is so large that it comes through the air without being wholly burned up, and falls on the ground.—St. Nicholas.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. Wisher's of Lamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler, of 215 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.109 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

DIET FOR WORKING GIRLS.

Headaches, poor complexion, nerves irritable temper, despondency and other ailments of a real character are complaints of the working girl leading a sedentary life. The seamstress has pains through the small of the back, the typewritist has shoulder blade pains, eye strain and cramps in the hands. The one who must stand too long at her work suffers with pains in the back and limbs. But women can endure far more if they eat properly. It is estimated that 50 per cent of the working girls eat ice cream and sandwiches for their luncheon, and the ham cooked for sandwiches is never wholly done, because to cook it thoroughly done it cannot be cut into thin slices and will fall apart. No working woman unless she is washing, scrubbing or doing hard physical labor, should eat meat three times a day. It takes all the strength of the human body to aid digestion. Coffee drinkers are estimated by the millions, yet a conscientious doctor will look at a pale-faced girl, on her last nerve and third cup of coffee and think: "I would rather see you take a 'pony' of whisky to one cup of coffee." But he is lenient and says: "Leave out coffee for evening dinner, then when you are convinced you can leave it alone, do not take it at luncheon and gradually decrease it at breakfast until you can do without it entirely. Do not expect to conquer the habit without much determination nor expect results in one week or one month." Exercise is as essential as the food one eats, and, unless a girl or woman takes some exercise, digestion is retarded, and this means almost complete lassitude during working hours. Do not begin a series of exercises that will leave you tired and weak. A beginner should start with exercises that will take but five minutes a day, then ten, fifteen and lastly one-half hour. It will take seven weeks before the beginner can exercise the unused muscles without suffering some discomfort unless it is gradual. Before breakfast drink a cup of water. No girl would think of going to work without washing her face and hands, yet not one in fifty thinks of the stomach or the needful glass of water. Take another glass of water just before retiring. And about candy eating. Sweets are essential for energy, but not a great amount of sweets for the working girl. The athlete can eat a pound of candy without injury to himself; a dime's worth of chocodates contains a whole day's headache for the average working girl. Candy is converted into an acid as soon as it enters the stomach, and too much acid leads to an attack of bilious headache. It is a great trial and a great privation to adhere to just these few simple rules, but, if a girl would so so, she would find it costs nothing and is worth hundreds of dollars to her, for without health, the handicap to the working woman is like a milestone around her neck. You do not need to pay out all your wages for doctor bills if you have stamina enough about you to use a little will power and tell yourself you do not want candy, when you know you would pawn your best clothes for even a peppermint drop.

The Sound Sleep Of Good Health

The restorative power of sound sleep can not be over estimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock. I eat and enjoy my meals, and my general condition is greatly improved. I can honestly recommen Foley's Kidney Pills as I know they have cured me." For sale by all druggists.

A YANKEE TRA

Ezra Bowman's progenitors always been English country gen men and landed proprietors, the fore when he got involved in a la suit with his next door neighbor a lost pretty much everything he had he gathered up the fragments and came to America with a view of continuing the family traditional life. He was impractical and visionary, fancying that in this land of large production he would make a fortune and go back to England to live under his beloved British flag. He had a daughter, Hilma, twenty years old, whom he wished to remain single until this happy return, when he hoped his altered fortunes might enable him to marry her to a younger son of some nobleman.

But Hilma Bowman fell in love with a young farmer, Mark Evans, who owned the adjoining property, and her love was returned. When he proposed she told him frankly of her father's plans for her. Mark proposed to marry her despite the old man's opposition, but Hilma was an English girl, and marriage without her parent's consent was with her entirely out of the question.

Had Ezra Bowman known of the situation he would have forbidden Mark the house. As it was, he took quite a fancy to the young man and made him welcome whenever he came to his farm. Bowman was very fond of games, and Mark was the only person living near by that he could get to play with him. Chess and checkers were his favorites, and, since in Mark he found a worthy opponent, he was always ready for a game with him.

Now, whatever be the strong points of the British people, they can never cope with their American cousins in shrewdness. Bowman was as stolid as a stone meeting house. One day Evans told the old man that he was thinking of selling his farm. It was a splendid piece of property, and Bowman would have been delighted to get it if he could have raised the money to buy it. Nevertheless he asked Mark what would be his price for it. Mark replied that he had not made up his mind to sell it, but if he could get $25,000 for it he might let it go. Since that was nearly $25,000 more money than Bowman had the conversation was dropped.

Soon after this Mark took the man whose son-in-law he wished to be over his farm, showing him the land, the dwellings, the barns, the stock, the farming tools, everything. They were all in prime condition, and Bowman's cupidity was excited. It troubled him that he had no money with which to buy such a fine property, and he confessed this to its owner. Mark told him that he would sell the property to him for one-half of what he would sell it to any one else. But as the half was no more to be raised than the whole this did not help matters.

One day when the two were playing checkers Mark said:

"Mr. Bowman, I've made up my mind to go west and shall sell my farm. Now since you want it I wish you to have it. Make me an offer."

"I couldn't raise $500," said the old man.

They finished the game, Mark beating because his opponent was thinking of the coveted property. Then Mark leaned back in his chair and said:

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Mr. Bowman, with you—mind, with you, not with any one else. I'll sell you my farm on these terms. Let me see. The farm is 180 acres. I will sell it to you with everything on it on the following terms: For the first ten acres you are to pay me at the rate of 1 cent an acre, the second ten acres at the rate of 2 cents an acre, the third ten acres at the rate of 4 cents, the fourth 8 cents, and in this proportion to the end. But I will sell all or none."

There was covetousness in the old man's eye. He looked for some reason why Mark wished to sell so cheap. Surely he had been over the property and had found everything in good condition. He ran up the amount in his head till he had reached the eighth lot of ten acres, which he found to cost only $12.80.

"Are you going to give me the farm?" he asked.

"No; I propose to sell it to you."

Bowman went on figuring.

"I won't leave the offer open," said Mark.

"Done," said Bowman, ceasing to figure, and, taking a ten dollar bill from his pocket, he gave it to Mark to bind the bargain. Mark without wasting any time called for pen and paper and wrote out a bill of sale on the terms proposed. It was executed, and Bowman gave a sigh of relief. He had feared there would be a slip. Then, taking a pencil, he figured up how much he was to pay. When he had finished he turned on the seller with a howl of rage. He had bought the property for exactly $26,214.20.

It was easy enough for Mark Evans to catch the pig-headed Britisher in a trap, but to induce him to give his daughter in lieu of taking the farm was another matter. Nevertheless there was no other recourse, and when the girl and all the family begged him to acknowledge himself beaten he finally gave in. Evans released him from his bargain on the wedding day.—Nellie Edna Curtis.

Denatured Alcohol.

Uncle Sam removed the duty on grain alcohol, used for manufacturing purposes provided it should be so treated as to prevent its use as a beverage. The owner of the chafing dish will purchase this alcohol for 15 cents a pint, knowing that it is the cheapest fuel obtainable for the alcohol lamp. It is useful for cleaning garments. If used to dilute certain cleaning fluids, it is splendid for removing blemishes from cotton, silk of wool. When using it, the article must be placed over a blotting paper to absorb the grease or blemish otherwise it will remain, or leave a mark around the goods. As a fuel it burns with no odor, consequently it is best for use where one has but a single room and an alcohol or oil stove must frequently be used. It is cheap enough to burn in the bathroom stove for heating purposes. All articles manufactured up to date to be used with denatured alcohol are considered practical and cheap, chief among which is the iron for laundry work, to be used in the boarding house, hotel or even the private home

RAIN OBSCURES COMET

Itinerant Twinkler Again Evades Gaze of Thousands.

Loss of Tail Perplexes Astronomers Who Are Withholding Explanation of Phenomena.

Chicago, May 23. — Halley's comet was again obscured from observation by heavy rain clouds. Astronomers say that perhaps the best chance to get a view of both nucleus and tail will be tonight.

Precisely what happened to the tail of the comet has not been satisfactorily settled by the chiefs and experts of the various observatories in America and will not be settled for a long time. A number of calculations must be made before the astronomers can speak with certainty.

An interesting conclusion to which Professor Daniel McHugh, of Depauw university, has come is that the head of the comet has ceased activity and that it is possible that a large part of the tail had been left behind. In that case it will drift through space and will in time be dissipated.

At the Yerkes observatory all observations of the comet were rendered impossible by rain-charged clouds and the same was true of Chicago and vicinity.

RAMA NEAR SURRENDER

Insurgents Take 200,000 Rifles and Supply Trains.

Madriz Columns Are Cut In Two During Feint Which Distracts Attention of Mena Forces.

Bluefields, May 23.—A small force of insurgents under General Mena made a faint with slight loss in front of the government force commanded by General Cavarle, by this means covering operations in the rear, where the insurgents, commanded by General Moncada, cut the communication of the Madriz columns with Muelle de Los Bueyes, forty miles west of Rama.

The insurgents captured ammunition and supply trains and destroyed 200,000 rifles and quick-fire cartridges.

The entire insurgent force is now said to be attacking Rama, in which place is neither food nor ammunition. The Madrizists are said to be surrounded. It is expected by the insurgent sympathizers that news of the surrender of Rama will be received shortly.

Washington, May 23.—The state department has been advised by Thomas P. Moffatt, American consul at Bluefields, that a two days' engagement between the Estrada and Madriz forces has taken place near Rama. The result of the battle is not definitely known.

The Estrada forces lost fourteen killed and their wounded numbered twenty-nine. The casualties of the Madriz forces are unknown.

Auditor-General Finds Increase in Capital of Detroit Line.

Lansing, Mich., May 23. — Auditor-General Fuller has discovered that the paid-in capital of the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee railroad is now $7,000,000, and computing the tax at 1 per cent, he has notified the officials of that company that the tax on its branch of the Grand Trunk system for 1909 is to be $70,000.

There was a long fight between this road and the state over the general tax law.

COURT HOUSE SOLD FOR TAX

Monroe County, Wisconsin, Capitol Is Bid In by City of Sparta.

La Crosse, Wis., May 23.—The Monroe county court house was sold at tax sale for an unpaid weed tax of 30 cents, levied by the city of Sparta.

The county refused to pay the tax on the ground that it was not liable. The building and grounds were bid in by the city attorney for 30 cents, the amount of the tax, and the certificate will be held until the county makes provision for redeeming it.

KIN FIGHT FOR INHERITANCE

Death Takes Away Important Witnesses but One Is Subpoenaed Who Saw Wealthy Vagabond Write Document.

Evansville, Ind., May 23. — Behind the crumpled and jagged piece of grocer's paper sacking with its faint and almost illegible scrawl of words filed before Probate Commissioner Hawkins as the only authentic will of Marshall McMurran, demented miser, lies the story of a foot-sore and sickened tramp, a servant girl's samaritan act of feeding him bread and coffee, and a reward in the inheritance of all of his $60,000 estate.

Mrs. Mattie Hunnum, of Vincennes, Ind., who was then Mattie Drain, with her attorney, William Weems, of Vincennes, came to Evansville and appeared before the probate commissioner to enter the small scrap of paper as the only real testament that McMurran made. The will is dated Sept. 7, 1889, the date on which McMurran begged at the door of William Coogan's house at Vincennes for something to eat. "It read:

"I do on this day, will to Mattie Drain, poor servant girl, who gave me a good bite to eat and a hot cup of coffee when I was weak and feverish from hunger and near ready to drop, and the old man she was working for fursing her for doing it and ordering me out of the yard, I do will that all the property and all the money that I have at death shall be here."

It is signed by McMurran and by Mrs. Emma Grant and Miss Cora Miller as witnesses. It is not sealed by a notary public. Both the witnesses are dead.

McMurran made the will immediately after he left the Coogan home. He went next door to Mrs. Grant's house and asked her for a piece of paper. Mrs. Hannun tells the story now as it was told to her then by Mrs. Grant and Miss Miller.

"He asked Mrs. Grant for a piece of paper," said Mrs. Hannun. "He was angry. 'I have more money than that old man,' he muttered, as he looked toward the Coogan house. 'I'll show him that I have.' The man's earnestness impressed both Mrs. Grant and Miss Miller, and they humored him while he was writing the will, and later when he asked them to become witnesses to it. Mrs. Grant called me immediately after he left the house and gave me the paper. At the time we did not know what to think of the man's conduct, but at a venture I kept it."

A. B. Cody, administrator of the estate and a second cousin of the dead miser, said that he was not qualified to talk about the authenticity of the will, but he believed it could be proved that McCurran was not in his right mind, even at that remote period.

Because of the size of McMurran's estate and the close relationship of a number of the heirs, a hotly fought contest is inevitable. It is certain that McMurran had at least $60,000, and some of those who knew him best believe he had nearly $100,000.

QUAKE TERROR IS RECORDED

Seismograph Indicates Catastrophe 5,500 Miles from London.

London, May 23. — Professor Belar of the Labach observatory, telegraphs that the seismograph there recorded an earthquake of "apparently catastrophic size." It was 5,500 miles distant and lasted two hours, 24 minutes.

Earthquakes were also recorded on May 20 and 21. Professor Belar adds that the occurrence of magnetic and seismic storms coincidentally with the appearance of spots on the sun is remarkable.

Defender of Fugitive Wounds Several in Routing Assailants and Secures Safe Custody for Man.

Atlanta, Ga., May 23.—By empting her revolver into a mob of negroes who had chased Ed Simmons, colored, onto the veranda of her home, Mrs. Thomas Murphy prevented a lynching. Mrs. Murphy was alone when Simmons, cut and bleeding, rushed onto her veranda, crying, "Save me."

About twenty-five negroes were in pursuit of Simmons and entered the yard of the Murphy home to finish their victim.

Quickly seising her revolver, Mrs. Murphy opened fire on the mob. The negroes broke and fled. Two of them were wounded.

After dispersing the mob, Mrs. Murphy called the police and turned over to them the negro whose life she had saved.

MICHIGAN'S TRIBUTE TO GENERAL CUSTER

ON June 4 next the governor of Michigan, with his staff and military guard, will preside at the dedication and unveiling of a heroic statue in Monroe, Mich., of General George Armstrong Custer, the great soldier and Indian fighter, who died, with his whole command, in that bloody battle with Sioux Indians on the Little Big Horn river, in Montana, on June 25, 1876.

This statue was authorized three years ago by the Michigan legislature and was designed by Sculptor E. C. Potter of Greenwich, Conn., and has received the approval of the general's widow.

Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan will be the principal orator of the day, and President Taft will be present and speak during the exercises. An original poem by Will Carleton will be delivered, and a chorus will sing "The Old Brigade," while the surviving members of the Custer brigade will march by and cover the statue with flowers. The brigade holds its annual reunion the day before and will participate in the dedication exercises June 4.

In Center of Four Public Squares.

The monument will be located at the corner of First and Washington streets in Monroe and in the center of four public squares, facing the county courthouse. It could not be duplicated today for $50,000. The cord releasing the veil will be drawn at the proper moment by Elizabeth B. Custer, the widow of the general.

General Custer was born at New Rumley, O., on Dec. 5, 1839. He began his military career at the age of four years. His father belonged to the militia, which compelled every able-bodied man in Ohio sixty-seven years ago to assemble for muster in uniform once a month. He frequently took his son Armstrong, and as he was so young he was very noticeable among so many mature men.

It occurred to Father Custer that a uniform would be a delight to the child, so he had one made like his own by the village tailor in great secrecy and took his little son home in it to his surprised and proud mother. The miniature Continental coat has disappeared, but the waistcoat and breeches were kept by his adoring mother for over half a century.

A Sample of His Pluck.

With these regimentals and carrying a tiny wooden sword he marched beside his father and seemed to understand that courage must go with the uniform.

One night a tooth began aching furiously, and his father sought the doctor, who, as was the cruel custom at the time, twisted out the tooth with forceps. It did not bring forth a whimper from this small son of Mars. When commended for his pluck he said, "Father, we could whip all Michigan!"

At that time there was trouble about the boundary line of Ohio and Michigan and very serious talk of fighting to settle the question. But no one realized that the child had heard the hot discussions, much less understood that one state was pitted against the other.

"My Voice Is For War."

His older brother had learned a speech of an orator of distinction from the school reader and spouted it at home before the day for its delivery at school. To the surprise of his parents one day the little soldier stood at attention, imitating the elocution and gestures of his brother, and piped out, "My voice is for war!"

Such precocity was too much, in his father's estimation, to be confined to a home audience, and the next muster day the child, in uniform, was lifted to the counter of the village store among the militiamen and, waving his sword, announced what proved to be the watchword of his future.

General Custer graduated at West Point in 1861 and was made second lieutenant of a company of the United States cavalry, with which he was present at the first battle of Bull Run. He captured the first colors taken by the Army of the Potomac and distinguished himself in several battles, rising step by step to the rank of major general of volunteers in the civil war. In July, 1866, Custer was made lieutenant colonel of the United States regular cavalry, with the brevet rank of major general, and was thereafter engaged in frontier service, fighting gallantly in many battles with the Indians until his death.

CURTISS WINS N. Y. WORLD PRIZE

Daring Aviator Flies from Albany to Manhattan Island.

GOES 137 MILES IN 152 MINUTES

Average Speed is 54.8 Miles an Hour—Secures $10,000 Purse—Made an International Sustained Record for Speed.

New York, May 30.—Glenn H. Curtiss speeded down the airlanes from Albany to Manhattan Island, doing 137 miles in 152 minutes, better time than any limited on the New York Central ever made. He not only went after the $10,000 prize offered by the New York World, but he made an international record for sustained speed. There were times when his little biplane, which is only half as big as Paulhan's famous flyer, split the air at more than a sixty miles an hour clip and his average speed was 54.2 miles an hour.

There was never in this country anything like Glenn Curtiss' achievement. Like Paulhan, the Frenchman, he proved that it was possible for an aviator to say: "I am going to start here and I am going to finish there."

If you want a fair comparison to show how much quicker a nervy chap may run by air from Albany to New York than the best trains can do take the running time of the New York Central flyers, the class A. trains of the road. The Twentieth Century Limited breezes the route in three hours and three minutes. The Lake Shore Limited says goodby to Albany and how do to New York in three hours and twenty-five minutes, while the Empire State Express needs three hours and eight minutes. The trains cover 142.2 miles. Curtiss and his friends figured that the aeroplane, from the time she rose over Van Rensalaer Island at Albany until she settled as gracefully and easily as any bird on the Isham estate at Spuyden Duyvel, flew 137 miles.

The bells of Trinity were giving noon to Manhattan when Glenn Curtiss, having already made sure of his $10,000 by landing at Spuyten Duyvel, swooped down the North river air-road, sailed past the Battery and descended with a beautiful dip on Governor's Island. Every whistle with steam in its throat shrieked and barked and rumbled to celebrate the aviator's victory. Down the Battery where folks, as elsewhere in the city, had been fooled by the flash that Curtiss had finished his flight at Spuyten Duyvel and wouldn't exhibit himself at the toe of the island, there was a great scurrying when the big riding smudge resolved itself into the clean lines of a flying machine and Curtiss was made out at the wheel. Further up the island the streets leading toward the water front were suddenly congested. People ran breathlessly, only to be disappointed for the most part. He was so quick, it seemed to those who watched that he appeared in sight, swooped by and was at rest on Governor's Island all in a minute.

Few men have shown less elation than Curtiss did when he stepped out of the biplane and shook hands with Maj. Hoff and Brig.-Gen. Walter Howe, commanding the department of the east. He smiled faintly and said he was glad he had finished the job and then turned to watch a detachment of soldiers roll the machine into the aerodrome. Even when Mrs. Curtiss appeared a few minutes later and kissed him there was no fuss and feathers. Curtiss acted as if he had done nothing more exciting than arrive on a ferry boat.

After the army had entertained him and everybody on Governor's Island had shaken hands with him, Mr. Curtiss, with Augustus Post and a delegation of proud citizens from Hammondsport, N. Y., Curtiss' home town, went to the Astor house for lunch and then to the World to get the $10,000.

BALLINGER TALK ENDS

Argument of Counsel in Washington Has Closed.

Washington, May 30.—Argument of counsel before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee has been concluded. John J. Vertrees, attorney for Secretary Ballinger, closed the argument for the "defense" with a discussion of the secretary's action in regard to waterpower sites, and of his attitude toward the Cunningham claims in Alaska.

Mr. Vertrees was followed by Louis D. Brandeis and George W. Pepper, attorneys for the "prosecution."

Fifteen days will be allowed the attorneys to file with the committee any briefs they may wish to present. Then the committee will begin to sift the vast bulk of evidence presented on each side.

It is not known whether the committee will be ready to present a report to the present session of congress.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

JONAS' BIRTHDAY PRESENT

Original

"Certainly, Jonas must have a birthday present! Now the question is, What shall it be?" said black-eyed May Gardner, in a determined manner. "Just think! He'll be thirty-five years old and has never had one except when he was a little boy, almost too young to remember!" she added, sympathetically.

"Did he say that?" asked Jennie Deering, with a curious blush.

"Yes, he told Uncle John so," said May quickly, "and, when Uncle repeated it to me I just decided that I should have a present this year, sure!"

"Oh, girls!" broke in Sallie Green, with a ringing laugh. "I've thought of the very thing! Let's give Jonas a wife for his birthday present! He has everything else that he needs, and you know he is altogether too dumb to ever secure a wife without some assistance."

"Won't he resist it?" asked the girls, timidly, but May checked them imperiously.

"Certainly not, if she is the right one! What man would! The only thing is to see that she is in every way worthy of him, for Jonas is really a splendid fellow, even if he is bashful. Jonas shall have a wife for his birthday, that much is settled! Now who shall she be, and how will we present her?"

The three girls sat for a moment in silence; then suddenly May was struck with a bright idea. The other girls stared at her in breathless amazement when she told them what it was.

Here we are, getting older and older every day, and not a man in the village that is marriageable except Jonas. Now we all like him, you know we do; but, if we wait for him to propose, we'll all die old maids, and that would be awful. All Jonas needs is a little encouragement, and no one will ever know that we used our influence for each other!"

And, finally, her reasoning prevailed, possibly by the aid of a tender sentiment existing toward Jonas in the hearts of both the blushing maidens.

"I say Jonas, you'd oughter be thinkin' of marryin,'" said Uncle John" Gardner, shortly after the important agreement between the three young ladies.

"I s'pose so," said Jonas absently, with a little blush.

"'Pears to me you'd better be lookin' around," continued the old farmer as indifferently as possible. "Your thirty-fifth birthday is comin' and you've be'n half your life without a wife. Must be sort o' desolate fer ye, I'm thinkin.'"

"What'll I do?" asked Jonas, sheepishly.

"Ask one of these pretty girls as he glanced slyly at Jonas.

Which one'll I ask? queried Jonas.

"Ask 'em all!" said the old farmer, with a roar of laughter. He had evidently thought of something that was exceedingly funny.

"John Gardner, be you out of your head?" said Jonas, half angrily.

But the farmer's words burned in his brain long after he had parted with his friend and neighbor.

And that evening he put on his best suit and went over to call on Jennie Deering.

An hour before midnight they were sitting alone in the kitchen, for the old folks had gone to bed in a most accommodating manner.

"Did you know my birthday was next week, Jennie?" said Jonas, suddenly. He was sitting as near her as he dared when he asked the question.

Suddenly Jennie giggled in a most unaccountable way.

"Do you want a birthday present, Jonas?" she asked, with a fit of laughter that bordered on hysterics.

"I want a wife!" he said, boldly, and then blushed as red as a poppy.

"That's what I mean!" said Jennie, still hovering on hysterics. "Do you want a wife for a birthday present?"

Jennie was desperately in earnest, as well as Jonas. She had to fulfill her part toward securing the combination wife and present.

"May Gardner or Sally Green would marry you, I am sure. They are both nice girls, and you're bound to like them!" She blurted out the words in the most astonishing way, and then finished by bursting into a fit of crying.

"But I don't want Sallie Green or May Gardner! I want you or nobody, for my wife!" Jonas said bravely.

The sight of her tears had made him bold, and he was holding her hands now in the tenderest fashion.

And before 12 o'clock she was his promised wife, and when he left her there was only one cloud upon her happiness. "The girls will be awfully mad," she said over and over, "but, anyhow, I have kept my promise—I am going to give Jonas a wife for his birthday."

It remained for a Salt Lake City orator to give a popular answer to the oft-propounded query. "What shall we do when doctors disagree?" He said, "Do the doctors!"—New York Herald.

DENEEN REPLIES TO LORIMER TALK

Governor Repudiates Insinuations Made by Senator.

OUTLINES SENATORIAL CONTEST

State's Executive Briefly Describes Part Taken by Himself in the Fight for the Illinois Senatorial Toga.

Springfield, Ill., May 30.—Governor Deneen was informed of the points made by Senator Lorimer in his speech before the senate. The governor was asked for a statement on the speech and gave out for publication the following interview:

"Meager reports of Senator Lorimer's speech have been given me by representatives of the Associated Press. I understand that [illegible] entered into a conspiracy with the Chicago Tribune to publish the confession of Representative White. This charge is without any foundation in fact. The facts are as follows:

"About midnight of the day before the story was published a representative of the Chicago Tribune met me at the Union League club and informed me and he had been waiting two hours to see me; that the editor of the Tribune was exceedingly anxious to interview me about a matter of great importance and that they would have to go to press within a few minutes. According I went with him to the Tribune office, which was nearby.

"A statement was there made to me on Mr. White's confession and an interview requested. A brief interview was given at once on the statement, in which I stated in substance that a full examination should be made of the statements contained in the confession and expressed no opinion regarding the truth of the charges.

"Regarding the deadlock I stood for the election of Senator Hopkins, and did not know that Senator Lorimer and Mr. Shurtleff and their friends were against him until a minority of the Republican members, who were in harmony with Senator Lorimer and Speaker Shurtleff, had effected an organization of the house of representatives with the aid of the Democrats.

"After the deadlock had existed some time Senator Lorimer called upon me repeatedly. I had assumed from the conversation we had at these times that it was entirely with a view of effecting a reconciliation between Republican factions; and, notwithstanding that I felt I had suffered unjustly by reason of attacks made upon me by him and his friends, both in the preceding legislature, the preceding primaries, the preceding election, and the preceding organization of the house and in the effort to unseat me and seat my opponent as governor, I felt that I should lay aside all personal feeling and interest in the hope of bringing about harmony in the party.

"Senator Lorimer informed me that his friends would under no circumstances vote for Senator Hopkins, and as it was impossible to elect a senator by Republican votes without the votes of his friends, I stated that they should go into a Republican caucus to select a candidate who would secure the majority vote in the caucus, and thereafter the full vote of the party in his election to be senatorship.

"This was the view taken by Republicans throughout the state, and a number of names had been mentioned in this connection by friends of various candidates, Col Lowden, Congressman McKinley, Mr. A. C. Bartlett, W. A. Rodenburg, and a number of others, among them Mr. West.

"Senator Lorimer was opposed to the plan of nominating by caucus. Later I was informed by him and his friends that I could be elected senator. I refused absolutely to consider it. Nevertheless, shortly before his election an effort was made by him and his friends in the general assembly to elect me. I called together in my office Republicans who had supported me in the senate and who had gone into a Republican caucus in the house, and stated to them that this movement was without my knowledge and that I would not accept the office if elected.

"Shortly before Senator Lorimer was elected and after the deadlock had dragged on for months, it became apparent that he was a candidate. A number of my friends, whom he mentions in his speech, called upon me and I advised them strongly against voting for him, even though he could get a minority of the Republicans to aid the Democrats in electing him.

"All of these facts were published as the contest wore and and were at that time familiar to everybody.

"While I am surprised at the character of the statements made by Senator Lorimer, I am at a loss to know what possible relation they bear to the charge now under investigation that his election to the United States senate was procured by means of bribery."

SENATE SURPRISED AT NEWS

Holstlaw's Confession Comes on Heels of Lorimer's Defense.

Washington, May 30.—Senator Lorimer is probably willing to confess ruefully that he chose an unfortunate time for the delivery of his defense of himself in the United States senate.

He convinced no one that his election did not result from bribery and corruption of state legislators. And when, immediately after the delivery of his speech, the news reached the senate that another state senator had confessed to having been bribed, it produced a sensation the more profound because it followed so closely upon the heels of Lorimer's explanation.

Unquestionably the effect of Holstlaw's confession will be to strengthen the determination of the senators to have a full and complete investigation as early as possible, whatever efforts may be made to delay it.

LORIMER ANSWERS CHARGES

Illinois Senator in Strong Denial.

HE LASHES HIS FOES

Calls Charges Conspiracy of Chicago Tribune.

PLOT TO CAUSE HIS RUIN

Declares Governor Deneen and Others Were in It.

Washington, May 30.—Strenuous denial of the charge that he had obtained his seat in the United States senate through bribery and corruption was made before that body by William Lorimer of Illinois.

Foremost in the answer of the senator to the charge stood his assertion that it had been formulated by the Chicago Tribune for the purpose of destroying a new banking association in that city which Mr. Lorimer had organized.

Concluding, he offered a resolution calling for a senatorial investigation of the charges against him.

In opening, Mr. Lorimer said:

"Mr. President:—I rise to a question of personal privilege to state the facts concerning and the reasons for the most recent assault made upon me by the Chicago Tribune with the intent to blacken my character with the people of the country and to destroy me and my friends financially and politically."

He then detailed the fact of the Tribune's publication of April 30 last of a story over the signature of Charles A. White, a member of the Illinois legislature, in which it was alleged that Mr. Lorimer had procured his seat in the senate through bribery and corruption.

"I have been compelled," he went on, "to defer my return to the senate owing to the fact that the story was timed and published with a deliberate purpose to destroy a new banking association in Chicago which I have been organizing with some of my friends. The assault was made to prevent the bank from opening.

It utterly failed of its purpose, but it required my constant attention to build an impregnable bulwark around the bank to safeguard the interests of those who have intrusted their funds to the care of my associates and myself against any malicious or vicious assault that may be made against it by the Tribune."

Holds Browne Above Bribery.

Relating that it had been charged that the bribe had been paid through Lee O'Neil Browne, the Democratic leader of the Illinois house of representatives, he defended Mr. Browne as entirely above participating in any such proceeding.

He declared that Medill McCormick of the Tribune had threatened that the bank never should open, and also asserted that White did not write the story, as had been claimed, but that it was "the work of a trained newspaper hand, skilled in the art of creating scandal out of lies, when it is thought necessary to blacken the character of one whom the newspaper cannot control.

"It is also plain to be seen," he went on, "that every word was passed upon by a lawyer before it was signed by that poor, low creature, White, who does not hesitate to commit forgery for a few dollars, and to whom perjury is no crime, who is a part of the lowest fringes of depravity, and who to secure money to satisfy his instinct for debauchery, sold what little was left of his manhood and became the pliant tool of the Tribune in this timed and malicious attack."

Defending Charles Luke, a deceased member of the legislature, against a charge that he had been a beneficiary of his (Lorimer's) bribery, the senator told how Mr. Luke, a Democrat, had risen from practically his death bed to vote for him, a Republican, but without other motive than friendship.

He asserted that Representative Link and Representative Beckemeyer had not made confessions as had been charged, but, on the contrary, said that "the charges stand as they stood on April 30," the uncorroborated lies of the Tribune, supported only by the bought signature of their weak tool, White."

Senator Lorimer went on with increasing vehemence to assert that the Chicago paper "lied, and I new it lied," in charging that money was used to purchase his election.

"Not one dollar was paid to a single member of the general assembly for his vote for me," the senator declared, and he added that when the truth was known everybody would understand that the publication of the article by White was "a part of a political conspiracy to drive me out of public life, to ruin me financially because I will not do as other Republicans in Illinois have done—place myself under the absolute control and dictatorship of the Tribune."

He declared that by subserviency he could at any time have made his peace with the newspaper.

Says Deneen Asked Him to Run.

Senator Lorimer gave his version of his senatorial campaign and election. He declared that it was upon the suggestion of Governor Deneen that he had entered the field and then only after he and the governor had besought others to make the race.

The senator went clear back to the Blaine campaign of 1884, and then to a ward contest in Chicago for the alleged genesis of his disagreements with the Chicago newspaper.

At very great length Senator Lorimer described Chicago political developments. In 1902, he said, Governor Deneen, then [illegible] owner Tribune urged him to make his peace with the Tribune.

"When they were poor and in need of help," he said, "they were anxious and pleased to work with the organization, even against the constant assault of the newspaper trust; but after they had become prosperous and affluent they felt they could stand the lashing no longer and ran to the newspaper cover, and have been subservient since that time."

Coming down to modern times he declared that "all of the power of the city, county, state and federal administrations, under the leadership of Senator Hopkins, Governor Deneen, Mayor Busse, assembled into a misfit organization," combined to destroy the organization controlled by Lorimer, with intent to give control to the Tribune.'

He traced his breach with Governor Deneen largely to a difference of opinion between the two as to the wisdom of spending independently of action by the national government the $20,000,000 pledged by the state toward the deep waterway like to the gulf project, which the governor favored and he opposed.

Accuses Governor Deneen.

He asserted that the governor personally advised in the preparation of the White story in the Tribune. He went on to say:

"The governor joined this campaign of slander because he saw [illegible] use the conspiracy to defeat those who stood for federal co-operation in expending the $20,000,000 and secure control of the next legislature.

"Why he persists in his efforts to get control of the $20,000,000 when he well knows that it in itself is not sufficient to construct a waterway, is a mystery that I cannot fathom."

Senator Lorimer further attacked the Chicago Tribune's policy in opposition to the Payne-Aldrich tariff, attributing it to the failure to put wood pulp on the free list, which would have saved the paper $40,000 a year.

"This," he said, "is the only tax we have any record of in which the Tribune pays its just share."

He also charged the Tribune establishment with being the beneficiary of the Chicago board of education by collecting extra rental of $17,500 a year for the board's quarters in the Tribune building and $94,000 through alleged undervaluation of its site, owned by the city.

Concluding, Mr. Lorimer asserted that the Tribune had dogged him all these years because it had not been able to dash him into subjection.

"The purpose of these charges," he declared, "was to disgrace and destroy my friends and myself, whom they cannot control, and to come into absolute control of the Republican party in Illinois and to secure themselves in continued plundering of the public treasury."

The Convention of Grand Lodge, F. & A. M., was opened Tuesday by an address of welcome by Maj. Stuart. Most of the 411 Blue Lodges of the States were in attendance and 15 of the thirty third degree were present.

The Chief topic of discussion was the location of the new Masonic home to take the place of the one destroyed by fire. A motion to establish the home at Alma was lost by a vote of 194 to 152. The motion to defer action until next year was carried. The newly elected Grand Master and a committee of four to make the decision. G. Rosco Swift of Adrian was elected Grand Master. ALL DRUGGISTS

FROM WASHINGTON.

(BY OUR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.)

Washington, May 28, 1910.

The lower House of Congress was this week the scene of an ugly episode brought about by an effort or the Republicans under the leadership of Mr. Tawney, to secure a deficiency appropriation for President Taft's travelling expenses. Some Southern Democrats opposed the appropriation when Mr. Tawney came back at them with the taunt that they had invited the President to their states, accepted his hospitality, ridden on his special [illegible] and then grudged a small appropriation. Mr. Tawney made some slurring remarks about vaunted "Southern hospitality" to which a number of Southern members replied with great heat. That the episode is deplored at the White House is shown by a letter today from the Rresident to Mr. Tawney, which he has made public. The President concludes his letter to Mr Tawney with the words: "In all my experience—and I have enjoyed the hospitality of many sections and countries in the world—I never had a more cordial, generous, open and lavish welcome than I had in the Southern cities during my trip, and the slightest hint that puts me in the attitude of a critic of that hospitality gives me great pain."

Your readers will doubtless remember the desire expressed by the President of the United States in a number of his public addresses for such changes in criminal law as will more directly bring offenders to justice and more effectnalip secure their punishment in the interest of repressing crime. The average American citizen does not fully realize the relative status of his country in the criminal annals of the world. An eminent authority on the subject of crimnology has recently written that "homicidal crime half increased 450 per cent in the United States since 1889, thereby the ratio of convictions is less than 10 per cent. The ratio of convictions in Germany is 95 per cent. Bar Russia, homicidal crime in the United States exceeds the total of that of any ten civilized nations. It is estimated that 320,000 in the United States whom the law does not touch, touch, choose and pursue criminal careers. The national debt is $964,000,000; the national cost of crime is $1,378,000,000." It is common for us to hear from the pulpit and from the platform that ignorance is the cause of crime. It is incontestible that the American people pay more money for education than any other two countries in the world. Judged by this test, we are the most savage people in Christendom.

KINCAID CASE.

The jury in the coroners inquest over the body of Miss Anna Kincaid reported as follows:

After due deliberation and on hearing the evidence in the case, we believe that Miss Anna Kincaid came to her death in Chicago as a result of an unnecessary operation performed by Dr. Orin K. Thompson assisted by a woman known to us as Nelle Brott and who acted as nurse during her illness.

Our readers are all familiar with the case as it has been before the public for some time.

He is quite delighted with the prospect.

Faunt Lenardson was the star performer inasmuch as he won 21 3-4 points, thereby taking four silver medals, one gold medal and an individual cup, given for the best all-round athlete. Glen Stewart was the next best point winner, winning 12 points.

The baseball team easily won the championship of Lenawee county by 'ng Blissfield 7 to 1. Lenardson was in fine form, pitching a no hit game. This makes the 9th game out of 10 that the team has won this season. The team has also won 6 shut out game and has made 57 scores to their opponents 11.

VANDALISM

It is customary wherever there is a public building having a lawn to beautify it with shrubs and flowers and who ever has charge of the building and grounds takes particular pride in the same and they are not to cut for any one as they are for the public good. Of late the flowers on the lawn of the Library have been molested and not only the flowers gathered but the roots have been pulled up and the plants trampled upon. This is a punishable offence and should the culprits be discovered it would not be well for them.

DECORATION DAY

OBSERVED BY OUR G. A. R. SUNDAY MAY 29

With tears and smiles nature ushered in the day set apart by our G. A. R. to pay their tribute to their departed comrades. Just a remnant of those who are left gathered in their hall and marched to the Silent City. No beat of drum, no note of fife lead them on as of old, but each one stepped to the echo of the memory of the years long fled. A goodly number of friends followed in carriages and a large crowd joined them in the cemetery. A prayer, the singing of old familiar songs, the ritualistic service of the order, a thrilling speech by J. W. Wightman and the scattering of flowers on the graves of their comrades who have gone before, and the work was done. As each one laid his little boquet on the lot set apart as sacred to the soldier dead, who can know the thoughts that filled their hearts, and who can tell who next among their number shall sleep beneath the daises. To those who lived in the days when war was making homes desolate and hearts sad in the civilian crowd, this day brings many memories and they join with the G. A. R. in commemorating the day.

OLIVER

The No. 1 Cultivator may be fitted with many different styles of gangs. No question about exactly suiting you.

EASIEST of all cultivators to guide, raise and lower—that's saying a good deal, but it's true.

The Olivers now make a Riding Cultivator. When you see it you will say they should have done it before.

It was used two years in all the big corn states before they said much about it.

Now they say—and it's a fact—that this new OLIVER implement absolutely guides, raises and lowers easier than any other cultivator on earth.

That it does better, easier, slicker work in all soils and conditions. and—

That it comes nearer making a day's cultivating seem like a picnic than any other cultivator.

Come and see it, and also take a look at Oliver Plows of various kinds—extra good this year.

GRAND JURY INDICTS 4

Senator John Broderick Named In Solons Confession

ACCUSER IS GIVEN IMMUNITY

True Bills Against Pemberton, and Joseph S. Clark.

Springfield, Ill., May 30.—State Senator D. W. Holstlaw of Iuka, Marion county, a Democrat, from the Forty-Second senatorial district, has confessed participation in numerous crooked deals in the legislature.

He told State's Attorney Burke and the Sangamon county grand jury that he had been promised and had accepted $2,500 to vote for Lorimer for senator. This promise, he said, was made by Senator John Broderick of Chicago, who paid him the $2,500 after he had cast his vote. He admitted that Senator Broderick later gave him $700 as his share in the legislative "jackpot," which $700 was "coming to him" for voting as the graft ring wished him to vote.

He declared that he had been promised $1,500 for voting to award the legislative desk contract to the highest bidder and had expected to be paid this sum as soon as the desks were delivered to the state and accepted.

As a result of Senator Holstlaw's confession in the grand jury room, which he had preceded by a signed statement to the press, these men were indicted:

State Senator John Broderick of Chicago, charged with bribery.

State Senator Stanton C. Pemberton of Oakland, charged with conspiracy to commit bribery.

State Senator D. W. Holstlaw of Iuka, charged with conspiracy to commit bribery.

Representative Joseph S. Clark of Vandalia; charged with conspiracy to commit bribery.

The indictment against Senator Holstlaw immediately was nolle prossed and capiases were issued for the other three men and their bail was set in advance at $5,000 each. Clark, who already had been implicated in the St. Louis "bathroom scandal" and named by Charles A. White as one of the beneficiaries of the assembly jackpot, was arrested soon after the indictment was returned. The other men may be seized at any moment, as deputy sheriffs and police are seeking them.

The new corner of the great mass of legislative corruption thus opened up by State's Attorney Burke will be probed to the bottom. Mr. Burke announced that the investigation had just begun.

He will clear up local docket cases immediately, set for immediate trial the cases of the men indicted, and all the while continue a vigorous prosecution of his grand jury investigation with the object of reaching the men at the top if possible, and at least of placing in the penitentiary as many legislators as he can obtain evidence against to convict.

Mr. Burke believes the confession of Senator Holstlaw and the other evidence given before the grand jury will open several new avenues for investigation which probably will involve several members of both the house and senate. He would not be surprised to have a number of applications for immunity bath tickets.

The confession of Holstlaw was immediately followed and corroborated by that of Otto M. Freler, the desk salesman, whose firm obtained the contract by bribery after they found that the majority of the committee were for sale and would vote only for the highest bidder.

The exact charges and admissions of Holstlaw in his confession are in part as follows:

That he voted with Senator Stanton C. Pemberton and Representative Joseph S. Clark to award the contract for legislative furniture to the highest bidder because he was promised $1,500 for his share in the graft.

That A. B. Johnston and Otto M. Freler, the salesman for the desk company, who had sworn to their ignorance before the grand jury, were the men who made the deal and who were to see him paid when the contract was executed by the delivery of the furniture this summer.

Senator Holstlaw swore to these things on his own initiative and without any manner of compulsion other than the fact that he had been caught in admitted perjury in one statement with reference to the desk deal.

He was allowed to go before the grand jury with his story only after he had told it in all its details to State's Attorney Burke, in the presence of a stenographer and his own attorneys and several witnesses, and after he had given out a signed confession to the press.

Only then, after the prosecutor had been convinced by a careful analysis of the truth and good faith of every part of Holstlaw's statement, was he taken before Judge James A. Creighton of the circuit court, sitting specially for that purpose, and sheltered with an order of immunity. Numerous indictments are now being drawn up.

D. W. HOLSTLAW CONFESSES

Solon from Marion County Admits Being Bought for $2,500.

Springfield, Ill., May 30.—State Senator D. W. Holstlaw made the following full confession of bribery to State's Attorney Burke in connection with the election of William Lorimer as senator from the state of Illinois. Holstlaw's statement in full is as follows:

"In making the statements to the Sangamon county grand jury regarding the payment of money to secure the contract for furniture and for the purpose of electing William Lorimer United States senator, I have been governed by the firm belief that this is the only course I can pursue.

"I appreciate that my action in this matter have been reprehensible and in this connection I offer no defense. I have, however, determined to make such reparation as it within my power, and the only means by which this could be done, it seems to me, is by fully and honestly stating what I know about these transactions.

"I voted for William Lorimer for United States senator and received therefor $2,500. Senator John Broderick offered me the money the day before Lorimer was elected. I had voted previously for Stringer. Then I voted for Lorimer, and a few days later Broderick, in his saloon in Chicago, paid me the money in $100 bills.

"I also received $700 which was given to me without explanation with the statement that it was 'coming to me.' I was promised $1,500 for my connection with the letting of the furniture contract.

Free Remedy For Weak Bowels

There are two forms of bodily cleanliness, the external and the internal. The one is for your pride in yourself; the other for your life and health. Both are important, but of vastly more importance in the long run is the internal cleanliness.

This is one point that all should watch about their body—the cleanliness of the bowels. Keep them clean and free from obstructions. To do this you must have one or two movements of the bowels each twenty-four hours. If your system does not do this naturally, in the process of eating and drinking, then you must obtain aid of some kind. After finding out that cathartics, salts and such things relieve you for a day, but bind you up worse than ever the next day, then try a simpler and more natural remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

For the skeptical the best way to begin is to send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell for a free sample bottle. Use it as directed and if it convinces you that a brief continuance of its use will relieve you permanently—that it will train the stomach and bowel muscles to again work naturally at certain hours—then buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as so many others are doing. They began with a sample bottle, then bought a fifty cent bottle, and now, fully convinced of its merits, they buy the one dollar family size. All the members of the family can use it down to the very youngest.

A brief use of this grand laxative tonic will cure constipation in its worst form, indigestion, liver trouble, sick headache, sour stomach and such ailments and keep you in continuous good health at a very small cost. Such is the experience of many families like that of Mrs. Oscar Fleener, Unionville, Ind., J. F. Daniel, Saron, Tex., and hundreds of others that could be named.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Let the Baking Board Become your BOARD of EDUCATION

The principle of all baking powder is simply this: Certain elements are combined which, when they come in contact with moisture and heat, undergo a chemical change or reaction.

This reaction causes a gas which makes the baking puff up or rise.

Now the very small part of the baking powder which remains in the food is entirely different from the original substance. And it is this remaining part that you eat, and not the original contents of the can.

For instance: In a Cream of Tartar Baking Powder—the Trust Brand—you do not eat Cream of Tartar in the baking, because the chemical reaction turns it into Rochelle Salts—an injurious drug.

So what concerns you most is what you really eat and not what you get in the can.

In Calumet Baking Powder the elements are such that the chemical change leaves no impurities in the food—it is chemically correct. Baking leavened with it contains no Tartaric Acid, Rochelle Salts, Alum, Lime or Ammonia.

Then you should use Calumet Baking Powder—and no other. It is not only more healthful but it is more reliable. Your baking will be lighter, sweeter and more delicious.

It does not cost as much as the Trust brands and is also more economical in use. It is a little higher in price than the cheap brands, but it is very much higher in quality.

Guaranteed under every pure food law—both State and National. Ask your Grocer—and insist on

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

Received Highest Award World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago, 1907

The Juniors of the high school gave a reception for the seniors and teachers Friday evening at the home of Donna Exelby. The house was very prettily decorated with the colors of both classes, the Seniors being green and white and the Juniors old rose and green. The evening was spent in playing various games. Hazel Exelby rendered a very pretty piano solo, Miss Hardcastle gave a very interesting reading and Jennie Greg gave a recitation which added very much to the evenings entertainment. At eleven o'clock they wended their way to the Colonial House where an elegant two course supper was served at the close of which three members responded to toasts. Grace Hoagland gave a toast on "Seniors of '10". At a late hour they wended their way home declaring the Juniors very royal entertainers.

WOUND MAY PROVE FATAL

Boy Being Teased by Men, Throws Iron Rod, Causing Injury.

Kempton, Ind., May 30.—A serious accident occurred here which may cause Samuel Foutch to lose his life. Some men and boys were teasing the small son of F. T. Mozingo, when he seized a stove poker and threw it at one of the boys who were teasing him.

He missed his aim, but the sharp point struck Mr. Foutch on the side of the head, entering beneath the skin and ranging around to the nose, which it entered, causing an ugly wound which may prove fatal.

TO FAST FOR FORTY DAYS.

Dr. Gayer Thinks Only a Water Diet Will Improve His Health.

Dr. Gustave A. Gayer, president of the Society For Applied Psychics, of 131 West Sixty-third street, New York, began the other day a fast which he hopes to be able to keep up for forty days. At any rate, he is going to try to do without food for three weeks. He hopes to be able to demonstrate the value of fasting not only as a body cleanser, but as a means for improving the condition of the subconscious mind and giving the forces of life some opportunity to gather themselves and gain strength. Several physicians will watch the doctor carefully and make examinations from time to time. Dr. Gayer has made fasting experiments before, but for not longer than two weeks.

"During my fast I will sleep out of doors," said the doctor. "This will be no new experiment, however, for I regularly sleep in a tent in my back yard winter and summer. Water will be the only sustenance I will take until the fast is over. I expect to lose considerably in weight, yet it cannot help but benefit me physically."

AMERICA'S OLDEST SHIP.

The Polly, Which Is to See New York, a Terror of British in 1812.

The good ship Polly, which recently left New Bedford for New York, is the oldest vessel in the United States and one of the oldest in the world. For 106 years this two masted schooner has been doing business, but even now she can outsail many modern vessels.

The Polly's laurels are not all those of peace. In the war of 1812 many a time she gave battle on the seas to craft twice her size. She captured eleven rich prizes in that conflict. As a privateer under command of Captain Juduthan Upton, with her decks bristling with guns, she was the terror of British commerce.

The Polly dropped out of the binocular limelight to bob up in 1840 in the coasting trade. In 1849 and the succeeding years the little smartly rigged sixty footer rounded Cape Horn six times and made two complete trips around the world.

Of recent years she has been carrying lumber between Bangor and other Maine ports. While the boat has been almost remade, it's the same old Polly, and if you had been interested in shipping a century ago you would have no trouble in recognizing her now.

HOLSTLAW IS INDICTED

Illinois State Senator Is Accused of Perjury.

Indictment Is Based on the $19,000 Purchase of Chairs and Desks for the Legislature.

Springfield, Mad 30.—Senator D. W. Holstlaw of Iuka, Marion county, was indicted by the Sangamon county grand jury on a charge of perjury in connection with its investigation of the $19,000 purchase of desks and chairs for the senate and house chambers.

The senator feels his disgrace keenly, the more so because he was on his way home from Baltimore, where he attended a conference of the Baptists of the south half of the United States. He was one of the three delegates from Illinois and is an officer of the Baptist church in his own town.

It was the legislator's poor memory that got him into trouble. He failed to remember that he wrote a letter to J. W. Knox of the Derby Desk company for a conference, at which, Knox told the grand jury, the senator offered to give the desk company the contract. The proposal of Holstlaw at that conference is said to be illegal.

STEEL GIRDERS IN CRASH

Foreman of Steel Workers Saves Lives by Coolness.

Edward Walters Proves a Real Hero When Structure Falls—Workers Pinned in the Debris.

Logansport, Ind., May 30.—The steel skeleton of a new automobile garage under construction collapsed pinning several workmen beneath it. Two men astride the big girders when they fell rode down in the wreck of steel and heavy timbers, and escaped with minor injuries. Edward Walters, foreman, saved his own life and the lives of two workmen by coolness and prompt action. As the girders collapsed the men astride shouted to warn the men below.

When Ray Smith and Razjob, riveters, started to run Walters grabbed the men and threw them to the floor in an advantageous position between two falling girders. He fended heavy timbers with his bare arms as they fell upon him. The flesh was ripped from his arms and his left forearm was fractured, but the falling steel missed him and the trio escaped with their lives. The braces to prevent the girders from springing under the weight of heavy timbers had been temporarily removed and the entire structure collapsed

UNITED STATES IS ASKED FOR HELP

Armies of Madriz Routed With Heavy Casualties.

ASK AMERICAN INTERVENTION

Solution Seems to Hinge on an Election for President of Nicaragua—Army Short of Rations and Are Suffering.

New Orleans, June 2. — Telegrams from Bluefields announce the retreat of the Madriz armies, the one under command of Gen. Lara before Bluefields, and the other under Gen. Chivarria, at Rama. Lara's army met with heavy losses in trying to break through the revolutionists' lines, the heaviest loss being inflicted by the American gunners who had charge of the rapid fire guns.

The heavy losses and the boggy character of the land during the rainy season, and the lack of provisions finally compelled Gen. Lara to beat a retreat, leaving many dead and wounded on the field of battle. The defeated army, it is thought is trying to make its way to Greytown or San Juan Del Norte, but is short of provisions and suffering from rains.

The Madriz army in front of Rama retreated at the same time, and it is thought that it will try and make a junction with Gen. Lara. A strong petition will be sent from Nicaragua asking the intervention of the United States so that a fair election can be held to decide who shall be president, and calling attention to the fact that Estrada could not capture Managua and Madriz could not charge Bluefields, for the reason that neither president is strong enough to crush the other and the only chance of putting an end to the ruin of the war is by American intervention.

YALE SENIORS ON A WILD RAMPAGE

Savin Rock Merchants Put Out of Business by Rioters.

POLICE ARREST RING LEADERS

Fight Was the Worst in Fifteen Years—One Man Will Lose Sight—Mob No Respecter of Men, Women or Children in Row.

New Haven, June 2.—About seventy-five Yale seniors in the Sheffield Scientific school attempted to clean out Savin Rock, the Coney Island of Connecticut, and in the free-for-all fight ten of the ringleaders were arrested and locked up. Nine of them appeared in the West Haven town court, battered and bruised and broken spirited and they were allowed until Friday to pay up $10 and costs each and settle with the Savin Rock merchants whose places they put out of business. The tenth man, who gave the name of F. L. Smithson, had his eye badly cut by somebody's finger nail and was unable to appear. His sight will be permanently damaged. It was the worst fight in which Yale students have been involved in fifteen years. The senior class had been holding its annual class dinner preparatory to commencement at Momauguin hotel on the east shore, about twelve miles from Savin Rock.

During the dinner there some of the diners were thrown out for disorderly conduct. Part of the class then boarded trolley cars for Savin Rock. When they arrived there, mob rules prevailed. Any one in the way, whether woman or man, was tossed wherever the will of the tosser happened to dictate. In the wild rush many were injured. Everything and everybody was pushed out until finally Beach street was reached. Here the restaurant sand lunch stands were attacked. Catsup bottles, vinegar cruets and pepper shakers were taken and the rush back started. The contents of the vials were liberally sprinkled over passersby.

Johnnie Lynch, whose father runs the flying horses, objected to the students mounting the flying horses. Young Lynch and the Yale tacklers went under the horses and rolled around. Lynch's shirt was torn from his back and his nose looked as if it had met a hatchet. The Savin Rock merchants stated that several of the students carried black jacks and that they freely used them on any old head that happened in the way. The general fighting lasted fifteen minutes.

Gerald Griffin, an assistant at the merry-go-round, is suffering from fractured bones in his left hand caused by hitting one of the students. Griffin says he was knocked down and while on the ground was kicked in the face by a colored man who was with the students. When the riot was fiercest four policemen arrested the ringleaders.

BROWNE FORCED TO STAND TRIAL

Court Refuses to Quash Indictment Against Him.

STATE'S POSITION IS UPHELD

According to the Notice Previously Given the Defense Must Be Ready for Trial on Monday Next—Browne Enters Plea.

Chicago, June 2.—Judge McSurely denied the motion to quash the indictment charging Lee O'Neil Browne with paying Representative Charles A. White $1,000 for voting for William Lorimer for senator.

Arguments which it took Browne's attorneys two and a half days to make were held by the judge to be fallacious. The indictment drawn by the special grand jury, the judge decided, charges a crime, and Browne must stand trial in Cook county.

According to notice previously given the defense must be ready for trial by next Monday.

Judge McSurely's decision was a severe blow to the hopes of the defense. In arguing the motion to quash these two remarkable contentions were advanced:

1. That it is no crime in this country to bribe legislators to vote in senatorial elections.

2. The crime charged against Representative Browne should be tried in Sangamon county, not in Cook.

In two hours State's Attorney Wayman answered the arguments which had occupied the defense thirteen hours, and Mr. Wayman's sharp and ironic comments on the defense's case were upheld by the court.

Judge McSurely's decision answered in detail the arguments of the defense. As it decides many new points of law it will be of great importance in future bribery prosecutions.

As soon as the judge had finished reading his decision, which comprised about 2,500 words, Attorney Forrest arose and fought for a delay after interposing technical objections to having Browne placed on trial on the indictment.

The principal objection was that the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution would be violated by the placing of Browne on trial. Judge McSurely would not grant the delay of two weeks asked for by Attorney Forrest.

Browne was arraigned and through his attorney entered a plea of "not guilty." The names of prospective jurors were drawn, the process being witnessed by attorneys for the state and defense.

Before the decision there was a rumor that the lawyers for the defense, in the event of receiving an adverse ruling, were planning to seek a change of venue to another county.

Attorneys Forrest, Erbstein and O'Donnell, counsel for Browne held a long conference before court opened but refused later to discuss what had transpired. They refused to affirm the report that a change of venue was planned.

VALERIA AND THE SPICE MAN.

The Romance That Was Woven Into a Rag Carpet.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

When Valeria Bird was thirty-five years old she emptied all her closets and wardrobes and spread the contents about her room over the chairs and on the bed or wherever space afforded.

Like all the Birds, Valeria was fond of dress, and "the summer I had the pink organdie," "the winter I wore the green cloak" and other instances were fixed dates in Valeria's memory. Valeria's clothes formed the calendar of her years.

"It's all they're good for," she said decisively. "I'll cut them into carpet rags and make me a handsome carpet. There won't be another like it in Littleville."

And there wasn't another one that compared with Valeria Bird's rag carpet when it was woven and in place on the shining room floor. Out in the woodshed was an old loom Uncle Joshua Bird had been a famous weaver in his day, and Valeria had learned how to operate it in the face of Aunt Susanna's strong disapproval.

"You'll spread your feet all out of shape working that treadle. Your Uncle Joshua had that foot to the end of his days from that old loom! You better take it over to the blind weaver. He can do it first rate so long as it's hit or miss"—

"'Tisn't going to be hit or miss," said Valeria stubbornly. "No one could make it this way but me."

When it was completed and the breadths sewed together it made a large carpet, for Valeria had had many garments. Aunt Susanna peered curiously at the intricate pattern.

"I never see a rag carpet like that. What's that little white square in the middle breadth, and how did you fix it so's all those different colored stripes would make squares outside each other? And the outside border is black! That's real tasty!"

"HAVE YOU LOST ANYTHING?" SHE ASKED SHARPLY.

Valeria smiled proudly. "The white square in the middle is made out of my little frocks, and each stripe outside of it is a year of clothes."

"And every year the stripes are wider, showing how extravagant you are getting. But don't tell Tom, Dick and Harry all about those stripes, because any fool could figure out how old you be." Aunt Susanna's voice dropped to a secretive hiss.

"Humph! I don't care who knows how old I am," replied Valeria contemptuously.

Mrs. Bird pursed her lips mysteriously. "There ain't a soul in Littleville that knows how old I be," she muttered. "If you want to be stamped as an old maid, Valery, just run around and tell how old you be."

"I want to be an old maid," said Valeria calmly as she placed the walnut center table exactly over the white square in the new carpet. "I'd rather be Valeria Bird and die unmarried than to change my name to any other. Think I'd change my name to Jones or Gibble or Riddle or Smith? Humph!"

Just as Valeria Bird sniffed contemptuously some one rapped smartly at the side door, and Aunt Susanna creaked across the floor to admit a tall, broad shouldered man with thick hair plentifully sprinkled with gray. He was indeed very handsome, and perhaps his good looks found expression in his kindly eyes and firm mouth as well as in the physical beauty of these features. He removed his hat with a friendly smile at Aunt Susanna.

"I'm selling spices, ma'am. Perhaps you would like to give me an order. I bought out William Riddle's business, and I've got a perfectly fresh stock."

"Come right in," said Mrs. Bird cordially. "I've got to go down to the missionary society, but Valery will give you an order. She had it all made out for Billy Riddle. Where's Billy gone?"

"Billy got the gold fever. He's gone out to the Klondike," replied the spice man, wiping his feet carefully on the doormat and then tiptoeing across Valeria's new carpet to a vacant chair. His eyes followed Valeria's disapproving glance to the floor, where his shoes had left dusty footprints on the years of her life. "I'm very sorry," he said calmly, taking an order book out of one pocket and a fountain pen from another. He looked expectantly at Valeria, and his eyes lingered on her soft masses of brown hair and her tender blue eyes.

The tender blue eyes changed to steel gray when they encountered the gaze of the spice man, and a flood of color invaded the cool cheeks to her little ears. Valeria Bird had met that same glance in the eyes of many men, but never before had she lost her composure.

Overhead Aunt Susanna's heavy footfalls shook the ceiling as she hurried to and fro in her preparation for the missionary society. Outside in the grapevines late robins were feasting on the luscious clusters, and their sweet songs were reminiscent of earlier springs when Valeria had worn pale blue gowns and held her proud little head aloof from all suitors, reserving herself for some ideal being, one who was handsome and gifted and whose name might be "Montfort." "Valeria Montfort" sounded even a little better than Valeria Bird.

"I want some cinnamon and mace," she said at last, "and a bottle of vanilla and some nutmegs."

The spice man closed his book and arose to go. "Thank you, ma'am," he said, with hat in hand. "I'll deliver the goods day after tomorrow. Good afternoon."

"Wait a minute and I'll pay you," said Valeria, leaving the room.

When she returned the spice man was crawling about the floor on his hands and knees, examining the stripes with strange intentness.

"Have you lost something?" she asked.

He scrambled to his feet, looking very much ashamed of himself.

Valeria watched him climb into the shining wagon at the gate, and when it had disappeared in a cloud of dust she turned and looked at the carpet. For what had the spice man been seeking? Save for additional traces of sand on the carpet she could see nothing. Her housewifely soul declaimed against the untidy floor, but she did not brush the sand away.

At tea time Aunt Susanna rustled home from her society meeting. She untied her bonnet strings with impatient fingers as Valeria brought in the teapot.

"I heard all about the new spice man, Valeria," she said breezily. "He's from Comcomupus way, and he's a distant relation of yours too. His mother was own cousin to your mother. He ain't never married. He's always lived on the home place and farmed it till last year his mother died, and he's been looking to buy a good business. He"—

"What is his name?" asked Valeria, quietly sipping her tea.

Mrs. Bird hesitated with spoon poised above the sugar basin. Her little dark eyes fell before Valeria's inquiring gaze.

"John Smith—John James Smith—and it's a very good name, too," said Aunt Susanna defiantly.

Valeria said nothing.

The next time the spice man called Valeria was alone. When he had set the small packages on the table he said:

"I guess you think I ought to explain what I was looking for that day when you found me on the floor. I was wondering if there was a stripe of pink that had some cloth in it—pink with little white stars on it." He paused and flushed slightly.

Valeria nodded. "There is a piece like that. I used to have a dress like that when I was fourteen years old. All this carpet is made out of my clothes."

Mr. Smith's face was eager and glowing now. "I met you once years ago. You was wearing it. I never forgot your face. I was driving a young colt, and you was scared when the colt shield, and you ran to the side of the road and dropped a basket of eggs, and"—

"And you got down and picked up the whole eggs and gave me 50 cents. I've got the 50 cents now," exclaimed Valeria animatedly. Like an instantaneous photograph she saw the tall, handsome young man who had come to her assistance that long ago day, whose appearance had taken her girlish fancy and had forever after remained her ideal. And in her dreams she had named him "Montfort."

"Why did you keep the 50 cents, Miss Valeria?" asked the spice man curiously.

"I thought your name was Montfort," said Valeria impulsively.

He laughed heartily. "It's just plain John James Smith," he said, with a certain sturdy pride in his tone. "Now, I wonder if you wouldn't just give me a little piece of that pink calico. I want it for something," he added slowly.

Valeria flushed and then knelt down on the floor and sought the pink stripe with the white stars. Recklessly she pulled it out, and the spice man's pocketknife severed a generous sample, which he stowed carefully away in his pocket.

"Shall I come every week?" he asked, pausing in the doorway.

"Yes, do," said Valeria, with a flush.

When Aunt Susanna came home Valeria was sitting with idle hands beside the window.

"For the land's sake! Somebody has tracked fresh mud all over your floor, Valery. This carpet won't last no while if you ain't more careful."

Valeria Bird looked down at the thin pink stripe at her feet. "I don't care," she said, with a dreamy smile.

"For the land"— began Aunt Susanna again; then she looked at Valeria and did not finish the sentence.

THE SAVIOR'S TEACHINGS
BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDIES

ST. PETER CRIED "LORD, SAVE ME."

Matthew 14:22-36—June 5.

"Then they that were in the ship came and worshiped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Son of God."—V. 33.

RESPECTING its heroes the Bible, unlike any other religious book, tells the naked truth. Today's study emphasizes both the strength and the weakness of St. Peter's natural disposition. We identify the character here pictured as the same which was displayed on other occasions—noble and courageous, but rather forward and boastful. Not a single weakness of any of the Bible characters seems to be smoothed down or cut away in the narrative. It was this same St. Peter who, after hearing Jesus tell of his approaching death, took the Master to task for it, upbraiding him for speaking after this manner and assuring him that he did not tell the truth, and that the disciple knew more than his Master, that the latter was either ignorant or else wilfully misrepresenting the future. No wonder the Master rebuked him, as in this matter being an adversary.

The same courageous man afterward drew his sword and smote the servant of the High Priest in his Master's defense. Yet with all this it was only a few hours later when he denied him entirely with oaths and cursing. Nevertheless, the Master loved him; with his peculiar combination of weakness and strength he had, withal, a noble, faithful heart, even while he boastfully declared, "Though all men forsake thee, yet will not I." Our study shows us St. Peter with the other disciples in a fishing boat on a boisterous sea. Jesus had declined to go with them in the boat, withdrawing himself to the mountain for a season of prayer. The boat had not yet reached her destination, when the disciples saw the Master walking upon the water and drawing near. At first they were all affrighted; then reassurance came from his word, and finally St. Peter asked the Lord's permission that he might walk to him on the water. This permission was granted, and we cannot doubt that, had the Apostle maintained his faith, he would have reached the Lord in safety, for the same power that had exercised itself in him and in the other disciples for the healing of sick and the casting out of demons was absolutely able to keep him from sinking into the water.

But while St. Peter's faith was stronger than that of the others and stronger than ours today, in that he even attempted to walk on the water, nevertheless it was not strong enough. As his eye caught a glimpse of the boisterousness of the sea his faith began to fail and he began to sink. The Master, however, caught him, saying, "O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?" The lesson of the occasion being ended, the wind ceased. All the disciples then offered the Lord their worship, realizing afresh that he was the Son of God in power; that even the winds and the waves obeyed him.

"A hand that is not ours upstays our steps,
A voice that is not ours commands the waves;
Commands the waves, and whispers in our ear,
O, thou of little faith, why didst thou doubt?"

All are sinners. "There is none righteous; no, not one." Some do not realize the extent of their imperfections. Nevertheless it is safe to say that all sane people recognize themselves as imperfect and hence as unworthy the recognition of the great Creator. They cannot commend themselves to him as being worthy of his favor and life eternal. It is when this conviction of unworthiness becomes deep-seated; when the realization is keen that "the wage of sin is death," that the heart is most likely to realize the value of life eternal and to cry unto the Lord for deliverance from darkness, from sin's bondage and from its death sentence. To all such the Savior stands ready to lend a helping hand, as in St. Peter's case. He will not reproach such for their sins if they have repented of them and turned to righteousness. Rather, he will say, "Why did you not come sooner? I was quite willing to aid you as soon as you cried."

Our forefathers used to think that they should picture before the sinner's mind an everlasting torture at the hands of devils. It seemed to them that such pictures would be more successful in drawing men from sin to righteousness than the Scripture penalty which declares that the wages of sin is death, "everlasting destruction" (II Thessalonians i. 9). But they overdid the matter. Their message failed to convert the world. It merely tortured the saintly, the loving, the Godlike. Men reasoned that there was probably some mistake about it, as it is contrary to all human experiences that life could persist in such untellable torture. Now, however, with the aid of the modern Bible, superior translations, marginal references, etc., the people of God are learning more and more that God's Word is true and that it should not be twisted—that when it says death it does not mean life in torture.

Indeed, some have told us that to their minds the utter blotting out of existence which God has ordained to be the fate of those who refuse his every opportunity and offer of salvation is more of a terror to them than life in any condition would be. One reason that it has greater terrors undoubtedly is that it is more rational, and thinking people can and do receive it more earnestly and give it more weight. It is from everlasting destruction that the Savior stands ready to deliver every member of Adam's race from the death penalty—from the tomb and all the imperfections of mind and body which are parts of death. Jesus' death at Calvary was of sufficient value to cancel the sins of the first man and of all those who share the death penalty with him. Without Christ's death there would be no resurrection, no future life.

A little while and the faithful ones shall come forth in the "first resurrection" to be Christ's Joint-heirs. Then will come the general uplift of mankind, including the awakening of those of the whole world from the sleep of death. Our Lord's help of Peter corresponds to that greater help of the whole world. It also illustrates how those who have already become the children of God would be in danger of sinning again, were it not for our Lord's helping hand.

Woodward and died in 1883, Nellie Mrs. Leslie VanDoren, Samuel W., of Tecumseh, and Albert of Detroit.

In 1855 she came to Michigan with her husband and lived in Tecumseh township 13 years when they moved to Macon where they lived until her husband's death in 1904. Since then she has made her home with her daughters.

In 1856 she was enrolled among the members of the Presbyterian church of Tecumseh her membership being transferred in 1876 to the Reformed church at Macon. Her cheerful Christian character bore witness to her faith. The last day of her life will be a pleasant memory to those who loved her. She was with her daughter Mrs. Benedict and Mrs. VanDoren spent the day with them. Their mother was unusually bright and cheery and there was no premonition of death that came suddenly in the early hours of May 26.

Her funeral was conducted by Rev. Geo. Scarlett of Macon on Saturday at 2 o'clock. It was held from the residence of her son John T., the home where she had lived so many years and which was connected with so many happy times of her life, the Christmas gatherings, the bridal of her daughters, and many social events finally with the sorrowful time when her husband was borne from its doors to his last rest at Brookside where she now lies by his side.

"And we are glad she has lived so long,
"And glad that she has gone to her reward,
"Nor deem that kindly nature did her wrong
"Gently to disengage the silver chord."

Dan Beard's Tribute to Mark Twain as a Neighbor

Whether Mark Twain was greeting the guests at one of the lawn-parties given for the benefit of the library by the ladies of the neighborhood, or talking to the plumber, the mail-carrier or the groceryman, he always succeeded in injecting a feeling of good will and neighborly interest, entirely devoid of condescension, which endeared the old gentleman to all who came in contact with him, and during his illness nothing but the sincerest sympathy and good wishes found voice among the people of Redding; for while they were proud of their neighbor's fame and achievements, it was the sterling qualities of the man and neighbor which won their affection and esteem. And in the little community where he died it will be those qualities which will be talked of at the chimney corner and passed on to the coming generation as characteristics for them to emulate and admire. The Redding people are content to allow the big world to mourn the loss of the great humorist, while they mourn the departure of an ideal neighbor and old-fashioned, hospitable, courtly gentleman, whose democracy was so much a part of his character that it was perfectly natural and unconscious.—From "Mark Twain as a Neighbor," by Dan Beard, in the American Review of Reviews for June.

Decoration Day At Franklin

Franklin has ever proved to be one of the most loyal towns in the state and May 30th did not find them lacking. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity and Burton L. Hart of Adrian gave a most excellent address. Several ladies of Tipton gave fine recitations and the music was exceptionally fine. The floral offerings were beautiful and profuse. The perfect harmony existing among soldiers and citizens made the day a great success. Quite a number of old soldiers of Tecumseh attended the services.

Interesting Letter

FROM PAULINE WILSON BREDOW, OF GLENWOOD, FLA.

The Place to View Halley's Comet.

GLENWOOD, FLA., May 28, 1910.

Readers of the Herald:

I have seen so much in the northern papers about the comet losing its tail, I must write and tell you your eyes and not the comet are defective—or perhaps it is the atmosphere. We have seen the beautiful visitor of the Heavens almost every night during the month of May, and its long, beautiful tail has been with it.

We arose at 3:00 or 3:30 from May 1 to 18 and looking from our upstairs front window (our house faces the east) the beautiful thing could be seen not far from the horizon and near Venus with the tail stretching toward the Zenith. A few mornings it was a little hazy, but nearly always clear as crystal. After May 18 we have seen it perfect every night. This last week the nucleus has grown brighter and brighter and the tail longer and longer until our beautiful southern moon aeose to pale all else in the skies. The tail seems as long and beautiful as when seen in the morning.

The total eclypse of the moon was visible in all its grandeur to us. The shadow of the earth began cutting the yellow disc of the moon about 9:30 and at 10:30 only a selm rim around the earth's shadow was to be seen to know a moon was there. The comet made a brilliant show rising low in the west at the line of the eclipse.

I have seen more perfect phenomena of the Heavens since living here a few years than in all my life in Michigan. The above statements are facts as I have not failed one night to see this wonder since it has been much in our range of vision.

PAULINE WILSON BREDOW.

Marvelous Discoveries

mark the wonderful progress of the age. Air flights on heavy machines, telegrams without wires, terrible war inventions to kill men, and that wonder of wonders—Dr. King's New Discovery—to save life when threatened by coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup, bronchitis, hemorrhages, hay fever and whooping cough or lung trouble. For all bronchial affections it has no equal. It relieves instantly Its the surest cure. James M. Black, of Asheville, N. C., R. R. No. 4, writes it cured him of an obstinant cough after all other remedies failed. 50c. and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son.

ALMA COLLEGE

An enormous crowd of students, local fans and out of town visitors saw Alma clash with her old rival Olivet last Saturday afternoon on the home diamond. Intense excitement was evident throughout the entire game, reaching its highest at the close of the ninth inning when the visitors threw off their mits to catch the train leaving the score 4 to 4. The Presbyterians had the lead through eight successive innings and delivered a far better brand of ball than the Congregationalists.

Duncanson pitched a remarkable game for Alma, but weakened in the ninth inning, walking three men and tieing up the game. Call on short played the best game of the year, displaying at all times splendid form. Burke starred as usual at third, while Phillips held down the initial sack like a vet. This game, as in previous years, proved to be the king game of the season. Olivet put up a stiff fight but was badly beaten until the ninth with the heavy end of the batting list. The Maroon Sox were confident of defeating the Crimson, and had an extra inning been allowed they surely would have done it. Or had the game been called when agreed upon it would have reverted to the eighth inning, giving the battle to Alma by two points. The tie however leaves the locals still in the lead, having not lost a collegiate game. The ranking:

	Won	Lost	Points
Alma	6	0	1000
Olivet	5	1	8331-3
Adrian	3	3	500
Aldion	2	4	3331 3
Hillsdale	2	4	3331-3
Kazoo	1	5	1662-3

Next Saturday the final game for the state championship will be played between Olivet and Alma at Kalamazoo, and the team having the highest percentage after that game will be declared winners of the state champion ship.

GOOD DRAMATIC CRITICISM

The late Richard Mansfield always felt that he owed more to the wise discernment and stanch support of the Chicago Record-Herald than to any other agency, outside himself, that contributed to his ultimate triumph as an actor. Ask any distinterested observer of theatrical matters to day who is the best dramatic critic in Chicago, and ten to one he will say James O'Donnell Bennett of The Chicago Record-Herald. Mr. Bennett is unquestionably the leading critic in his domain in the West. He writes with a fearless fairness and a keen appreciation of real merit that makes his articles a genuine force for th oter betment of the stage. His knowledge of the history and principles of dramatic art is cuficient to lend depth to his utterances, yet he has the newspaper man's knack of making his work breezy and interesting for for the average man and woman. His columns are always newsy as well as reliable in their judgements. Anyone who will follow the dramatic, musical, literary and art departments of The Chicago Record Herald from season to season need have no fear about keeping abreast of all that is latest and finest in the movement of modern culture.

MRS. M. A. COLGATE

Mrs. Martha Ann Colgate died in New York Wednesday May 25th and was brought to Adrian for burial Saturday. The remains were accompanied by her grandson Lyman Root. Mrs. Colgate resided in Tecumseh for a few years and will be remembered by many.

BANISH CATARRH

Breathe Hyomei for Two Minutes and Stuffed Up Head Will Vanish

If you want to get relief from catarrh, cold in the head or from an irritating cough in the shortest time breathe Hyomei (pronounce it Hig-o-me).

It will clean out your head in two minutes and allow you to breathe freely awake or asleep.

Hyomei will cure a cold in one day, it will relieve you of disgusting snuffles, hawking, spitting and offensive breath in a week.

Hyomei is made chiefly from eucalyptol, a soothing, healing, germ killing antiseptic, that comes from the eucalyptus forests of inland Australia where catarrh, asthma and consumption were never known to exist.

Hyomei is pleasant and easy to breathe. Just pour a few drops into the hard rubber inhaler, use as directed and cure is almost certain.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler and one bottle of Hyomei, costs only $1.00 at druggists everywhere and at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store, Tecumseh. If you already own an inhaler you can get an extra bottle of Hyomei at druggists for only 50c.

SENATE SURPRISED AT NEWS

Holstlaw's Confession Comes on Heels of Lorimer's Defense.

Washington, May 30.—Senator Lorimer is probably willing to confess ruefully that he chose an unfortunate time for the delivery of his defense of himself in the United States senate.

He convinced no one that his election did not result from bribery and corruption of state legislators. And when, immediately after the delivery of his speech, the news reached the senate that another state senator had confessed to having been bribed, it produced a sensation the more profound because it followed so closely upon the heels of Lorimer's explanation.

Unquestionably the effect of Holstlaw's confession will be to strengthen the determination of the senators to have a full and complete investigation as early as possible, whatever efforts may be made to delay it.

Chicago, June 2. — Frank A. Gotch, of Humboldt, Ia., showed 25,000 wrestling fans at the Coliseum how he is the champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler of the world when he downed Stanislaus Zbyszko, champion of Poland, in jig time, taking the match in two straight falls, totalling but 27 42 seconds.

The first fall was won by Gotch in six seconds and was slipped over on Zbyszko with a bar arm and half Nelson.

Free Remedy For Weak Bowels

There are two forms of bodily cleanliness, the external and the internal. The one is for your pride in yourself; the other for your life and health. Both are important, but of vastly more importance in the long run is the internal cleanliness.

This is one point that all should watch about their body—the cleanliness of the bowels. Keep them clean and free from obstructions. To do this you must have one or two movements of the bowels each twenty-four hours. If your system does not do this naturally, in the process of eating and drinking, then you must obtain aid of some kind. After finding out that cathartics, salts and such things relieve you for a day, but bind you up worse than ever the next day, then try a simpler and more natural remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

For the skeptical the best way to begin is to send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell for a free sample bottle. Use it as directed and if it convinces you that a brief continuance of its use will relieve you permanently—that it will train the stomach and bowel muscles to again work naturally at certain hours—then buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as so many others are doing. They begin with a sample bottle, then bought a fifty cent bottle, and now, fully convinced of its merits, they buy the one dollar family size. All the members of the family can use it down to the very youngest.

A brief use of this grand laxative tonic will cure constipation in its worst form, indigestion, liver trouble, sick headache, sour stomach and such ailments and keep you in continuous good health at a very small cost. Such is the experience of many families like that of Mrs. Oscar Fleener, Unionville, Ind., J. F. Daniel, Saron, Tex., and hundreds of others that could be named.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

CIVIC AFFAIRS IN ENGLAND.

Interesting Letter Tells of Advance From a Model City Across the Sea.

Of the many interesting letters received, telling of the influence of the work of the American Civic Association, one of the most appreciative was received recently from B. R. Goddard, of Winchester, England. In part, Mr. Goddard wrote:

"It is very interesting to me to find that you select this good city of Winchester as a model of civic beauty. Natural beauty, indeed, Winchester may claim, set as it is among its green meads beside a clear, swift river, but we, its citizens, are inclined to curse its dull streets, its idle and disorderly populace and its incompetent and reactionary city council whose sole concern is to keep down the 'rates' as we call the city taxes.

"Yet I suppose we have much for which to be thankful. Although we proudly boast that we spend less on education than any town in England, and though the effects of this judicious economy are very noticeable in our general average of manners and intelligence, we have something for which to be thankful. Our sanitary services are efficient, our death rate is very low, our lighting, paving and water supply are excellent. Most of the nuisances against which we so gallantly agitate do not exist here.

"Billboards are few and improve in artistic qualities year by year, though I wish we could emulate Frankfort-on-the-Main and insist that all posters must pass an artistic censorship and must be framed in brown or gray mounting, stipulations which make a boarding there a feast for the eye. Our electric light wires are under the footwalks and little by little the telephone and telegraph wires are being transferred to conduits, even along the country roads. Within ten years, when the telephones are 'nationalized,' there probably will be hardly an overhead wire visible.

"There is no need to suggest that house fronts be adorned with window boxes as business houses, banks and hotels realize that a blossom-covered front like that of the 'old bank' in the very center of this little city is a good advertisement. As for the little corners of waste land that so often serve as places upon which to throw refuse, the council rails them in and plants hardy shrubs or native wild flowers upon them with admirable results. Nor are we quite forgetful of the claims of architecture. There is now a kind of tacit agreement that the style we call Queen Anne (your Colonial) is most suitable for the city. The barracks, the high school and many private houses are in this style. Their deep red tones with white facings amid the green trees produce a delightful effect of harmony and restfulness.

"Nor has the 'grouping' you advocate been entirely forgotten. Upon Castle Hill stand the chief buildings of the county government. Two of these, the County hall and the Westgate, are fine thirteenth century structures of grey flint. The modern buildings, the assize courts, the county council chambers and offices, the armory of the territorial troops, are built to harmonize and grouped around a plaza with an admirable effect of continuity and completeness.

"So I must thank your delightful pamphlets for illuminating my insular ignorance in supposing that the administrating of the city (which stands gallantly in the utmost rear of progress) is rather relatively than absolutely bad. We've got many of the things for which you strive, though in this backward spot we've got the one thing necessary for the creation of the city beautiful—the municipal ownership of the public utilities and franchises. And that, I note, you don't advocate, possibly because it might entangle you in party politics."

The True Way of It.

"Winter lies in the lap of spring,"
So the careless poet likes to sing,
But the cold, hard truth would be, mayhap,
Winter sits and spring hangs on a strap.

It Would be Sad.

"Why do women wear such large hats?"

"It is necessary. If fashion says that hats must be large, then hats must be large."

"Suppose fashion should decree that shoes must be large?"

It is announced that a remarkably interesting discovery has been made in the catacombs of Priscilla at Rome in the form of the following inscription: "In isto loco Petrus fuit." Signor Marucchi, the eminent archaeologist, is convinced, after careful study of circumstances, that the Petrus is none other than the Apostle St. Peter.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Tecumseh People Know How to Save It

Many Tecumseh people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Tecumseh citizen's recommendation.

William W. Shurtz, Kilbuck street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for ten years and have received such good results that I gladly recommend them. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are not doing their work properly, I procure a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and through their use I am promptly relieved."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

APPEALS TO TAFT TO SAVE HER SON

Mrs. Rachel Pittman Asks Aid to Prevent Boy's Execution.

PITTMAN IS PRISONER OF WAR

Genor Madriz Assures American Officers in Nicaragua That Captive Will Be Given Fair Ttreatment by Authorities.

Cambridge, Mass., June 6.—Mrs. Rachael Pittman of this city, mother of William P. Pittman, captured by the Madriz forces in Nicaragua, and believed in peril of his life, made a personal appeal to President Taft. Edwin Pittman, a brother, in behalf of his aged mother, has sent the following message to the president:

"As a mother, grief stricken over the news of the danger of my son, William P. Pittman, who, the newspaper state, may be shot for his part in the Nicaraguan revolution, I seek your interference in his behalf. He has been for four years in the United States government service in Panama. I only ask what is my right as a mother, but if there is anything you can do I implore you to do it.

"MRS. RACHAEL PITTMAN."

According to cable dispatches, Pittman, who laid the mines at Bluefields for the insurgents, was captured by the government troops and will be tried by court martial.

The troops passed to the assault over five mines, only one of which was exploded. Pittman was wounded and captured, it is said, as he was engaged in operating the mechanism through which the hidden engines of destruction were released.

State Department Acts.

Washington, June 6.—The state department has acted promptly in the case of William P. Pittman, an American engineer, said to have been captured by the Madriz forces while operating with the Estrada army.

The following is a paraphrase of telegrams sent by the state department to the American consulates at Managua and Bluefields and to Commander Gilmore of the Paducah:

"There is a newspaper report from San Juan Del Sur to the effect that William P. Pittman, an American citizen, who is alleged to have laid mines while operating with the Estrada forces, has been made prisoner by the Madriz forces and is about to be tried by court martial. It is unnecessary to point out that this government will jealously scrutinize the treatment accorded him, which must be humane and regular. You will immediately make inquiry and report to the department.

MADRIZ DENIES REPORT

Washington, June 6.—Senor Madriz, president of the defacto government of Nicaragua, has assured Secretary of State Knox that William Pittman of Boston, who was captured by the Madriz forces while engaged in laying mines near Bluefields, will be treated fairly. There is no intention Senor Madriz said, of trying Pittman by court martial.

Jose de Olivares, American consul at Managua, sent this dispatch to the state department: "Dr. Madriz has just assured me through Gen. Toledo that a court martial has not been thought of, much less ordered, and has further assured me that Pittman will be fairly treated and considerately and that telegraphic instructions will be immediately dispatch to Gen. Irias at Greytown. He has also informed me that the report hitherto received from Gen. Irias relative to William Pittman is vague."

It is evident from this dispatch that Pittman is in confinement at Greytown, which is now in the hands of the Madriz forces under Gen. Irias. It is said that the reports of his condition will be received at the state department within the next few days from Thomas R. Moffat, American consul at Bluefields, and Commander W. W. Gilmore, commanding officer of the gunboat Paducah, who have been instructed to investigate his arrest.

FOSTER IS CALLED TO STATE CAPITAL

State's Attorney Burke Wants to See the Legislator.

MAY GO BEFORE GRAND JURY

Action Is Taken After the Return of the Sangamon County Prosecutor from a Trip to Peoria After Evidence.

Springfield, Ill., June 6.—Immediately after his return from Peoria State's Attorney Burke instructed his assistants to call up Representative Foster of Rushville and ask him to appear in Springfield at once.

Foster was chairman of the house committee on fish and game.

"Will Foster be allowed to go before the grand jury?" Mr. Burke was asked.

"That depends," was the reply. "I'll talk to him first.

Foster was excused temporarily by the prosecutor on Friday. His recall followed the return of Mr. Burke with the fish men who put up the money to stop legislation and created a big stir.

The state's attorney was positive that he would make out a case.

He admitted, though, the possibility of Foster not being the lawmaker he wanted.

LEMM CONFESSES BRIBERY

Fish Dealer of Pekin, Ill., Says He Contributed $300.

Peoria, Ill., June 6.—Henry Lemm, fish dealer of Pekin, confessed to State's Attorney Burke that he contributed $300 to help kill the fish bill in the last general assembly. Lemm said he had been paying for twenty-five years.

The money was paid by a check, which Mr. Burke has in his possession, to John Dixon, the largest fish merchant in Peoria, as the collector of the fund which was used in Springfield. The total amount approximately was $3,100.

Soon after Lemm had confessed Prosecutor Burke, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Bogardus, started out to find Dixon, who, when located, said he would go before the grand jury and tell things which would make people's hair stand up.

BROWNE SPRINGS NEW COUP

Surrenders to Sheriff and Then Gets Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Chicago, June 6.—Lee O'Neil Browne and Attorney Elbridge Hanecy sprung a surprise on State's Attorney Wayman. Browne surrendered to the sheriff, and, with Mr. Hanecy as his attorney, applied to Judge Kickham Scanlan for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that Cook county courts have no jurisdiction over the offense of bribery, with which he is charged.

Judge Scanlan issued the writ. He made it returnable two hours before the time Browne's trial is set to begin before Judge McSurely.

RAIL PRESIDENTS TO CALL ON TAFT

Meeting Today at White House Is Important One.

WICKERSHAM WILL BE PRESENT

President Is Said to Concur in Action Taken and May Ask Road Presidents Some Very Pertinent and Pointed Questions.

Washington, June 6.—President Taft has got back to the White House from his four day trip in the middle west and was immediately informed by his secretary of the arrangements which have been made for his conference with railroad presidents today. The president and members of the White House staff do not know exactly what railroad men will participate in the conference. The meeting with the president was arranged at the request of President E. P. Ripley, of the Santa Fe system, who merely stated that five railroads involved in the government's dissolution and injunction suit against the western trunk line committee desired to state their side of the case to the president. It is understood that F. E. Delano, president of the Wabash, and S. F. Felton, president of the Chicago Great Western, will be among the railroad officials who will accompany President Repley to the White House.

President Taft will see Attorney General Wickersham this morning and will go over with him the developments in the railroad situation that have occurred since he started on the western trip. The facts in the case had been laid before the president, however, by Mr. Wickersham and the president had concurred in the attorney general's decision to begin proceedings under the Sherman anti-trust law. While Mr. Taft has been in the west, increased rates have been filed also by the Chicago and Ohio river committee, representing twenty-four railroads in the central west and by all the eastern trunk lines.

The railroad presidents will have their innings at the White House this afternoon. Attorney General Wickersham will be at that conference. Mr. Taft's friends say that the president will call upon the railroad men to answer the evidences which shippers of the west laid before the department of justice. Mr. Wickersham has said that this evidence tended to show railroad presidents formally met and voted upon increase in rates and instructed the western trunk line committee's agent to file them with the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Taft's friends say that if the president is convinced that the facts are as alleged it is extremely doubtful if the railroad men will get him to recede from the position that the administration has taken.

DAY'S IDEA GOOD SENSE

Baccalaureate Sermons to Students Along Proper Lines.

States Automobile Craze Is Curse and Results in Much Hardship That Is Unnnecessary.

Syracuse, N. Y., June 6.—In his baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Syracuse university Chancellor James R. Day directed an attack upon the automobile industry as being non-productive, declared that the American public spent more money on their dogs than on their preachers of the gospel, and said that the men who brings to a woman a home is greater than the suffragette or the female temperance lecturer.

The automobile, he declared, was a curse to the public. Dr. Day urged self-denial, telling the class to get along without things until they could afford them. Mechanics, clerks and business men, he said, were mortgaging their homes to purchase automobiles and through the automobiles were losing their homes and their positions. These, he said, numbered into the thousands. "Interest takes the place of bank deposits, accidents, repairs and running expenses," he said, "displace many of the little comforts of the home, the shop is neglected and the position is lost."

Dyson Sr. was counting his money when the stranger entered a side door. He pointed a revolver at Dyson and demanded the money. James sprang toward the stranger.

Two bullets met him half-way, one entering his chin and the other crashing through his chest. He fell to the floor and the stranger, after firing a shot at the father, disappeared from the store.

What is life if not mixed with some delight?

UNDER A CLOUD,

Accused of Crime. He Lived For Many Years a Cursed Man.

By GERTRUDE ELMENDORF.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

The life lived by the planters of the south before the extinction of slavery was in some respects an ideal one. Most of them were people of refinement and kind to their slaves, by whom they were much beloved. The Lynn family were of this type. Their plantation was one of the largest in the south, and they owned more than a thousand slaves. Their social position in the circle of society embracing the neighboring planter families was very high. Indeed, they were beloved by both whites and blacks.

Alan Lynn inherited this plantation when he came of age. He was a splendid specimen of the highly honorable, sensitive southerner. Among all the young men of the region in which he lived he was the favorite both with his own and the opposite sex. He was very gay, taking a prominent part in all the social affairs of his circle. If a ball were given on a plantation fifty miles away he was as sure to be there as if it were on an adjoining place. Yet much of his leisure time was spent in examining into the needs of the negroes on his plantation, supplying them and righting their wrongs.

Among the young men of that region was Sheldon Avery, who lived on a plantation some ten miles from the Lynn home. Notwithstanding the distance separating them Lynn and Avery were much together.

The friendship continued until the two men discovered that they were secretly devoting themselves to the same girl. Martha Tucker was not in the social circle of the planters' families. She was very handsome, however, and possessed traits to render her attractive to men. Avery had known her some time before Lynn made her acquaintance. Lynn was not aware that his friend had claims upon her, or he would have retired at once from the field. Avery on learning that Lynn was his rival was very angry. He accused his friend of dishonorable action toward him, and Lynn's hot southern blood prompted him to resent the charge. The result was the passing of a challenge.

SHOTS WERE EXCHANGED.

Two such prominent young men could not fight under the code without the fact being known to all their acquaintances. The fact that they had been bosom friends made the quarrel a matter of still greater interest. They tried to conceal the cause, giving out a manufactured one, but it did not avail. It was generally known that a woman was at the bottom of the meeting.

By the time they came on to the field of honor each had cooled and would have gladly come to a reconciliation. But an imputation on their courage was more to be dreaded than the risk of killing a friend. Shots were exchanged, fortunately without effect; the seconds interposed, and the two enemies again became friends.

For some time after this difference they saw little of each other. Meanwhile young Lynn had been stocking certain woods comprised within his property with game. In October he sent an invitation to Avery to make him a visit and enjoy the shooting. Avery accepted and came to his friend's house prepared for an extended visit.

The two men hunted for several days, each being careful to abstain from any mention of the trouble over which they had disagreed. But one day when a number of other persons were hunting with them and the two young men became separated from the rest of the party their voices were heard raised in anger. The girl over whom they had fought had been mentioned between them and, like a glass of liquor to a reformed drunkard, had fired the brain of Avery, who seemed easily excited at any reference to Martha Tucker. Those of the party nearest the disputants paused to listen and heard Lynn say:

"If you do I will kill you!"

At this moment those who were listening started up a flock of birds in which they were more interested than in the quarrel between the two friends. They followed the game and, hearing reports of guns in another part of the wood, supposed that Lynn and Avery had also turned their attention to the sport.

Some time after this Lynn came up with the others. He seemed surprised not to see Avery with them, saying that while he and Avery were together Avery, hearing the reports of their guns and assuming that they had found game, had gone to rejoin them.

When, after another hour, Avery did not appear all started in different directions to look for him. They did not find him. The day ended, and most of the party went to their homes, while Lynn, with a few others, continued the search until it was so dark they could see nothing, then gave it up. But the next morning just as they were starting out to renew their search Avery's dead body was brought in with a hole made by bird shot in the head. The body had been found about a hundred yards from the place where the two men had been heard disputing.

Notwithstanding the high position of young Lynn it was almost universally believed that he had killed Avery. Sympathy was expressed for him, because it was supposed that he had done the deed in a burst of passion. He was arrested, charged with the murder and found guilty. On the trial it came out that he had recently become engaged to the daughter of a neighboring planter, and he ascribed his words "If you do I will kill you" to the fact that he had on Avery's arrival confided to him his engagement and that Avery during their subsequent quarrel had threatened to make certain charges against Lynn's good name to the latter's fiancee.

In those days in the south the courts were chary of interfering in disputes among gentlemen. Doubtless if witnesses had been present at a fight in which either of the two men had killed the other there would have been no arrest made, or if arrested the one who had done the killing would have been acquitted. As it was, nearly every one believed that Lynn had killed Avery while angered, and as it was to be supposed that he had not given his victim a chance for his life and had concealed the crime he was to be considered a murderer. Nevertheless there were planters on the jury who would not convict one of their number of crime on circumstantial evidence, and the result was a disagreement. Lynn went forth a free man, but with the imputation of murder resting upon him. He was never again brought to trial because there was no new evidence forthcoming to throw additional light on the case.

Opinion as to his guilt varied from the lightest charge that he had simply killed a man who would otherwise have killed him to the belief that with enmity still rankling within him he had invited Avery to visit him on purpose to gratify a spirit of revenge. The case was discussed at the tables of his peers, the planters; in the domiciles of the poor whites and in the huts of the negroes. Of course opinions were shaped in accordance with the sympathies of those who expressed them, the Lynn adherents defending him, while those of Avery could not find words to express their horror of him.

No one ever knew what took place between Lynn and his fiancee except that the engagement was broken off. The facts of the case were that she believed in his innocence and was willing to marry him, but he would not permit any woman to take his name after it had been stained with a criminal charge that he was unable to disprove. He went abroad for awhile, spending his time wandering from place to place, but without gaining any comfort. He lived a blighted life. The girl he was to have married wrote him often, and from her he drew what consolation was possible. She declared that she would never marry unless she married him, and he declared that he would never marry any one so long as the imputation of murdering his friend and guest hung over him.

Martha Tucker, the girl who appeared to have been at the bottom of the trouble, disappeared and was seen no more in the neighborhood. Ten years passed, during which Lynn had grown in appearance ten years older than he really was. His family, his friends and his slaves were still devoted to him, and the girl he was to have married loved him more than ever. This was the situation when David Tucker, a brother of Martha Tucker, died and just before his death made a confession that unsealed the mystery.

Sheldon Avery, he said, had ruined his sister Martha. The knowledge of this fact came to him at the time when Avery went to the Lynn plantation to hunt. He followed Avery there and went to the woods where the hunt was in progress. Encountering Avery soon after the latter had left Lynn, he had deliberately shot him. Tucker claimed that if Lynn had been convicted he would have declared that he was the real slayer of Avery and his reason for killing him. When Lynn's conviction failed he had decided to keep his sister's disgrace and his own crime a secret.

Alan Lynn was walking with bowed head on the front gallery of his home when he heard a clattering of horses' hoofs and, looking up the road, saw a party of men coming at full speed. On reaching his gate they turned in, and he saw that they were his friends and acquaintances. They dismounted at the foot of the steps, and their spokesman, advancing, announced the news of the confession that lifted from his shoulders the stigma he had borne for ten years. Having done this, every man embraced him.

From that moment Lynn took a new lease of life. He married the girl who had waited for him so long and afterward fought as a colonel in the Confederate army.

HIS DIPLOMACY

When Mrs. Hardiman received her sister's letter telling her all about Kathleen's unfortunate affair, her matchmaking instincts were up in arms. Of course, as Constance had said, Kathleen was a mere child in years, only 17. But girls of 17 sometimes developed very grown-up feelings!

She did not answer her sister's letter at once; to her thinking, hasty judgment was one of the cardinal sins. And she waited to think matters over thoroughly before committing herself.

Pine Grove, Fla., May 17.

"My Dear Constance:

"Why not let me have Kathleen for a couple of months? The country is simply magnificent this time of the year, and, although, naturally, it will be rather lonely compared to gay New Orleans, still the contrast may do wonders toward bringing the dear girl out of herself. I don't believe anyone could brood in a garden spot like this.

"By the way, an old friend of mine is coming down from Chicago to spend the summer with me. Her son, a splendid young fellow of 25, is to meet her here for a week's visit. They are extremely exclusive people, and, although not at all wealthy, will doubtless shortly inherit a considerable fortune from the boy's god-father, I think it is. He is a cranky old fellow (80-odd), who refuses to settle a penny on his protege until he marries and settles down.

"Mind you, not a word of this to Kathleen.

"Let me hear from you. As ever.

"Pat."

Three days later Mrs. Hardiman held her sister's reply in her hand. Kathleen would be delighted to come. It was the very thing of all others. Six or eight weeks among the Florida pines would certainly be the salvation of her.

It was an afternoon of June, pale and sweet with orange blossoms. Rows upon rows of the waxen-leaved trees made a garden grove down below the rose lawn.

Mrs. Hardiman came out on the terrace and flourished a slip of yellow paper in her hand.

Old Mrs. Ogden, seated on a twisted oak chair, looked up with a questioning smile.

"My niece will be here on the 6:20 train," the other announced, sinking down opposite, "and that horrid old Billy is laid up again with his everlasting 'rheumatix.' Do you think Claud will be here in time to—"

Mrs. Hardiman stole a narrow glance into the brown, strong face, with its keen, expressive eyes and firm but smiling mouth. Surely Claude Odgen was a man worth noticing.

"My niece is arriving on that 6:20 train, Mr. Ogden. Do you think you could manage the boys this afternoon?"

"Oh, yes," he said. "I think I can manage them fairly well."

He pulled out his watch.

"I've just an hour to make it," he said; "I suppose I'd better be getting out of this toggery."

The train was as usual, late. The passengers dropped out on the platform. There were two or three drummers, an old lady in black and finally—

Surely there was something oddly familiar about the cut of the brown tailor-made gown, the gracefully draped veil that cascaded about her, dainty shoulders, the military carriage of the slender young figure.

"Claude!"

"Kathleen!"

He hurried her on to the trap, and in a minute they were whirling off through clouds of dust.

"But I thought you were on board the Silver Star, en route to Australia!" she exclaimed when she found breath to speak.

"That was all bosh, Kathleen. I never had any intention of putting the ocean between us. After the way we were broken up I thought I'd just hang around until you were of age."

"Poor mamma! She firmly believes that she knows my own mind better than I do myself.

"And suppose I were to tell you that I was about to become very wealthy?

"It would make no difference whatever in my—"

Somewhat to the girl's surprise he deliberately turned the horses' heads and drove back the other way.

"Claude! You're going wrong.

"No, I am not. Providence had a great big hand in dumping us down here together like this. And we haven't any right to fly in the face of Providence, you know. I was told that long ago, when I was a mere kid."

"What is this funny little place?"

"It's the county courthouse. Hold the reins a second. I've got to get out."

Soon he returned, slipped a bit of folded paper into his pocket as he climbed into the trap.

"I think Mr. Holcomb lives in that little green house over there," he said, pointing with his whip as the horses trotted off.

"But when are we going home? Aunt Pat will be—"

"Just as soon as the preacher gets through with us. Don't you think Pine Grove will be an ideal spot to spend our honeymoon in?"

"Don't you!" he reiterated, bending down. Their eyes met.

Kathleen thought, perhaps, it would.—Nellie Cravey Gillmore.

Too Good to be True.

"Why, I declare!" exclaims the trusting wife. "I won't have to buy any new dresses or hats at all this spring!"

"You won't?" asks the crafty husband. "Surely you will need something."

"Not a thing. I've been looking through this month's fashion magazine that you brought home for me, and I find that there isn't the slightest change in style from last spring."

And the crafty husband, inwardly gloated over the success of his scheme to paste a this year's cover on a last year's magazine, leans back in his chair and smokes and smokes and smokes.—Judge.

Nothing Serious.

Mrs. Kawler—"And just as I was about to—seems to me I smell cloth burning!"

Mrs. Homesome—"My husband won a box of cigars at a raffle yesterday. He's smoking one of them. Go ahead with what you were saying."

Silver Lake is one of our most beautiful lakes. It is 2 1-2 miles north of Devil's Lake station and 2 1-2 miles southeast of Cement City. It has a good reputation for fishing and swimming. One dollar of this is the Enrollment Fee and must be sent to the County Secretar E. T. May at Tecumseh, before June 26. Boys who are not members of the Y. M. C. A. must pay $6, instead of $5. Each boy who enrolls will receive a letter from Mr. May telling him when, where, and how to come. LETTER FROM MARTHA WILSON

WHO IS LOCATED AT CHINOOK, MONTANA.

By request of J. W. Wilson we publish the following letter from his daughter Mattie.

CHINOOK, MONTANA,
May 28, 1910.

Dear Parents and Sister:

Another Saturday eve has come and finds me seated to write you a few lines.

We are having fine weather but it is going to freeze hard tonight. Have had but a very litt'e rain so far.

Yes, I received a letter from Ethel Keyser. It was written the same morning that Seaton Anderson died. Was surprised somewhat.

If pa asked me in his letter some time ago what kind of fish they catch in Milk River, I have forgotten it entirely. They don't catch any as the water is a muddy milky color and in the summer it is dry nearly all the time. It is rightly named and is the most treacherous river in the U. S.

Old Slongo has her colt and it is a dandy; just like your colt, black with two white hind feet and a star in its forehead. Roy had the good luck to get three of his long lost horses back tonight. A fellow rode in here with them. He found them out on the hills and got $15 for finding the them and one of the mares has a fine colt. Last Thursday morning the fast mail killed 18 horses a mile and a half west of Chinook. Eleven of them belonged to a Mr. Scillon and five of them to Thos. O'Hanlon. All, every one of them, were high priced, pure bred horses and a majority of them just ready to foal. O'Hanlon bought his from Scillon a few days before and paid $100 apiece for them. They were four year olds. They got out of the field by the track some way, the mosquitoes being so bad or someone left the gate down and when the the train came they ran up the track ahead of it, and when they got to the trestle they could get no farther and it struck them and killed them all at one lick. Mr. Beatty came down from Havre that morn on Skidoo and when they got to them they stopped and let the claim agent off. He said it was terrible to see them. Four laid in a heap thrown clear to the right of the road and one of them had its head cut off and the mitrals and foals strewed all over. It is a wonder they didn't derail the train and I wish it had and killed the engineer only, for a man that will do such a thing as that, and no excuse, for the track is level and he could see them miles away, hasn't any heart in him.

The train tears through here at the rate of 75 miles an hour at 4 o'clock in the morning. The track is about as far from the house as your house is from the road and when that goes through it makes things jingle. Mr. O'Hanlon can afford his loss better than Scillon as he is very well off, but Mr. S. had just got a nice start and they were of the purest breed. He has a pure bred stud and the colts from him are fine. Now he hasn't anything but the stud, as all the mares he had were killed.

Your loving girl,
MARTHA WILSON.

The President

He came—We saw—The engine conquered for it whizzed the train away before the people were ready. For once the skies were fair and the town was gay with bunting flags floating from most of the business places. President Taft was on the rear plat form and was greeted with rousing cheers as he stepped forward for a 5 minutes talk. It was brief but enough so we all can say, "We have seen and heard the President."

ART EXHIBIT

Held At Tecumseh Wednesday

The pupils of our Tecumseh schools had a very fine display of their handiwork at the Library building on Wednesday. It surely is quite commendable, the skill displayed by some of the little folks in the various lines taught under this department.

The older pupils also made a fine showing. The various drawings were nicely executed, also the free hand brush work which displayed much skill. There were some very good painting on display by the 8th grade which attracted much attention.

In the manual training work the 3rd and 4th grade made a wondetful showing, the pretty rugs woven on hand looms being especially noticeable. We think each little weaver may be very proud of the work they have done.

The drawing teacher deserves much credit for the progress made by her pupils and indeed each one has certainly done well with those under their change.

"I suffered habitually from constipation. Doan's Regulets relieved and strengthened the bowels, so they have been regular ever since."—A. E. Davis, grocer, Sulphur Springs, Tex.

REV. LESLIE BOWER.

Rev. Leslie Bower was born in Canada April 28, 1851, and came to Michigan with his parents when but a small boy. He graduated from the Chicago Theological college and entered at once into the active work of the Baptist church. He was an earnest, faithful worker and many are the souls that he has led into the better way. He has had pastorates in Portland, Jackson, Tecumseh, Corunna and Leslie at which place he was located.

He was an active member of the Masonic fraternity under whose auspices he was laid to rest in our beautiful Brookside. He was also a member of the I. O. O. F. and Royal Arcanum.

At all times, under all circumstances, he walked in the well beaten path of righteousness and was fully impressed with the idea that at the end of time Eternity began. The bright faith that sustained him through his trying hours of suffering grew ever brighter as he came nearer the infinite, and for him death had no terrors.

He is survived by his wife, one daughter Mrs. John Nyland of Tecumseh and one son, who, while they mourn his loss, yet rejoice to know that for him all is well.

RUMOR

SAYS THAT THE ANTHONY FENCE COMPANY HAS SOLD OUT

Dame Rumor insists that the Anthony Fence Company has sold to eastern capital, but neither Mr. Fitzsimmons, its president, nor the other officials of the company will corroborate the report.

Adrian people claim that the sale has actually taken place and that Anthony stockholder and Tecumseh generally will largely profit by the transaction.

We hope that this proves to be the truth, and that the story that the local employes will not only be retained but that the factory will greatly enlarge its present capacity, is also authentic.

Doubtless, developments in the matter will be rapid and our readers can soon receive definite information concerning the deal from these columns.

HOSE SHOWER

It was a unique idea that hose shower for Miss Stella Zimmerman given by Miss Alice Combs.

The hose was arranged in such a way that a perfect shower fell over the entrauce to the porch, and the umbrellas the young ladies were invited to bring were much needed. The ladies' hose inside which were presented to Miss Zimmerman, were varied in size, color and quality.

Resreshments, games, etc., filled the program of a very delightful evening.

A paper from San Fransisco received by John Orr has this item: Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Whitenack of Tecumseh, Mich. are stopping at the Orphenum Annex. This hotel is under the supervision of one of our old Tecumseh boys, Geo. F. Smith a son of Mrs. Henry Smith of Brownville who will be remembered by many.

Melvin Higgins of Macon was the unfortunate victim of dogs last week. He had a flock of 20 sheep and 20 lambs in a pasture on the Jay Howell farm. Two dogs one belonging to Mr. Howell and one to Lewis Feldman got in the flock and destroyed all but four sheep and one lamb. One of the oweners has offered to settle but the other one refuses, so there may be trouble ahead.

A very pleasant evening was spent in the rooms of the G. A. R. and F. B. A. on Monday evening. A short program was given consisting of an instrumental duet by Mrs. F. B. Wood and Edythe Shull, a fine paper by Mrs. J. Davison on reminiscences of the war, a vocal solo by Bonnie Brown which called for an encore, a poem by Lucy Train and a vocal solo by Mrs. Rob Moore which was also encored Owing to illness and other reasons two numbers of the program had to be omitted.

That Shower

Given Friday Evening in Honor of Miss Stella Zimmerman.

No, not the usual shower that has greeted us day by day but the one given by Misses Edyth Shull and Eolah Brown for Stella Zimmerman.

About 15 young girls were of the party and each came laden with packages which were put up at auction, and as they were purchased were presented to the bride-elect amid much laughter and good will.

After this feature of the evening was over several games were played and then the guests were ushered into the dining room where two very distinguished guests were in waiting—the Countess DeBust and her bridesmaid Princess Halafront.

The room was beautifully decorated red satin ribbon being suspended from the chandelier to the corner of the table which was thickly strewn with small red hearts. The place cards were tiny bridal slippers except for the bride-elect, who had a white bell decorated with a bride in full array.

In the receiving room a gilded sprinkling pot was suspended from the ceiling filled with red peonies and bleeding hearts. Bleeding hearts in vases were also used as table decorations.

The Countess removed her bridal veil and draped around Miss Zimmerman, as a token of her esteem. Music, both vocal and instrumental was next in order and the evening closed mid laughing good-nights and merry wishes for the future of the little maid whom they had thus honored.

FIGHTING FROM THE DEPTHS.

The submarine, owing to increase in size, power, endurance, radius of action, together with the accumulated knowledge and mastery acquired by officers and men in handling and maneuvering this sensitive and ingenious type of fighting craft in the depths below, it is now well nigh universally admitted by naval students will play an important role in future warfare on the seas. The American government is taking renewed interest and recognizing the value of these boats as formidable and destructive weapons of defence and offense. Shortly, when all authorized are complete, the U. S. navy will have a splendid, up-to-date, submarine flotilla of 27 vessels, the latter types to be of large size with speed of twelve knots on the surface and nine or ten submerged, and capable of running out from two to five hundred miles from Base. Twelve are in commission at present, seven half finished, and eight new ones authorized. In this particular branch of the service the U. S. is behind that of other powers, such as France and England, who have done the most toward the development of the submarine. The French government is placing great reliance upon them, having nearly 100 built and on the ways. England began to construct these vessels in 1900, and has approved and perfected only one diving type, the same that is adopted and used in this country. Her more recent ones are of three, five and six hundred tons displacement, 600 H. P., and 135 feet long, and having an extensive superstructure, forming a bridge throughout their entire length, and with a speed of 13 knots. Russia has 37 built and building. Japan eight already built, Germany six, Italy four.—The World Mirror.

Mineral Spring Water Industry.

Almost every city and town in the United States has its favorite local or imported spring water, delivered in large bottles with more or less elaborate advertising accompaniment. Just how great the industry has become in the United States was not suspected until the United States geological survey completed recently an investigation. The amount of money invested and handled in this industry was found to be enormous. According to The World Mirror, a minimum of supply from well-known springs for the year was found to be 52,060,520 gallons, for which an average price of 15c, at the springs were received, or a total of $7,331,503.

Vast ranges in the prices of the product are shown, for while Minnesota with but eight wells producing, placed on sale more than 2,500,000 gallons more than any other state, the value of the vast supply was fully half a million dollars less than the output of the 29 wells of Wisconsin.

In the output of the waters, both medicinal and table, Minnesota was far ahead. Her spring production was 9,054,030 gallons, which at the low average price of five cents was worth $524,809. New York with 41 wells was second with 7,176,815 gallons, worth at an average price of nine cents, $686,574, while Wisconsin from 29 wells got 6,839,219 gallons, worth the splendid sum of $1,526,703, for the price averaged 22 cents.

Indiana is happy in the possession of the springs producing waters of topmost price; the average for the 514,366 gallons obtained from her 17 springs being 99 cents—a total of $507,716. Massachusetts is content to take 4 cents a gallon for 4,651,115 gallons—the value of that miniature ocean being but $208,579.

During the year 1908 there was an increase of 3,951,940 gallons, or more than eight per cent., over the output of 1907, but the value of all the waters was $696,884; a portion of that loss being fictitious because much of the water was used in the making of "soft drinks," and therefore was unreported.

The Worth of a Man.

When a man sees that rugged physical constitution and perspicacity of intellect, desirable as they may be, redound no more to his credit than he is blameworthy of being a cripple or being afflicted with the impediment of speech, there will be a new shifting of the basis of his self-esteem; for now he will begin to realize that the true worth of a man depends on the proper use of the powers with which he has been endowed. In other words, his pride will now gradually become a moral pride, i. e., a pride based on moral factors. His question no longer will be: "What exceptional qualities do I possess?" qualities which he realizes are accidents of birth, but instead: "What proper, i. e., what moral use do I make of the capabilities bestowed upon me?" As a result it will be his endeavor to bring about a corresponding development in his own character. As he grows in the direction of truthfulness, fidelity to duty, faithfulness to friends, scrupulosity of science, adherence to principle, he is approximately toward the ideal of development of self-esteem. But it is just at this stage that there is danger of developing the false moral pride of the "unco guid," the self-righteous attitude of the Pharisee who prides himself in his self complacency on not being "as other men." It still is false pride for the simple reason that it is exclusive.—H. H. Schroeder, in the Internation Journal of Ethics.

A Better Runner.

Being pursued by a farmer and his three sons, after being caught in the chicken yard, a young colored person had just made up his mind that he was not eluding his followers as quickly as might be, when a long-eared jack rabbit jumped up from the roadside and started down the road ahead of him. The would-be chicken thief had run a few hundred feet further when the farmer and his boys were astonished to here the negro shout, in a voice that quavered with fright though unrestrained: "Say, for de Lord sake, you rabbit, get out of de way and let some one run who can run."—Argonaut.

Lesson from the Past.

They had begun to call Wellington the Iron Duke.

"Well," he said, after the first shock of it was over, "I'm not as hard a citizen, at that, as if I were a steel king."

Still, he could not help thinking what an absurdity it would be for the sculptors to perpetuate him in bronze.

Free Liver Remedy

It is well to stop a physical ailment at the first signs of its approach, and that is especially true of liver trouble, which can eventually give rise to so many serious complications. Many have liver trouble and imagine it is indigestion, and hence take the wrong remedy.

When the liver does not store up sufficient gastric juices it becomes sluggish, and in this way disturbs the stomach and bowels, with which it is supposed to work in harmony. Then comes the sallow complexion, the pimply face, the dull pain in the forehead, the thinning of the blood, etc. A very quick and sensible way to stop the trouble as well as to cure it is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which contains ingredients especially intended to promote the activity of the liver.

Among the many thousands who have written the doctor about the results achieved with his remedy, and who are glad to make the facts public so that others can help themselves, are Mr. Jas. Kennedy, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. S. A. La Rue of Smith's Grove, Ky., and many others.

These, like thousands of others, started the use of Syrup Pepsin with a sample. If you will send your name and address you can also obtain a free trial bottle. This will prove to you that liver trouble is promptly cured with this remedy or money will be refunded. Having tried it you can then buy it in the regular way of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and the latter is sufficient for an entire family.

This remedy is a vast improvement over cathartic tablets and salts, which only do good for the time being. Syrup Pepsin is permanent in its results, is pleasant to take and does not gripe. It is especially good for all those who cannot stand a violent purgative.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

SNUBBED

"I shall snub him," declared Ray, vindictively. "I hate 'Hons.'" She sniffed with disdain, and glanced at the admiring circle about her. "But, Ray," expostulated Alice, who was chairman of the dance committee, "you know he's heard so much about you, captain of the basket ball team, and all that—of course, he'll expect you to dance with him at least twice." Alice did not want the guest of honor to find the dance lacking in any respect. Ray tossed her head. "I shall not dance with him at all, she said, grimly; and everyone knew that she meant what she said.

It was an unusual thing for a girl to do—to refuse in advance to meet the guest of honor—the leader of the Glee Club, which the girls of Glover Hall were to entertain at a dance after enjoying a concert by the club.

At the concert Ray could not suppress a look of triumph at Alice. The leader of the club was rather self-important looking. "I knew I shouldn't like him,' she whispered. "Emily has talked so much about him that I'm sick of his very name. I always detest people I am expected to like. I like the second bass," designating a good looking but unimportant youth in the back row. I shall ask to be introduced to him." Which she did, after the concert had been smoothly but hurriedly rendered.

The second bass smiled wisely, and gladly acknowledged his introduction to Ray, the prettiest girl in the room. "I'll see that you meet all our best men," he told her, at once. "Here's Bob, our leader, now. I'll get him—" But Ray interrupted.

"I've left my wrap in the other hall," she said; "would you mind getting it for me?" The danger was averted for once. A little later, when Ray again met the second bass he glanced at her card—the last dance had not been taken.

"Now, I'll get Bob for that last dance," he volunteered. Ray blushed, and darted a singularly pleading glance at him. "I was saving that dance for—well, for you," she stammered. "It will make only five." The young man looked very queer, but seemed grateful. "I didn't dare to ask for it," he murmured. Ray could only smile, although she was dying to explain her favor.

But when the last dance arrived, up came the second bass, arm in arm with the leader of the club. "Bob hasn't had a dance with you this evening," said he to Ray, "so I've agreed to abdicate in his favor." He beamed at Ray and at the leader like a benevolent godfather. Ray was furious. She had spent the evening dodging the leader; should she give in now, to be ridiculed by all the girls who had heard her vow she would not dance with him?

"I'm very sorry," she said, ignoring the leader. "You see, I'm really too tired to dance again. But of course I wouldn't deprive your friend of the pleasure. Here's his sister now," and she eagerly welcomed Emily, who appeared at the minute; then, without a word, Ray led the crestfallen bass to a cosey corner. "I may as well explain," she said stiffly, when she observed that her companion was vainly trying to stifle his laughter. "As a matter of fact I had made up my mind not to dance with your leader. I've heard so much about him that I am tired of him. I knew he'd be pampered and petted and conceited and would condescend and bend, and all that, and I just determined that he shouldn't get a chance to patronize me. I hate popular men." She stopped short as she caught sight of her partner's face. He had just breath enough to gasp at Emily, who once more approached: "You tell her," and then he gave way to his merriment, burying his face in a pillow.

"Well, Ray," said Emily, "I knew you'd like Robert when you met him, but you were so obstinate I didn't know what to do. So I told him a'l about it, how you said nothing would induce you to dance with him, and how you hated popular men, and so he got one of the other boys, a perfect swelled head, who was only too glad of the chance, to take his place and lead the club tonight. And it was really too funny the way you singled Robert out, and asked for an introduction, and everything."

Emily paused for breath. There was a silence, during which Robert's mirth suddenly vanished and he sat up, looking appealingly and deprecatingly at Ray.

That young lady hesitated. At length she smiled. "Anyhow," she said, "I've told him very plainly my opinion of popular men—in general."

"Yes," he assented eagerly. "Yes, but in particular?"

The elements composing CALUMET are blended with such exactness that it is famous for its evenness of strength, leaving the food light, sweet and wholesome.

Do not confuse CALUMET with cheap or big can kinds, or the high-priced trust brands. It is a strictly high-grade baking powder, sold at a moderate price.

That it is the highest in quality and absolutely pure is proven by the fact that it received the highest award at the World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago, 1907.

Ask your Grocer — Don't accept a "just as good" kind — insist on CALUMET.

Mesdames James Underwood and Frank Pocklington left Thursday for a visit with the formers son and family in Bowling Green, Ohio.

OBITUARY.

Maude Lee Huddleston was born in Macon township on March 11, 1879. In early life she came to Britton where she entered the public school and graduated with the class of 1894 and was a member of the Britton High School Alumni.

The deceased was also a member of the Ladies of the Maccabees of the world.

The subject of our sketch was united in marriage to Harry Huddleston in March 1904 and together they shared in common lifes, joys and sorrows until the morning of June 1st when we were compelled to say:

Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set—but all
Thou hast all seasons for thine Own, O Death.

She having died at the early age of thirty one years, two months, and twenty one days. She leaves to mourn her demise a husband, father, two brothers and one siste together with a large circle of more distant relatives and friends.

"Broken the silken cord,
Severed the golden chain,
Linking us with fond memory's hours
That can never come again."

The relatives who came to attend the funeral were Mrs. Arthur Lee and son of St. Joseph, Mo., John Lee and wife of Tecumseh, Mr. Lee of Milan and Leta Gifford of Detroit.

Poor Billiards.

Calvin Demarest, the amateur billiard champion, described, at a dinner in Chicago, some poor billiard tables.

"One summer in the country," he said "another man and I were overtaken by a storm and had to go into a tavern for shelter. The rain fell steadily. We had three or four hours before us. Time began to hang heavily on our hands.

"'Landford,' said I, 'do you happen to have a billiard table?'

"'Sure,' said the landlord. 'Sure. Just step this way, gents.'

"He proudly threw open the door of a dark, stuffy room. We saw an antiquated table with a patched cloth, and in the corner was a rack of crooked cues.

"'Any balls?' said I.

"'Sure,' said the landlord, and he unlocked a closet, and laid on the table three white balls, all alike—there was no spot, you know.

"'But see here, I remonstrated, how do you tell these balls apart?'

"'Oh, that's all right,' said he. 'You soon get to know 'em by their shape.'"—Detroit Free Press.

The Hello Girl Scored.

At Washington the newspaper correspondents are telling the following story about Representative Walter Brownlow, of Tennessee. Recently he called up somebody at the White House. He had a fierce time. Central, who had tried to get the number for him, appeared to be inexperienced or asleep. Mr. Brownlow, ordinarily the most patient of men, finally lost his patience.

"Look here!" he shouted; "quit this foolishness! Either get me the White House or give me some place where I may at least talk to my intellectual equal!"

Silence for a moment, and then over the wire came a good loud "Hello!" in a man's voice.

Mr. Brownlow was much relieved.

"What place is this?" he asked.

"The Government Hospital for the Insane, across the river," came the answer.

Representative Brownlow is now endeavoring to ascertain that central's name. He wants to have her promoted. That's what he says to the newspaper men.—Judge.

Leads in Coke Making.

Pennsylvania stills leads in the number of her coke-making plants. She has 112, and their product in 1905 was 70 per cent. of the country's total output of coke. Fifteen years before the percentage was over 84. The capital represented in the establishments of this country is $90,712,877, and the total number of wage earners is 19,000.

Strange that no thoughtful person has yet thought to ask for subscriptions to enable him to make a dash for the Pole through a tunnel.

AIM TO END COAL STRIKE

Meetings in Nine Mines Are to Be Held Today.

Pennsylvania Operators Agree to Take Up Grievances Upon the Miners Return to Work.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 6.—Further steps toward breaking up the strike of the 12,000 mine workers of the Pennsylvania Coal company were taken when committees of the strikers met officials of the Mine Workers' union. The members of the committee were urged to get the men back to work and were told that within forty-eight hours after the ending the strike the company officials would take up the men's grievances and settle them.

If this settlement is not satisfactory, then the conciliation board will take up the grievances. The committee promised to call massmeetings at each of the nine collieries where the men are on strike today.

ENGINEER STARKEY IS SHOT

English Mining Engineer Waylaid and Shot by Mexican.

Mexico City, June 6.—Advices have reached here of the probable mortal wounding of T. W. Starkey, an English mining engineer, near Calera, Sonora. He was waylaid by a Mexican and shot twice through the lungs. The assailant was captured and placed in jail at Magdalena. Mr. Starkey is well known in mining circles of western Mexico, where he has operated for several years.

FIGHT PLANNED ON RAIL BILL

Republican Regulars Fear the Effect of Insurgents Amendments.

Washington, June 6. — All signs point to one of the liveliest fights of the session in the house on Tuesday when a motion will be made to send the administration railroad bill to conference. House and senate leaders say the bill passed by the latter body must be robbed of some of its insurgent—Democratic—amendments before it is sent to the president for approval.

The plan to refer the bill to conference cannot be carried out without the assistance of the Democrats. If the majority joins with the insurgents in the house, the senate bill will be accepted. Nearly all of the house insurgents are determined to vote to accept the senate bill.

REPUBLICANS WIN IN PENNSYLVANIA

Returns Indicate All Except Two Are Renominated.

SEVERAL VERY CLOSE CONTESTS

John Dalzell Said to Have Won Out by Very Narrow Margin and Mayor Black Threatens to Bring Criminal Action.

Philadelphia, June 6.—In the thirty-two congressional districts in Pennsylvania all of the elected Republican candidates except two were renominated after hot contests in half a dozen instances. Incomplete returns indicate that Congressmen Alfred D. Garner, of Schylkill county, a Cannonite, and William H. Graham, of the Twenty-Ninth district, have been defeated.

John Dalzell, encountered a hard fight, being opposed in the Thirteenth district by former Mayor Black of McKeesport. The incomplete returns shows a very close contest, but Congressman Dalzell's election is conceded. Mayor Black has announced that criminal proceedings, charging fraud, will be instituted against Dalzell at once.

In the Twenty-Eight district, former Congressman Sibley defeated Nelson P. Wheeler by a small majority. Jesse L. Hartman defeated former Senator Jacob C. Stineman in the Blair district by 31,800 plurality. In the Twenty-First, former Senator Lewis Emery was defeated for the Republican renomination by Charles E. Patton. In the Twenty-Ninth, Congressman Graham was defeated for the Republican nomination by Stephen G. Porter, who had the support of the state organization. All the present seven Democratic congressmen were renominated, and their election is assured.

Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer defeated J. Davis Brodhead for the Democratic nomination in the Northampton-Carbon-Pike-Monroe district. The fight was a hard one.

DALZELL MAY LOSE SEAT

Ex-Mayor of McKeesport Black Claims Victory in Election.

Dalzell's Manager, Coleman, States His Candidate Will Win by About 300 Votes.

Pittsburg, June 6—There is still a doubt whether Hon. John Dalzell will be returned to the next congress. Ex-Mayor Robert J. Black of McKeesport, who opposed Dalzell in the Thirteenth Pennsylvania, claims victory and says the returns of this morning will prove his case. Dalzell's manager, William G. Coleman, claimed his candidate would win by 300 votes.

Dalzell's own manager is accused by Republicans of having "knifed" James Clarke, candidate for state senator and a strong Dalzell supporter. It is alleged they traded him for Dalzell support in order to advance Dalzell.

COMMENCEMENT

EXERCISES HELD AT OPERA HOUSE, THURSDAY JUNE 9.

The commencement exercises of last evening were among the best given in Tecumseh and we congratulate Tecumseh High School on the large class and the success they have attained. We wish we might give each number in full but space forbids. We will say however that it would be a hard matter to decide on the superior merits of any for all were at their best. Success to the class of 1910.

The salutatory by Miss Josephine Hayden was given in a very pleasing manner. We quote from it as best we can.

Here we are, the class of 1910, who take much pride in bidding you welcome to these commencement exercises, yet it seems rather strange that under cover of the name commencement, we should be here performing the duties connected with that office for the first usage of the word commencement was construed as "a reception given by the public to the graduates" however with the growth of the idea of commencement it has been shifted until now we one and all think of it as a reception given to the public at large by the graduates.

Graduation is the goal toward which we have been pushing for the last 12 years. Although when we first started it seemed as if centuries would have to pass before this glorious joyful day should come to us, yet now as we look back upon our school life it seems but a week ago that slate in hand, we trudged along to our first days of school and but a day ago when feeling very green indeed and most humble under the glances of our superiors the "Seniors" we entered High School.

Since nowadays education is so general and can easily be obtained by all in fact is compulsory, it is rather difficult for us to realize the great advantages we have enjoyed by reason of having such a system of public schools until we look back upon the educational disadvantages of our forefathers.

We wish we might follow the young lady through her most interesting essay but space forbids. We will give her closing remarks and pass on to our young poet.

"Tonight we feel tnat we have attained the happiest moment of lives so far and with your help we hope to make the memory one of the happiest and most joyful of our whole lives, so for the time being just cast aside your worldly care and come with us while we glance back over the years which have passed with history, entertain ourselves with the present or take bold peeps into the future soon to be revealed to us. Again the Class of 1910 salutes you and bids you welcome."

Our young poet and his friends sailed over the briny deep and traveled in foreign countries until they came to Troy famed in song and story Here Cassandra the daughter of King Prian and goddess of prophecy appeared and claimed his attention and to his pleading predicted the future of his friends as follows:

"Sir, you shall recross the ocean and resail the mighty sea,
And dwell once more in America, the home of the noble free.
In years to come you'll travel and view that majestic land,
You'll scan the country up and down from east to western strand.
Down in old New York state you'll find a thriving town,
Whose beauty and whose business makes the village great renoun.
Within this peaceful little hamlet
dwells an energetic man,
As great as Time has ever known since Time his rounds began.
He's placed himself in prominence,
his name has gone afar,
For he mingles with the civil law and pleads from o'er the bar.
One must search both far and wide for talent to excell
The man, you'll love and honor then,
as now, your president Snell.
In this same division of that united land,
You'll sail up the Hudson—most picturesque and grand.
As you're sailing up the river your desires shall be joint And set upon the viewing of your academy—West Point.
There you'll see the boys in training as the captains put them thru
And the order's mighty strict that the captains bring them to.
They present a fine appearance as they march across the green,
With a dignified demeanor and a general stately mien.
One company will surpass the rest,
although not quite as large
It's noted for its splendor, with Captain Lenardson in charge.
You shall visit at Yale college and shall pass through halls of art,
Where skill from [illegible] part.
As you gaze upon the paintings which adorn this classic wall
You'll cast your eyes upon one picture which far excels them all.
True to life and true to nature, by unnatural things untainted
For by Christine Corkins, noted artist was this famous picture painted
In another eastern city as you wander down the street, Gathered around a willow stump a crowd of people you shall meet.
Here standing high upon this stump,
a woman you'll behold,
Annie Ferguson, who's denouncing in a manner brave and bold Woman suffrage, and she pleads in her usual stunning note
Take us back to years ago, before these women came to vote.
When the women washed the dishes and refused to even mix
Up with the ruling of the land and kept out of politics.
During this age of woman's ruling a new system comes to light
Known as the "air system," far excelling any other yet in sight.
You must have your own air ticket stating how much air you use Paying just as much per hundred as the company may choose.
Weekly you have your ticket punched and if you fail to have it done,
The company'll disconnect you, then your earthly race is run.
So loafing at the corner, dressed in uniform of blue
You'll find "Stub" Rogers punching tickets in 1932.
So you'll travel onward and leave the empire state behind
And in Washington D. C. lively doings you will find.
As you're taking in the city and walking down the street
By the capitol, an old friend at this juncture you shall meet.
Senator Pennington, all exhausted from a thirty hour speech,
Proving by his exhortation that a good thing's not a "peach."
Down in Pennsylvania at a village in a dell
You'll spend a couple of days at the Auburnian hotel.
While sitting in the office and waiting there one day
You'll hear the land lady as she passes by you say,
'I'm from Michigan, Lenawee county,
Macon was my native town,
Formerly Miss Camburn, now Mrs
it is written down.'
While still waiting at this office you'll take a paper from the desk
Filled with flashy head lines written in a style grotesque.
You shall read the amusement column and the program pictured bright,
And it shall be your heart's desire to attend the theater that night.
For LaBrownski's minstrels will be present with their usual repertoire
Under the management of Elmer
Brown of whom you've heard before.
And also his "special attraction, who always makes the greatest hit,
His lady comedian, "Pete" Service is said to be just "it."
One evening as you're sailing upward through the azure air
In your aeroplane, little thinking of the danger lurking there,
There shall appear in the darkness
as a mighty ball of fire
Something coming toward you yet you will keep on sailing higher.
And soon the light approaches and shall blind your eager eyes
Till it stops in space beside you and fills you with surprise.
It will be your friend Burdett with his newly invented light,
Used to avoid collisions while sailing upward through the night.
You shall travel westward with intentions for the coast
But shall also visit at the mountains or your mission should be lost
As you go along the mountains above a village in a vale,
You shall pass a little schoolhouse where the scholars weep and wail
From the floggings of the teacher, who applies the stringent rule
And you'll know the teacher, Minnie Smith,
Out in California your curiosity shall be fed
By seeing sights and scenes of which you have only read.
You'll wander through the orange groves and taste the juicy fruit,
He whose taste is then unsatisfied, is mighty hard to suit.
The best grove that you shall see,
that stands in its class alone,
Will be the one that Glen Stewart shall in this region own.
Near Mr. Stewart's orange grove another little hamlet stands,
Of about three hundred people and much attention now demands.
As you reach this little village many people of the place
Will be assembled at the corner as to watch a Marathon race.
They'll be laughing and much jesting without a single scowl or frown, Several fellows will be singing 'When our Reuben comes to town.'
As you approach the circle and cast a glance in passing by
You shall behold within their midst a green appearing guy.
Rather tall and rather awkward, dressed in clothes to match that style,
Your ambition is to know him after watching him awhile.
You'll soon make inquiry feeling that you must vim
An answer, and some one replies
'Thats Mr. Hartzog—Justin.'
As you're coming back through Kansas you shall linger a few days
On a business sort of mission, a little money there to raise.
As you're stopping there in Kansas
you shall be privileged to hear
A thrilling address by Florence Linton on "the effects of drinking beer."
She'll place the facts before you as to what strong drink will do
A credit to her office—president of the national W. C. T. U.
When the inspiring address is finished and applause has died away,
You shall approach the rostrum and without much delay,
Hold a friendly chat with Florence
about the many friends of yore,
And she will then inform what you have heard before,
That Ruby Hall is still declaring as in the days gone by Let me be an old maid forever, an old maid let me die!'
And Ruby's still unmarried and considers single life "immense"
Yet she's an antiquarian and thinks
Perry's records quite intense.
Out in Racine, Wisconsin, you shall be ushered in
The office of a wealthy man, who heretofore has been A resident of Britton—George Exelby shall be,
President of the Mitchell automobile works in 1933.
As you're sitting in his office and conversing with this friend, George will proudly tell you and will highly recommend Frank Lusty's good position, for he has just been sent
By a gas company to Europe and just before he went
He received a raise of salary and is simply doing fine,
With hopes of soon investing in a thriving copper mine.
You shall visit at a high school in a
Indiana town,
And shall wait at the office for the superintendent to come down.
Soon a woman's form approaches in a manner independent,
And you'll recognize Iva Boyd as the lady superintendent.
As you're taken the department of Miss Boyd's famous school You'll know another teacher, who in decision wields the rule.
Marion Rosacrans teacher in a kindergarten room, Drilling there the infantry for the battles yet to come.
While riding on the railroad you'll sit beside a clothing man,
Who'll look as quiet and as sober as church deacons ever can.
He'll bear marks of ill treatment of the Rip VanWinkle type,
Who loved to ponder idly while puffing at his pipe.
Such will be Ethel Rogers husband a pitiful looking sight,
Who'll be hen-pecked, woman-pecked and Ethel-pecked, morning, noon and night.
As you're stopping at Chicago one evening you'll attend
The Grand Opera, with an old Chicago friend.
You'll give your whole attention as in the presence of a king
As you hear the Prima Donna, Josephine M. Hayden sing.
In the Buckeye state you'll travel and shall see an attractive sign
Adorning an office window; partly covered with a vine.
You shall approach the building in order that you may see
The sign, which may surprise you—
Blanche Keyser's an M. D.
Soon you'll start back for Michigan your grand and native state
From whose realms many of your classmates would never emigrate.
About a Southern Michigan city you shall wander several days,
A place that beats the average city in forty different ways.
More beautiful than many and with a population vaster,
In this pleasant city Rev. F. P. Allen is the pastor
Of the first Baptist church, and goes in and out before
His people, and dwells in homelike cottage beside the church's door.
You will call on Rev. Allen and there hold a friendly chat,
Within the preachers's library and shall soon be looking at A book of famous poems, nor will you be ashamed to confess
The author an old friend of yours,
"Molly" Scarlett, the poetess.
Mr. Allen will then inform you that on the following night
[illegible] that land of dawning light,
Will speak at his church, and remembering her from a former day,
You shall decide upon reflection, that you hadn't better stay.
So going back to Onsted you'll view that town again,
And call on the banker's wife who was Miss Iva Kane.
She'll run a Ford Model T and live
on Michigan avenue,
Now and then she'll sing a song and play a tune or two.
Then you'll go back to Tecumseh,
that great old Indian town,
And find many of your old time friends in this hamlet settled down
You shall see the Satterthwaite firm, but in that day instead
Of Bros. of that business institution
Perry C. shall be the head.
But best of all the jokes you will have heard as yet,
Is that Ella Titus then will run the Royal Nickelet.
As you pass on down the street you shall be inspired to stop,
And read the sign "Misses Teachout

God bless the laboring men! Those men who work and toil,
Who earn their bread by honest sweat who plow and till the soil.
For Vic. Gillespie and Jess Scudder city life will have no charms.
But near Tecumseh you find them working hard upon their farms.
Over at Ann Arbor, to former intentions quite averse, You'll find Miss Wylma Wood serving humanity as a nurse.
Of your future I can not say, and then the maid arose
And disappeared and Cassandra's prophecy abruptly reached its close

We regret that we did not have time and space for more of the numbers of the program. We knew each one of the class was anxious to know their fate in the future so we have given the whole prophecy. The whole evening was delightful and the public cannot fail to be satisfied. The best wishes of all go with the class of 1910.

CLOSE CALL

Christine the baby daughter of R. V. Wilson and wife came near losing her life Wednesday by poisoning. The Doctor han left some tablets for the Gaandmother who lives with them, charging her to keep them out of the reach of the children. But babies are busybodies and the little one got to the sideboard where they were left and got some of them. The mother found her in mischief and closed the supboard not knowing what she had done and the child went out of doors to play. A little later Mrs. Wilson saw her making strange motions and later she fell to the ground. When she reached her she was stiff with set teeth, and closed eye.. The Dr. was summoned and worked over her sever al hours before relief came. Mr. Wilson was at Sand Lake at work. The Fitzsimmons car was sent for him and in a little over an hour they returned About 8 o'clock as Mr. Wilson sat with the child in his arms she awakened as from sleep and began playing Since then she has seemed all right.

Applies as well to our physical state as to material things. C. J. Budlong, Washington, R. I., realized his condition and took warning before it was too late. He says: "I suffered severely from kidney trouble, the disease being hereditary in our family. I have taken four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy, and now consider myself thoroughly cured. This should be a warning to all not to neglect taking Foley's Kidney Remedy until it is too late." Sold by all druggists.

Scared Into Sound Health.

Mr. B. F. Kelley, Springfield, Ill., writes: "A year ago I began to be troubled with my kidneys and bladder which grew worse until I became alarmed at my condition. I suffered also with dull heavy headaches and the action of my bladder was annoying and painful. I read of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them a few weeks the headaches left me, the action of my bladder was again normal and I was free of all distress." Sold by all druggists.

TOO MUCH ENGAGED

Proposed to Four Women and Fled to Avoid Consequences.

By WALTER TOWNE MATHEUS.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

Dick Hammond was the most popular man in his class at college. Every body loved him, both lads and girls. There are young fellows and girls, for that matter, who achieve social prominence by treating every one in their select circle with a cultivated cordiality. Dick Hammond treated every one, irrespective of station, with a sincere regard. His heart was a spring from which bubbled a perennial stream of love for all mankind.

If this love manad had been only for men it would not have resulted unfortunately for Dick. The trouble was that the liquid was not agreeable to women as well. While it was water for the former, it was wine for the latter. And it was noticeable that when one of the fair sex put the cup to her lips she must needs drain it to the very dregs, call for more and proceed to get tipsy. Nor would this have been so bad had the bottle belonged to her alone. Dick was not only ready to keep filling her glass, but that of any other woman who desired to drink.

And so it came about that Dick Hammond awoke one morning to the fact that the night before he had proposed to the third girl within two months and had been accepted by every one. The situation gave him no course whatever. Not that he would have for the world injured any one of these sensitive creatures, not that he would willfully do a dishonorable act. Loving them all, he considered it the most natural thing in the world that he should tell them so, and to tell them so without asking them to be his wife—his wives, rather—would have been an insult.

These three graces were Agnes Allen, Lillian Cook and Theodora Richards. He had told each and every one of them that he had never loved before and would never love another. Moreover, it did not occur to him that he was telling an untruth. Was it an untruth? Was it not rather that same unbroken stream which had been flowing ever since he could remember? And were not these girls the bubbles floating on its surface?

His engagement with Miss Allen having lasted the longest, he was the least disposed to spend his surplus time in her company. Miss Cook came next both as to the interval since they had plighted their troth and in receiving her lover's attention. Miss Richards, to whom he had become engaged last, was undeniably his favorite.

These three young ladies undertook to land their catch on or about the same time. One morning he received a note from Miss Allen stating that she had heard things to induce her to believe that he had been trifling with her. The next day Miss Cook's mother called upon him and asked him when it would be convenient for him to marry her daughter. The same evening, meeting Miss Richards at a ball, she cut him dead.

This settled the matter. Finding himself compelled to choose between the three, he chose the one who had cut him. He called upon her and made a solemn contract with her that she should be the real and only Mrs. Hammond, agreeing to write a note to each of her rivals stating this fact and that all was over between him and them. Miss Richards took the notes and dropped them in the mail.

Within a few days Mr. Hammond received a communication from Miss Allen and another from Miss Cook, each stating that if he persisted in his dishonorable course she would sue him for breach of promise. Hammond inclosed the notes to his fiancee with the indorsement on the back: "What am I to do? If I marry you these girls will sue me for breach of promise." The notes came back indorsed, "If you don't marry me I will sue you for breach of promise."

Here was a dilemma.

It may be supposed that so serious a condition of affairs might have caused Mr. Hammond some concern. Not so. His pure spirit, intrenched behind a good conscience—he loved them all—was unruffled. He did not even trouble himself how he was to escape, figuratively speaking, this gigantic pair of pincers that were closing to crush him. Nevertheless a man in or out of trouble needs woman's sympathy. The poor fellow was engaged to three girls, and there was not among the three one to whom he could go for comfort or advice. What was more natural than that he should choose a fourth into whose ears he could pour his troubles?

Caroline Carr was the person who heard the story and listened to it with heartfelt sympathy. With moistened eyes she permitted her shoulder to sink against his, and somehow their hands met. Then she looked up at him, her compassionate heart going out to him through her melting orbs. He kissed her.

And so it was that Hammond, who had called on a girl for sympathy in his complication with three girls, left her engaged to another—herself.

When one awakens after a good night's sleep the brain is usually clearer than at any other time of day. Dick Hammond, opening his eyes on this morning after he had become engaged to the fourth girl, saw at last that something must be done. He lay abed till noon thinking out a plan. The cobwebs of his intellect were swept away, and he formed a plan.

During the afternoon he called together three of his male chums, informed them of his complication and asked them to help him out of it. Not one of them but would have plucked out his heart and roasted it over a fire of coals for Dick, but there was none of them capable of suggesting how this was to be effected. And here came in the result of Dick's thought while being in bed during the antemeridian hours. He suggested that each one of his friends take one of the girls and by his attentions extract, like a plaster, the inflammation of her heart.

The proposition was listened to with respectful attention by the chums, but excited no enthusiasm. Each man thought of Aesop's fable of the fox who, having lost his tail, endeavored to persuade the other foxes to cut off theirs. Presently the spokesman said:

"Dick, dear boy, lovemaking is so natural to you and you find it so easy to impress the feminine heart that you think it would be equally easy for us. You are the candle about which the moths flutter, and it would require a more vivid light to draw them away. None of us is in lovemaking more brilliant than you—indeed, compared with you in this respect we are as a glowworm beside a searchlight. We would gladly help you, but it is impossible to do it on your plan. We would advise you, however, not to complicate matters further by engaging to marry any more girls."

Following this advice, Dick Hammond resolutely devoted himself to his last fiancee to the exclusion of all others. One day one of his three chums came to him and warned him that his first three fiancees were preparing to serve papers upon him in a suit for breach of promise. Dick asked if his marriage with the fourth lady would settle the matter. He was informed that it probably would. None of the ladies were acting with the intention of extorting money, but from a desire to prevent a rival from getting the better of her.

The next day Dick was informed that the papers were all to be served at once. Jumping into his automobile, he drove to Miss Carr's house, and the couple soon after came out, entered the auto, and Dick, who drove it, turned it toward the state line.

Now, it was fifty miles to the state line, but Dick, once beyond the city limits, saw no necessity for hurry. On passing a garage he saw the three friends whom he had asked to help him loitering there as if waiting for something. They all doffed their hats, and one of them shouted:

"Plenty of time; papers not yet out."

So Dick lagged, devoting himself to his lovely companion. Presently, looking back, he saw an auto far in the distance coming at full speed. He turned on more power and easily kept good lead.

Passing a crossroad, he saw another auto within a hundred yards of him. The driver was muffled and wore goggles concealing his features. A girl sat beside him, and Dick's blood ran cold on recognizing Miss Allen. She shook her fist at him, and he instinctively turned on more power, shooting onward like an arrow.

Presently, looking back, he saw that he was followed by three autos at different distances. Great heavens! Were all of his first three fiancees pursuing him?

All the power of which the machine was possessed was now on, and the machine fairly flew along the road. Dick turned now, and again saw that the machine containing Miss Allen was in the lead of the pursuing machines. He thought that if any of them got him she at least had the best right.

The chase was a short one so far as time was concerned, for the distance was traversed within an hour, and when Dick hove up to a hotel just across the state border line the three pursuing autos were close upon him. He and his betrothed at last stood on the hotel porch, and three other couples, alighting from their autos, joined them. Dick's hair stood on end. There were his three deserted fiancees, and with each one was one of the chums he had made his confidant.

"W-h-a-t did you chumps give me away for?" he stammered.

"This isn't a give away," said Miss Allen. "It's a wedding party. We girls are determined that you shall be married so that you can't engage yourself to any more of us."

So Dick Hammond was at last married, and a wedding party of his friends and jilted girls escorted him and his bride back to the city.

Once when Congressman J. Adam Bede, of Minnesota, was building a partition in his printing office, with sleeves rolled up and a saw in one hand, a young college lad appeared in the role of a full-fledged book agent. He set out to explain his mission and the nature of his book to Mr. Bede, who said, without raising his eyes from his work:

"Don't bother about the name and contents—what's the price of the book?"

"Three dollars," said the young agent, rising to the occasion, but don't you wish to look it over and see—"

"No, I don't want to look it over, not on your life," said Adam. "You are in college?"

"Yes."

"Trying to work your way through?"

"Yes, Mr. Bede."

"Well, I did the same. My cashier will give you an order for the three dollars on any store for anything you may need—then you sell it and get real cash—I can't. Go chase others while the day is yet young."

A Useless Implement.

It is not always safe to meddle with the unfamiliar. Mr. James Russell, in "Reminiscences of Yarrow," gives the following story as illustrating the simplicity of the Scotch farmers of the vicinity.

A well-to-do tenant bought a barometer at a public sale. Soon after the minister asked him how he liked it.

"Not at all," returned the honest farmer. "It's no the thing."

"In what way is it not the thing?"

"Well," replied the worthy parishioner, more at home with sheep than science. "It was nae casting up sic weather as I wad have liked. So, thinking there was something wrong, I took it doon and examined it, outside and in.

"At last I discovered a lang glass tube wi' a hole in the end o' it. Niver dooting that was the matter, I stopped up the hole. But if it did ill before, it did naething at all after that!"—Youth's Companion.

Futile Work.

Colonel Asa Gould Humphreys, at a veterans' banquet in Duluth, condemned the abolition of the canteen.

"Those temperance ladies who caused the canteen's abolition have accomplished," said the veteran "what? Only this: The drinking soldier now drinks, instead of the mild and pure beverage supplied by the orderly canteen rank, fiery stuff in demoralizing places.

"That is what these ladies have accomplished. They wanted to do the soldier good. But, in their ignorance, they worked as vainly as old Mrs. Crowe, of Salem.

Mrs. Crowe, at the height of the war, astonished my colonel by sending him a barrel of pebbles.

"'I have read,' she wrote, 'that a pebble held in the mouth is a splendid remedy for thirst. Will you please accept my dear colonel, this barrel for the use of the troops at the front?'—Washington Star.

first, because it is a necessity—that is the rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

¶ It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

LECTURE AT M. E. CHURCH

Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane lectured to a good audience in the Methodist church Wednesday evening. Her subject being "Town Improvement" she gave Tecumseh citizens much practical advice in regard to beautifying school buildings and grounds, parks and all open spaces.

Mrs. Crane had during the afternoon examined the central school building and thought it did not compare well with the pleasant and commodious residences. We send our children to a poorly lighted school room, compel them to sit for hours in seats much to small and then wonder why they have weak eyes and curvature of the spine. Mrs. Crane urged upon us the necessity of knowing that our dairys were kept clean and the milk supply pure. She asked that we make an effort for the extermination of the flys which spread filth and disease germs, She spoke of our beautiful library and suggested that we have a children's Reading Room in the building. She recommended that waste paper cans be put throughout the streets at frequent intervals and that the childreh be taught to "tidy up" and make beautiful our yards. Mrs. Crane gave the Civic and Town Improvement society many suggestions and all felt that they had been greatly benefited by her talk.

AROUND TOWN

We understand that the Barrett Bros. have changed their plans somewhat and the office will be located in the front part of the Buffet with a passage on the east side leading to the dinning room. SOLD OUT

ANTHONY FENCE COMPANY

When Mr. Anthony, the H. Brewer Co. and Mr. Fitzimmons jointly launched the Anthony Fence Company some nine or ten years ago, nether they, nor Tecumseh generally, believed that in a compartively short time, the concern would attract the attention of, and be absorbed by a corporation of world wide importance but such is now the case.

The tendency in the fence busiuess as in every other of the big industrial lines, is toward concentration, and the big concerns with the ore and the wire mills back of them will eventually control the situation to the detriment of the smaller manufacturers.

Realizing this the Anthony Directors, all local men of prominence, have been carefully studying the situation, and later, thru Messrs Fitzsimmons and Mead, negotiated the profitable sale of the entire company.

The deal is for cash, and as soon as the legal formalaties are completed each stock holder will receive a handsome profit upon his investment, but, best of all, altho only after the most persistent and insistent effort by the local officials, the new owners have decided to retain the factory in Tecumseh and to operate it in a much larger way than ever before.

This does not mean that the manufacture of Anthony fence will be confined solely to Tecumsed, for it will be built and sent to all parts of this and other countries, but it does mean bigger and better things for industrial Tecumseh.

This is unquestionably the largest cash transaction ever concluded in Lenawee Country, and the new owners are to be congratulated npon the acquirement of so valuable a property while we cannot but be proud that Tecumseh business men, aided by the late Captain C. R. Miller, have proven so commercially competent.

The moral is obvious; "Put your money in home industries and then boost them."

ALMA COLLEGE

By defeating Kalamazoo in the morning and Olivet in the afternoon last Saturday at Kalamazoo, the Maroon Sox captured the intercollegiate championship of this state. This makes the third time that Alma has tucked away the state championship. The diminutive Duncanson has led his warriors a merry pace, having not lost a single intercollegiate game. Reckoned on the percentage basis Alma also tops the list having a percent age of 1000.

Hole pitched the Kazoo game, and with excellent backing by the team and the heavy hitting of Sandy Duncanson and Billy Burke, shut the celery eaters out by a snug score of 3 to 0

Albion and Olivet clashed early in the afternoon, Olivet winning by a narrow margin. This left Alma and Olivet to fight the championship ont. Sandy pitched for the Presbyterians, axcept for a weakening in the second inning, pitched a most remarkable game.

With two men out Sandy lifted a clean two bagger into conter field. Burke followed with another two bagger, allowing Sandy to score. The next man up struck out, and Duncanson was forced to enter the box after his swift and strenuous circling of the bases. By hitting at the right time Alma was able to score twice to Olivet's once. Thus the Maroon Sox won the state championship from the Congregationalists by the margin of one point.

The results of the intercollegiate track meet, held last Friday at Kalamazoo, were somewhat of a dissapointment to Alma students. A soggy clay track in the worst possible condition placed our runners at a great disadvantage. So bad, in fact, was the track that our star sprinter, Fleety McComb, flatly refused to run the hundred yard dash. Fleety still holds the intercollegiate record, having run the dash in nearly a second less time. Keofgen captured first in the pole vault and second in both the high and broad jump, losing ont by only a few inches. Big Ox Edgerton took second with the shot and bids well to get first next year. Boyd entered the mile but having to swim through over seven rods of mnd and water lost out. Fleety captured second in 440, third in the 220 and third in the discuse.

Zeta Sigma literary society elected her officers for the following school term. They are: President, Leslie Koefgen; vice-president, Therom Chapel; secretary, Leon Lauderbach; treasurer, Chalmers Montieth; first critic, Archibald Thompson; second critic, Rob Cook and janitor Robert McCloy.

BANISH CATARRH

Breathe Hyomei for Two Minutes and Stuffed Up Head Will Vanish

If you want to get relief from catarrh, cold in the head or from an irritating cough in the shortest time breathe Hyomei (pronounce it High-o-me).

It will clean out your head in two minutes and allow you to breathe freely awake or asleep.

Hyomei will cure a cold in one day, it will relieve you of disgusting snuffles, hawking, spitting and offensive breath in a week.

Hyomei is made chiefly from eucalyptol, a soothing, healing, germ killing antiseptic, that comes from the eucalyptus forests of inland Australia where catarrh, asthma and consumption were never known to exist.

Hyomei is pleasant and easy to breathe. Just pour a few drops into the hard rubber inhaler, use as directed and cure is almost certain.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler and one bottle of Hyomei, costs only $1.00 at druggists everywhere and at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store, Tecumseh. If you already own an inhaler you can get an extra bottle of Hyomei at druggists for only 50c.

PLANTS HAVE A PERSONALITY

And Are as Capricious as Women and Children, Says the Luther Burbank of Russia.

Do I believe in the vegetable soul? I most assuredly do, and hold that plants even as men and women, live a natural life; have their appetites, needs, consciences and idiosyncrasies; look for sympathy from those who tend them, and, in a way, are as capricious as women or children, and all the more so in proportion as one neglects to humor them. It has passed for currency in the philosophy of the agricultural world hitherto that plants require only the nomal food of water and suitable temperature. Your average farmer disdains to notice anything that suggests pampering the growth of the field or the orchard, but modern scientific gardeners are beginning to realize that plants are possessed of a will of their own, and that we must study their wishes if we would have them do as we should like.

If you study the slimy mushroom, for example, you will find that its body (the nucleus or plasmodium—is composed of a semiliquid protoplasm of a golden yellow tinge. Now, although these mushrooms belong to the vegetable kingdom, they are able nevertheless to move about, and their movements correspond to their struggle for existence. Put the plasmodium on a piece of wet paper and you will see it creep away once the paper begins to get dry. I have seen one of them climb up on a piece of wood which was covered with gelatine, using a kind of minute tentacles it is provided with, in order to effect this. During the period of the formation of follicles, the plasmodium, on the contrary, seeks the dry places showing that it possesses consciousness of its personal life. To test its sensitiveness, just dip one end of a piece of paper in a glass of water and watch how the fungus will gradually work its way to or from the damp spot, according to the season. If the water is salt, it will visibly scurry away from the saline matter, which it does not like.

As regards plants the same phenomena practically happen, and in my experience I have found plants to be more sensitive to light and temperature than most animals. Many plants, for instance, turn to the sun in the daytime and on its setting turn to the East to await its rising. Many flowers close up their petals on dark days. Others spend waking nights, and sleep during the day, as for example, the oenothera or evening primrose, some species of which change their color from white in the morning to red in the evening. Among the dicotyledons, some of them so arrange their petals by night as to look as if they were dead. Among certain kinds of beans there is every evidence that they sleep while on the stalk. Again there are plants which protect themselves against the extreme heat of the sun by bringing their leaves into such position that the rays fall parallelwise upon them, never perpendicularly.

Since Prof. Dunstan discovered the carniverous plant, the Dionea muscipula on Lake Nicaragua, some 40 others exhibiting a similar propensity have been discovered. In all cases it is quite evident that as soon as the process of digestion is completed the plant sets its traps anew, proving its consciousness of having performed the digestive function. In America the common Utricularia at one time produced so much havoc among stream fish that Prof. Cohn, of Breslau, was asked to investigate. The professor was instrumental in showing that the Utricularia was the cause of the wholesale destruction of the fish, and when it was radically destroyed the rivers abounded again with fish. If you will look at the formation of the Dionea muscipula you will note that the extremity of its leaves is divided into two parts, which close by folding one over the other, just like the two palms of one's hands, or as the shells of the oyster. The movement of imprisoning the insect once effected, the process of digestion begins, a species of saliva, like human gastric juice, coming into play. The victim is dissolved in this juice. If you put a splinter of wood on the Dionea's leaves it will refuse to eat, although it will gladly take a morsel of the white of an egg or a scrap of meat.

Accordingly, and in keeping with my firm belief that plants possess a soul—the anima vegetalis of Aristotle—I treat all my plants according to their aptitudes, their tastes, their needs, and am more than repaid for the consideration I show them by the results I obtain. The contradictions we see in the agricultural, the fruit and the vegetable world, where often a superior climate produces an inferior result, shows that the plant world thrives only accordingly as it is satisfied with the treatment it receives. The whole thing for which it lives being the seed, it is quite clear that it must be well nourished if it is to reproduce itself with any degree of good will. As for the beneficent results which, I personally obtained by studying the personality of my cereals, fruits and vegetables, I may say that I cut the average expenses and wastes in half; I double my harvests; I obtain a far better quality in grain and seed.—New York World.

Who Taught Her Caution?

Isabel, aged four, was talking to an imaginary friend over the telephone, when her mother heard her say, "Wait a minute, Rocksy, my mother is right here listening to all you say, and my mother is in the room too; don't tell me about it now."—The Delineator.

A Sympathetic Critic.

The minister was resting after the morning service, when his small son asked him sympathetically, "Does it make you tired to preach, papa?" "Yes, my son." "Well, it makes me tired, too, to hear you, papa."—The Delineator.

Purely Imaginary.

Imagine the thrill of joy that will run through the veins of our ex-President when he sees that black-maned lion! Imagine the thrill of terror that will paralyze the lion when he sees those teeth!—Boston Globe.

More Useful Stunt.

A ten-million-dollar prize for the man who can figure the sugar schedule so all the consumers can understand it would be better than a message to Mars at this time.—Washington Post.

Free Liver Remedy

It is well to stop a physical ailment at the first signs of its approach, and that is especially true of liver trouble, which can eventually give rise to so many serious complications. Many have liver trouble and imagine it is indigestion, and hence take the wrong remedy.

When the liver does not store up sufficient gastric juices it becomes sluggish, and in this way disturbs the stomach and bowels, with which it is supposed to work in harmony. Then comes the sallow complexion, the pimply face, the dull pain in the forehead, the thinning of the blood, etc. A very quick and sensible way to stop the trouble as well as to cure it is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which contains ingredients especially intended to promote the activity of the liver.

Among the many thousands who have written the doctor about the results achieved with his remedy, and who are glad to make the facts public so that others can help themselves, are Mr. Jas. Kennedy, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. S. A. La Rue of Smith's Grove, Ky., and many others.

These, like thousands of others, started the use of Syrup Pepsin with a sample. If you will send your name and address you can also obtain a free trial bottle. This will prove to you that liver trouble is promptly cured with this remedy or money will be refunded. Having tried it you can then buy it in the regular way of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and the latter is sufficient for an entire family.

This remedy is a vast improvement over cathartic tablets and salts, which only do good for the time being. Syrup Pepsin is permanent in its results. Is pleasant to take and does not gripe. It is especially good for all those who cannot stand a violent purgative.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Safe to Save the Penny.

On Jimmie's birthday his mother gave him a knife. A little friend told him that he ought to give his mother a penny so that it would not cut their friendship, whereupon Jimmie replied, "It won't cut anything else, so I guess it won't cut our friendship."—The Delineator.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Tecumseh People Know How to Save It

Many Tecumseh people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Tecumseh citizen's recommendation.

William W. Shurtz, Kilbuck street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for ten years and have received such good results that I gladly recommend them. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are not doing their work properly, I procure a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and through their use I am promptly relieved."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

"No Smoking Allowed."

There is an iron-clad rule that there shall be no smoking in the cabins of the ferryboats which ply between this city and Camden.

The cabin was full today on one of the trips, and nearly every person on the men's side was smoking. The deckhand came through, as was his duty, and called out:

"No smoking allowed in this cabin."

No one stopped.

The deckhand came through again. "No smoking allowed in this cabin!" he called in stentorian tones.

The men continued to smoke, and the deckhand made a third trip.

"Say," called a passenger, after the third trip, "nobody's stopped smoking. Why don't you make 'em stop?"

"Huh," growled the deckhand, "that's none of my business. I did my duty when I told 'em not to smoke. Stopping is up to 'em. It ain't my funeral."

With that the waters of the Delaware received a large deposit of tobacco, as the deckhand went on his way.—Philadelphia Times.

Investing His Profits.

"What are you going to do with the money you get for your crop this year?"

"I guess I'll git one o' these here centaurs I read about in a book to run the new carriage I bought last year."

"Why, a centaur is an imaginary creature."

"Well, this is an imaginary carriage."—Washington Star.

Quite Insulting.

Sir John Millais tells this story on himself. He was down by the banks of the Tay, painting in the rushes of his famous landscape, "Chill October," which has thrilled us all with the ineffable sadness and mystery of the dying summer. He worked on so steadily that he failed to observe a watcher, until a voice said: "Eh, mon, did ye ever try photography?"

"No," said the artist, "I never have."

"It's a deal quicker, quoth his friendly critic, eyeing the picture doubtfully.

Millais was not flattered, so he waited a minute before replying. "I dare say it is." His lack of enthusiasm displeased the Scot, who took another look and then marched off with the Parthian shot:

"Ay, and photography's a muckle sight mair like the place, too."—Everybody's Magazine.

Immutable.

The new Rip Van Winkle had offered himself up on the altar of science. When Prof. Jigglesworth asked for volunteers to test his Live Forever Sleep Elixer, the new Rip was the first man to drink the dope.

He awoke 200 years later.

"Of course there have been many changes on earth," he said as soon as his stiffened tongue could be brought under control.

"Many," they answered.

He suddenly smiled.

"I'll bet there's one thing that hasn't been changed," he said.

"What's that?" they asked him.

"The tariff!" he shouted.

They assured him it was still intact and he sighed contentedly and resumed his nap.

Different.

Gifted Lawyer—"And furthermore, your Honor, it is a well-known principle that my client's money cannot be taken from him without due process of law, and—"

Client—"How about that hundred you got from me?"

Gifted Lawyer—"Just a moment, your Honor, while I explain to my client why the rule does not apply in all cases."

Made Her Think.

"I am reading ancient history."

"You are Miss Tinkers?"

"Yes, it's a splendid pastime. It actually makes one think."

"And what has it made you think."

"Well, I've been wondering and wondering what the ladies of ancient Rome did to amuse themselves in those awful days before bridge parties and motoring."

Great Improvement.

Inquirer—"Are you having much success in elevating the heathen in your territory, doctor?"

Missionary—"Oh, my, yes; they are drinking much better whisky than a year ago."

Millinery Failure.

Belle—"Do you think Madame De Puton's hats are fetching?"

Maud—"I should say not. I've been wearing them for two years, and they haven't fetched anyone yet."

Retaliation.

Passenger—"You didn't ring up my fare, conductor."

Conductor—"No, nor I won't until I find whether the nickel you gave me is a good one."

One Good Feature.

"I am not adroit. Each day I do something that makes me worry."

"That's bad."

"Well, each new worry makes me forget the worry of yesterday. It might be worse."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Make Up for Lost Time.

Gunner—"This scientific paper states that it is so cold up around the north pole that the explorers are afraid to open their mouths. Some of them don't speak a word in a week."

Guyer—"Oh, well, they make up for it when they come back and start on their lecture tours."

Touchy.

Harker—"They say old Col. Beak will fight at the drop of a hat."

Barker—"You bet he will. Somebody carelessly dropped the sharp edge of a big 'Merry Widow' on his gouty foot and he wanted to whip the whole neighborhood."

A Few Suggestions.

"The steamship people complain that they have exhausted all the names ending 'ic'."

"Nonsense. There's the Gastric, the Dyspeptic, and they might launch a nice family vessel and call it the Paregoric."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Killing Time.

Old Father Time looked "all in."

"Why is it you always look so bad in the summer?" asked the friend.

Father Time sighed.

"It is because so many people kill me during the summer months," he responded feebly.

Neatly Put Together.

Little Edwin, in answer to his question, had been told that God made him. At his bath the next morning his mother saw Edwin examining his skin closely, and looking at his arms and legs, and trying to get a glimpse of his back in the glass. Finally he said, "Say, mama God made a good job not to leave any seams."—The Delineator.

Natural History as She is Spoke.

Doris lived in the city, and a summer visit to grandpa's farm revealed many wonders. After being treated to the farmer's luxury, cream, she was allowed to go to the barn to see the cows milked. The Best Part of the Speech.

Young James had never heard his papa speak in public and it was thought time to take him to hear his father deliver a lecture. During the evening a stray dog which ventured upon the platform was disposed of as gracefully as possible. On the way home James was asked how he liked his father's lecture, and gave the answer, "It was all right, papa, but I liked the part where you put the dog out the best."—The Delineator.

MY LADY RUTLEDGE

Original

"Can you take me to Rutledge Hall?"

The man stared. "Nobody goes to Rutledge Hall these days," he protested.

"Somebody's going there today, however," I returned. And so it proved, for a little later we were on our way, while my companion, the stage driver, was informing me that, in his opinion, the present owner of the Hall, Percy Dalton, must be a wild sort of chap, trottin' all over the globe, yet in all these years since old Stephen Rutledge had died and left the property to his nephew, the man had not once been near the place. He also added the information that not even the caretaker was living at the hall now. In all of this I was more or less interested, for I myself was Percy Dalton, and was there for the express purpose of looking over my inheritance. The fact that the caretaker was gone was news and not altogether pleasant, and further inquiry brought out the surprising assertion that the man had been frightened away. "They say there's a lady seen walkin' 'bout the house," my informant went on, "one that was dead and buried years ago," he added.

"Do they give her a name?" I asked.

"The young wife o' old Thomas Rutledge," was the answer. "She died sudden."

I knew that my grandfather's second wife had died soon after their marriage, but that there was anything suspicious in the fact I had never heard and did not now believe.

My reason for coming to the hall was to find if my hope of giving a house party there seemed feasible. A massive and imposing pile I found the house to be, but ruin and neglect was written all about it. I had brought the keys and at length found myself in one of the front rooms and a fire roaring up the broad chimney. There was no way of lighting the place, but it was moonlight, and after drawing out an old couch on which I proposed to sleep I sat looking out into the vine-tangled garden. Suddenly a shadow fell across the pathway and a moment later a woman appeared, slight and girlish, and enveloped in a long garment of gray. Slowly the form advanced, paused as if looking over the old garden, then, turning, disappeared.

"My lady of Rutledge Hall!" I exclaimed under my breath.

I determined that on the following day I would make a thorough examination of the house both within and without, and began bright and early. It was nearly noon, however, before anything unusual happened. Then, while in a chamber, I glanced into a long mirror reflecting the part of the room toward which my back was turned. A crimson curtain hung there as I looked last, now—like a portrait inclosed by the mirror's frame—stood a girl whose right hand held the curtain aside, her red lips slightly parted and a startled look in her brown eyes. I turned to confront the original. She was gone! Pulling aside the drapery I found a door, closed and locked.

Had I been tricked by a too vivid imagination? I did not believe it. Neither could I bring myself to fancy anything supernatural in the mysterious figure, she had too much the look of flesh and blood. Presently I renewed my search, with greater eagerness than ever, but it was several hours later before I entered that part of the house previously occupied by the caretaker. Then I approached from the outside; but what was this? Was he here after all? There were signs of life.

Puzzled, I knocked at the door. It opened, and for the second time I found myself looking into a pair of startled brown eyes. Yes, I had found the mysterious lady, and after introducing myself found her name to be Arvilla French and learned how she came to be here. Her father was not living, her mother's health required a summer in a quiet place. Miss French had been attracted by the romantic neglect of Rutledge Hall, and coming across the man who had cared for the place, learned that she might occupy a few of the back rooms gratuitously for the sake of there being someone about the house.

We soon found that we had several acquaintances in common, and a happy thought occurred to me. "Miss French," I began, "I am convinced that you are just the person to help me decide the matter that brought me down here. Do you think it possible that this old house can be made to accomodate a house party within two or three months?"

She looked thoughtful. "There are great possibilities," she admitted, slowly, then more decisively: "Yes, Mr. Dalton, I am sure it can be made delightful."

The house party took place the following August, and Arvilla French was one of my guests, and—well—it was not until the following spring that she became in truth My Lady of Rutledge Hall.—Boston Post.

Diggers of the Panama canal should not get us in the habit of expecting to see it finished in 1915 unless they expect to be able to deliver it freshly painted on that date.

WANT BRYAN IN SENATE

Planned to Induce Democratic Leader to Enter Race.

Nebraska Democrats Prepare Two Forms of Petitions in Every County of the State.

Lincoln, Neb., June 16.—A concerted movement looking to the entry of W. J. Bryan in the Nebraska senatorial race was begun when Democratic leaders of the state prepared for the circulation of petitions in every county asking Mr. Bryan to enter the contest.

Two forms of petitions have been framed, one intended for Democratic voters and one for signatures of members of all political parties. These petitions were sent broadcast immediately, the object being to have returns made by the time Mr. Bryan returns from Europe.

The circular is signed by I. H. Hatfield of Lincoln, and among the names mentioned as sponsors for the movement are State Representatives Wilson and Evans, Dr. P. L. Hall, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee; W. E. Baskley, Judge A. Tibbets and Frederick Shepherd.

DUFFY LOSES $250 IN FIELD

Brigton Farmer Distrusted Banks and Plows Money Into Soil.

Brigton, Mich., June 16. — William Duffy, of East Brigton township, "enriched" the soil of his farm by plowing $250 of real money into one of his fields. He harbors a distrust of banks and when he went into the field to plow, he took his roll with him rather than leave it in the house alone.

After completing the plowing job he discovered that his pocketbook was missing from his hip pocket. Later he turned the furrows in the field all over again in search for his lost money, but at latest reports had failed to find it.

Goshen, Ind., June 16.—Mrs. Rebecca Ebersole, 82 years old, wife of a farmer, was instantly killed while hunting eggs in a haymow.

She fell through an opening covered with fodder and her body was not discovered until several hours later. She apparently had struggled for some time following the fall, for the barn was covered with blood stains.

Frightened Horses Throw Him From Machine, Crushing Skull.

Carmi, Ill., June 16.—Newton Hall, a farmer living near here, lost his life while cutting hay.

His team became frightened from some unknown cause, and in jumping and plunging threw him from the mower, crushing his skull. His wife discovered the body some time later.

LORIMER CALLED IN BROWNE TRIAL

Senator to Take Stand in Behalf of Browne.

DENEEN ALSO. MAY TESTIFY

Latter Will Be Expected to Refute the Testimony Given by the United States Senator—Browne Is Jubilant.

Senator William Lorimer will be called as a witness in behalf of Lee O'Neil Browne, on trial before Judge McSurely on the charge of bribing Representative Charles A. White with $1,000 to vote for Lorimer for senator.

It is expected Senator Lorimer will make revelations of a more sensational character than those in his speech before the United States senate. Political relations and political deals is expected to form a part of his testimony. The name of Governor Deneen has already been drawn into the case, and alleged activities on his part against Lorimer will be an important part of the defense's side of the case.

After Senator Lorimer takes the stand it is possible that Governor Deneen may be called by the state with the object of refuting testimony that State's Attorney Wayman expects will be brought out through Senator Lorimer.

The governor has decided that he participated in the alleged "plot" against Lorimer. The senator insists, however, that Governor Deneen was in the office of the Chicago Tribune the night that White's story of alleged bribery was written, and that the article, at least a part of it, was prepared under the direction of the governor.

The defense's object in placing Lorimer on the stand is to strengthen its contention that White in making his sensational expose was actuated in part by a plan to obtain money. The senator is expected to reveal an alleged attempt on the part of White to blackmail him.

White's admission that he wrote to Senator Lorimer that he had prepared a 50,000 word article for a prominent magazine on his "personal experiences in the legislature," and was to receive $2.50 a word for it, paved the way for the calling of Senator Lorimer as a witness.

The cross-examination of White was resumed when court convened at 10 o'clock.

Browne was jubilant over the first day's cross-examination of White. His face was all smiles as he entered the court room.

"Browne is already acquitted," said Attorney Erbstein. "White, the star witness of the state, made a miserable showing on the witness stand."

White voluntarily exhibited a contract with Chicago Tribune, showing that, after a thorough investigation of his statements, the paper agreed to pay him $3,250 for his story. He testified he had received the money and also $250 for expenses in continuing the investigations.

Efforts to "wig-wag" to members of the jury resulted in two men being ejected from the court room.

Alleged political plotting became the subject of testimony when court convened at 10 a. m. Attorney Forrest sought to have White, who was still under cross-examination, admit certain conversations with Browne which would tend to expose inner workings at Springfield, and also of a plot to ruin Browne because of his opposition to certain measures before the legislature.

ROOSEVELT LANDS HOME SATURDAY

Outline of Program of Welcome to Returning Hunter.

GREAT CROWD TO BE PRESENT

Revenue Cutter to Meet Vessel Down Bay—Naval Parade Will Occur—Vessel Is Due Early Saturday Morning—Line of March

tion of how distinguished a private citizen Col. Roosevelt is when visiting his publicity headquarters. Twenty-five men and women, headed by the secretary, Capt. Cosby, and Assistant Secretary Harwood, are busy day and night shooting out mimeograph copies of all the wonders that are to happen when the hunter arrives Saturday.

Already the Lehigh Valley, the Pennsylvania, the New York Central and other lines with trunk line connections have sent forth word that beginning today they will start in to send their fastest trains into New York in sections to accommodate the members of the Hamilton club of Chicago, Rough Riders and other organizations who want to get here on time to greet the colonel.

The Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Augusta Victoria is expected to cleave her way out of the murk off the Hook about 3 o'clock Saturday morning. This would bring her up to quarantine about 6 a. m. Collector Loeb and a few intimate friends of the Roosevelt family will board the revenue cutter Manhattan at 7:45 a. m. and go down to quarantine to take the colonel off the liner. There will be breakfast aboard the Manhattan.

At 8:50 the revenue cutter Androscoggin will chug out from the Battery loaded with the reception committee of 300 and guests that include Gov. Watts of Connecticut, Gov. Mills of New Mexico, Gov. Fort of New Jersey, and Gov. Quimby of New Hampshire. Aboard the Androscoggin also will be representatives of the governors of Montana, Washington, Minnesota, West Virginia and perhaps representatives from other states.

Aboard the Dolphin will be Capt. Butt, Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture, and Secretary Meyer of the navy. Capt. Butt will carry a letter from President Taft to Col. Roosevelt, the tenor of which is a welcome home.

Col. Roosevelt will depart from the Manhattan at 9 o'clock down at quarantine and go aboard the Androscoggin to be greeted by Mr. Vanderbilt and his reception committee. Then the battleship South Carolina will lead the way for the naval parade, and two abreast, with Commodore Fred B. Dalzell in command, the water show will steam up the North river to a stakeboat off Firty-Ninth street. Here the water parade will turn and go back to the Battery.

If all goes well, Col. Roosevelt should step back upon his own country between 10:30 and 11 o'clock at the Battery. About 2,500 invited will be grouped there to greet him when he walks ashore with his reception committee. A grand-stand already has been built at the Battery with a platform from which Mayor Gaynor will make a speech of welcome to the returning colonel. Upon the completion of the mayor's address Col. Roosevelt will speak.

The parade will march up Broadway to Fourth street headed by mounted police. Seventh Regiment band will follow, and behind the band will clatter a band of the colonel's Rough Riders, with the Abernathy kids bringing up the rear, will escort Col. Roosevelt, who will ride in a hack.

Thereafter will come the Squadron A. band, with the reception committee in carriages following. The rest of the procession will consist of about 2,000 members of the Spanish War Veterans.

GOV. GILLETT PUTS STOP TO BIG FIGHT

Salt Lake City May Now Get Johnson-Jeffries Mill.

BUSINESS MEN TO FILE PROTEST

Action of California Governor Is Said to Have Been Directed by Threat from Washington Regarding Panama Fair.

San Francisco, June 16. — Gov. Gillett has ordered the attorney general of the state to use the full force of his office to stop the proposed Jeffries-Johnson prize fight which was to have taken place here on July 4. The instructions from the governor were contained in a letter to M. S. Webb, the attorney general, and this was made public. It was followed by a statement from Gillett in which he emphatically asserted that the fight coult not take place in California. Webb stated that the governor's instructions would be followed to the letter.

Coming as it did unexpectedly, the move to stop the big fight caused a sensation and for a time there was confusion among the sporting contingent. Tex Rickard was about the first to grasp the true meaning of it all, and he announced that he had stopped work on the big arena and had no intention of bucking the governor. He intimated that the fight would probably be transferred to Nevada or Salt Lake City. Nevada is most likely to be selected, as prize fighting is not contrary to law there.

Jeffries was told at once of the governor's action and would not at first believe it. He insisted that some mistake had been made and he would wait for the official notification. In case the courts refuse to grant the injunction, the governor directs the attorney general to proceed against the promoters, fighters and other parties interested under section 412 of the penal code, which makes prize fighting a felony.

The action of Gov. Gillett was a sad blow to the sporting men of Frisco; but what they don't know is, that the governor's hand was forced from Washington. The governor in his proclamation declares that he has become convinced that the function slated for July 4th will be a prize fight contest.

This is the governor's official position. The real reason that prompted him to take this action was a telegraphic warning he received from Congressman Bennett of the house foreign affairs committee. Bennett wires that unless the fight was stopped, San Francisco need not hope to secure the Panama fair. Virtually the same dispatch from Bennett was received by William R. Wheeler, president of the chamber of commerce of Frisco. This ultimatum made the governor take quick action.

The story of Gov. Gillett's attitude is all mixed up with the efforts of San Francisco to secure governmental sanction of the proposed Panama-Pacific exposition in that city in 1815, and the fact that Mr. Bennett is an influential member of the foreign affairs committee which today will decide between San Francisco and New Orleans.

"Manager Woods, of the St. Francis hotel, has just telephoned me that he will call a massmeeting of business men of the city today to protest against the governor's latest move. The business men of San Francisco will lose a barrel of money if the fight must go to other parts. Only recently I sold 1,000 tickets to the richest men of Canada, who would have spent a great deal of money here," said Tex Rickard.

Jeffries said: "If the news is correct I will continue training until I hear from Rickard and Gleason. After that my actions will be guided by their plans. If they want us to fight elsewhere, I suppose we will have to, but that will be up to the promoters."

Jack Johnson took the governor's decision philosophically. He said with a grin:

"I am ready to go to any part of the world to defend my title, providing the contest cannot be held here. Go to Nevada? Sure, I shall go there or any other place that Jeff agrees to go, Salt Lake, Australia or Kingdom Come. Though I don't suppose Jeff or myself would be at our best in a high altitude, after training at sea level. I am ready to do anything within reason that Gleason and Rickard ask me to do. But, I still think that the contest will come off as per schedule."

Gov. Gillett is evidently determined to put an end to prize fighting in California, for he sent a telegram to the attorney general authorizing him to stop the Langford-Kaufman fight scheduled for next Saturday afternoon in Frisco. This dispatch intensified the gloom that hung over headquarters of prize fight promoters, as it was recognized as the death knell of pugilism in this state.

MY SISTER'S FLIRTATION

With a Girl at a Window Opposite Who Mistook Her For Me.

By EDWARD C. HANCOCK.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"What a lovely room!" exclaimed my sister Alice. She had come to inspect my new bachelor quarters in the city.

"I'm glad you like it. There's something lovelier over there in the back of that house. A pretty girl sits every afternoon in the middle third story window."

A girl came to the window designated, leaned a pair of white arms on the sill, looked down at the clotheslines below and went away without seeing us.

"You don't mean to say you call her pretty?" said Alice.

"I consider her beautiful. I would like to attract her attention, but dare not."

"What are you afraid of?"

"Being a stranger to her. I am afraid of offending her."

"Suppose I coach you on starting a flirtation with a girl at an opposite window?"

"I wish you would."

"Will you do as I say?"

"Certainly."

"Very well. If she comes to the window again while I'm here I'll tell you what to do."

Alice went about the room opening drawers and closets, poking her nose everywhere. I never saw anything like the curiosity of a girl. Presently, looking out, she saw the girl sitting at the window opposite. She was darning stockings. Alice, keeping far enough back not to be seen, watched her for a few minutes, then said to me:

"Go to the window, pull up the shade or something to make a noise that will attract her attention, and when she looks at you throw her a kiss."

"Do you suppose I'm crazy to do such a thing?"

"I thought you promised to do as I said."

"I didn't promise to offer an insult."

"Stupid!"

"What do you mean?"

"Am I not a girl, and don't I know what would please a girl?"

"You wouldn't wish a man you had never seen to throw you a kiss, would you?"

"Never seen! Do you suppose she has never seen you?"

"I don't know that she has. Anyway, I have no reason to suppose she has noticed me."

"I have. I saw her casting glances over here."

"Oh, you see too much! I've been watching her too. She hasn't taken her eyes off the heel of that stocking since she has been at the window."

"There's nothing to be made of a fellow like you. Get me out some of your clothes. I'll put them on and do the trick myself. You and I are the image of each other, and she won't know the difference."

She put on just enough of my clothes to represent me and went to the window, giving a loud "Ahem!" The girl turned, and Alice threw her a kiss. The girl pulled down the sash with a bang and left the window apparently in high dudgeon.

"There," I said to Alice, "you've spoiled everything!"

"You mean I've started a flirtation."

"What can I do to"—

"Nothing. I'll do it for you. You'd spoil it all."

"But you're not here except occasionally."

"I'm going to stay here. Get me a room for a few days."

I would much rather have got rid of her, for I was sure she had offended the girl opposite, and I didn't wish her to get me any deeper into the mire. But she insisted, and I secured a room for her. That afternoon the girl opposite sat down by her window with her back turned to the light. She held a book in her hand.

"You see," I said to Alice, "to escape being insulted she must needs turn her back."

"Nevertheless I shall insult her again."

"I forbid you."

"Nonsense! If she had considered herself insulted she wouldn't have come to the window at all. She's playing it on you."

Alice had brought in some roses from home for me. She took up one, went to the window, took deliberate aim at the girl opposite and fired the rose, striking her on the back of the head. The girl started, turned, scowled, glanced at Alice and, supposing her to be a man, showed every evidence of being offended. Then she got up from her chair, closed the blinds and shut us off.

"Very likely she won't come to the window again today," said Alice. "It's too near dinner time. She'll have to do her hair before dinner, and then it will be too late."

"You seem to know all about it. Why will she have to do her hair before dinner?"

"Because it isn't fit for the dinner table."

"I thought it delightfully negligee."

"Delightfully frowsy you mean."

I took Alice to the theater that night, and the next day she was ready to resume her efforts with the girl opposite. After breakfast Alice called me to come to the window.

"There, stupid!" she said, pointing to the window opposite. "What do you think of that?"

On a stand near the window was a tumbler and in the tumbler was a rose.

"That's the identical rose you threw at her."

"You don't mean it?" I cried. "What's the next move?"

"I would like to have you make it yourself, only you might act silly. You see, at this time of day the sun shines on this window, and I'm afraid she'll suspect I'm a girl."

"I'll do it. I'm all right now. I'm not afraid of anything."

"Bosh! You have no pluck at all."

However, it was arranged that I should make the next move, whatever that might be, though Alice was to decide upon it. We sat, I reading the paper, Alice keeping watch on the window opposite. Presently the girl appeared in a very becoming morning costume. She looked up at the sky.

"She's pretending she's interested in the weather," said Alice, "but that's pretty thin considering there's not a cloud in the sky. Stay where you are. She can't see either of us. She'll think you have gone out and will give herself away by and by."

After the girl had examined the heavens she swept her eyes in a lightning glance across my window. Then she disappeared.

"Too bad," said Alice, "that she has put on her finery to be disappointed."

"What finery?"

"What finery! Do you suppose girls dress that way in the morning when they are doing household duties? She expected after yesterday's performances to see her admirer at least for a moment before his going downtown."

Alice went shopping during the morning, and I went to my club. Not yet being settled in an occupation, I am obliged to get away with the day as best I can. I met Alice at a glove counter and took her to lunch. Then we went to my room ready to continue my wooing by proxy. Alice concluded to close the blinds in order that she might observe the enemy through the slats; but, fearing the girl opposite would see her watching, she called a maid for the purpose. Then Alice and I lounged, awaiting developments. About 3 o'clock the girl came to her window and, seeing my blinds closed, did not scruple to fix her eyes upon them. Alice, who was watching her, directed me to suddenly throw the blinds open. I did so. The girl beat a precipitate retreat.

After awhile Alice told me to go to the window and sit there reading a paper with my back to the light. I did so, while Alice herself went to another window and watched through the slats. Presently she caught sight of a dim figure in the back of the room opposite. She could see that the girl was watching me. Then the girl came forward, unconscious that she was under observation. Suddenly Alice burst into a laugh.

"What is it?" I asked.

"She's throwing a kiss at the back of your head."

This was too much for me to endure without seeing. I turned just in time to catch a glimpse of a figure getting back out of the light.

"Now I have started you," said Alice, "I leave you to do the rest yourself. I shall go home tomorrow."

"Do you think I can get on alone?" I asked.

"There's nothing more to do in this way. If you wish to follow the matter up you must find a way to make her acquaintance, and, having met her, you must be careful not to mention anything you have learned of her interest in you. Better not mention this part of it. Treat her as a perfect stranger."

"Would you mind, Alice," I asked, "telling me how you learned all this?"

"I haven't needed to learn it. I'm a girl."

"But how about your experience in similar circumstances?"

"Oh, bother! There haven't been any similar circumstances in my case."

"You got it all by instinct?"

"Yes."

"Well, all I have to say is your instinct is mighty strong."

I at least had the ability to find out who the girl opposite was and hunted among my friends till I found a mutual acquaintance who introduced me. I courted her, but blundered, and it was a long time before I won her.

GOOD SEED FOR GOOD GROUND.

Matthew 13:1-9; 18-23.—June 19.

"Wherefore, putting away all filthiness and overflowing of wickedness receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save your souls."—James 1:21.—R. V.

USING a boat as a pulpit, our Lord taught a great lesson respecting the method used by the Almighty in the selection of the "little flock" whom he invites to be members with Christ Jesus in the administration of his Millennial Kingdom. The Kingdom message or invitation is the "seed" which is under consideration in the above parable, which, under favorable conditions, germinates and brings forth the required fruitage of character development. Our Lord was the great Sower of this good seed of the Kingdom, and after him came the Apostles. Since then he has used all of his faithful people more or less in this seed sowing.

The fact that most of the "seed" of the Divine message seems wasted is no proof that the message is not good and desirable. This parable shows that the real fault lies in the soil—in the heart. If all hearts were right the message or seed would bring forth much fruit everywhere.

The parable states that not all of the soil is good or suitable; nevertheless, the intimation is that it is within the power of many to correct and offset the unfavorable conditions in themselves. We are not left to conjecture, for this is one of the few parables which our Lord himself interpreted—a fact which many seem not to have noticed.

The "seed" is the message of the Kingdom. Many do not understand it. On such ears the message is lost, for the adversary is on the alert to take it away, as symbolized by the birds devouring the exposed "seed" by the wayside. Such "wayside" hearers constitute the most numerous class in every congregation of the nominal church. They are merely formalists.

"Stony" ground represents another class of hearers of the Kingdom message. To them it sounds good; they are interested, but they lack depth of character. They make professions and for a time flourish extraordinarily, but they lack the depth necessary to a character development suitable for the Lord's use in the work of the Kingdom, and when the trials and testings come they stumble. They thought they might be carried to the Kingdom on "flowery beds of ease, while others fight to win the prize and sail through bloody seas." There is no easy road to the Kingdom. The Master declares to all who would be of the elect "Bride," "Through much tribulation shall ye enter the Kingdom."

The ground which will produce thorns is rich, and very suitable for the production of proper Christian character, but it is infested with thorn seed, and the soil cannot successfully produce both wheat and thorns; hence, as the parable shows, the thorns choke out the wheat, so that a sufficient crop is not produced. These thorns are not, as some have suggested, sensual vices and criminal appetites. Hearts in which sensuality dominates have no ear whatever for the Kingdom message, and are not mentioned in the parable, which refers only to those who are no longer willing sinners, but who are walking outwardly in the way of righteousness. The Master's word is, "He that receiveth the seed among thorns is he that heareth the word, and the cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word and he becometh unfruitful." There are many noble people represented also by this portion of the parable. There are many who, if freed from the spirit of the world, from its ambitions and wealth and influence, its love of the good things of this life, would be very fruitful in righteousness. When we look about us and see the thrift and energy of many people of civilized lands, we say to ourselves, properly, if these lives were really turned into the way of the Lord and were rid of these earthly encumbrances, what grand, noble characters they would make. However, their strength, their energy, is absorbed by worldly affairs and cares, and they do not bring forth the fruitage demanded as the necessary qualification for the higher honors of a place with Christ in his Kingdom. The Master's message to such is, You cannot give your time and strength and influence to worldly matters and at the same time make your "calling and election sure" to a place with me in my Kingdom. Whoever would be my disciple, let him take up his cross and follow me. Where I am there shall my disciple be.

"Herein is my Father glorified that ye bear much fruit," said our Master. In this parable the good ground varies in its productiveness—thirty, sixty and an hundred fold. The larger the returns, the greater will be the Father's pleasure and the Savior's glory. Nor is the statement an extreme one, as some might suppose. The new "miracle wheat" some times produces more than two hundred grains from one. This parable seems to imply, that the responsibility for the fruitfulness of the heart and life and character depends very greatly upon the individual and how he receives the message of the Kingdom. Those in whom the fruits will be the most abundant will be such as grasp the invitation most intelligently and earnestly. "He that heareth the word and understandeth it" and whose heart is in a condition of loyalty to God and who frees himself from hindrances and worldly ambitions and aspirations and, like the Apostle Paul, can say, "This one thing I do," will surely gain the Kingdom.

It is not sufficient that we hear the message of the Kingdom; it is not sufficient that we have good hearts or good intentions in respect to it; it is additionally necessary, as the Master says, that we should understand the Kingdom message; hence the need of Bible study. Intelligent people consider it very wise and proper that several years of study be devoted to preparation for the few years of earthly life. How much study, then, should be considered proper for our preparation for the eternal life and Kingdom blessings? The time and effort thus consumed in character development for the Kingdom are wisely spent, and the harvest of thirty, sixty or a hundred fold illustrates the degree and intensity of our earnestness. The rewards in the Kingdom will also be proportionate. "As star differeth from star in glory, so shall it be in the resurrection of the dead." Varying degrees of glory in the Kingdom will be manifested, yet none will be acceptable to the Father who shall not have brought forth fruitage in good measure.

"Doan's Ointment cured me of eczema that had annoyed me a long time. The cure was permanent."—Hon. S. W. Matthews, Commissioner Labor Statistics, Augusta, Me.

Unprecedented.

Pierre Cartier, a Parisian jeweler, told this story in Washington to show how easy it is to entrap experts—either of jewelry or law: "A friend of mine, at a recent dinner in Paris, sat next to an eminent lawyer, to whom he said: "I would like your opinion on a knotty point of law. My uncle has a peacock and last fall it got into a neighbor's garden and laid an egg there. The neighbor claimed the egg, and my uncle claimed it, too. What is the law on the question?"

"'It's an easy question to settle,' said the lawyer, with a patronizing smile. 'Admitting that the egg was laid on the neighbor's ground, the neighbor, nevertheless, has no claim to it unless he can prove that the owner of the bird took no steps to prevent it from straying. In a precedent case——'

"'Excuse me,' said the other man, 'but this case has no precedent.'

"'Well,' said the lawyer, 'you know more law than I do, do you? I remember distinctly a precedent case where——'

"'No, you don't,' said the other. 'You never heard before of a peacock laying an egg.'"

Far in the Future.

It was evening in the great west. The golden sun had gone down over the cornfields, and all was silent.

"Maria, what did you do with that Rubens that same today?"

"I hung it up in the art gallery, next to the Rembrandt."

"That's right. How about that new balloon we ordered?"

"We got a wireless today from the factory saying it wouldn't be ready until next week."

"Um! That will give one of them chauffeurs of ours an excuse to be idle. Couldn't get any of them chaps to help with the hay. How is the new French car acting?"

"Fine. But I had to telephone for a new set of tires."

"Did that consignment of government bonds come?"

"Yes."

"And how about that first folio edition of Shakespeare?"

"That's here."

And then the Kansas farmer, removing his evening clothes and putting on his overalls, went out on the estate and locked up for the night.

Somewhat Different.

Miss Homer—"How romantic! Were they anything like the bandits in the opera?"

ALL DRUGGISTS

FROM WASHINGTON.

(BY OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT)

Hon. E. C. Stanley, a member of Congress from Kentucky, has presented a unique bill in Congress. It is to provide a government cold storage plant in Washington. He insists that such a plant will more than pay for itself in saving the government thousands of dollars yearly. Dr. Wiley, the distinguished government chemist and advocate of the pure food laws, expresses his approval of the Stanley bill. He says a government ice house will result in better provisions for the army and navy and cut off the enormous profits of the meat trusts. A cold storage plant built by the government according to the statement of this bill, will cost a million and a half and it is provided that the Secretary of the Treasury shall buy a site and proceed at once to build a model storage house for meat, butter, vegetables and such other foods as are issued to the army and naval forces of the United States.

The bill has another purpose in that it will give the government a chance to study and learn the cost of keeping perishable foods in a healthful condition without taking the evidence of interested and prejudiced men in the employ of the trusts. Moreover, it will save thousands yearly by supplying food to the army and navy and to the Soldiers' Home situated in Washington and to other soldiers' homes in differeat parts of the country. In in argument in favor of the bill Rep. Stanley says that the most odious and oppressive of all trusts is the food trust, and he points out that although the cold storage men protest that charges of exorbitant prices with which they are indicted have been disproved, it is universally believed that cold storage in the hands of the trusts is one of the main causes of high prices of foods.

Rep. Stanley and Dr. Wiley have been in correspondece. In a recent letter to Dr. Wiley, Mr. Stanley asked his opinion with reference to the feasibility ane advantages of the storage plant. In this letter he said: "It is certain that cold storage men are in the habit of keeping meat and other foods long after they cease to be wholesome. The government experiences great difficulty in obtaining accurate information and must necessarily depend upon expert statements of interested parties." In replying to this letter, Dr. Wiley said: "In regark to the subject of a cold storage plant in Washington, in so far as facilitating our investigations on the storage of food is concerned, I am free to say it would be of the greatest advantage. A government warehouse which collaborate with us in securing definite degrees of refrigeration would be advantageous." Dr. Wiley declared that cattle are sold from his farm near Washington and bought by the consumers at less than half the prices charged in Washington or any other city where it is necessary to buy cold storage meat. Mr. Stanley argues that if Dr. Wiley is correct in his statements the goverment will quickly be repaid for the money invested in a cold storage plant, and moreover, that the military and naval force of the country will be supplied with a better quality of eatables. Mr. Seanley says that the plant could be operated by the government at a minimum cost and that inasmuch as the government has refused to buy tobacco from the tobacco trust or powder from the powdes trust, there is no reason why it may not make every effort to obtain its supply of meat independent of the meat trust, which has been time aed time again indicted and convicted. He says that it is not intended to have the government go into the meat business, but inasmuch as the government is the largest purchaser of meats and other like products, it is its duty to the tax payer to secure provisions in the most economical way.

During the last year more than a million of dollars was expended for meats for soldiers' homes alone. The army expended over two millions of dollars for fresh meats, to say nothing of bacon and lard. The navy bill for butter was $400,000 at the rate of 33c per pound. The fresh meat for the navy cost fifteen millions. Besides, we purchased thousands of pounds of poultry. Swift, Armour, Cudahey and other like concerns furnished this food at exhorbitant cost to the government and at immense profit to themselves.

Facial Beauty Note.

"If you wish to retain your position with us, Mr. Green," said the head of the firm, "it will be necessary to pay more attention to your personal appearance. You look as though you had not been shaved for a week."

"But I'm growing a beard, sir," exclaimed the unfortunate fellow.

"That's no excuse, sir," replied the chief in stately tones: "you must do that sort of thing out of business hours."—Life.

Not Worth While.

"No," said the honest lawyer. "I don't care to take your case."

"Why not?" queried the would-be client.

"You are so thin-skinned," answered the legal light, "that it would not pay me to skin you."

Baby won't suffer five minutes with croup if you apply Mr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil at once. It acts like magic.

Took the Whole Course.

Down in Georgia the citizens of a town of about 6,000 people arranged for a Chautauqua assembly. They held the meeting in a large tent about a mile from town and the attendance was large from the first day.

An enterprising showman heard of the large crowds and came to town the second day with a steam merry-go-round, which he located about half way between the town and the Chautauqua grounds.

Along in the afternoon a young man from the country districts was accosted by a citizen of the town.

"Well, Ruby, I suppose you have been in to the Chautauqua?"

"I shore have. Just come from thar now."

"How'd you like it?" asked the townsman.

"Fine!" the young man replied, enthusiastically. "I rode on the thing nine times.

Bishop Potter's Pledge.

The Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's church, New York, tells this story of the late Bishop Potter: "It is known to a few that while still a young man Dr. Potter was called upon to deal with a parishioner who had become intemperate. In the course of the conversation the man remarked: 'But you also drink wine,' to which came the quick response, 'If you will promise never to touch intoxicants again so will I.' The double pledge was given, and never broken on either side, and this at a time when Dr. Potter was pointed at by the comic newspapers as a 'wine bibber.'"

Perfectly Lucid.

A New Yorker who paid a visit last summer to a Kentucky planter had his slumbers disturbed by mosquitoes. When he mentioned this to his host the latter declared that they never annoyed him.

The next day he commented upon this fact to the colonel's negro valet, who accounted for the phenomenon in this way:

"De furst part ob de night de kunnel am so drunk dat he don' feel de skeeters, an' de las' part ob de night de skeeters am so drunk dat dey don't bodder de kunnel."

June Wedding

AT THE HOME OF MR. AND MRS. M. A. ZIMMERMAN

(14)

A very pretty wedding occurred Tuesday evening June 4th at 6 o'clock when Stella Zimmerman, one of Tecumseh's most popular young ladies was united in marriage to Vern Louis Pratt of Eaton Rapids. The house was beautifully decorated in green and white and as the strains of Mendelsohn's wedding march were played by Miss Mayme Kaiser the couple took their places beneath a beautiful canopy of flowers. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. McLaughlin of Eaton Rapids. Mrs. Leon Burlingame sang "O Promise Me" during the ceremony.

The bride was beautiful in a gown of white messaline satin trimmed with point aplique and chiffon. She carried a shower boquet of lilies of the valley and bridal roses. She was attended by her sister Hazel as maid of honor, who wore white net trimmed with baby ribbon with white tulle in hair and carrying a boquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Eolah Brown and Edith Shull who wore blue messaline with blue tulle in hair and carried white marguerites Lester Heesen was best man, the groomsmen being Leon Williamson and Sheldon Southwick.

The refreshments were very dainty and carried out the color scheme of green and white.

Many beautiful presents attesting to the high favor in which the bride was held, were displayed. The bride threw her boquet into the crowd of her young friends and it was caught by Eolah Brown.

They left on the 8:16 train for Duluth for a short trip. They were accompanied as far as Clinton by the crowd who gave them a generous shower of rice and old shoes, some 60 pounds of rice being thrown.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Pratt of Eaton Rapids, Mrs. Kate Cleveland and Mrs. Halleck Wilson of Detroit, Mabel Zimmerman of Owosso, Mrs. W. F. Sisson and Geraldine Heesen of Toledo and Miss Adnee Palmer of Brooklyn.

NEW SODA FOUNTAIN.

B. M. Meyer has just completed the installations of an extravagantly beautiful Liquid Iceless Fountain at the City Drug Store which represents, according to the makers, "the most ecoeomical, most efficient, speediest, most sanitary and altogether the most scientific construction that the soda fountain builders' art has yet developed." It cost in the neighborhood of $3,000—"Meyer says so" It is a new type of fountain in which the salted ice round the ice cream pack takes the place of all other refrigerants.

The fountain has a large plate mirror extending almost the full length, and has at each end cabinets with fancy glass doors. Electric lights are artiftically arranged. The dispensing apparatus is of German silver and built in the front counter, the whole works being reflected in the mirror, showing the sanitary and convenient arrangement of syrups, fruits, glassware, etc. The fountain pedestal is topped by an artistic electroller. Counters are of marble and altogether it is a work of art.—Buffalo, Wyo., Bulletin.

Mr. Meyer, better known as Bert, was a former resident of Tecumseh, so we are quite interested in things pertaining to him.

Free Child's Remedy

What mother is not looking for something that will help her children in the little ills of life, something for the stomach trouble and the bowel trouble? Long ago she probably has become convinced that a child cannot readily swallow a pill or a tablet, and that to "break them in half and crush them" is an annoyance; that usually they work too drastically, and are nauseating and too powerful for the little one's stomach.

Any mother who will take the trouble of sending her name and address can obtain a free sample bottle of a remedy that thousands of other mothers are using and now paying for. This remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the offer of a free trial bottle is open to any mother who has not yet used it. Having used it and convinced yourself that it is what you want, you can obtain it in the future of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as so many others are doing, the free sample being simply to convince you of its merits. It is the best way to begin on it. Mrs. L. Davis of 137 W. Harrison street, Chicago, and Mrs. Mary Belford, 1710 Coke street, Louisville, Ky., both started with a free sample and now they write that they have never been without a bottle in the house since.

It is undoubtedly a great family remedy, as it is adapted to all ages, being mild and pleasant to take and yet thoroughly effective. It is especially the ideal remedy for children and women and old folks, who need something pure, mild and natural. It has the advantage of being a thorough laxative and yet contains tonic properties. Use it for the most stubborn constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sick headache, sour stomach and such complaints with a guarantee that it will cure.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

No Locusts.

Some years ago, in one of the South American republics, there was a sudden and devastating plague of locusts. They came, nobody knew whence, in millions, and soon stripped the territory over which they swept of every speck of green.

It happened that a planter was staying in one of the cities over which the locusts swarmed. As soon as the first disquieting news came to him from the neighboring plantations to send a telegram to the major domo on his own estate, asking whether any locusts had appeared. The major domo replied that he had seen no sign of locusts.

Then worse news came. Locusts had appeared at plantation after plantation, causing awful damage. Again the planter, more worried than ever telegraphed to his plantation: "Have the locusts appeared?"

Again the major domo at once answered "No."

Soon after that the planter heard that a plantation contiguous to his own had been ravaged frightfully. Again he telegraphed.

This was the answer from the major domo:

"No, sir; no locusts have been seen, but there are millions of little yellow grasshoppers here, which are ruining the coffee crop."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Welcome Relief.

Said He—"I sometimes feel as if I could die waltzing."

Said She—"And every time I waltz with you I feel that dying would be a welcome relief."

A Triple Personality.

Dr. Clifford tells of an amusing adventure which happened on one occasion when he was conducting a mission service at Carr's Lane, Birmingham. Arriving only a few minutes before the commencement, the doctor was refused admission by the policeman at the door.

"I want to go in," said Dr. Clifford.

"Are you a seat holder?" asked the official.

"No, I am not."

"Then you can't go in."

"I think," remarked the famous passive register, "that there will be room for me in the pulpit."

"I am not so sure of it," retorted the other.

"But I am Dr. Clifford, and I am due to preach in another minute and a half."

"Oh, are you?" said the incredulous policeman. "I have let in two Dr. Cliffords already."—London Telegraph.

Too Airy.

"I understand your husband refused the consulship to Senegambia."

"Yes, it's true."

"Afraid of the climate?"

"Not exactly. But George found out that diplomacy required that at all the court functions he must wear the native costume—and he was afraid of catching cold."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Nothing of the Sort.

The boarder at the foot of the table, although he had not taken a bite of his steak for several minutes had not been entirely idle.

"What are you doing, Mr. McGinnis?" asked the landlady. "Philosophizing."

"No, ma'am," he said. "Fletcherizing."—Chicago Tribune.

A Queer Cure for Headaches.

In an interesting article on superstition in France, an author mentions a very curious method employed near Billiers, in the Morlban, for curing bad acute forms of headache. The sufferer pricks his or her forehead with a needle until blood flows; then, with the same needle, he or she pricks a certain cross that was erected in 1874 near the village. By this means it is believed that the headache is made to "enter the wood," where it will remain for at least a fortnight. This "cure" is attributed to the intervention of the Virgin Mary, who is said to have appeared in the above-mentioned year where the cross is erected, with a promise that she would perform miracles "to prove her descent at that spot." Adjoining the cross for curing headaches is another that is reputed to be of great service in the cure of disease of the scalp. All that the sufferers need do is to come and pray there, leaving their bonnets or caps behind them, attached to a forked branch stuck in the earth.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Tecumseh People Know How to Save It

Many Tecumseh people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Tecumseh citizen's recommendation.

William W. Shurtz, Kilbuck street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for ten years and have received such good results that I gladly recommend them. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are not doing their work properly, I procure a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and through their use I am promptly relieved."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

MARS HAS BAD LUCK

Aviator Nearly Falls into the Kansas River.

Series of Mishaps in His Attempt to Fly in Aeroplane from Topeka to Kansas City.

Topeka, Kan., June 16.—J. C. Mars, who attempted to fly from Topeka to Kansas City, a distance of sixty miles, had a series of mishaps that delayed his progress and imperiled his life.

Mars was flying in a Curtiss biplane, the Skylark, in an effort to win a cash prize of $5,000.

In the first sixteen miles of the trip Mars had to alight three times. He broke the ribs of the lower plane twice and his engine gave out.

Then when near Midland, sixteen miles from the starting point, a choppy wind forced him to fly low and he came near falling into the Kansas river while rounding the bluffs at Ennis. He landed safely in a meadow.

CONSERVATION BILL PASSED

Provides for Withdrawal of Public Lands by President.

Washington, June 16.—The conservation bill, providing for the withdrawal of public lands by the president, another of the administration measures, has passed the senate.

The measure was not matarially amended as it came from the house save for the addition of a rider appropriating $30,000,000 for the completion of existing reclamation projects in the far western states. The house has already passed an administration conservation bill and the measure will now go to conference.

TWELVE PERISH IN FIRE

Austrian Laborers Roasted to Death in Shacks.

Overcome by Smoke as They Slept—Man, Woman and Child Probably Fatally Injured.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 16.—Twelve Austrian laborers, known only by number, were burned to death in their shacks at Falls View, near here. A man, a woman and a child received probably fatal injuries.

When firemen from this city reached the little settlement of foreigners employed in the power development work they found four shacks reduced to embers. Twelve bodies were soon removed.

The Austrians had evidently been overcome by smoke as they slept and were roasted to death. The injured, taken unconscious from the ruins, were terribly burned.

WOMAN SHOT BY NEGRO

Mrs. Jesse Burch Meets Assassin Returning from Circus.

John Anthony, Circus Man, is Under Arrest at Battle Creek on Suspicion of Being Shooter.

Battle Creek, Mich., June 13.—Shot down by a negro about midnight, Mrs. Jesse Burch is in a critical condition and her recovery is doubtful.

Mrs. Burch and another woman were returning home after watching the loading on the train of the circus which showed here, when a negro stepped out from behind a tree and fired one shot from a revolver. The bullet took effect in Mrs. Burch's stomach.

Later the police learned that six other women were accosted by a negro in the same vicinity after the circus Saturday night, and arrested John Anthony on suspicion. Three of these women have identified Anthony as the man who tried to hold them up. Anthony has been with the circus several years.

The explosion is supposed to have been caused from gas or dust accumulating in th ecoal drying chamber. The building is practically fireproof, but fire followed the explosion, being confined to the drying chamber and roof.

HASKELL MOVES STATE CAPITOL

Oklahoma City Is Now Home of State's Governor.

RECORDS ARE STILL AT GUTHRIE

Judge Huston Issues Injunction Against Removal of State Records—Haskell Prepared to Issue Proclamation Declaring Capitol.

Oklahoma City, June 13.—Governor Haskell has arrived here on a special train from Tulsa. The governor immediately took up his headquarters at Oklahoma City, practically establishing it as the permanent capitol of the state. The governor would make no statement as to whether he will attempt to remove the records of his office to Oklahoma City in the face of the injunction issued by Judge Huston in the district court of Logan county at Guthrie. It is practically certain that anybody who attempts to remove the records from Guthrie to Oklahoma City during the injunction, will be held for contempt of court and probably jailed.

With the expectation of having all the state offices in Oklahoma City within a week, two floors of the ten-story Lee Hotel building have been reserved for the use of the state officers in the conduct of state business. Gov. Haskell has opened offices in the Lee Hotel.

Gov. Haskell brought his seal, and his office force came in by automobile after an exciting 90-mile ride. None of the officers, however, have attempted to remove their records from Guthrie to Oklahoma City, pending a dissolution of the injunction and the court's decision as to whether the election favoring the removal was legal.

A move is on here to procure a writ of prohibition if possible from the supreme court to prohibit Judge Huston, of the district court of Logan county, from enforcing his temporary injunction against the removal of the records. A writ of this kind would permit the removal of the records at once, if made permanent by the court.

Gov. Haskell is prepared to issue his proclamation, declaring Oklahoma City the permanent capitol of the state, and it is opinion of lawyers no injunction would lie against the governor to prevent such action, as the governor cannot be enjoined from performing a ministerial duty by the state courts, in their opinion.

TAFT FACES BUSY WEEK

President Will Take Several Short Trips During Week.

Next Sunday Night Will Escort Mrs. Taft to Beverly and Return to Capitol Until Adjournment.

Washington, June 13.—The capital will see but little of President Taft this week. The president will leave for the first trip of the week on Tuesday night. He will open the second inning of the presidential commencement season at Marietta, O., on Wednesday afternoon and will get back home on Thursday. Friday night or Saturday morning he will depart northward for Villa Nova and Lincoln, Pa., where he will make commencement addresses and where, (at Villa Nova), he will receive the degree of doctor of jurisprudence.

Returning to Washington for a brief rest the president will seek the solace of the Pullmans once more next Sunday night. He will reach New Haven on the 20th and with Mrs. Taft remain there for three days, watching his son, Robert Taft, go through the commencement exercises at Yale. On the 23rd the Taft family will go to Boston and Beverly, where Mrs. Taft will settle down for the summer, while the president will return to Washington to remain until the congressional session closes.

KERN REFUSES TO CHANGE POSITION

Hoosier Democratic Leaders Deplore Existing Situation.

SHIVELY ELECTED BY FRAUD?

Taggart Attempts to Smooth the Troubled Waters by Undertaking to Act as Peacemaker Between Warring Factions.

Indianapolis, June 13.—The Demo- over disaffection in northern Indiana among the friends of Senator Shively, who are said to be in revolt against John W. Kern because of his charges two years ago, and formally repeated several times since, that Senator Shively was chosen for the senate in the Democratic caucus through bribery. Kern charged that eight Democrats in the caucus were bought by brewers and saloon keepers with a fund raised to defeat him for the caucus nomination and that Shively was the beneficiary of this corruption.

Since Kern's nomination by the state convention for the senate, Shively's friends and many northern Indiana newspapers friendly to him, have demanded that Kern make good his charges or withdraw them and thus relieve Shively from the implied charge of holding his seat in the senate through bribery. It is said that the trip of Tom Taggart to Washington last week was undertaken for the purpose of conferring with Shively and the Indiana congressmen on the subject, and that the question was brought up and discussed at the dinner at which Taggart entertained them.

Kern, it is understood, refused to retract anything, but has told those who approached him on the subject that he knows the right men who betrayed him, but while convinced that they were bribed, he cannot establish the fact in court. Some of the leaders think Kern will lose several Democratic counties in northern Indiana unless something can be done to placate Shively, who is said to be very much displeased.

MURDER SUSPECT ARRESTED

Illinois Man Arrested in Kansas City for Wife Murder.

Kansas City, Mo., June 13.—William Atwood is under arrest here pending the arrival of an officer from Illinois.

The body of Atwood's murdered wife was found in her room at Edwardsville, Ill., June 8.

TO PROMOTE POSTAL CLERKS

Postmaster General Issues Orders for Promotion of 30,000 July 1.

Washington, June 13.—Acting under authority conferred on him by the recent bill passed by congress making appropriations for postal service, Postmaster General Hitchcock has issued instructions for the promotion on July 1 of nearly 30,000 postoffice clerks and city letters carriers.

In discussing the matter Hitchcock paid a tribute to the efficiency of postal employes during the past year, giving them full credit for co-operation in carrying into effect reforms through which the department expects to show a reduction this year of fully $10,000,000 in the postal deficit.

OFFICERS DRAG LAKE COMO

American Consul Express Belief Husband Also Was Killed.

Washington, June 13.—Charles M. Caughey, American consul at Milan, Italy, advised the state department that the investigation into the murder of Mrs. Charlton, whose body was found in Lake Como several days ago, had so far produced no important development.

Mr. Caughey said it was his personal belief that Porter Charlton, husband of the dead woman, had also been murdered. Lake Como, he said, was being dragged by the Italian police in the hope of finding his body. Constantine Spolatoff, held for the crime, is still in custody.

SANE 4TH PARADE TO MARK NEW ERA

Historical Pageant to Be Greatest Ever Seen in Chicago.

ARMY REVIEW WILL BE FEATURE

Military Tournament in Grant Park Will Attract Thousands to the City—Program of Civic and Military Parades.

Chicago, June 13. — Chicago's plan for a "sane" celebration of Independence day is attracting the attention of nearly every big city and many of the country towns of various parts of the United States. Some will do much to follow the example of Chicago and suppress the old time din and carnage.

Baltimore, Philadelphia, St. Louis and several other cities expect to have a real demonstration this year, with as many of the Chicago suggestions adopted as can be carried out in the brief space of time left before July 4.

From early morning until late at night the program in Chicago as outlined by the association, will be continuous. It will be divided into three parts, and the intermissions will be only long enough for spectators and participants to take their needed rests and food. This is the schedule:

Morning—Grand historical and international pageant.

Afternoon—First activities in the big United States army tournament, which will continue daily until July 14.

Night—Elaborate patriotic exercises and fireworks in various parts of city.

Between $75,000 and $100,000 will be spent on the pageant, and at least 35,000 persons will take part in it. Work of designing and building the scores of floats, representing nations of the world and the chief events in United States, Illinois and Chicago history, is under way.

The Illinois naval reserve has decided to give up its annual Fourth of July celebration in order to join in the historical pageant. Capt. W. F. Purdy, in command, wishes to display several floats to denote the fact that the first force organized by the continental congress was the navy, and that the first American flag flew on a warship of the United States.

The pageant will be divided into four divisions, as follows:

First section, representing the United States of America.

Second, Illinois, with Gov. Charles B. Deneen, escorted by a company of the Illinois national guard, at the head.

Third section, representing the city of Chicago, with Mayor Fred A. Busse and platoons of the Chicago police and fire departments at its head.

Fourth division, representing all the nations from which the foreign population of the country is drawn.

The United States troops will head the American section, with bands and all equipment suitable for parade purposes. Emblematic floats will follow the troops. Among them will be special ones depicting "The Genius of America," "The Declaration of Independence," "The Inauguration of Washington," "Washington's State Coach," "The Liberty Bell," and "Peace."

Floats in the Illinois section will portray French dominion of Illinois, British dominion of the state, and finally American Illinois, with floats showing the expedition of George Rogers Clark, the Fort Dearborn massacre, the Lincoln-Douglas debate, Illinois commerce, mining, manufacturing, transportation and art. Many floats to represent the history of the city are in course of preparation.

In the foreign section will be represented Poles, Swedes, Bohemians, Italians, Norwegians, Canadians, Scots, Negroes, Austrians, Danish, Hollanders, Hungarians, Lithuanians, Chinese, and many others besides the more populous Germans and Irish.

The United States army tournament under the direction of Gen. Frederick D. Grant, commander of the department of the lakes, will attract thousands of people to Chicago, and give a spectacle never before witnessed.

It is planned that 5,000 troops, comprising infantry, cavalry, artillery, engineers, signal corps, hospital corps, and aviators with army aeroplanes will take part in the program. There will be required also 2,500 horses and mules and equipment for a camp in Grant park, on the lake front, to be known as Camp J. M. Dickinson, in honor of the secretary of war.

Exhibitions will be given every afternoon and evening from July 4 until July 14, in a great arena that will have a seating capacity greater than that of any other outdoor place of amusement in the United States. Admission will be free.

TEST PLAYGOING AS REFORM

John Worthy Pupils to See Performance of "The Fortune Hunter."

Chicago, June 13. — John L. Whitman, superintendent of the house of correction, on Wednesday will test his theory that playgoing is a good reformative measure.

On that date 100 pupils of the John Worthy school will attend "The Fortune Hunter" at the Olympic theater as the guests of the star, Thomas W. Ross.

HER EASTER FLOWER

A Dead Rosebush and the Way It Came to Life Again.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Henry Dean walked home from prayer meeting with Rose Brayton When they stopped at the gate of her home Rose did not invite Henry to come inside, and so he lingered there, as usual, speaking of petty village matters while words of love burned on his lips

"Rose—Rose," he said at last, "won't you ever forget Jim and love me a little?"

"Please don't say any more, Henry. I like you so much and it only hurts me to have you speak that way—as if I could ever forget Jim! My heart is buried with him."

"If your heart is buried with him, surely, Rose, it must awaken soon. Look all about you and see the shrubs quickening under the touch of spring and think of the little buried seeds and bulbs in the ground soon to burst forth into new life. Nothing is dead forever, and you were not meant to waste your life mourning over Jim Carey or any other man."

Rose laughed softly, a cold, triumphant smile curving her lips "Come with me, Henry; I will show you something that is dead—something that will never come to life again." It is dead—dead as my heart."

Silently he followed her across the grass to a moonlit space blurred by a small shadow in the middle. Rose bent above it, and he saw that it was a rosebush, dry and leafless and without even the promise of swelling buds.

"This rosebush is dead. Jim planted it here the day we became engaged. It bloomed all that summer and fall long after the other roses had faded. It has not blossomed since he died, and it never will again. Now it is dead too."

"How do you know it is?" demanded Henry obstinately "Perhaps the roots are alive. It may need pruning." He dropped to his knees and pulled out his pocketknife.

"Don't you touch it, Henry Dean! I would rather it remained dead than any one should bring it to life! It belongs to me—it's mine—my poor little rose!" Her slight form interposed between him and the rosebush, and he got upon his feet, with a strange expression in his eyes.

"Your argument seems unanswerable, Rose, but I know that seemingly dead roses have come to life, and just so surely I predict that some day your buried heart will come to life and love more tenderly than it ever did before." With a sudden gesture he drew her into his arms and strained her to his breast, and for an instant her cold cheek was pressed against his own. Then he released her, and without another word or glance he turned away and strode out of the gate.

After that evening in the garden he avoided Rose Brayton. He stayed away from church and prayer meeting, where the sermons hinted of the approaching Easter, which on this occasion occurred late in April, with its symbols of resurrection. The reawakening of spring from the deathlike sleep of winter seemed too close to the troubles of his own heart.

One evening he paused and looked over the fence at the bush. It seemed to have shrunk in size, and he gazed intently. Then, with a sudden impulse, he leaped the fence and walked over the grass. It was the same bush, but some hand had carefully pruned the branches until they appeared just above the ground. He broke off one close to the root and placed it in his pocket. All the way home he whistled softly to himself, wondering if Rose had pruned the little bush, hoping it would break forth into new life. Perhaps the awakening of spring was in her veins after all!

In his own room he looked at the branch and saw that the wood was quite dead and decayed. The little bush was dead indeed.

The next day he heard that Rose Brayton had gone away to visit a cousin until Easter, and with the knowledge came a daring idea. He drove over to the town that afternoon and visited a florist.

"I'll do the best I can," said the man doubtfully as he led Henry through the warm, sweet smelling rose houses. The sun shone down through the glass on the long rows of every variety of rosebush. Red and yellow, pink and white and cream beauties nodded from graceful stems above Henry's wistful eyes.

"Here is a little rose that may be just what you want, sir. It is budding finely now By forcing it I think I can promise you it will bloom on Easter Sunday If you put it in the ground, then as you say you want to do, I won't guarantee that it will live long, but if it's in a sunny garden it may do well enough after all."

"So long as it blooms on Easter Sunday I don't care," declared Henry recklessly, and after completing his arrangements he drove home again.

As he passed the Brayton house he saw Rose's mother bending over the little rosebush in the garden—the one Jim Carey had planted—and he wondered if it had really come to life again. He visited it late that night, feeling like a marauder as he invaded the silent moonlit garden. But the little bush remained unchanged—in fact, investigation showed that the stalks were quite dead.

On Good Friday he paid another visit to the florist and came home late at night with a large bundle propped carefully on the seat beside him. He learned that Rose was coming home late the next evening. She was to play the organ for the Easter music, and very likely she would go from the train straight to rehearsal in the church.

The moon had waned by this time, and the evenings were dark, and this condition suited Henry's purposes very well. He was in the church when Rose arrived with a little flurry of greeting from the members of the choir. There was to be special music for the occasion, and Henry and his violin had been pressed into service.

Rose bent her head in grave salutation as she passed him and seated herself at the organ. An instant later all personalities were drowned in the endeavor to bring the choir into accord with the music. When the rehearsal was over Henry did not wait for Rose Brayton. He tucked his violin carefully away in its case and went home.

It was long after midnight when he came forth from his own gate bearing a dark object in his arms. In one hand he carried a strong little spade. Although it was dark, the way to the rosebush in Rose Brayton's garden was familiar ground. At last he stood beside it for an instant irresolute. Around him the darkness seemed to press softly. He could smell the fresh turf, wet by recent rain, and the pungent odor of a yellow flowering shrub near by.

With a sudden impulse he bent down and dug up the dead roots of the little rosebush Jim Carey had planted. Then he replaced it with a strong, sturdy little bush he had obtained from the florist green with leaves and blushing with a multitude of half opened buds. Carefully, as well as he could in the darkness, he cleared away the debris and went home, but got to sleep. When morning came he was pale and tired eyed. In the church he purposely arranged his chair so that he might not meet Rose Brayton's eyes—indignant, contemptuous, as they must be. He heard her when she came in, and he was conscious of her presence throughout the service.

That evening the service was repeated, and the music wore upon his nerves, and he was glad when it was all over. He had escaped to the door when he saw Rose just ahead of him. She had declined a proffered escort and was flitting alone in the darkness. He caught a glimpse of a light colored dress, and as in a dream he heard one girl speak to another one, "Rose Brayton's got on a blue dress!"

He found himself speeding after Rose with a strange exultation in his heart. Could it be true, after all, that Rose might care for some one else? But perhaps it was somebody she had met while away. So he tortured himself as he followed her home. At the gate he put forth a detaining hand as it closed behind her.

"Rose," he said.

She paused and came toward him. There was, or he fancied it, a little tremble in her voice. "Yes," was all she said. He opened the gate and boldly took her hand. He led her across the grass to the spot where the rosebush was planted. A broad square of light from some window in the house formed a setting for the bush Henry had planted at midnight. Its pink blossoms seemed to clutch at his heart. So much depended on that little bush.

"I thought you said—you said the little bush was dead, Rose. Were you not surprised to come home and find it alive and blooming?" he asked.

Rose did not withdraw her hand from his—indeed, she drew a little closer. "Yes, I was surprised, Henry, but you see I have had so many surprises lately."

There was something in her voice that emboldened Henry to take her unresisting into his arms. "And what are the surprises, darling?" he asked.

"First, that you ran away so quickly that—other night here in the garden. Second, that I did not care after that whether the little bush lived or not. I am very shallow and wicked, I know. And, third"— She drew away and touched the pink roses with tender fingers.

"And third and last?" asked Henry, drawing closer to her face, radiant in the lamplight.

"Last of all, I am surprised to find pink roses growing on a little bush that has always borne white ones." She was laughing at his chagrin.

"I, too, am finding pink roses where white ones bloomed so long," said Henry, with sudden ardor. And then the pink roses in her cheeks changed to deeper crimson under the magic touch of his lips.

California Letter

Next to the marble shop which was in the east end of the block last mentioned, my father had a shoe shop where I think he remained until the block burned. The next place of business which I remember being in the block was the jewelry store of J. E. Hall. I remember that one time I threw some wood into the back end of the store for him, taking some trinket out of the store for pay. Once it was a snuff box which opened with a spring by pushing on both ends and in which I kept my little trinkets.

My memory fails to help me out in locating any more places of business in this old block though I know there were others before the fire.

After the fire I can call to mind but one building and that was at the west end next to the railroad, and occupied as a grocery by Alfred James and his father. For a time the brass band practiced over the grocery but later an ice cream parlor was established in that upper room.

It was with them that I had my first experience at clerking but it was of such short duration I presume it is forgotten by all others but myself. It was in the spring of 1858. I boarded with "Alf" and did his chores. I think I was with them less than a month when I quit or was fired, do not remember which, and went into the harvest field for Mrs. Bacon, west of Judge Stacy's.

Crossing the railroad we come to Snell's Tavern. Recently Mrs. Abbie Fisher sent me a post card of that old Tavern taken in 1850 with its little bell on top of the front gable and the town pump which at the time this picture was taken, was an endless chain pump, but I can remember when it was an old time wooden one with its squeak, squak, squeak. In the winter a great mound of ice would form around it, so high at times that it would have to be cut away under the spout to let a pail under.

Looking at the picture of that old building now it seems as though it was but yesterday that I, a boy, passed by it, saw and heard the old pump and dinner bell and saw familiar forms in doors or lounging around outside; as though it was but yesterday that I saw the old stage coach from the north drive up to the door and passengers alight.

Speaking of stage coach days, there comes to my mind an incident, more properly speaking, an accident which happened to the Clinton stage one morning. It was while the bridge over the creek at the old tannery was washed out by the spring freshit and all teams were obliged to turn west at the Episcopal church, go around our place which was at the foot of what is now Pearl st., and cross the creek north of the tannery and reach the main road by passing the bank sheds and my uncle Charles Stocking's place. Just east of our house was a short steep hill. In going down this the stage tipped over, considerably shaking up the passengers, one of whom was my sister Sarah. No one was seriously injured but in those days it was quite an exciting event.

Right here I want to say a little more about that "old home"; the one in which I was born Jan. 28, 1840, and in which we lived until the railroad was built to Clinton, cutting the place up so badly that father sold it

In the Historical, Biographical and Descriptive book of Tecumseh, published in 1895, on page 62, while looking at a picure of the Temple, McClure & Co., planing mill I was surprised to see a small picture of the old house in which I was born 70 years ago. There it stood, with its wide, gently sloping roof on the west side, on which I have dried many bushel of nuts. A something persists in coming up in my throat and my eyes blur a little when I notice how the dear old home is shorn of all the trees and shrubs that once surrounded on three sides; large cherry trees on the east and a row of locust trees on the west side, roses, lilacs, pinks, a tall handsome balsam of fir which furnished a balsam for all of our cuts and bruises, and between the east and west front doors was a high arbor over the walk covered with sweet honeysuckle, under which I spent many hours in play and reading. I would like to take the reader into that old house and show in as it was in those long ago days but forbear for fear of becoming wearisome.

Going back up town and resuming our walk we come to a place which in these days would be called a saloon, but was then known as a "doggery," kept by Samuel Nibbleck, a place our parents requested us to shun, and for one I needed no warning, for from early boyhood I had no desire to enter the door of such places, and the gilded, high toned saloons of later years have had no attractions for me. I have never yet found and logical reason for their existence while I have found many for their non-existence.

Speaking of saloons, has Tecumseh felt any inconvenience from their absence? How many families are mourning their absence? Probably the saloonists and possibly their families miss the income from them but let the men get busy at some more honorable business. I most heartily wish that our dear good old Uncle Samuel would come out from his partnership with the liquor forces and wipe his hands of the whole nefarious business and cease to countenance it in any form, not only this but turn all his guns on this enemy of all man and womankind. W. P. Stocking.

(To be concluded Tuesday, June 21.)

OBITUARY

Miss Eleanor Goff.

Just when young womanhood had reached its most pleasant hour, and the world seemed brightest and fairest, Eleanor has been called home.

For months she has been hoping and fearing under the flattering disease consumption, and at the last when hope could no longer endure, she gave up all, and made all arrangements for her final departure To her minister she gave the text and hymns for her funeral and to her friends she spoke words of comfort and cheer, and then gave herself up to her Father in Heaven and waited till he should call her.

She was a bright ambitious girl and loved her school and it was hard for her to give it up. But "God touched her with His finger and she slept." And now that she sleeps, memory takes up the harp of life, and touching its strings finds that her virtues melt into music.

To the lone mother, the loving sister and the many friends we extend our loving sympathy in this, their hour of greatest need. May they find comfort and peace with Him "Who giveth his beloved sleep."

Bill's Mistake

Original

"Bill's got quite an eye on him this mornin'," remarked the man with the hod, pausing at the mortar box to wipe the honest dew of toil from his brow.

"I noticed that myself," said the man with the hoe.

"He don't act like a fightin' man," said the hodcarrier. "I'd took him for a feller 'at wouldn't git into no trouble he could keep out of."

"He ain't a fightin' man," said the man with the hoe. "He's a married man. She done it. She's a terror, all right. If I was Bill I'd do one o' two things; I'd take a pick handle some time to her or else I'd quit her."

"No you wouldn't," said the man with the hod. "That wouldn't be no way to do. Takin' a pick handle to a woman ain't no way to reform her, an' if you quit her you'd have trouble."

"You don't know the kind o' woman Bill's got," said the man with the hoe. "I've lived neighbors with 'em for nigh on to a year, an' I do. Jest as soon as he gets home she starts to chewin' the rag an' she don't give him no peace from that till he goes to work ag'in. I've seen him come out o' the house many's the time with half o' the kitchen dishes streakin' after him. She don't think nothin' o' throwin' a stove lid at him. Some o' these days she'll aim straight an' then there'll be an inquest."

"He don't handle her right," said the man with the hod, positively.

"That's what I'm tellin' you. He ought to pickhandle her."

"I don't mean that. I mean he don't use no judgment. I don't have no trouble with my woman, an' I never took a pick handle to her either. When I git home there's my supper waitin' for me on the table good an' hot, an' never a cross word atwixt us. What's the reason? I know how to manage her. A woman ain't hard to manage if you go about it right."

"Sure," agreed the man with the hoe sarcastically. "It's as easy as making $10 a day. You git a woman like Billy's got the next time you get one an' then come around an' let me know how it goes."

"I don't know what kind of a woman Billy's got," retorted the man with the hod, "but I know I could handle her all right. If Billy has trouble with her he's got himself to blame for it. If Billy's woman has got any worse tongue than what my woman's got if she gits stirred up, I'd like to stand off somewheres an' hear it, jest out o' curiousity. That's what. If she can think of meaner things to say an' say 'em louder I'd like to hear her, an' if she can keep at it longer I'd like to time her an' give her the world's champeen medal when she gits through. An' when it comes to backin'up what she says—say, what does Billy's wife weigh?"

"About a hundred'n' thirty, I'd judge," replied the man with the hoe.

"My woman weighs a hundred an' seventy-eight, an' she's as quick as a cat," said the man with the hod. "If she lands on you you'll know it, all right, I've seen her pick up our cook stove and carry it out into the summer kitchen as easy as if it was a basket o' clo'es. All the same, you don't see me comin' to work with a black eye or dodging stove lids."

"Maybe your wife ain't got that ugly disposition," hazarded the man with the hoe.

"She's got her days when she ain't feelin' right good, jest the same as any of 'em," said the man with the hod. "But them's the days I step around extry soft an' keerful. I could git trouble if I wanted it an' git it easy an' plenty, but I don't. There's jest one way to do with a woman like that. Handle her right. If she wants to do anythin' let her do it an' don't make no bones about it an' if she wants you to do anythin' do it, and do it prompt an' cheerful, an' she won't be hard on you. When we was first married we had our little difficulties, same's most people, but I soon see what was the right way to handle her."

"That's all right if you want a woman to boss you," said the man with the hoe.

"Boss nothin';" said the man with the hod, indignantly. "She don't never try to boss me. If I give in to her it's because I want to."

The Sleeping Sickness.

How important it is that a remedy should be discovered for sleeping sickness may be judged from Dr. Todd's estimate, drawn from his investigations on the West Coast of Africa for the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine, that in ten years the mortality in Africa from the disease has been from 400,000 to 600,000 persons.

GUARDING PAPER MONEY.

Checks Against Thefts of Currency While in the Process of Printing

The paper money of the Government is brought in iron-bound chests locked and sealed, from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to the cash room of the Treasury and there delivered upon receipt to James A. Sample, chief of the division of issue, in sheets of four bills each. They are complete with signature and numbers, except for the seal, which is printed upon them with power presses in a small apartment under the cash room.

These presses are worked by two people, usually a man pressman and a woman feeder or assistant. When the seal has been imprinted upon the bills they are counted automatically bound in packages of equal numbers by bands of paper, marked, signed by the persons who have handled them, and passed into the adjoining room, where the sheets are cut, the bills are recounted and inspected, so that the imperfect ones may be thrown out. They are then bound into packages of equal amounts and taken to the drying vault, where they lie upon the shelves for several weeks until the ink has become perfectly dry.

Every safeguard that ingenuity can contrive is placed around these transactions, and the chief of division can tell which of his hundred or more subordinates have touched the different bills in the vaults. He knows who received them, who printed the seal, who wrapped and cut them; for every package is numbered and its history is recorded in an enormous book.

The combination of checks is so complete that Mr. Sample would know within 20 minutes if a single bill were missing, but he has never had occasion to test this knowledge except twice within 15 years. Only two attempts have ever been made to steal the money of the Government while it is in this stage of its history.

On one occasion many years ago a pressman passing a pile of notes upon the table of his neighbor slipped the top sheet under his blouse without being observed and carried it with him into the lavatory, where he was successful in concealing it. The theft was discovered within five minutes and it was clearly apparent that he alone could be guilty, although the evidence was purely circumstantial. No one saw him take the money. Therefore he was not arrested and was never publicly charged with the crime. But he was dismissed from the service and he knew the reason why. The bills were never recovered. He probably destroyed them, as they did not appear in circulation.

On another occasion eight or ten years ago a colored messenger whose business was to haul the money about on a cart slipped a loose sheet into his pocket unobserved while passing between the printing and counting rooms. This theft was also unseen, but the responsibility was fastened upon him. The pile of notes was complete when it left the printer, for it was counted and registered automatically in the press. When it reached the counting room one sheet was missing and the package had not been out of the possession of the colored messenger in the meantime. Therefore he alone was responsible and as he could not offer any satisfactory explanation he, too, was dismissed from the service, but was not prosecuted because there was no direct proof of his guilt.—Chicago Record-Herald.

How one man fooled his wife

She had been using her "favorite" baking powder. Wouldn't think of trying anything else, because "mother always used it," or some similar excuse. Hubby said she was prejudiced. He figured if Calumet, the new baking powder, selling at a moderate price, could be so successful, there must be some good in it. So he took a hand, and bought a can of Calumet, emptied the can containing her "favorite" baking powder and filled it with Calumet.

That evening, unsuspecting the trick, Wifey prepared and served some of her famous biscuit—piping hot, temptingly browned and puffed up to airy lightness, they were even more delicious than usual. Hubby, after considerable difficulty, succeeded in convincing her that the basis of the improvement was Calumet Baking Powder. And so an everlasting friend for Calumet was made.

This truthful little incident simply proves that the housewife is oftimes prejudiced against all baking powders except the one she has been using for years. She imagines that no other kind can possibly be as good. This is a mistaken impression. A trial of Calumet will prove that it is purer, more reliable; it has a greater leavening power than any other baking powder made. And it is moderate in price.

A Royal Connoisseur.

James B. Laughlin, of Pittsburg, recently discovered a hoax in his gallery and compelled a dealer to refund the $9,500 that had been paid for a $30 work of art.

Mr. Laughlin, as this episode shows, is a connoisseur of no mean ability. At a recent dinner he pointed out brilliantly the limitations and the shallowness of "court painters." Then he laughed and said:

"A movement was on foot for the alliance of King Charles of Wurtemberg and the Grand Duchess Olga of Russia. An emissary of the Russian court came to the young king, laid certain proposals before him and submitted a portrait in oils of the royal lady.

"King Charles, after a close scrutiny, said:

"'This portrait flatters overmuch. The eyes are too large and brilliant, the hair too abundant, the complexion too flower-like and the neck and arms too beautiful altogether.'

"'But your majesty,' said the astonished Russian, 'you do not know the Grand Duchess.'

"'No,' said the king, 'but I know court painters.'"

Saturday Evening Post: The Earl of Warwick was a guest at a recent dinner of the Gridiron club in Washington. One of the skits was based on President Roosevelt's coming trip to Africa, and in it a small tent was used. Also the names of strange animals, such as bongo and wiffletit, were introduced.

"Reah-ally," said the Earl, "I am surprised anybody should think the President could get along with so small a tent as that. It is quite unsuitable, I assure you. I have traveled extensively in Africa and I feel suah he will be disappointed if he expects to find animals there with such strange cognomens as those introduced in this portrayal."

An old Irishman named Casey made a lot of money as a contractor and built a fine house for his children.

The sons and daughters were much ashamed of the plebian father, and Casey was always kept in the rear of the house when they had a party or a reception. One day Casey died and there was a great to-do about it. The children had a fine coffin, with lashings of flowers, and Casey was laid in state in the parlor.

That evening an old Irish woman, who had known Casey when he was a laborer, came and asked to see the face of her dead friend. They conducted her to the parlor.

She walked up to the coffin, took a long look and said: "Faith, Casey, an' they've let ye into th' parlor at lasht"

Sunflower Philosophy.

After you pass 50 it will jar you to hear a boy refer to his father as "the Old Man."

After a man weighs 190 pounds he finds out at breakfast what he is to have for dinner.

When a woman gets on her newest dress she is at least ten big slices thinner than when around her work.

It is always said of the best of them, "He is a good man, but"—And he has to die in order to get that word "but" cut off.

It is a wonder a floral emblem bearing the words, "He Is Better Off," was never sent to a funeral. That is the general sentiment.

Every girl makes up her mind early that if she ever marries she will not be as patient as her mother has always been.

When a young man selects a wife his relatives ask with indignation what he can see in her, though secretly wondering what the girl can see in him.

A preacher was called upon recently to tell a dying man that the end was near. He said nothing about repentance or hell; he told the man he was about to go on a little journey and that at its end he would meet all the good friends who had gone before. He must not be afraid, he told him; all would be well. And the man died with a pleasant smile on his face. The incident is an illustration of the great change in sentiment. Two generations ago the preacher would have talked brimstone to the man about to depart.

Once in politics, always in politics

Don't expect presents all the time; occasionally give one.

Don't expect any friend to give you more than your money's worth.

Every man has some friend to whom he complains of his job and his kin.

Some people pay no attention to meanness unless they find it in others.

A man hates to put on a pair of new shoes nearly as badly as he hates to go to a party.

Men's underwear on the clothes line on wash day never looks as immodest as the other kind.

Women complain that their husbands are not gallant, and then permit their daughters to wait on their brothers.

When a man gets a letter from his girl it has more "I's" in it than the letter he gets from his mother; that runs to "You's."—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.
